The size of the track.—The path should be neither too small nor too large, not more than four laps to the mile, nor less than three. The four-lap track we rather favor as the best and most convenient size. The public can see every incident of the race, and the intermediate quarter-mile times can be taken on one watch, and not checked by two or three different timekeepers. If a track is necessarily smaller than four laps to the mile special attention must be given to the banking of the corners.

The shape of the track.—This will of course depend much upon the ground on which the track is to be built. The sharper your corners, the greater the chance for accident, and the possibility of fast time is much reduced. We incline most decidedly to an oval shape, with the finishing side flattened so as to give a straight run home. Let the rest of the track be almost all on the curve, so that the corners at the two ends will be made as gradual as possible.

The width.—We do not think it safe or advisable to build a track less than 20 feet wide, with a straight finish 40 feet wide.

The bottom of the track.—On this—the basis of the path—everything depends. Should the proposed ground possess a sound subsoil, such as gravel or chalk, the work and the expense will be much lightened, and in any case the track excavations should be taken down to this hard base, if by any means possible. If, on the other hand, the subsoil is clay, sand, or any similar treacherous basis, the bottom must be made hard and solid before the delicate top is put on.

The foundation must be made of solid rubble, the bricks from a dismantled house, large clinkers from ironworks and similar places; in fact, any heavy rubbish, except unbroken boulders. The bottom of the trench—the depth of which will wholly depend upon the necessity or otherwise of putting in an extra solid basis—should be rammed with paviors' rammers till quite solid, and then the heavy rubble should be also pounded in piece by piece until a smooth and quite solid base is formed. This first bottoming being level, the architect of the track must next consider his "bevelling," ie., the raising of the outside edge of the track on all curves, and to make a sound job of this the bevelling should be considered from the first. The solid rubble base should therefore be made thicker at the outer edge round all the curves, gradually coming down to the level on the straights. The trench should have perpendicular sides, and should be the full width of the intended track. The thickness of this heavy rubble foundation will wholly depend on the subsoil; it may be almost unnecessary, or may have to be a foot or two thick. Where the ground slopes it may be necessary to make a cutting through a bank in one place, and carry the track well above the level of the field in another, and, if the subsoil is sound, the foundation may be very thin in the cutting, and two or three feet thick in the embankment. The whole object of this solid foundation is to prevent settling, and every dollar expended upon the foundation will save ten dollars worth of labor upon the surface of the path in the end. Therefore, look that your foundation is right, as the first and most important consideration.

JOHN L. STOUT FALLS DEAD.

JUST as we go to press we receive the report that John L. Stout, the deaf mute Star trick rider, fell dead from his machine, in Kansas City, while giving a performance. We hope the report will prove to be untrue. [Later.—The rumor is confirmed.—ED.]

WESTERN WHEELMEN'S LEAGUE.

A MEETING was held at Denver, Col., on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of organizing a Western League.

This association will be in the interest of bicycling and the promoting of racing. It is intended to cover all the territory west of the Missouri river. Its principal object is to do away with professionalism, and have all races run on the "class" system, the same as in trotting associations.

THE MISSOURI BICYCLE BILL.

THE now celebrated Warner bill is having a rocky old time in the Legislature. The ridiculous dismount clause has been killed, and as ordered engrossed the amended bill will read as follows:

"Section 1. It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in any race, mounted on any vehicle usually called velocipede, or bicycle, on any highway or public road in any of the counties, outside of any city limits, in this State.

Sec. 2. Any person and persons violating the preceding section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum more than $100; and he shall moreover be liable to other persons who may have sustained damages by reason of the frightening or running away of horses or mules, to be recovered by civil action in any court having competent jurisdiction."

There is doubt that even the bill as amended will ever become a law. As boiled down, it is simply a law prohibiting cycle racing on the road, a measure against which we cannot conscientiously raise a protest.

"PENNSY'S" LAST SMOKER.

HANDSOMELY-ENGRAVED invitations furnished the open sesame at the door of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club last Friday evening.

The Glee Club opened the programme with several choice selections. Then followed vocal solos by J. F. Braun and J. S. Bretz, and piano duetts by A. F. Bracher and J. F. Braun. With some difficulty the rooms were then cleared for an exhibition of legerdemain, by Mr. J. A. Sperry, of New York. Mr. Sperry also favored the company with several fine recitations, and later in the evening with an exhibition of finger billiard playing, some of his work in this direction being simply wonderful. A zither solo by Mr. Deeg came next, and during its performance the doors of the ladies' room, in which the lunch was laid, were thrown open, but in spite of the fact that cyclers are usually a hungry crowd, very little attention was paid to the spread, the tip having been given that the sparring was about to begin on the upper floor.

All of the bouts were between professionals. Dennis Killen and Joseph Killen, two heavy weights, led off, but although they were evidently good men yet their wholesome respect for each other prevented that lively work which brings down the house. A more lively affair was that between Walter Campbell and Professor Moore, in which the former bore off the honors, showing better science than Moore, as indeed he ought to be, having for his father-in-law no less a personage than Arthur Chambers. The final bout was hot and it took the boys, arousing the greatest enthusiasm.

Among the visitors were prominent men from all the city clubs, the Century and South End being particularly well represented, and it was both a hungry and thirsty crowd that made a break for the supper room after the sparring, where claret cup, lemonade and sundry edibles comforted the inner man. The committee in charge of this very successful affair were: Messrs. A. F. Bracher, Chairman; J. A. Taylor, J. S. Bretz, S. E. Battersburg, J. F. Brainard, W. A. Stadelman.

"ARIEL."

Philadelphia, March 18, 1889.

A NEWSPAPER BICYCLE CLUB.

THE following notice has been sent out to the newspaper men of Boston:

"All those who see the healthful benefits and social pleasures to be derived by the formation of a bicycle club, composed exclusively of attaches of Boston newspapers, are requested to meet in Room 52, Herald office, at 4 o'clock P. M., March 21, when the subject will be discussed, and, if thought advisable, steps will be taken toward forming a permanent organization."

GREAT CENTURY RUN, 1889.

THE committee in charge of the great century run for 1889 have decided to set the date for the same for Saturday, June 8th, unless it should be found that this conflicts with the date of the L. A. W. meet.

The rendezvous will be made at Orange on the previous evening, and good accommodations will be provided. The route will lie through Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield, New Brunswick, Princeton, Trenton to Philadelphia.

The run is open to all wheelmen. Arrangements will be made for photographs of the party at different towns on the route. Fuller particulars later.

L. A. CLARKE,
25 Broad St., New York City. Chairman and Secretary.

SOME MEN I HAVE MET ON THE RIPLEY ROAD, AND FAIN WOULD MEET AGAIN—BY "JACK."

(Concluded.)

SWINDLEY, good fellow, with his bland smile and his Kennedy-Child manner, and the yellow handkerchief peeping out of his pocket, dressed in cyclist grey and white "sweater," is working honestly on the steering seat of the tandem. I slow up as I cannot hold them, and up comes a wee mannie on a 50-inch Rational. A little man with an exquisite and colossal moustache, and double eyeglasses. "Hello," chirps Mr. Tommy Moore, of a paper with a very long name. "First time I've been out this month," and then that funny, double-you-up laugh of his breaks forth, as he comes to some rising ground, and his little black-stockinged legs fly round. "Swish" goes C. H. Larette on his "Olympia;" "Great Scott," snickers Tommy, "but Larette is in a hurry, as usual," and past us goes a little man, of middle age, in a brown suit, who seems endowed with remarkable energy: Larette, the editor of the Athletic Journal, who "lets me have it" occasionally in his cycling column.

Coming from Ripley is a handsome, brown-skinned, brown-eyed boy, with a wreath of blue-black "Indian" straight hair, driving a high geared light safety with the regularity and grace of a piece of machinery. It is G. T. Langridge, Captain of the North Road Club, one of the fastest men on the road. As fine and frank a man and gentleman as ever rode a wheel is the great North Road rider (who now, by the way, rides a "Rational," and swears by it). Some happy rides I have had with G. T.

But what hateful "sound is that assails mine ears?" "Oh, that's 'Bath Road Smith,'" says Langridge. "With his confounded 'Otto' horn," says Tommy Moore, as he indulges in one of his bend-you-up snickers. A little sandy haired man, on a fast "Cumber" safety, with his right hand clasping a rubber horn painted blue, the color of a wai cycle, or one of the blue monkeys that climb up a yellow stick (you know, the misery toy). By the compression of a rubber ball at the end of the horn tube, a series of groans and jerky jackass brays are produced, which delight Smith's uncultured, unmusical ear, and are the cause of many solitary rides, for although Smith is a favorite his horn is known, despised and detested along the road. With his grey cap on the back of his head he whirls along, and will soon be sitting on one of the tables at "the Talbot," in Ripley. He it was who won the 50-mile Bath Road race last year, in excellent time. A good fellow, but with a horn in whose note is embodied what Carlyle would call "the maximum of detestability."

A tall, dark man riding with rythmetical movement a 58-inch ordinary, is no other than Geo. Lacy Hillier. Close on his heels is a great admirer of his, Harold Woller, a clean cut, slim youth on a 50-inch New Rapid, who will yet be able to show men the pace on the road. To speak of Mr. Lacy Hillier will be to enter upon an old subject. One of the editors of Bicycling News, the writer of "The History of Cycling" (Badminton Library), and an old ex-champion for long and short distances, his name is too well known to need mention.

Coming grinning up the road at a good pace, on a heavy machine, is little G. H. St. Clair-Granville. His babonic actions at the "Talbot," and his "Giant" song, are well known, and have endeared him to many a one. He is the man who tempted me out in a Scotch kilt for a 50-mile ride on a Humber tandem. No, I shall never forget the glory of that ride, dressed in the "garb of Old Gaul," as C. W. Nairn put it. Although a Teddington (Middlesex) man, St. Clair-Granville spends most of his days (and his money) at Ripley.

On the steep hill into Ripley we feel the wind of an "Olympia tandem," and hear Freddy Cooper's famous yell, as he steers one of his own machines at a frantic pace (peculiarly Freddy Cooper's) down the hill, with Sydney Chalk, of the Roads' Record Committee, on the front seat. Close behind comes A. B. Gossett, a 250-mile tricycle veteran on his famous "Ripley" trike, and gracefully pedalling a tall, light looking machine, is Teddy Mayes, the Ripley Road flyer. A good looking, frank Englishman is Teddy Mayes, always sure of the sympathy of the ladies, as he pushes his Humber racer to glory on the path.

As we sit on the wall opposite the "Anchor" we see quite a number of well known men. On a "Kildare" safety of graceful outline, sits the great and only Sydney Lee, the Pope Mfg. Co.'s English agent. "His peculiar form of salutation" is given with his head lifted to one side, and with a twinkle in his grey eyes, which are always busy searching a man through, to see how much of his yarn he believes. A good fellow and honest man is Auctioneer Sydney.

A little, thick set fellow (a six-foot man moulded down into about five feet six, with curly yellow hair and a red perspiring face) is G. L. Morris, the great road and path racer, on his 24-pound road racing "Referee" safety, an honest and fast mount. Riding up at a leisurely gait, as though he were on the outlook for an item, is our friend and co-editor of Bicycling News, "Comus," or Hubert Kelly. Kelly, the polite and courteous; Kelly, the unsuspecting; a personal friend of the Le Feur brothers, who have not been heard from since they struck up the dark waters of the Amazon. Dear old Kelly. Ever on the lookout for "Hum of the Wheel" (the caption of his Bicycling News column). Seated in the "Anchor" we find Harold Crooke, of Guildford, a thoroughbred and a good rider, winner of some long road rides, 100 miles, etc. He rides a thirty-pound "New Rapid," good road or bad road, without lamp or brake. Seated in the parlor, talking to "Harriet," is Mr. Geo. Wheeler, of Wandsworth, a grey-haired gentleman, who rides a Marlboro' Club tricycle. A plucky rider for a man past the meridian of life.

And there are many more notables who are well known on the road, but of them and others more anon.

GREAT CLEARANCE SALE.

A CHANCE to secure a new machine at a great reduction is offered by Messrs. Singer & Co.—witness the following circular:

"The machines on this list are offered at a great reduction of price to effect a clearance. They are all new and of best material and workmanship, but in some cases not of present standard pattern, while others are styles of machines that, in order to reduce the number of our patterns, we are discontinuing to make. The prices quoted are already very low, but we are prepared to consider offers for two or more machines. The tricycles offer a rare opportunity for those who may require machines for hiring purposes, and the stock being limited, intending purchasers should order at once.

SINGER & CO.,
Boston, Mass., March, 1889. 6 and 8 Berkeley street.

[We should advise our readers sending for their clearance catalogue.—ED.]

"You are doubtless interested in cycling progress, here as elsewhere, hence I write to say that the season's outlook here is flattering. Yesterday (15th) was our first "sunshiny" day—thermometer 70 degrees. Pope Mfg. Co.'s store had nearly 100 people in it from 11 to 2 continuously; Spaldings not so many, but a larger proportion of buyers; Western Arms Co. had a large crowd all day, and Stokes the same. I have witnessed the opening of a good many cycling seasons in Chicago, but have never seen anything like the present scramble to get wheels. In Spaldings saw four men standing in line for their turn at the manager's desk all with a large roll of bills in their hands. Report of sales from the four leading houses establishes an average of 10 safeties to every "ordinary" sold. Every one is "guessing" regarding the "Stroller's" identity, he is creating lots of talk here and all eagerly scan the paper every Monday for his notes. Gormully & Jeffery also on the boom and report big sales." The above comes to us from Chicago.

MR. ARTHUR STIDWELL, for four years the manager of the Repair Department of Stoddard, Lovering & Co., has severed his connection with that firm, and will hereafter conduct a general repair business on his own account, for the present retaining his old rooms at 152 Congress street.

"NEW RAPID Cycles again to the front. The three machines used by Messrs. Butteridge, Bloxham and Hitchcock (viz., two bicycles and one safety) on their extraordinary ride from Sydney to Brisbane, a distance of 730 miles, in eleven days, were "New Rapids," and these gentlemen report to us that they had no need to touch them with a spanner during the whole distance, though each rider carried over 20lbs. of luggage. Comment is needless."—Australian Exchange.

L. H. JOHNSON reports a brisk demand for Premier Safeties and Tandems, the sterling qualities of Hillman, Herbert & Cooper's machines, well known to all riders of the Kangaroo, being manifested by the orders for their various patterns of rear-drivers, from all over the country. The Special Premier Safety has become a great favorite with both ladies and gentlemen, having been especially designed and manufactured for Mr. Johnson's trade.

THE New Rapids are taking immensely in Chicago and they should, that is, if merit is any reason why a wheel should sell.

A. G. SPALDING & BROS' catalogue for 1889 is out. It contains 64 pages exclusive of covers. Everything a cycler can possibly want can be found catalogued. They have adopted an ingenious telegraphic code whereby a man can order any machine they handle by the use of just one word. Their leading machine is of course the Victor.

ADVERTISE your second-hand wheel now. This is the medium, read the testimonial of Singer Co. on Editorial page.

EVERY dealer should have automatic box at his store. Hear what C. Schwalbach of Brooklyn says, "I am pleased to call the attention of wheelmen to the pleasant properties and value of Tutti Frutti chewing gum. Since placing the gum on sale in my wheel headquarters at Prospect Park, it has become a great favorite with the hundreds of bicyclists who frequent my store. Those who use it on the road once never afterwards go out riding without it. It keeps the mouth moist by inducing a plentiful supply of saliva, is pleasant to the taste and greatly aids digestion. My sales have remarkably increased, and I think Tutti Frutti has come to stay among the wheelmen. I almost forgot to say that all racing men use it.

THE New Mail in New York.—The New York City agents for New Mails are Messrs. Schoverling, Daly & Gales, of 302 Broadway, a house which has long occupied an established position in the fire-arms and sporting goods world. The firm have an elegant store on Broadway, and the New Mails show to advantage in their windows, attracting much attention. The bicycle department is on the first floor, and is in charge of L. B. Whymper. A large stock of 1889 New Mails is already in this department, as well as a line of American cycles, and boys' and girls' bicycles, tricycles and velocipedes.

WITHOUT doubt one of the handsomest catalogues ever published is that of Norman & Bennett, manufacturers of athletic and outing foot wear. This beautiful pamphlet soars above the ordinary, it is a work of art in its original illustrations. It also contains a full set of the tennis rules of the U. S. T. A. Send to Norman & Bennett, 133 Oliver st., for a copy, and mention this paper.

THE Coventry Machinist Co.'s catalogue for 1889 is now out and we would advise our readers to send to them at No. 239 Columbus avenue, for a copy.

AN informal reception to wheelmen, to commemorate the opening of the riding season and the opening of the Pope Mfg. Co.'s entire building to the interests of cycling, will be held at the Pope Mfg. Co.'s offices and ware rooms, 77 Franklin street, Boston, on Saturday, the 30th inst., from 6 to 10 P. M. A first class entertainment will be provided and a fine collation served. It is the intention to send invitations to all wheelmen of Boston and vicinity. It is impossible to obtain a complete list, and the Pope Mfg. Co. announce that they will take pleasure in sending an invitation to any wheelman who will send them his address on or before Thursday, the 28th inst.

TESTIMONIAL.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. January 15, 1889.

Erie Knitting Mill—Frank Fairbairn:

Dear Sir—Having worn my Jersey Bicycle Suit, made by the Erie Knitting Mill, and having satisfied myself that it is the best suit that has ever come to my attention, and the best I have ever worn, I having tried all jersey cloth and knitted jersey. So I have deemed it my duty to recommend it to all wheelmen as the best wearing of any goods I have yet seen. And as a testimonial will suffice to say that after trying your Jersey Bicycle suits for wheeling, it will be found to fill the bill, and no other need apply. I speak from my own experience, and others that have tried the suits will agree with me. Wishing you a prosperous year,

I remain yours, etc., HAL. W. GREENWOOD.

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 11, 1889.

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.

Gentlemen—I am very highly pleased thus far with the 39 inch, as a road machine. It is a better hill climber than any machine I have ever before ridden, for all I can see it is just about as speedy as the larger sizes, and I am astonished to find so slight a difference if any, in the jar on rough roads.

Very cordially yours,

DR. J. HOWARD MORGAN.

MARVA, Ill., Dec. 7, 1888.

Sir—I have rode a crank wheel for 12 years, but last season I bought a Star; I would not give it for any wheel I was ever on, for all round riding and tricks.

Yours respectfully,

SILAS LONG.

JACKSON CENTRE, O., Aug. 21, 1888.

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.

Dear Sir—I can say in regard to the wheel (Star) that it is the lightest running, best hill climbing, and speediest wheel I have ever ridden, and I have tried both the "crank" and lever wheels. Yours respectfully,

J. E. MERANDA.

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 7, 1888.

THE STAR MFG. CO.

I have been riding a 51-inch American Star for the past few months, and find it a constantly increasing source of pleasure. I am city editor of the Chester Times, and find my wheel valuable in reaching suburban points quickly. A friend also began riding a crank when I started in on my Star; has three times broken his handle-bar by headers, while I haven't spent a dollar for repairs to my machine, and it is an old wheel, while his is new.

THE NEW STAR, 39x24

This in brief is my experience with a Star, and though it is of the old pattern I wouldn't exchange with any one of the other fellows. If you wish to use this as a testimonial I have no objections. Very truly yours,

T. W. ENTWISLE.

LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS:
12 Pearl Street, - - - - Room 27.
ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

THE books for renewals are now open and fees will be received from this date. We publish in this issue a renewal blank which we hope will be universally used. A blank of this kind is more satisfactory than a notice of renewal written on a note or letter sheet. Club secretaries will be supplied with these blanks free of charge on application. Chief Consuls may have renewal blanks in quantities for recruiting purposes on application.

THE books of the League for 1888-9 are now closed, and those for 1889-90 are opened. Applicants may now send $2 and they will be put on the books for the year ending April 30, 1890. No further lists will be published till April 5, and on that date the candidates will be applicants for membership for the year impending.

THE Governor has signed the New Jersey Road Bill and it is a law. New Jersey leads the way.

THE Keystone Bicycle Club has done well. How satisfactory it would have been had every club in the country come to the rescue of the League after the manner of this club. The League exercises a great influence by the force of numbers. Its influence would be greater did it have a fat treasury.

WE are now receiving applications at $2 for 1889-90. The first list will be issued April 5th.

NEW YORK members will notice that their dues are now uniform with those of the other Divisions, and renewals from that State will now be received.

IN making out renewal blanks members will oblige the Secretary if they will cut from the wrapper of their BULLETINS the address label and paste it on the blank, correcting any error in spelling or address. This will serve the double purpose of giving us a legible blank and keeping our mail list correct.

Chief Consul Bidwell Resigns.

To the members of the New York State Division L. A. W.:

Gentlemen—It is with regret that I am obliged to tender my resignation as Chief Consul of the New York State Division, but my business and personal affairs demand my entire time and attention while the chief officer of an organization of the magnitude and importance of ours should be one with more leisure than I have at my command. By provision made in our By-law Mr. W. S. Bull, the present Vice Consul succeeds to the office made vacant by my resignation. Usually in surrendering a charge such as mine is and has been, the organization is apt to be adversely affected and fall behind until the new officer gets proper control, but I can confidently say, and in fact guarantee, to you that this effect will not be traceable in this case and the New York Division under his management will not recede from its present position, and will in fact show the usual increase in strength from month to month. Mr. Bull has been closely identified with me in the management of the Division. He is conversant with all the plans and methods used in perfecting its organization and increasing its membership, is thoroughly acquainted with the prospects in view for future work of the Division and will devote himself to the objects giving even more time and thought than I have done. Before closing I desire to thank the members and officers of this Division past and present, for the very hearty support they have accorded my administration, and ask the same support and friendship for my successor. Yours fraternally, G. R. BIDWELL.

New York, March 12, 1889.

New York Half Holiday.

The following communication would have been brought before the meeting of the New York Division Board of Officers, called for March 4th, but the meeting was not held for want of a quorum, and it is given here.

Fraternally, GEO. R. BIDWELL.

Geo. R. Bidwell, Chief Consul:

Dear Sir.—This club having instructed me to take steps for the circulation among wheelmen of a petition against the Rhodes Bill now before the Assembly for the abolition of a Saturday half holiday and the substitution therefor of a whole holiday on Saturdays during July and August, it has seemed best to me to bring the matter before the State Board of Officers L. A. W., and I would be glad if you would submit it to the Board.

The bill in question proposes to add not over fifty hours of recreation during the year to that enjoyed by the clerks, bookkeepers etc. who form so large a part of the membership of the League, and to take away from nearly three times as much that is now at their disposal. The proposition is, moreover, a deceptive one; because Saturdays in July and August are already practically a full holiday. It is in reality an insidious attempt to abolish by indirect means a weekly breathing spell to which the business community has already adopted itself and is now, as a whole, well satisfied with.

The New York Club, therefore, suggests that such a petition as the endorsed be published in the BULLETIN, with the request that members of the New York State Division cut it out and return with their signatures to the Chief Consul who shall, when the proper time arrives, present it either to the Governor or the Legislature, as may seem most likely to be efficacious.

Very truly yours, E. J. SHRIVER,
President N. Y. Bi. C.

To His Excellency, the Governor, and the Honorable Legislature of the State of New York.

The undersigned respectfully prays that no change be made in the present law establishing a half holiday on Saturdays throughout the year; and especially protests against the enactment into law of the bill introduced into the Assembly for the substitution, therefore, of a whole holiday during the months of July and August; which would take away a needed time for rest at that portion of the year when the strain of business life makes it most useful without any adequate compensation.

Fire Brick Pavements.

Fire Brick Pavements were tried in Western cities and in the South a few years ago. The first results were very promising. Who can tell us if the pavement is a success? We have had inquiries in this direction and will be glad to hear from any one who can tell us of the expense, durability etc. of this pavement. We will gladly publish what is sent us for the benefit of several cities that are now searching for the best pavement.

"Z. & S." BUNDLE CARRIER.

The Z. & S. Bundle Carrier, as shown in accompanying cut, have met with favor everywhere; they have been improved in appearance and strengthened where necessary, fastening on the backbone below the saddle, out of the way of mounting or dismounting, and at the same time keeping the weight of bundle or package well back of the centre of large wheel, thereby avoiding the objections to Carriers that are fastened to the head or handle bar, which interfere in coasting and facilitate "headers" if the bundle is at all heavy or bulky. The excellence of the "Z. & S." is vouched for by Thomas Stevens, in his autographic letter, it being used by him entirely around the world.

Price, $1.25. By mail, 10 cts. ex.

"Z. & S." Stocking Supporters.

An article that meets the popular demand. These supporters do away entirely with elastic bands, which bind upon the limbs and stop the circulation of the blood. Adjustable for any size person.

Price, 65 cents per pair.

BELT SUPPORTERS.

With belt around the waist that allows for ample adjustment over the hips.

Price, 50 cents per pair.

HIP SUPPORTERS.

Attaching to the shirt or drawers above the hip and extending down either leg.

Price, 35 cents per pair.

THE NEWARK LAMP.

After several years experience in making Cycle Lamps, we place the "Newark" before our patrons as being one of the very best lamps made. We will warrant it to stand more jarring without going out than the K. of R. It will give a better light, is more handy to light or adjust. The Reflector is on the outside where it can't become smoked.

Price, Japanned, $5.00. Nickel, 6.50.

DUPLEX SCREW DRIVER.

In calling our customers' attention to this new screw-driver, we would like to point out the following advantages: strength when in use, compactness when not in use, finely finished and nicely nickel plated, made from the best cast-steel and warranted.

Price, 35 cents.

THE SAFETY BUNDLE CARRIER.

In addition to our well-known Carriers for ordinary machines, we have a line of Bundle Carriers for Safeties, fitting to the handle-bar, frame or mud-guard. They carry the bundle secure and out of the way.

TUCKER'S ELASTIC STRAP.

This Strap is the best and neatest thing in the line of a holder for the pants of a rider on the market. It prevents the pants from bagging at the knee, is easily detached, no sharp point to tear the cloth.

Price per pair. . . . 25 cents.

THE BOSTON SHOE.

STOCKINGS.

In order to meet the demand for a good serviceable bicycle stocking that would not chafe or make the feet tender, we have secured a fine lot with a linen sole, heel and toe, which puts unequalled durability right where it is most needed. It will be seen at a glance that instead of a heavy worsted foot, we have here a nice, unbleached linen sole, heel and toe, no heavier than that of a common cotton hose, thereby making it the coolest hose there is in the market. The legs are full length and are made of first-class worsted.

Price, per pair, $1.25.

The ordinary bicycle stocking, very fine quality, $1.25; cheaper grade, 50c., 75c., $1.00. If sent by mail, per pair 5 cents additional.

SPRINGFIELD ROADSTER BICYCLES.

THE SPRINGFIELD ROADSTER has fairly leaped into popular favor, where it has secured a good strong grip and intends to hold it. We have just closed one of the most successful seasons in the Bicycle trade. The Springfield Roadster embodies in its construction, all the elements of SPEED, SAFETY, DURABILITY, COMFORT and BEAUTY.

Its PHENOMENAL SUCCESS is entirely due to the following well-established and indisputable claims to superiority: It is the EASIEST RUNNING, the best HILL CLIMBER; it holds World record as a SPEEDER, and it is beyond all question the best road Wheel ever built.

There are NO HEADERS to knock you out, NOR DEAD CENTRES to bother you. Is it surprising that the Springfield Roadster is so popular? We think not. Improvements are always in order and the SPRINGFIELD ROADSTER BICYCLES are "UP TO THE TIMES."

THE VOLANT is the name of our new Springfield Roadster Safety. It is the EASIEST RUNNING, the closest and most compactly built Safety Bicycle on the market, and by using our CELEBRATED LEVER MOTION, the Volant does away with continuous and monotonous pedaling common to other Safety Bicycles.

Do not order your mount for this season until you have seen the SpringfieldRoadster Bicycles.

We tell you all about the Springfield Roadsters for '89 in our new Catalogue, which we shall be pleased to mail you on application.

DEPARTMENT OF SUNDRIES.

Having obtained the sole control of the principal English manufacturers of sundries, we invite your inspection to the following list of accessories which we are prepared to place on the market in large quantities:

For SADDLE BAGS, etc., we have the sole United States agency of Messrs. Lamplugh & Brown, and Messrs. J. B. Brooks & Co., of Birmingham, Eng., whose goods stand unrivalled for quality, neatness and comfort.

For LAMPS, we are agents for the United States, of John E. Salsbury, of London, whose celebrated lamps are known all over the world.

For LIQUID ENAMEL, we have the sole control of that of Messrs. Ardill & Co., of Leeds, Eng. This enamel is too well-known to require a description; we may, however, say that it is the only enamel on the market that has given perfect satisfaction.

For CEMENT, we invite your attention to Loudon's celebrated cement, which is used by all the largest manufacturers of bicycles and tricycles, both in England and America.

MERWIN, HULBERT & CO.,

26 WEST TWENTY-THIRD ST., NEW YORK.

The accompanying cut represents Messrs. Merwin, Hulbert & Co.'s building, at 26 W. 23d St. The firm moved into its uptown store in May, 1887, and from that time they have been adding to their various lines of sportsmen's outfitting, until their several departments are now complete in every respect.

THE BICYCLE DEPARTME'T.

The Bicycle Department occupies the entire top floor, a well lighted room, 25 x 100 feet, with a well-varnished floor, giving it a very inviting appearance. They have made arrangements to push this branch of their business this year, and have selected Mr. A. C. BANKER to manage it. Mr. Banker is one of the famous "2:38" Banker Brothers, of Pittsburg, and is well-known on the racing path. As a member of the firm of Banker Brothers, he has had considerable experience in the business. Although having been a resident in New York but a short time, he is allready well-known in cycling circles, and is a member of the M. B. C., of N. Y., and the Brooklyn B. C.

They are this year appointed

and will push their wheels (of which they carry a large stock), and will supply dealers in their territory as well as their retail trade. The American cycles for this season, will include the Champion, and Light Champion, both high grade ordinary bicycles, which are improved in minor details for this year. The American Challenge and the Ideal, both of which will be practically unchanged for this year.

THE RAMBLER SAFETY.

The Rambler Safety has been changed to an open-front machine; otherwise it remains the same as last year.

The wheel is fitted with a rear spring much more pliable than the spiral used ast year.

The Ideal Rambler is an all-steel rear-driving safety. It is modeled closely on the lines of the Rambler, and will sell at $65.00. It has ball bearings to both wheels. It is well finished, and is expected to be very popular with girls, boys and ladies. It has a new drop-forged steel chain which is perfectly noiseless.

Besides these wheels, they will carry a large stock of G. & J. tricycles, and G. & J. parts and sundries.

VICTOR BICYCLES.

They are also up-town agents for the Victor cycles, including the safeties and ordinaries.

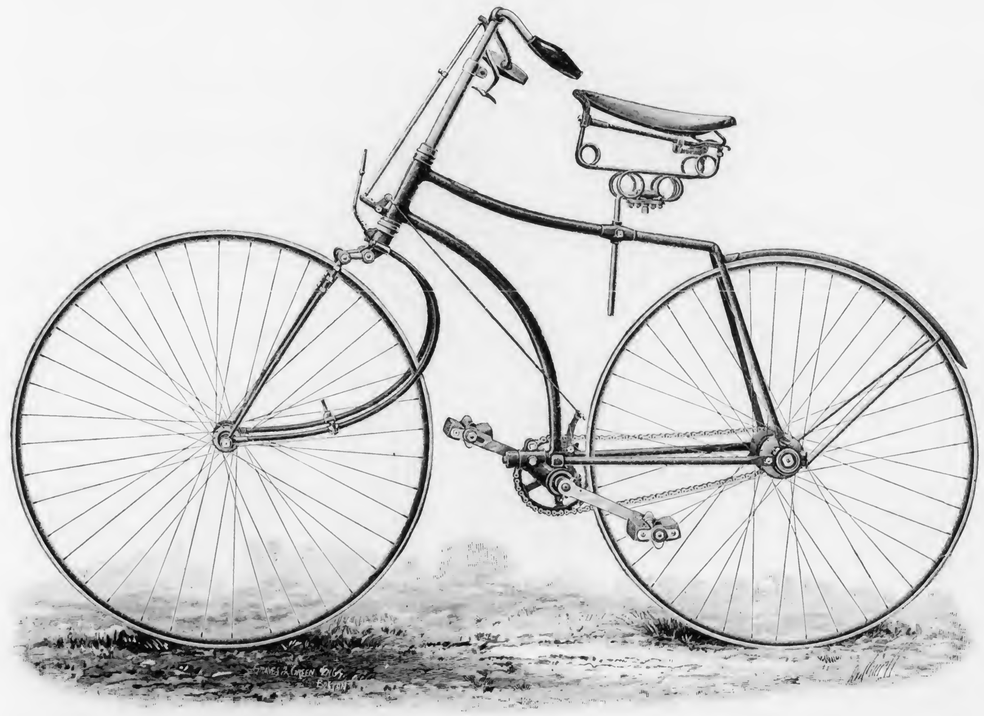
SINGER & CO.'S WHEELS.

They now have on hand a line of Singer's cycles, including the S. S. S. tricycle, which has so long been a favorite with the cycling world.

THE SPRINGF'LD ROADSTER BICYCLE.

They are also agents for the Springfield Roadster bicycles, including ordinaries and the Volant safety.

Besides the line of cycles enumerated above, an extensive line of cycle sundries will be carried, as well as a large assortment of cycle outfittings, and are prepared to completely outht in any branch of athletics. Their base-ball, tennis, gymnasium, rowing, boating, football and skating departments are complete, and first-class stock at reasonable prices. Full stock of fishing and hunting goods are kept on hand.



They are now compiling a superb catalogue of 210 pages, profusely illustrated, which will be ready in a few weeks.

A Dark Room for Amateur Photographers.

An extensive assortment of photographic goods are kept on hand, both in detectives and Tripod cameras; and in connection with this department a dark room has been fitted up which will be at the service of all amateurs.

General Eastern Depot for the full line of Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co.'s American Cycles.

* IN THE WORLD *

WITHOUT EXCEPTION.

"The time when the world-famous name of Singer was associated with the manufacture of strong but weighty cycles has long since passed away, as far as the latter characteristic of the above firm's excellent manufactures are concerned. Their well-earnt reputation for strength, good wear and stability is still maintained in the highest degree, but for some years past Messrs. Singer & Co. have stood second to none in the matter of lightness and strength combined. A brief inspection of the new pattern for 1889, the 'Singer Safety,' will be alone sufficient to prove this, and to those riders, or intending riders, who now upon the brink of the cycling season proper are taking heed as to what they shall ride therein, we recommend a trial of this gem among safeties. From a constructional point of view, the framing is as near perfection as may be, while the new ball socket head is an absolute luxury as far as steering is concerned."—Cyclist.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 29 MARCH, 1889.

"BY FAR THE BEST."

Publishers Bicycling World, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—To yours of the 19th. We certainly desire to continue the use of your columns, as the returns from our advertising in them have been very satisfactory indeed, and we anticipate even better results during the regular wheeling season. A contract will be sent you in due time. Very truly yours,

THE EASTMAN DRY PLATE AND FILM CO.

Rochester, N. Y., March 21st, 1889.

DO YOU GET YOUR PAPER ON TIME?

To our readers: Great complaint is being made from different sections of the country as to the way in which the paper is delivered. From Cincinnati we hear that sometimes the paper is delivered on Monday following date of issue, and sometimes not until the following Friday!! Now when these complaints first reached us we opined it was our press and mailing department that were slow and uncertain, but this is not so. Our paper goes to press promptly every Thursday, and is mailed promptly, so that the papers are all in the Boston Post Office by Saturday. The blame and fault is in the U. S. mail somewhere, but where, is pretty difficult to trace.

This week we shall probably be late.

THROUGH the generosity of our patrons we are enabled to present to our readers a paper which has never been equalled by any of the cycling publications of America. We do not wish to say anything as to the quality of the matter presented, whether in the advertising columns, or the editorial or news department. We will let the "quality" speak for itself.

OUR supplement this week is a combination of the slow and sure and the quick and electrical. Down the zig-zag course of a streak of lightning, the old man Time is seen calmly coasting on a rear driving safety. It is a combination and a design that will cause the thoughtful to read between the lines. As a work of art, worthy of preservation and framing.

OUR readers will be interested in reading Mr. Chas. E. Pratt's "Impressions on the Stanley Show," as there is no one perhaps among us better able to intelligently examine and comment upon things cycular, if we may use the term, than Mr. Pratt.

WE hope the day is not far distant when this country may support an annual exhibition of cycles. The number of American dealers and manufacturers have so increased that a show similar to that held in England would be a good thing for the trade here. Now that the old Boston Bicycle Club, if rumor be correct, is to devote its energies to the promotion of cycling, perhaps it may be induced to join with the dealers in carrying out this suggestion.

THE pleasant weather of Sunday, in the vicinity of Boston, brought out a goodly number of wheelmen, an especially large gathering centering at the reservoir, as usual. The long-trousered, derby-hatted contingent was strong, while a few be-badged and be-trimmed buttertly riders were equally conspicuous. We fancy the day is not far distant when many of the more quiet wheelmen will seek some other place of rendezvous. Among the more prominent wheelmen, we noticed Doane and Mr. Ross, the manager for Singer & Co., both on light, trim-looking Singer Safeties, Theo. Rothe, Lonny Peck, Captain Robinson, with a good turn out of his club men, and Dr. Kendall, with his running mate, the dog "Bess." It is a pity that some one cannot open and keep going a good hostelry in the vicinity of the reservoir, where wheelmen could meet and exchange greetings in a quiet, unobtrusive manner.

RECOGNIZING that the ladies of the League have some claim upon our space, and also recognizing that there is a demand for a department in our paper which shall be devoted to the interests of the fair sex, we have made arrangements with a lady rider of the wheel to conduct for us a ladies' column. We have to confess that we have been at some trouble to bring this about, and we have only succeeded in gaining the consent of our new editor to serve us after assurances that she will have the assistance of the ladies of the League in making the department interesting and valuable. We have spoken for you, ladies, and pledged your assistance, and we hope our pledges will not go for naught. We have provided entertainment, depending upon you all to provide each her proportion of what shall be given.

MR. CHARLES E. PRATT, who has recently returned from Europe, remarked to us, a few days since, that he was struck by "the larger use of cycles for practical purposes in England; all sorts of carriers and messengers make the wheel a beast of burden, and the thousands who ride to and from shop and factory and office 'get there all the same.' This sort of industrial use is very prevalent in France, too, and has been recognized in the official language of the police authorities, who control all such things there, as putting it beyond reason to prohibit the use of velocipedes anywhere that other carriages may go. People over across are more economical in small things than we Americans are."

This is all evidence of the practicability of cycles for small trades. But it is not alone the economical tendencies of Europeans which accounts for their extensive use of carrier cycles. It is the very excellent condition of their roads and pavements which renders the successful use of cycles possible. Nearly all the leading London papers use carrier tricycles, and find them a convenient and cheap means of quickly reaching their patrons. But such methods would be well nigh impossible in most of our large cities. It is a very different matter to propel a loaded carrier along, say Washington street, Boston, or Broadway, New York, and perform the same feat on the smooth surface of the Strand, Fleet street, or Oxford street and Holborn, in London. To sum up, all the drawbacks to cycling in this country may be found in our rough roads.

IT is very amusing to watch some dainty cyclist clean his machine, and note the marvellous care with which he wipes about the bearings and forces whatever dust there may be into every crack and crevice. It is better to have the outside of the bearing cases dirty and the inside clean, than vice versa.

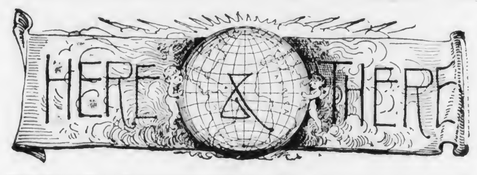
IF we can judge from the frequent allusions to ladies' safeties in the various papers throughout the country, the number of lady riders will be greater than most of us have anticipated. We do hope that any one having a lady friend who contemplates cycling will give her a few lessons on the art of riding. We saw the other day a lady, on the front seat of a tandem tricycle, whose knees, if one could judge from the movements of her skirts, were at least two feet apart. Not only was the appearance bad, but the work must have been ineffective. More than half the ladies we have seen on the road do not have the first conception of the way to ride. It is a pity, and their gentlemen friends are much to blame.

WE wish to again record our emphatic protest against sidewalk riding, and would like to recommend that the League take some official step to put a stop to what is an outrage upon the rights of pedestrians. From Ocean, N. Y., comes word that the Chief of Police has been compelled to warn cyclists to cease riding on the sidewalks, and this in consequence of the injury to a little girl by some reckless rider. This is not all. A Portland paper says that Bangor bicyclists "are patronizing the sidewalks to the imminent danger of pedestrians," and another Maine paper also finds in this transgression a subject for remark. In Indiana the matter has been in the courts, and a decision rendered that wheelmen have no right to use the sidewalks. We have no sympathy with sidewalk riders, and would be only too pleased to see an example made of some one.

THE so-called "obnoxious" bicycle bill, which the Missouri Legislators have been wrestling with, would not be so very "obnoxious" were it not for the second section. The first section simply prohibits racing on a public road, which one cannot very well find fault with.

IF the scheme to connect Chicago with Waukegan, a distance of thirty-five miles, with a fine pleasure drive is carried out, our friends in that city will be more fortunate than ever. A straight-away ride for thirty-five miles and return will be a pleasant day's run. We hope Sheridan Drive will soon be an accomplished fact.

THE Philadelphia Record lugubriously remarks that no city has yet invited the League to hold the annual meeting within its gates. We hope the time will come when the League will go where it pleases and pay its own way.



RIGHT in line with the action of the L. A. W. in establishing safety championships comes the news that the N. C. U., o England, have established safety championships, and that the question of barring them from ordinary races is being seriously discussed. Bicycling News has this to say on the subject:

"We are opposed altogether to the barring of safeties in the amateur championship contests, as any such limit at once impairs the openness of the race and obviously necessitates the qualification of the description of the championship. We sincerely hope that the '89 Championships Committee will see its way to run dwarf championships at the same distances, at the same time, as the amateur championships, running the dwarf heats after the heats of the ordinary race. By this means the 'openness' of the existing championships will be maintained. With this one exception we hope to see the line of demarcation very sharply drawn between the safeties and the ordinaries."

THE Citizens' Club, of New York, appears to keep up its organization vigorously, and we note that it also puts on all the official frills of the most callow, and still elects its club surgeon, color bearers and buglers. But to encourage riding it offers its members 1000 mileage bars this year.

SOME two weeks ago we penned the editorial that appeared in last issue, on the matter of barring "safeties" from "ordinary" races. This editorial slipped in last week by mistake, as we published in the same issue the rule which bars the very thing we wished for. This has no doubt caused wonder and will cause comment.

THE physical dimensions of the fair cyclists who pedal for ducats in six-day tournaments is very edifying reading. The sooner women stop racing the better it will be for cycling.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

THE study of advertisements is at all times instructive, and often amusing, as well. We all know how we have envied and attempted to imitate the debonair young man, who is pictured as riding a safety with his arms folded, while he distances the unfortunate gentleman in a dog cart, who is foolishly attempting to keep up with him, and we all know how we have failed. This is an instructive example: Another firm advertises, "Tricycles, No. 14, for ladies and light men," evidently not desiring any patronage of brunette gentlemen for their celebrated "No. 14." This is an amusing specimen: The "world's record" is claimed by the "Jover Safety," and I accord it to it willingly, only desiring, though, to add that it is the record for inappropriate illustration and vagueness of wording. In this advertisement the illustration is of a very stormy sea, with lowering clouds riven by a stupendous flash of forked lightning, while despite the stormy surroundings in which she is pictured, a schooner yacht, with all sails set, is calmly proceeding on her way. As an example of "safety" this doesn't impress the ordinary individual favorably. Surrounding this magnificent marine view is the following legend: "Jover Safety, world's record, one-half mile, on the road, eclipsing all path records, etc." As no mention of cycles appears in any part of the advertisement, it must seem strange to an unitiated when he reads it, that the schooner yacht in the pictured storm, could have accomplished "one half mile in 1m. 9 2-5s. on the road." Another maker makes a strong bid for the impecunious rider by stating that the "Gambler Safety" is for Lady or Gentleman, without change." Many more examples could be shown, wherein the truth of the statement I make at the beginning of this item is proven, but the above should be ample enough to convince the readers of wheel papers that they miss much that is entertaining by not carefully perusing the advertisements that ornament the pages of their favorite wheel journal.

THE organization of "The Society for the Protection and Care of Imbecile Wheelmen" is strongly advocated. It will be the aim of this society to care for and provide a secure retreat for the sidewalk rider, for the "jay" who, in gold lace and braid, rides a full-nickeled wheel across crowded roadways for the edification of the admiring "baby wheelers" and their infantile charges, for the "scorcher," and for the large number of other and unclassified nuisances, who, through their lack of brains, bring discredit upon the cause of wheeling. The society has, of course, undertaken a pretty big job, but it will have the support and best wishes of all thinking and sane wheelmen.

I DON'T know just who the gentleman was that wrote that pessamistic hymn of "I Would not Live Always," but I am sure that it was not written by a wheelman just returning from a pleasant ride. On such an occasion the rider and the writer would have been much more likely to have written just the reverse of the above.

THERE is a plan on foot to convert into a park all of the property bounded by 72d and 70th streets, West End avenue and the Hudson River. Should this transpire it will make the New York Club's house one of the most valuable pieces of residence property in this city, as it will give it a park frontage of unsurpassed magnificence.

THE recent election of the Citizens' Club shows that the "old timers" are still in control of its affairs, many of the names appearing among the newly elected Board of Officers being found among the organizers of the club. To such a condition of affairs do I attribute the continued growth and prosperity of the Citizens. May they live long and prosper, is, I am sure, a wish echoed by all who recognize in such an organization one of the most conservative and able upholders of the cause of cycling.

W. I. HARRIS has at last, in the columns of the Press, given to wheelmen here a bright weekly article upon timely wheel topics. It has long been a desire on the part of New York riders to get such an opening in the daily press, but until Harris moved here from Boston, and took charge of the sporting and theatrical affairs of the Press, they could not succeed in doing so, but now Harris has shaken them up, several other dailies have swung into line, and now cycling is threatened with a feast of notice, where formerly only a famine existed.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

THE cycle clubs of this city for some time past have had a desire toward purchasing suitable grounds, erecting a club house, providing a racing track, etc., but unfortunately no action was taken in the matter. The Maryland Club did purchase a piece of property on Mount Royal Terrace, situated opposite the reservoir in Druid Hill Park, where a beautiful club house was built with all modern conveniences. In this respect the Maryland Club stands ahead of the others, who at present rent the buildings they use as club houses. The Baltimore Club for some time past signified their intentions of purchasing ground and erecting a club house of their own. The suggestions have been generally discussed by the members, and Friday, March the 22, a meeting was held. President Stansbury stated that the object of the meeting and the hopes of the members was to purchase a desirably located lot, and to build a $25,000 club house. It is to be modelled after the club house of the Kings County Wheelmen, of New York State. Instead of spending all the money on a club house, to purchase a piece of property in the outskirts of the city, and fit up in addition an eight-lap track, was one of the possibilities connected, and which would not be much expense to get into condition. A subscription was started and $7000 was at once subscribed, although the meeting was not a large one.

THE Crescent Cycle Club was incorporated Wednesday, the 20th.

THE Baltimore Club have made arrangements to have club races for the members only, once a month: the distance is to be ten miles, and the handicap limit two miles.

THE total milcage of the Maryland Club for the past twelve months, foots up over 100,000 miles.

THE chief consul is in receipt of a letter from George W. Baker, of Easton, Md., in relation to the occurence of a horse being frightened at Mr. Baker's machine and doing some slight damage to the wagon to which he was attached. The owner has avowed his intention of suing Mr. Baker for damages sustained. The chief consul replied that in the event of suit being brought the attorney for the division will defend Mr. Baker free of charge to him, and called his attention to several other consoling facts.

LOS ANGELES.

"VINDEX."

THE Los Angeles Wheelmen are busily engaged now in preparing for the California State Division meet, to be held here May 30th. Without doubt this will be the most enjoyable meet ever held within the confines of the Golden State, and, although it may be a hackneyed phrase, neither time, money or pains will be spared to make it so. The programme as already outlined, is as follows: Parade in morning, hill-climbing contest immediately afterward, races in afternoon at Agricultural Park, polo game on wheels in evening at Hazard's Pavilion, with a grand ball afterward. I don't think more real enjoyment could be crowded into twenty-four hours. The track is the fastest in Southern California, and the consensus of opinion is, the Pacific Coast record will have to go. Your correspondent was shown the lithograph proof of the programme of the meet, and it is a triumph of the lithographer's art.

THE highly artistic supplements of this week's WORLD have been the subjects of enthusiastic praise. It was the first time we had seen the "counterfeit presentments" of the talented editions of our newsy weekly visitor, the WORLD. Your correspondent has had his supplements framed, and a number of others are doing the same.

DEAR "Vernon" (or "Verdant"), of Minneapolis: The item in a previous letter about Wing ordering ice attachments for bicycles was a joke. I did not consider it necessary to send a diagram with it. You should spring something about the winter in Minnesota this season being so warm that seersuckers, palm leaf fans, linen dusters, et al., are comfortable.

HERE is a par. for you wheelmen in the cold, frigid and effete East. The Los Angeles Wheelmen's Club run last Sunday was to Santa Monica-by-the-Sea, where the boys donned bathing suits, and dipped in the surf. The club run to-morrow (Sunday) is to an orange orchard, where the golden fruit is plentiful and luscious.

BICYCLING has taken hold among the post-office employees, there being over twelve of the men riding wheels. A club among the employees is talked of, and no doubt Superintendent of Carriers Burns will be made president.

THE manner in which National League officers are elected is the subject of considerable criticism here. It is the general opinion that League members should vote for national officers direct, and not through the representatives. Let a male vote be taken in each State, and sent to the secretary-treasurer, or a regularly appointed (or elected) committee authorized to count the votes, and the totals sent to Secretary-Editor, or a national committee, regularly appointed (or elected) committee authorized to count the total votes. Let the annual board of officers, meeting early in the spring, be a nominating convention, where our representatives can nominate the men of our selection for national officers. Let the nominees for national officers be affixed to State tickets, and every State meet hold the election of both national and State officers.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

THE C. B. C., having outgrown their present quarters, have leased the building No. 168 W. Eighth st, that was recently occupied by the S. P. C. A. It is situated on the block that lies between the new City Buildings and Garfield Place and is surrounded by churches of all denominations. When fitted up, it will afford ample accommodations for 150 members, and is, therefore, looked upon by the club as a permanent home. The facilities for cleaning and storing wheels will be unsurpassed, and, as the location is central, will be an attractive feature to wheelmen living in the suburbs who intend, during the coming season, to ride their wheels to business. Every room is well lighted and ventilated, the reading, smoking, and meeting rooms especially so, which will, no doubt, insure a better attendance at all future meetings.

The season is now at hand when the soft, balmy breezes determine the warm weather cyclist to drag his wheel from the obscurity of the dusty attic and get it ready for the coming campaign. He carefully wipes off all the vaseline that has not been transferred to his clothing, and then, as the bearings run hard and evidently need cleaning, proceeds with the aid of wrench and screw-driver to dissect them. After removing the skin from his knuckles and saying the Lord's Prayer backwards a time or two, he finally succeeds in removing one pedal and dropping the balls on the floor, where they run in every direction as if determined to escape the grinding torments of the riding season. Undismayed by these and similar vexations, he persists in his arduous undertaking, till, about 1 A M., he gets the machine together and the bearings adjusted so that the wheels will revolve. Then after removing the grime and sweat from his hands and face he wearily seeks his couch. There the dream god unfolds a delightful panorama. He sniffs the fragrance of the verdure. He hears the lowing of the cattle. He sees his fellow wheelmen winding along a rural highway keeping time to the music of the brown thrush. He listens to their merry laughter, as they go flying down a grade. He watches them as they slowly toil up the next, and follows them till they dismount at their destination. He sees them gather about the table, and oh, how his mouth waters, as he views the rapid disappearance of the chicken, milk, and pie!

YET a few days and that thorn in the flesh of all wheelmen, i. e., the sprinkling cart, will be in his glory. With what malicious joy will he regard the downfall of the unwary cyclist, and gloat over his dastardly work. Let him beware! Let him read the writing on the wall: "Mene Tekel Ulookout!" and take warning before it is too late, for his may be the fate of many a self-confident tyrant.

OUR bowldered and macadamized streets, in spite of frequent repairs, abound in ruts. This dilapidated condition is principally due to heavy loads on narrow tires. There is an ordinance limiting the load to five tons, but it is practically a dead letter, for eight and ten tons are daily hauled over our streets on wagons having tires five inches and less in width. As the conditions here are such that heavy hauling is a necessity, and as it would be useless to attempt to have the ordinance enforced, the only thing to do is to increase the width of the tires. Now a heavily loaded wagon with a tire, say twelve inches in width, would not only not injure the streets, but would be beneficial, as it would consolidate the surface, keep it smooth and even, and considerably diminish the cost of repairs.

BUFFALO.

"ALI BABA."

SOMEHOW there had always dwelt within the recesses of my imagination a picture something akin to this—a pair of long, pecked boots protruding from under the other side of a desk, a skull sparcely stocked with hair standing on edge, a long, pointed nose supporting a pair of spectacles handed down from generations remote. From the top of a gray, dust-stained coat a collar, which, if cut in two, would make a serviceable pair of cuffs, a long frock-coat, the trousers baggy at the knees, and about three dates out of style—such was my idea of an editor. But alas! and also confound it! Even the ladies remark, how beautiful! Aren't they splendid? When the writer heard this he pricked up his ears, sallied forth to a group of ladies, and found them warmly discussing and admiring the pictures of the editorial staff of the WORLD. I remonstrated with them. I tried to point out flaws, but all to no purpose—they would not be turned aside in their opinion, and so I left them boiling with rage and jealousy. I have sufficiently recovered to congratulate you upon the finish and splendid character of those pictures.

CLERGYMEN find only words of praise for the bicycle, and some of them are taking to it in earnest. The writer knows of two prominent pastors who are almost persuaded to join the Buffalo Club, and one of them will do so ere long; this is good news. What better companionship could be asked for?

THERE is prospect of another bicycle tournament here at the international Fair next fall. If the managers decide to hold another, the track will be greatly improved.

To the Zigzag Bicycle Club—we salute you. Your club-house near the circle is elegant, and you have the second best location in town. Why, you are that near the Buffalo Club that with a little sharp listening you possibly can hear the click of the billiard balls.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

WHAT will Chicago give me to reveal the identity of the "Stroller?" And Syracuse. "Salina?" We correspondents make it a point to keep posted as to each other's identity, and if there is anything in the thing, Syracuse and Chicago may make a bid, and—I'll consider it.

ABOUT as small a piece of business as I have heard of lately, was a recent transaction in one of the clubs in this city. A man who is prominent in wheeling circles was proposed for membership in said club, but to the astonishment of all the members, when the ballot was announced, the gentleman was found to have been blackballed. A vigorous investigation was immediately set on foot, as there has never been even a shade against his character, and several curious facts were developed. One infinitesimal specimen of humanity was moved by envy, pure and simple, and another, who has been under club investigation, and whose resignation they have refused to accept until the charges are settled, put in a blackball to get "even." The club officials express great indignation over the affair, as the gentleman's connection with the club would do honor to it. He is already a member of a couple of the most prominent organizations in the country, one of which is very select in its membership.

WHEELMEN in this city have always lamented the want of a first-class track in Philadelphia, but it is now their own faults if they do not enjoy this advantage. The Tioga Athletic Association last year put down a fine track at their grounds out at Westmoreland Station and in order to bring the matter before the public, in the proper way, Mr. Geo. D. Gideon, at the last meeting raised the question; and the President of the Association, Mr. Gaskell, in reply, assured him that the amount of initiations secured would be expended upon the track, and more, if they could arrange it. Everything now depends upon the riders themselves. If they are willing to hand out the small sum of five dollars, per capita, they can have a track that will be a credit to the city. The grounds are easy of access by both the railways, and have not only a fine track, but also cricket, tennis, football and base ball grounds, and no other investment for the sportsman will repay as much. The meet given last season by this Association—or the Tioga Cycling Club, which is an inner branch—was one of the most successful ever held in Philadelphia, and there is no reason why it should not be not only repeated but improved on this year.

So "Argus" would like to see a mammoth picnic on Decoration Day, embracing all the city clubs? Let "Argus" listen: At the meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs, held last Tuesday evening at the South End club house, a committee consisting of Messrs. Hare, Supplee and Edwards was appointed to arrange for a joint inter-club run and demonstration on Decoration Day—if possible. A combined run out the Pike, will dinner at some suitable place (if such can be found, to feed an army of hungry wheelmen) and perhaps a road race in the afternoon, will be a part of the programme, which has not yet been fully matured.

THE long-delayed Pennsylvania-Maryland-New Jersey Road Book is going to be issued next month, "for certain," and a right good thing it is. As a recruiting medium to the League ranks nothing equals it, and it should have been out last season.

NEW ORLEANS.

"NOKOMIS."

EVERYBODY said "Cycling is about played out," but the Christy-Hathorn, and the Christy-Frederic races of the last two Sundays proved this assertion to be unfounded, for it is very seldom indeed that eighteen to twenty wheelmen turn out two Sundays in succession simply to see a race which was all for glory, as was the case in these two.

HATHORN in the last "meet" here captured first prize for the Club Championship of the Louisiana Cycling Club, and, of course, was acknowledged champion of the club, but Christy, although not coming in anywhere near Hathorn, showed he had the materials of making a very fast rider. This race between Christy and Hathorn had been brewing for some time, and resulted in Christy challenging Hathorn for a race, to take place on the asphalt from Naponeon Avenue to Exposition Grounds, a distance of one and one-third miles. The outcome of this race was that Christy beat Hathorn some thirty seconds, thereby winning for himself the title of "Champion of the L. C. C." Hawthorn disappointed his friends, for he ought to have done much better. The time in this race was 4.30 for Christy, and 5.21 for Hathorn.

NO sooner had Christy dismounted from his wheel than he was challenged by Lieut. L. Jeff Frederic, of the L. C. C., for a similar race to be run over the same course, to take place the following Sunday. (Last Sunday.)

FREDERIC has developed into a pretty fast rider of late, so this race, as was anticipated, was a close one from the start. The pace was a hot one, but Frederic was unable to close with Christy. At the finish Christy was just about two feet ahead of Frederic, coming in first. Christy's time in this race was much better than in the previous one, it being 4.41 for the 1 1-3 miles.

AFTER the race the spectators proceeded to refresh themselves at the "Iron Spring," (?) and then went over to the Horticultural Hall track, where some fast speeding and splendid time was made. Hal Graham broke his previous records by running a mile in 3.05. Hathorn made 3.06, but Spriggs did the best half mile—1.26 2-5.

CHIEF CONSEL CLARK, of Tennessee, with two wheelmen from Greenville, Miss., were down here on a visit during Mardi-Gras week, and were guests of the N. O. B. C.

MR. B. A. SLUSSER, a "fast 'un" from Memphis, is here, and will probably make this city his future home. He is in love with New Orleans, her wheelmen, her asphalted streets, and in fact, with everybody and everything.

CAPT. A. M. HILL, at the last meeting of the N. O. B. C., presented that club with a handsome silver cup to be contested for in a series of handicap races during the summer months. A committee was appointed to arrange the details of the races.

NEXT Sunday, weather permitting, the first race for the Batson Medal will be contested for by the Members of the L. C. C. The course will be from the toll gate on the West End Shell Road to West End, a distance of three miles. The entries and handicaps are as follows: Hathorn, Christy, M. S. Graham, scratch; Born, Angamar, Betts, Frederic, 45 seconds; Bogel, Renaud and E. M. Graham, 1. 30; Nathan, DeBuys, Hobson & Harris, 2.15.

BOGEL, Renaud and E. Graham, the three safety riders, have been mated together in the Batson Medal contest, and will form a little race of their own. The one coming in first will win for himself the "Champion Safety Rider of the Club."

CHIEF COUNSEL HODGSON has donated two medals, a gold and silver one, to be contested for by the members of the League only in the State of Louisiana. The races will be handicap races, and will be run under the rules of the L. A. W. The time and distances

THE EAGLE.

No Headers. No Levers.

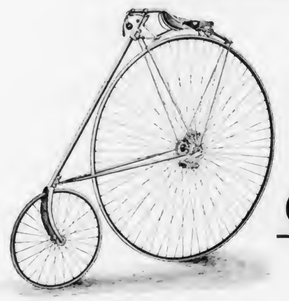
Yes; The "Eagle" will climb a hill. It can be ridden up any hill that has ever been climbed on a Cycle.

No; It will not tip over backward as soon as you mount it, that is, if you know how to ride it.

Can you mount it? Well, we think you can, unless you have less than the average ability as a rider.



No; The position is not pushing backward; but directly downward, and is almost identical with that of walking; it is easy and natural, and an "Eagle" wheel can be ridden a great distance with very little fatigue. It is well adapted to rough and hilly roads, and can be ridden with ease and safety where it would be impossible to go on an "Ordinary."

These statements we are prepared to practically demonstrate, and are doing so daily, to the complete satisfaction of all who visit us

If there is not already an agent for the "Eagle" in your locality, we should be pleased to hear from you.

of the races will be arranged by a committee of two each from the N. O. and Louisiana Clubs, and two unattached riders. With the Batson series of races of the L. C. C., the league races for the Hodgson Medals, it certainly argues that cycling in the Crescent City is on a big boom.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

C. C. HILDEBRAND, of St. Louis, paid us a flying visit last Thursday. He was en route for Europe, and he states that he had no intention of conquering Corey Hill, and he further darkly hinted that the author of the Corey Hill squib would "get it" when he (Hildebrand) got back to St. Louis, so look out. "Linneus."

THE Malden, Mass., Bicycle Club held its first annual entertainment Wednesday, 21st, at Barrett's Opera House. The programme consisted of an overture, "Southern Pastimes," by the Misses. Hale, Misses Makechnie and Wilson; reading by Miss Fay L. Davis; selections by the Everett Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club; solo by Miss Mabel P. Wentworth; impersonations, by E. W. Emerson; solos, by William Lunt; selections by the Ladies' Camilla Quartette; and reading by Miss Fay L. Davis.

WORCESTER, Mass., is said to be waking up, and the local cyclists are promised a cinder path on which to show their prowess as racing men.

THE value of cycles owned by the riders of Chicago is estimated at $150,000. If this is near the truth then Chicago must have about 1200 riders.

TENNESSEE Division L. A. W. will hold a meet at Nashville June 18. On the 19th the second annual four days' tour, under the auspices of the division, will be started. The route has not yet been selected, but will be through the towns of Middle Tennessee.

WE are not responsible for the following item, we scissored it out of——, no, we will, out of kindness, suppress the name of the paper: "The latest notion in the way of locomotion is a bicycle operated by dogs. An Ipswich man is the inventor. It will require a good deal of cur-rage to ride it."

WE read an advertisement in an English paper out loud, to the effect that "the Whippet held all the hill climbing records, etc." Our friend quietly remarked, "whip it, if you can," and then he bolted, closely followed by our office shears.

CLAUD BAUM, of Newman, Ind., is 19 years of age, and he possesses an inventive mind. He claims he has a water bicycle which will travel as fast as the land machine. This is the claim. We will await the public test which will take place within thirty days.

REV. GEORGE A. PAULL, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Bloomfield, N. J., had a narrow escape on Central avenue, Monday afternoon. He was riding on his bicycle, when he saw directly in front of him two racing horses approaching. To get out of their way he got behind a wagon. One of the horsemen engaged in the race turned out from the wagon, and in making a short turn the shaft of the buggy went through the spoke of the bicycle. Before the driver could bring the horses to a standstill Mr. Paull had been dragged three hundred feet and injured about the hands and legs. Mr. Paull has been confined to his house ever since, but is now getting better. His bicycle was completely demolished. The careless driver, a well-known Newarker, offered to replace the bicycle and pay all damages, and begged Mr. Paull not to give his name.

THE Brooklyn Base Ball team have been set to work to ride tricycles and bicycles. They hire the machines of Schwalbach. If the machines had any sense of the humorous they must have enjoye the fun. The first attempt was made last Wednesday week. Terry was the first to return, and he was closely followed by Collins, Visner, Pinckney, Smith, Bushong and Lovett. Collins, Visner and Lovett had several encounters with trees and fences, and even went so far as to try and knock down a church at Parkville, but without success. Mr. Schwalbach, Trainer McMasters and Manager McGunnigle have agreed that wheeling is splendid exercise for baseball players. The players themselves are dubious on that question.

WE are told by a wise exchange that Armaindo has "ridden a great many races, all of which she has either won or lost!! Really!

THE Wilkes Barre ladies are down on the local bicycle club, because their husbands, their sons and sweethearts spend too much time at the club-house drinking coffee. (?!) lolling in the easy chairs and reading the papers and playing pool and billiards. "Ah well," sighs the feminine of Wilkes Barre, "men are horrid—especially bicycle club men!"

EVER since bicycle riding began in Baltimore there has been open warfare between the cyclists and the horsemen of the city. The former claim that they have been continually interfered with by horsemen, who will not extend to them any of the courtesies of the road.

THOMAS STEVENS is no doubt well on his way towards the interior of Africa. By the way, Thomas took a phonograph along to use in recording the words of the different chiefs, which words, as occasion required, will be repeated to other chiefs. A very neat way of carrying messages, and one that will greatly enhance the respect of the mystery-loving children of nature with whom Stevens will be brought in contact.

WE welcome the American Athlete among our regular weekly visitors.

THE Philadelphia Bicycle Club is happy over the experiment of admitting ladies to club membership. "The lady membership is one of the mainstays of the club," so it is put by most of the members of this, the oldest club in the Quaker city.

MLLE. ARMAINDO's real name is Mrs. Stewart. Her husband is described in graphic language as being a "hoods," whatever that may be! He has done no steady work since their marriage, Louise says, and all around, their life together has not been a banquet of bliss. For some days Louise has been lying ill at their room near the Coliseum, in Omaha, and one day Stewart dropped in and began worrying her, and concluded by striking her as she lay in the bed. Forbearance had ceased to be regarded by the little Frenchwoman as a virtue, so she rose from her bed, and seizing the stripling husband by the scruff of the neck she lammed him against the wall, and across the bed and over the trunk, and down the stairway to the ground floor. The landlady did the rest of the work performed by the athletic invalid, and warned the youth to leave the house.

W. S. HARRIS, formerly of Boston, but now on the staff of the New York Press, has joined the Citizens Club, of New York city.

THE Hingham (Mass.) selectmen have passed the following town ordinance: "No person shall ride a bicycle, tricycle, or other wheeled vehicle unnecessarily on the sidewalk of any street within the town, or ride any such wheeled vehicle at an immoderate rate of speed in any street or public place within the town, so as to endanger thereby the life, safety, or convenience of any person properly using such street or public place." That word "unnecessarily" leaves a large loop for riders to creep through.

HURRAH for the effete East. Schwalbach of Brooklyn has a son who rides a bicycle younger than Mohrig, Jr., of San Francisco.

WE haven't heard of the cyclist Union of Long Island, for some time. We now see an item to the effect that the powers that be are busily engaged in the important duty of getting out an "appropriate emblem" for use by members. We hope that with the finding of an "appropriate emblem" the aims of the Union will not all have been reached. If they are after an "emblem" we would suggest the Committee to write to Mr. Shipton for points on "how to get an original design."

THE Hudson Co. Wheelmen (N. J.) have issued road report cards. These are given to members, and it is the duty of each to give reports of roads, surface, hills, distances and general information as to new or old routes covered. We hope the practical results will equal the theory, which, we must say, is most excellent. The cards will also be used as vouchers for distances traveled by those competing for long distance prizes.

EVER since Tom Stevens called on the Shah of Persia and spent the winter in Teheran, the brother of the Sun has had a hankering after a cycle of same sort. It is now announced that the Shah will visit England, and will purchase several patterns of the Spider wheel. The bid amongst the manufacturers for his distinguished patronage will be enormous. He will probably want a machine like that one built for Geo. Gould, all aluminium, diamonds and mother-of-pearl.

THE Bowler and Billiardist says that "Louise Armaindo has made nineteen miles in eighteen minutes on a bicycle." The B. and B. had better stick to billiards. Another miscue like that will rip the cloth from end to end. Possibly Armaindo rode an electric wheel, and Tom Eck held the watch. Under such circumstances Armaindo could do two miles a minute.—New York Press.

COMBINATION, girl, bicycle; result, infatuation. Witness the following item from Albany, Ga.: "Cliff Partridge, a thirteen-year-old boy, the son of a prominent citizen, became enamored of a female bicycle rider, connected with a ten-cent circus now travelling in this section. Taking along a pistol and a silver watch, he ran off with the circus so as to be with the girl. He was caught to-day in Albany, and was arrested and held until his father could go for him." The maternal slipper awaits the love-sick infant's return. His mother will also go for him—when he reaches home, sweet home.

Mr. Joseph Goodman, of Hartford, Conn., has purchased the interest of his brother in the Wheelmen's Official Score Card copyright 1883. This excellent score card has been issued at all the principal cycling tournaments held in the United States in the past six years, and has given the best of satisfaction. Mr. Goodman will be pleased to hear from all clubs intending holding tournaments during this year.

A funny story is told by an English exchange of a lady who was examining a tricycle with a view to purchase. She is reported as liking its looks, but as a safeguard she wished the opinion of a gentleman friend who was an "authority on cycles." The "expert" came, and after knowingly examining the machine, he put his hand on one of the foot-rests and expressed great astonishment that it would not revolve, as he always thought pedals should do so!! The dealer fainted and the "expert" and the lady went away in high dudgeon at the thought of how the "wicked dealer had tried to sell them a machine, the pedals of which would not revolve!"

Chicago Cycling Exhibition and Tournament will be held at the Exhibition Building, May 13th to 18th inclusive.

Master Slaughter, of Coventry, England, aged three and one-half years, is the happy possessor of the prettiest and lightest tricycle ever made. The machine has 20-inch driving-wheels, 18-inch front wheel, 1-2-inch rubbers, and weighs 12 1-2 pounds. It is a perfect gem of a machine, and has been made under Slaughter pere's personal supervision.

A valued correspondent sends us the following from Oberlin, O. showing that the racing fever and the roads improvement question are engaging the Oberlinian mind: "Last fall the Oberlin Bicycle Club had built on the grounds of the College Athletic Association a quarter mile track, with raised corners, extra width at the finish, and well drained, so next spring Oberlin will see its first bicycle races. There is considerable interest being aroused hereabouts for improved roads. Last year we had nearly a mile of our streets paved with a single width of stone six or eight inches thick, and much more of the same will be done this year, with possibly the whole nine miles between here and Wellington. Thanks are due the Oberlin News for its good work in agitating the question.

"A book reception" is a capital idea and we would suggest that all clubs do as the Wilkes Barre, Pa. Club have done: vide the following item: "The Wilkes Barre Bicycling Club will give a book reception Friday evening. Good music and dainty lunch will be served. You don't have to bring a gilt edge full morocco with steel engravings to be welcome. The club owns a Bible."

Of course we do not know the condition of opinion and streets in Salt Lake City; but a tirade, which appeared in a local paper, against the pedestrians of that city because they persist in being run into by the cyclist who is also occupying the sidewalk is refreshingly cool and funny to us. The writer avers that the roads of Salt Lake City are not fit to ride on and so the cyclist just takes to the sidewalk. From this we should think that Salt Lake City is no place for cyclers. Here is the last part of the article as a "sample:"

"The cyclist is most emphatically here to stay. The pedestrian don't want him. The equestrian don't want him. And now the two bears must appear. The road hog, the pedestrian and the cyclist must bear and forbear. Now, a final word to the pedestrian. If a dozen bicycles bear down upon you, do not become worried, but go gently along upon your way. The cyclist will take care of you. Should you commence to jump and dodge, how in heaven's name can you expect to avoid trouble?"

TERTIUS.

We are a wreck!

Primus and myself.

I use the plural, because both of us together scarcely make one good, solid, substantial, simon pure wreck.

Primus and I are members of the Weedsport Bicycle Club.

I call him "Primus" because he is the first of his kind. Some of the fellows call him "Fairy," and some "Little Toddlekins," simply because he weighs the heavy part of a ton. We don't know his exact heaviness, because none of the railroad companies will take the risk of weighing him.

There is a limit even to car scales.

And yet, Primus is a rider.

Don't gasp.

He rides a trike—at least, he wants to.

When he decided to stride the flying wheel there was a universal howl of indignation from all sources.

Our Street Commissioner declared that he had broken his back 375 days out of the year for the past nine years, in giving us good roads, and he'd be blankity blankity blanked if he wanted the streets ruined by having a human Juggernaut chassaing around on them.

The club's good name was at stake.

A lunatico inquirendo was held, to discover whether Primus was in his right mind.

The investigation is over, but Lord! what a time we've had!

I sided with Primus, and our chief opponent was a fellow named Smutchall. He was backed by the Street Commissioner, and a "simple American citizen" with political aspirations.

The enemy presented the following reasons for believing Primus an out-and-out lunatic.

He weighs more than several ordinary men.

No "wheel" on earth would hold him.

If there was, he couldn't ride it.

If he could ride he would have to be hoisted on board with a derrick.

He would destroy the roads.

He could never do any touring, because he would want to stop every fifteen minutes to eat.

He chews gum.

He ran for Congress last fall.

He has not read Robert Elsemere.

He thinks that Lawrence Barrett is an actor, and that Tennyson is a poet.

He likes tripe.

He gives his employees fair wages.

He is honest.

Well, sir, you can imagine what a tough job we had to combat all this array of facts and figures.

Day and night we strove, even as what's-his-name wrestled with the angel.

We had no time to eat, drink, sleep, smoke or think.

We won.

The great bike builders, aided by the leading scientific men of all climes are using up the gray matter of their brains to devise a wheel which Primus can ride with ease and comfort.

Labor omnia vincit.

THE EUROPEAN TOUR.

Undoubtedly the biggest thing in the way of touring the coming season will be the European Tour under the leadership of F. A. Elwell, Portland, Me. As the membership is limited to 30, and as 25 have already deposited berth-retaining fee with the agent of the Cunard steamer, the quantity of the party is an assured fact. The itenary has already been published in these columns. Mr. J. Pennell will pilot the party through France.

From letters received, and from comments in the European cycling press it is evident that the advent of the party is looked forward to with great interest, and the gentlemen who compose the party can safely count upon a hearty welcome along their route. The tour has been planned with an eye to economy; comfortable, but not high-priced or fashionable (except in Switzerland) hotels will be patronized. The hotels are selected and arrangements made. Below is the list of those who have sent in their deposit for membership in the party. There may be a few additions, and an accident may perhaps prevent some one in the list from going, but the changes will not be material. Those who have been considering the matter of going, and whose names do not appear, had best come to an early decision: P. Howard Reilly, Hartford, Conn.; W. H. Bennett, F. H. Buttolph, Chicago, Ill.; F. A. Elwell, Chas Seavey, H. S. Higgins, F. H. Palmer, Portland, Me.; H. Wentworth, Skowhegan, Me.; I. N. Smith, Wm. H. Kirk, Philadelphia, Pa.; Rev. Chas. E. Fessenden, Summit Hill, Pa.; Wm. C. Roseboom, Cherry Valley, N. Y.; Harry Wilson, Clarion, Pa.; A. McAlpine, Bradford, Pa.; T. C. Brinsmade, Cleveland, Ohio; Stephen L. Breed, Lynn, Mass.; Junius E. Beal, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Joseph Pennell, London, Eng.; Clark Cooper, Trenton, N. J.; Dan. Krumm, Columbus, Ohio; D. Levy and R. B. White, Quincy, Ill.; H. C. Spaulding, Jr. and W. N. Estabrook, Elmira, N. Y.; H. C. Cake, Clarkesville, Mo.; L. Levy San-Paulo, Brazil.

"GEE WILLIKINS."

(BY THE SECRETARY.)

[We do not see why the small sons and daughters of some of our readers should not have some space in this edition devoted to their especial benefit. We therefore print the following fairy story which we think is one of Secretary's happiest efforts. It will prove interesting to the mature as well as the young.—Ed.]

Here is a story for the sons and daughters of cyclists and cycleresses.

Once upon a time there lived in the country a little boy. When he was too young even to know his mother, the cook said he was her little sweetheart, and by that name he was generally called. He was a chubby, rosy-cheeked youngster, with great, wide opened, brown eyes, and his curly hair was so light colored that it was almost as white as his grandfather's. In the main, Sweetheart was as good as the average little boy, but he had his faults, and his chief one was that he would say "Gee Willikins!"

Now it grieved Sweetheart's mamma very much indeed that her little boy would say "Gee Willikins" so often. She was a very patient mamma, and she often reproved him for saying it, and Sweetheart would readily promise never to say it again. But he was such a little fellow that he used to say that he wasn't big enough to remember not to say it; so it went on, and no matter what he saw strange, or what little accident he witnessed, his eyes would grow as big as saucers, and he would cry, "Gee Willikins." One beautiful May morning, whilst mamma was sitting in her rocking-chair on the up-stairs porch, enjoying the cool breeze, and busily mending one of his torn dresses, Sweetheart was in her bedroom, with a switch, chasing the cat. It was splendid fun to him, to see pussy jump and dart around the room whenever he managed to hit her. His merry laughter rang loud and long, until after one very hard cut, pussy jumped up on the mantel-piece and knocked off mamma's Royal Worcester vase, the one she thought so much of.

Down it came on the bright matting, and broke into hundreds of pieces.

"Gee Willikins!" exclaimed Sweetheart, as he realized the enormity of the disaster. As he stood, with bulging eyes, staring at the fragments, and as the unhappy cat crept trembling under the bed, mamma appeared in the doorway.

She had heard the crash, and had arrived in time to see the pieces scatter over the floor, and hear her little boy exclaim "Gee Willikins!" At first she felt very angry at her little son, and felt inclined to take the switch and lay it across his back, but she was a very just mamma, and always endeavored to think twice before she acted. So she quietly took her little boy by the hand and led him out on the porch, and sat down in her chair and drew him up close by her side.

"Oh, Sweetheart," she began, "what makes you so naughty; don't you know you have broken mamma's vase that she loves so dearly?"

Sweetheart hung his head in shamefaced silence. "And," she continued, "you not only broke her vase, but you said that bad, horrid word that you promised, not an hour ago, never to say again. I don't know what to do with you."

"I know," he said, roguishly, lifting his face and looking at her.

"What?" she asked.

"Forgive me," he answered, smiling.

It was as much as she could do to keep from putting her arm around the cunning rascal and kissing him, but restraining herself, she said: "No, sir. I tell you what I will do, I'll get the fairies to come and take you to fairy-land and keep you until you are cured.

"So you want me to cure him, do you, mamma?" they heard some one ask.

"Gee Willikins!" exclaimed Sweetheart, pointing with his fat fist, whilst his eyes grew as big as saucers.

Mamma also looked, and there, standing on the porch railing stood Queen Mab herself, the queen of the fairies. The way mamma knew that she was Queen Mab was because she wore a golden crown set with diamonds.

Sweetheart never before had seen such a wonderful being. She was about six inches tall, and had beautiful blue eyes, and pretty golden-colored hair hung down her back; she was dressed in a lovely white dress all spangled over with blue and red stars.

"I was on my way to the city when I overheard your remark," she

VIBRATION IN CYCLING was the subject of a paper recently read by Dr. Benjamin Ward Richardson, at a meeting of the Society of Cyclists (London). "I am of the opinion," says the Doctor, "that nothing produces so much injurious fatigue, or so bad an effect on the health in cycling as vibration. It is a shock to the nervous system, causing a continued feeling of vibration through the body, a sense of nausea, and a degree of nervous prostration, accompanied with a reduced power of the lower limbs, which, to say the least of it, is very inconvenient, and which in a feeble person may be attended with actual risk."

The cause of the mischief is what medical men call "spinal shock." It is very much like, and in essence is the same as that kind of shock which is noted in railway accidents, the difference being that in railway accidents the shock is inflicted by one or two violent concussions, while in cycling the shock is produced by a number of minor shocks, which produce the injurious effect from an accumulative action upon the spinal cord, and, through it, to some extent, on the brain. Excessive vibration causes a general fatigue and a painful reduction of muscular power in the lower limbs.

An efficient spring fork annihilates vibration.

A perfected spring fork is found only in the Victor Safety.

said to mamma, "and I stopped to see if you really want to send your little son to fairy-land to be cured. You needn't be afraid to trust him to us, for we often take bad little boys home with us to cure them of their naughty habits. Here's a whole bundle of letters we've gotten from mammas, thanking us for our cure." And she handed mamma a great pile of letters. Where she got them Sweetheart could not tell: it seemed to him that she just reached out in the air and picked them up.

While mamma was looking over the letters, she said to him, "Don't you want to go to fairy-land with me?"

"No," answered Sweetheart, clinging closer to mamma.

"Well, then, will you be a good boy and never say "Gee Willikins" again?" she asked.

"Indeed I will, replied Sweetheart, very earnestly.

"I wonder it you will keep your promise," said Queen Mab. "I'll see." With her silver wand she tapped her shoulders, when lo! out popped two beautiful gauzy wings, and up and down the porch she flew, as lightly as a bird.

"Gee Willikins!" cried the astonished boy, gazing at her in great wonder.

"It is just as I thought," said Queen Mab, resuming her place on the railing; and tapping her wings with her wand, they immediately disappeared. "You see, mamma," she continued, "he cannot be trusted. What do you say, shall I take him?"

"I don't know what to say," said mamma: "these certainly are nice letters of recommendation you have, but I don't see how I can spare my little boy, bad as he is."

"But you see," responded Queen Mab, "it is for his own good."

"Yes, I know," answered mamma, "but—well, I'll telephone to papa and hear what he has to say."

So mamma rang the telephone bell, and asked papa what he thought of it, and papa answered to let him go by all means, as he had been there; then mamma telephoned to grandma, and she said if she bathed and dressed him in his best clothes, so Henry would not look any better if he happened to be there, she thought it might do to send him. Aunt Ridie, she said the same; then grandpa said if he went to be sure and get a receipt for him, and papa's mother said it would do him good to go, and Aunt Janet said she knew a little girl who had been sent there to be cured of making faces, and she was cured and sent home before night.

As everybody seemed to be so much in favor of it, mamma concluded to let him go.

"You will be sure to take good care of him and bring him safely back?" she asked Queen Mab.

"Why, of course," she answered.

"How will you take him?" she questioned.

"I've got a velocipede," said Sweetheart.

"Have you?" said Queen Mab, "then I'll ride my tricycle."

"Where is it?" asked Sweetheart.

"Why, I'll have to have it made. Mamma spare me a hairpin."

She took the hairpin from mamma's hand, and threw it on the floor of the porch, and said, "qlzxishkapmzzo," which means in English,

> Come ye elf, come ye sprite,
> Work with all your main and might;
> Come from mountain, come from dell,
> Make for me a tricycle!

So you see fairies don't lose much time when they talk. That's a very peculiar word, and it took me considerable time to get it, so be sure, my little cyclerette friend, to make your mamma repeat it over until you are able to pronounce it yourself.

Hardly had Queen Mab uttered the word, when at least two dozen little elves and sprites, all in their blue working clothes, appeared on the porch, and straightway seizing the hairpin, went to work. One old gray-bearded fellow, with big rimmed spectacles, cut it in different sized pieces and gave them to the rest. Some made the rims of the wheels, others spokes, others the handle bars, and others the various different parts.

Presently one ran up to Queen Mab, took off his hat, and after making a bow, said something that Sweetheart could not hear.

"Dear me," said Queen Mab, "they haven't any leather to make a saddle. What shall I do! Why, there's just the thing." Running over to one of Sweetheart's old shoes she took her scissors and clipped a piece of the tongue off, and handed it to the elf. He bowed and ran off. Presently he came back and said something else.

"Dear me," said Queen Mab, "they haven't any thread to sew it with. What shall I do? Why, there's just the thing." She hopped up in mamma's lap, and before Sweetheart could say a word she had plucked a strand of his bright curly hair, and the little elf had threaded his needle with it, and was busily sewing the saddle. When the tiny tricycle was made and all the elves and sprites had vanished, mamma bathed Sweetheart, and dressed him in his cleanest and prettiest white frock, and put his new shoes on, and curled his shining hair, then, putting on his white hat, she tied a piece of blue ribbon around his left wrist, to keep him from harm, and kissed him good-bye.

The tears came in her eyes as she saw them ride off, Queen Mab in her dainty tricycle, and Sweetheart on his old battered velocipede, his chubby little legs working as fast as they could so as to keep up with the fairy queen.

She turned and went in the house, and it was so still and lonesome that she rushed out again to call him back and tell Queen Mab that she couldn't spare her little boy, even if he was so naughty as to say "Gee Willikins!" She ran clear up to the gate and looked up and down the road, but they were not in sight. She called, "Sweetheart! Sweetheart!" but there came not an answer. So she went back in the house, picked up his little old worn shoes, kissed them and softly cried.

Meanwhile Sweetheart had arrived in fairy-land. Exactly how he reached there, he was not sure. It all seemed to him that while he and Queen Mab were riding along the lane, he suddenly rode right down through the ground, and the first thing he knew he ran "spang" right against a great big piece of fur.

As he was sprawling about, trying to get out of the fur, it arose, and with a terrible growl shook him off, and as he scrambled to his feet he saw it was a great big black bear.

Sweetheart was nearly scared to death.

"Humph!" growled the bear, "this is a pretty way to wake a body from his nap. What's your name?"

"Sweetheart," came the prompt answer.

"Sweetheart, hey?" said the bear. "Well, Mr. Sweetheart, let's see of what you are to be cured."

The bear walked up to him, and there, hanging to the blue ribbon that mamma had tied to his left wrist was a little silver medal, on which was written: "This little boy is to be cured of saying 'Gee Willikins,' and then returned to mamma, signed Mab, Queen of all the Fairies."

"Aha!" exclaimed the black bear, "so you say 'Gee Willikins,' do you? Well, what makes you say it?"

"Deed, sir, I don't know," answered Sweetheart.

"Don't, hey?" said the black bear, "then we will have to find out. Can you ride a bicycle?"

"No, sir," replied Sweetheart, "but papa can."

"Well," said the black bear, "we will see if you can."

So saying he went up to the red velocipede and growled out something, when lo! there stood in its place a beautiful little bicycle, with silver wheels, gold spokes and ivory handle-bars.

"Gee Willikins!" cried Sweetheart.

"Aha!" exclaimed the black bear. "I see what makes you say 'Gee Willikins,' 'tis things that surprise you. Now I know how to cure you."

He placed Sweetheart on the machine, and to his great surprise he rode right off.

He was so astonished and delighted to think that he could ride, that he at once cried, "Gee Willikins!"

No sooner had he uttered it than the little wheel kicked up, and away he went over the handle-bars, bang against the ground. Just like he had often seen his papa do.

It was some time before the black bear could speak for laughing. When he could, he said: "That's what you got for saying 'Gee Willikins,' and every time you say it, that little wheel is going to fly up and make you take a header. I've got to cure you from saying Gee Whillikins and I am going to do it."

"Yes sir," meekly replied Sweetheart. He bruised his shoulder when he fell, but the black bear didn't kiss it like mamma would, but simply helped him back on the machine and they again started. They rode around everywhere, and Sweetheart never had seen so many wonderful sights. He had said "Gee Willikins" ever so many times, and every time he said it the little wheel had flown up, and away he would go, and the black bear would laugh and again put him in the saddle.

It wasn't any fun to Sweetheart, and his little body was black and blue with bruises and he felt sore and ached all over. He had had so many falls that he had learned to look at wonderful things without saying Gee Willikins, and the black bear was beginning to think he had cured him.

Presently, on rounding a bend, Sweetheart's wondering eyes saw a lovely little lake.

There were all kinds, sizes and colors of ducks and geese swimming in it. There were big yellow geese with flat bills, there were little red ducks with round bills, there were green geese and blue ducks, and striped geese and dotted ducks. In the centre of the lake was a little island on which was a little house.

"Gee Willikins!" exclaimed Sweetheart.

Hardly had he said it before the little wheel flew up, and away he went over the handle-bars, splash! into the lake.

Clear down to the bottom he went, and lay there. The water gurgled in his ears and crept in his eyes, wriggled up his nose and ran in his mouth and choked and strangled him, the fish swam up to him and rubbed their cold noses against him, and just as he thought he was drowning the black bear waded in and pulled him up and carried him over to the island.

"Humph," he growled, "I thought I had cured you, but I see I haven't. Come run in the house there, and stand before the fire and dry your clothes."

The poor, wet, miserable little boy was glad enough to obey.

The bright fire was so warm and genial that his spirits soon began to rise, and he raised his bead and looked around the room.

Could he believe his eyes? It was his play-room. There was his little wheelbarrow, his red wagon, box of ten pins, old battered trumpet, the table, his rubber ball, and hanging by a nail to the side of the closet was his drum, and astraddle the drum was Jim. Now Jim was a black faced boy that cousin Maria had made for him. He wore a blue sailor suit trimmed with white braid and had a base ball cap. He was nearly as large as his owner, and for some time the only way mamma could make Sweetheart mind her was by threatening to take Jim for her baby. But it wasn't long before he got over his jealousy, and Jim became his boon companion, and he never had been more glad to see him than on this day.

"Gee Willikins!" he exclaimed, "dare's Jim," and forgetful of his promise and wet clothes he ran over to get him. As he reached up his arms the little black boy astraddle the drum said: "Go 'way frum heah, I's no Jim, I's neezer."

"What!" cried Sweetheart, aghast.

"Yes," said the figure, "I's no Jim, I's neezer, Ebenezer."

Before the astonished boy could say anything further, he heard a deep voice behind him growl out: "What's the matter here? Who put this fire out?"

Looking around Sweetheart saw the black bear gazing savagely at him.

"Who put this fire out?" he repeated.

"'Deed, sir, I don't know," Sweetheart answered.

"Have you said 'Gee Willikins?'" asked the bear.

"Yes sir," timidly replied Sweetheart.

"That accounts for it," said the bear severely.

"Now, sir, that fire cannot be relighted until you are completely cured of saying 'Gee Willikins,' and hereafter whenever you say it the Ghost-of-the-fire will appear before you."

"Come on," he continued, "there is only one way to dry your clothes, and that is to hang you and them on the clothes line."

Taking Sweetheart by the hand he led him out in the yard, and lifting him up to the line he pinned him to it by the sleeves, and then left him hanging there.

The hot sun broiled down on his bare head, the yellow geese and the red ducks, the green geese and the blue ducks, the striped geese and the dotted ducks, and all the other queer fowls, swam up to the border of the yard and cackled and sissed and quacked at him; his little arms became so tired that he did not know what to do, and he felt so miserable generally that he began to cry and sob for mamma.

As the tears rolled down and fell on the bricks, they all began bouncing up and down like rubber balls.

Sweetheart was so utterly surprised at that, that before he could think he cried, "Gee Willikins."

Hardly had he done so before all the geese and ducks and other fowls began to wag their heads, flap their wings, cackle and quack, and beat the water at a tremendous rate; the bouncing tears bounced faster and faster and higher and higher, until they began to strike him on his legs, body, face and head, and they struck hard enough to hurt and he cried harder and harder, and the more tears he shed the more there were to bounce up and hit him. Oh, how he cried and called for mamma and papa and Theresa, his nurse, and promised he never, never would say "Gee Willikins" again.

Suddenly he saw a piece of smoke come slowly moving across the yard, until it was right in front of him, when it stopped.

A voice, which he recognized to be that of the black bear, said: "That is the Ghost-of-the-fire."

When Sweetheart looked at it again it scared him so that he stopped crying, for it had one great big flaming yellow eye and one great big blazing red eye, its nose was green and long and kept wriggling about like a snake, its mouth was blue and looked big enough to swallow him whole, and its ears were white and kept flapping like wings, in fact its whole body kept twisting and doubling and turning whilst it was before him.

"Now, little Sweetheart, which would you rather do, go and live with the Ghost-of-the-fire or go home and live with mamma?' asked the black bear, who had reappeared.

"Go home and live with mamma," humbly answered Sweetheart.

"Will you again promise never to say 'Gee Willikins?'" said the black bear.

"Ineed, indeed, sir, I will," replied Sweetheart.

"Well," said the black bear, "I will give you a trial. Now mind, if you ever say 'Gee Willikins' again, the Ghost-of-the-fire will come after you. Now, Ghost-of-the-fire, return to the chimney, and if you ever hear Sweetheart say 'Gee Willikins,' go after him immediately and bring him to me."

The Ghost-of-the-fire nodded its head, grinned and batted its eyes, then floated up to the top of the chimney and disappeared down it. Then the black bear unpinned Sweetheart from the clothes line and took him home, and to this day he has never said "Gee Willikins."

SECRETARY.

A POINTER FOR TOURISTS.

Editor Bicycling World: As you have lately printed quite a number of letters from people who want information about routes which are attractive for bicycle touring, I suggest to you the propriety of appending to future letters of that sort an editorial answer as follows:

"The desired facts can probably be had by paying two dollars to Karl Kron, for his 'Ten Thousand Miles on a Bicycle,' wherein nearly 3500 towns on touring routes are indexed. If you hate the idea of contributing so much money towards the $13,000 which he has expended in publishing, for your benefit, a wheelmen's gazetteer of American roads, then send a postal-card request to him, at the University Building, Washington Square, New York, and receive a copy of the 150-page gift-book, which he mails gratuitously, and which exhibits the contents-table, general-index, and many newspaper opinions of his gazetteer."

For the five years, 1879 to 1883, I devoted a great amount of time to preparing "road information" to all who asked for it, either through your columns or in private letters to myself. The five years since then I have entirely devoted to compiling and publishing, in compact shape for reference, an enormous mass of such information, representing a great variety of touring routes in nearly all the States, and perhaps 20,000 miles of roadway altogether.

Until the prospective tourist has consulted the indexes of this elaborate cycling cyclopedia, with their 22,000 references, and assured himself that the routes he wants to know about are not mentioned in it, he ought not to ask others to wearily compile the facts "for nothing," nor ask you to print such facts, to the exclusion of matters which are more readable and more timely. KARL KRON.

COMPARATIVE SPEED OF CYCLES.

THE following table, compiled from the Road Records Association of England, for 1888, will give an excellent idea of the comparative speed of the different types of machines:

	50 Miles.	100 Miles.	12 Hours. Miles.	24 Hours. Miles.
Ordinary bicycle, -	2.57.47	6.48.14	—	273
Safety bicycle, - -	2.47.36	6.20.26	—	297
Safety tandem, - -	2.52.03	—	—	—
Tricycle, - - -	2.53.05	6.59.54	147	264
Tricycle tandem, -	2.46.03	6.57.32	—	298 1-2

To those who have always thought that the ordinary was the record making machine the above figures will prove "eye openers."

DEATH OF JOHN STOUT.

JOHN M. STOUT, the Star trick bicyclist, who resided at Ripley, Brown county, Ill., came to his death about four o'clock, March 15th, in an effort to beat his record for time between Ripley and Mt. Sterling. He had previously made the distance in one hour, and his attempt was to lower the time. The road was in fair condition, but spongy. He stopped at the residence of Mr. Means, about one and a half miles east of Mt. Sterling, and got a drink of water. Then he wrote on a sheet of paper (he being a deaf mute), that he was trying to beat the best time ever made, and was off. A few minutes later he was found about a mile east of Mt. Sterling, lying in the road, dead. His bicycle lay in the road about ten feet behind him. Both were lying across the road. Dr. Baxter reached the spot soon afterward, and upon examination gave it as his opinion that death was caused by a stroke of apoplexy. When Mr. Stout stopped at the Means residence he was covered with perspiration, and drank liberally of cold water. Some were of the opinion that death was caused by a broken neck.

The body was taken to Mt. Sterling and the relatives notified. Mr. Stout was married about six months ago to a lady bicyclist, also a deaf mute.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE STANLEY SHOW.

BY CHAS. E. PRATT.

THE "Stanley Show," as all wheelmen know, and as most of the less fortunate balance of the world is getting to understand, has become an English institution. Promoted years ago by the Stanley Bicycle Club, it became really a great annual trade bazaar, for the exhibition of all sorts of vehicles propelled by foot or by hand, and of all sorts of parts from crude forgings to finished frames and saddles, and of all sorts of accessories or things that can be used with bicycles and tricycles, and of all sorts of publications relating to bicycles and tricycles. Every year when the first whisperings of spring trade or inquiry begin to be heard, all the inventors and mechanics, and small makers and large manufacturers, and dealers and exchangers, and publishers, hasten to exhibit their very latest and best and most attractive. Novelties are carefully held back and secreted for this revelation. All the new styles for the year are hastened into readiness for this first appearance. Here the parvenu in the trade, who has fitted up a back room where he may put together a few machines from parts bought of the supply makers, and the older experimenter, who has seen the trade drifting past his doors, both eagerly point out some divergence in type of machine, or some ingenious invention set off in nickel and enamel to beguile the new purchaser. Here the makers come to see every man what his neighbor is doing, and here the riders from everywhere, insatiable in their search for something easier and better to ride, come to examine the styles; and hither also comes the bicycling editor, and the wise special writer on the subject of bicycling, for his hints and such special inducements as may entice him for preparing his reports with such impartiality and truthfulness as all the circumstances may make expedient.

The exhibition of 1889, which has just closed, was held in the magnificently commodious Crystal Palace Building, just out of London. It was held there for the first time, I believe, was a large and successful exhibition, and a profitable one to all interested in its promotion. The show is still not merely nominally but in part practically under the auspices of the Stanley Club, as always, but that club takes no risks about it. A representative of the Crystal Palace Management informed me that the show had proved a profitable venture for them, indeed the most profitable part of their winter's business, and that they had secured the show for next year for the same place.

The bicycle and tricycle exhibit occupied more than half of the main Exhibition Hall and parts of two of the wings. The different exhibits were well arranged upon slightly raised platforms, or in specially built booths, mainly along the sides of two long aisles, intersected here and there by cross aisles. It was a pretty sight in the morning to stand near the centre of the magnificent building and look along the brilliant lines of machines, stretching so far that the remotest were scarcely distinquishable, or in the afternoon and evening to look over the vast crowds of visitors, when the machines were scarcely visible.

To the American who was not fortunate enough to be there, however, the chief interest is, of course, in what was exhibited. It required one day to see the exhibit generally, the following days were sufficient for examining the exhibits in detail. The visitor was first impressed with the lack of novelties. There were bicycles and tricycles and safeties and tandems, apparently without limit, but with a great deal of sameness in their construction; indeed the types and general construction of machines seem to be settled, and the differences are mostly in details. More sameness is to be expected in an English exhibit (and this, it is to be borne in mind, was an English show almost entirely, than would be found in an American exhibit in proportion to the number of exhibiters), because many of the English makers buy their parts of the same makers of unfinished parts, and can therefore exhibit their originality for the most part only in details of finish and a few special devices. The preponderance of safeties of the rear wheel chain driving variety was to be expected on account of the comparatively rapid rise of that type of machine into prominence last season. The greater number of machines of this class on exhibition were of the cross frame pattern, having a straight forked reach from the steering spindle to the rear axle, most resembling what is perhaps the machine most familiar to Americans, the Veloce Columbia, of 1888. The next larger number of these exhibits show diamond frames of the general form of the Victor Safety of last year, except its peculiar spring front fork. But the divergencies or new patterns for 1889 must, of course, be sought in the lesser number and the very latest machines shown by the different makers. These divergencies with the principal makers in respect to the frames of the safeties take their direction from the two types just mentioned in about equal proportions. Neither is retained just as it was last year. The cross frame becomes an arquebus frame, that is, the reach is not extended from the steering head to the rear axle direct, but the rear forked portion is divided, one pair of tubes extending from the rear axle upward to near the seat rod, and the other pair extending downward to or near the crank shaft; connecting with a nearly vertical cross-tube, and from about the middle of that cross-tube the reach extends upward to the steering head, usually in the best exhibits with a tie or stay rod below or above the reach. In the new machines having modified diamond frames are seen mostly double nearly parallel tubes of smaller diameter, instead of the single large tubes, and a nearly vertical cross-tube or stay between the crank shaft and the seat support.

Other noticeable tendencies are those toward socket heads instead of center steering heads; a little rise in the position of the handles; a little more rearward position of the saddle, and more distance between the perpendiculars through the crank shaft and the saddle centre, and a smaller rear wheel. Great prevalence is noted in straight tubing instead of curved, and brazings are avoided wherever possible. The hammock seat, or "Kirk" seat, as it has been so long called in America, is coming into general use there, as also the wide grooved pedal bars. These two American notions having captivated the Englishman. The smaller rear wheel, and the placing of the saddle backward well over it, is acknowledged to be an attempt to solve the problem of a machine that will stand up on the greasy, smooth English streets; but it is not by the riders, or by the makers themselves, considered as otherwise than an experiment. The question is whether the increased jar and drag of the smaller wheel, sometimes made as small as 28 or even 26 inches will be compensated for by a less liability to skid out in quick turning. I know of no American roads where the same conditions prevail as on the London streets, for instance, with their smooth pavements, or their principal country roads with their smoothly rolled Telford or Macadam surfaces, always wet and covered with a greasy mud, where almost any kind of a machine will "sloo" sidewise, as the countrymen say, a little easier than it will go ahead. On our roads with drier but less even surfaces the kick and drag of these small wheeled machines must be about as agreeable as was the kick of the sixteen inch rear wheel, once thought "the thing" on the ordinary bicycle.

In spring frames or anti-vibration devices for Safeties there were two or three extreme exhibits where springs were shown at both ends of the frame, one where a pretty good, but not very graceful double parallel spring head was shown, but the best makers go very light on this idea, a few showing no anti-vibration devices at all, even in the best machines, but having a joint and an arm in each side of the front fork with a short coiled spring arranged in one form or another to relieve the vibration of the handle bars and the shock of obstructions to some extent.

In bicycles of the ordinary type there was very little noticeable except one thing—the "Rational Ordinary," as they call it there. This in its pronounced form is an ordinary bicycle, with 2 1-2 to 3 inch rake, and a 22-inch back wheel. That is to say, the tendency in bicycles proper is toward more rake and smaller front wheel and larger rear wheel. In connection with this it may be remarked that the getting of the pedals directly under the saddle is considered to have been carried to an extreme. The swimming attitude is found not to be so effective either for safety or for ease in propulsion.

In the bicycle proper four things have gone by the board, and are seen no more—front forks straight up, saddle chuck up to the head, sizes strained large, and minute rear wheel. These had their vogue for a little while abroad, as they did with the too-too riders in America; but our English cousins, finding that the safety doesn't solve the whole problem of all fun and no effort, are looking to the slowly evolved but nobler type of bicycle again, with good rake and a liberal back wheel, set their saddles a little further back, and find a lighter machine, a better position, more perfect control, freer hands, safety enough for the fairly alert, and more fun. The rear-driving safety got most of its go from the effort to find a machine that would stand up on a greasy roadway; but I heard both riders and makers predict more proportionate attention to the ordinary in future, except for the elderly and the weakly, than has been shown this last year.

In tricycles, as in safeties, the struggle is for reliable strength with lightness. The tendencies are to smaller drivers and larger steering wheels—wheels of nearly even size, and from 30 to 34 inches in diameter. The greater number are, of course, of the "Cripper" type, with guide wheel in middle front of machine, but a notable number of tricycles, shown as new 1889 style by the best makers, have a single rear driving wheel, like the safeties, and two guiding wheels abreast in front. Some of these have curved side handle-bars with open front, and some have the transverse handle-bar in front, "Cripper" style. There were also a few handsome tandem tricycles on this plan. This style seems to find much favor on account of two things—its open front capacity and its avoidance of that otherwise necessary inconvenience for both rider and maker, the balance gear.

Tandem tricycles and tandem safeties were found with most of the large exhibits, but with little real novelty. When you have seen the tricycle or the safety of a maker you know what his tandem is of either variety, because he maketh it the same in general pattern and in all possible details. The most noticeable thing about the very latest tandems is that they are heavier, that is, strengthened up, than last year, to make them endure the strains better.

Ladies' machines? Yes, there were ladies' machines, plenty of them in tricycles, but only two or three in safeties. Ladies do not ride safeties to any extent in England, nor is it believed that they will. The makers say that their trade is in tricycles for the fair; and with one or two exceptions, more for advertising reasons, the only venture in that direction is to make the tandem safeties with a free curved reach or removable brace in front, so that either a lady or a gentleman may ride on the front seat. I did find one tandem made for two ladies to ride, but that is recognized as too blooming absurd, you know.

THE MAN WITH A WHEEL TO SELL.

His name is Legion, his brow is sad,
His careworn looks their story tell;
You must have met him, he's everywhere,
——The man with the second-hand wheel to sell.

He button-holes you upon the street,
(You must lose the button to get away);
And your hair grows grey as he rambles on His endless story——which is to say—

"Do you know of anyone, wants a wheel?
I'm going to sell——if I strike a trade,—
You don't? Oh! Thunder! They all say that!
——Not much use my trying, I'm afraid!

"But mine, you know, is in first-class trim
I didn't ride much—it was not my size;—"
(You remember he wore himself down to a spectre, Trying to gain a club mileage prize.)

"The tire don't show the least bit of wear,
The finish is just as good as new;
It cost me a hundred and forty-five,
And I ought to get ninety, I think. Don't you?"

And thus and thusly, on and on,
Past all endurance his story grows;
(The monster, its easy enough to see
No viscera of compassion knows.)

The tender care he has lavished on
That wheel, to save it from dust or grease;
Would lead one to think that it had been kept
Under glass, on his parlor mantle-piece.

For aye and a day he talks and talks,
Till at last, with man-slaughter in your eyes;
You cut off the button and cut away
And tell him to go——and advertise.

The dealer laughs him away in scorn,
Then turns with a queer look in his eye,
To his own little shop full of similar goods
With never a soul to step up and buy.

So there's no relief for him (or ourselves)
Till some new market for wrecks is found,
——Some uncouth region, if such there be
Where the safety craze has not yet got round.

Then the trade to this grave emergency,
Should rise as a unit and boldly send;
its travelling men and their samples off
To this work-a-day planet's farthest end.

Let them fresco in scarlet the pyramids,
And cover the Andes with epigrams neat
(Since the soul-less fathers of Boston town
Have ordered them down from Beacon st.

There's an unsought field in Kamschatka, where
The lordling lolls in his soft barouche;
And there's plenty of room for displayed designs
On the glaciers and crags of the Hindoo Koosh.

A RAID ON A BICYCLE CLUB POKER GANG.

SUNDAY morning, March 9th, at 1 A. M., Capt. Frank R. Steele, L. B. Enslow and Alex. H. Myer, members of the Old Dominion Wheelmen, of Richmond, Va., armed with stout sticks, noiselessly crept to the second floor of the Club House on North Second Street, from the rear room of which muffled exclamations of "I'll see you" —"I'll raise you"—"Look a-here, Sam Johnson, no monkeying"—"I've got three Jacks"—&c., were heard.

With one bang of six fists and the combined weight of the three bodies of the aforesaid club members, the door to the said room burst open with a crash. Instantly all was confusion, and loud were the oaths of the fleeing negro poker players, the rattling of scattered and hastily thrown down chips. The window was opened, and the "colored gentlemen" beat a hasty retreat via that opening. Then came sounds of swiftly shuffling footsteps from the alley below, and sounds of scrambling over the back fence were heard, and then a dead silence.

But one "sport" remained, to tell the tale. Lo! the poor janitor! —who, acting as room-keeper, steered the gang, received the room-rent, but, alas! too old to play, had fallen asleep, and was awakened too late to escape. He now wants a bondsman, and the O. D. W. are looking for a janitor.

This was the "first run" of the season for the O. D. W., and the few members participating enjoyed it hugely. Can any other club offer a more novel introduction run? GYP.

A TRIP AWHEEL TO LICK OBSERVATORY VIA SAN JOSE, CAL.

BY H. ALLEN MATHEWS.

JAMES LICK

WITH a day or two here and there I have managed to push my "Columbia" about three and one half thousand miles over roads within a radius of 100 miles of San Francisco and am thoroughly acquainted with the country from Ukiah (Mendocino Co.) on the North, to Lick Observatory and San Jose (Santa Clara Co.) on the South, from Stockton, French Camp and Tracy (San Joaquin Co.) on the East, to Pacific Ocean on the West. The hardest yet most enjoyable, interesting and instructive trip I have found within this territory is to Lick Observatory, via San Jose and return from Brooklyn, 146 miles for the round trip. It is my intention to describe this trip taken last July, as briefly as possible, using instead of "I" the two words "Our Cycler."

Let us now start with our cycler, who left Brooklyn about 3 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, with the intention of reaching San Jose in the evening and before midnight.

The road and scenery as far as Haywards will not be described, as all are well acquainted with it, if they have read the many descriptions.

From Haywards to Mt. Eden (3.75 miles) the road and scenery was decidedly uninteresting. The former being full of ruts and the latter consisting of bare fields. He then enjoyed a two mile ride of fair road reaching the well known Alvarado Bridge, which is about one mile long. This bridge is decidedly rougher than the bassalt rock surface of the Market street cable track, in San Francisco Co.

Riding off the south end of this bridge our cycler landed about the centre of the town of Alvarado and thence over a well kept and graveled road, leading for 5.90 miles between prosperous farms and orchards to Centreville. The surrounding country as seen from this road towards the South is flat as far as the Eastern Slope of the Santa Cruz Mountains (30 miles away) and is also level towards the east for nearly two miles. Then arising abruptly is a ridge of foot hills surmounted by several peaks. The most prominent is Mission Peak. Situated at the eastern foot of this peak is Mission San Jose, containing as a relic of early California missionary days, a few adobe houses. To the west and seaward several small islands can be seen. Once a ride of two miles, over marsh lands, brought a party of cyclers there, their object being to visit the oyster beds and taste a few of the oysters. At the same time a mile further of similar riding brought them to the Salt Works. These are located a few miles further to the south and nearer Newark.

Our cycler reached Centreville about 5.15 and decided to stop there for supper. It was probably about 7.30 in the evening and about an hour after dark before he was again in the saddle. He then passed through Irvington (formerly Washington Corners) then Harrisburg, also known as Warm Springs. This, by the way, is a peculiar town; it contains one house, which serves as a hotel, post, express and public telephone office, saloon (and possibly a church and Court House when necessity arises. Thence the road led him to Milpitas and following came one or two half way houses. Of course he did not see these owing to the darkness but knew of their existence having seen them by daylight. San Jose came in sight about 10 o'clock and the St. James Hotel (the League Hotel) a few minutes later. After partaking of light refreshments and leaving orders with the night clerk to be called at four o'clock in the morning, our tourist retired to slumber and rest, and thus prepare for the morrow's trip of 100 miles.

Sunday morning did not dawn "the sun bright and promises for" etc., as most accounts of cycling trips read, but a heavy San Jose fog pervaded the atmosphere, when our cycler mounted his wheel at the door of the St. James Hotel at five o'clock. This raised his joy and satisfaction too 500 degrees above zero, as 26.90 miles of mountain riding in the sun would have been anything but pleasant. From St. James Hotel he rode down N. First street and turned east to Santa Clara avenue which led him for two miles between the handsomest residences and flower gardens of the "Garden City." The next two miles of the avenue is slightly "tilted," (Anglise, "hilly") with waving fields of grain on either side. This brought him to Lick avenue and a walk of .70 of a mile, up a grade varying from 4 to 6 feet in 100, brought him to the Junction House. He prepared to be climated by placing his coat on the handle bar of his bicycle, and from dire necessity he alternated riding and walking for the next 5.90 miles to First Summit.

Thus far the road was excellent, being equal to any park driveway. The grade averaged four feet rise in 100, a slight grade, but decidedly tiresome to a cycler when there is much of it. At the summit he stopped and viewed his surroundings. Santa Clara valley was spread before him like a panorama, in shape resembled a horse-shoe, with the open end towards the north. On the west side are the Santa Cruz Mountains. The south and east side being marked by low foot-hills and marsh-lands of San Francisco Bay, on the north. The town of San Jose reposed peacefully about the centre of the valley and Santa Clara about 3.85 miles further to the west. After drinking in the scene, our cycler faced east and proceeding on his way, following the road (now adobe and mixed with a few rocks) down a canon having a grade of 4 feet in 100, to Hall's valley and foot of grade.

The east side of the canon is a treeless, bare and rocky slope, with here and there a tuft of grass. The west side is covered with trees and shrubbery: a decidedly peculiar freak of nature. This is caused by the western slope being protected from the winds which quite frequently blow here at the rate of 35 miles an hour and during storms reach a velocity equal to 65, and even as high as 80 miles within the hour. The eastern slope receiving full benefit. This same "freak" may be seen at Whites Hill (Marin Co.).

From First Summit is a fine "coast" of 2.30 miles, to foot of grade. Then began a climb of 3.50 miles to Second Summit. This last four miles is macadamised with red rock, same as the drives of Golden Gate Park. Our cycler leaned his wheel against Smith's Creek Hotel at 8.30 sharp, having consumed 3 1-2 hours in covering 18.70 miles, having walked and ridden up grade 11.20 miles, riding without a dismount the remaining 7.50. He stopped at Smith's about an hour, took a walk up the creek, tested the temperature of the water by taking a swim a la New York news boy style, which performance decidedly freshened him up. Returning, he sat on the hotel veranda and viewed the Observatory, one mile away via air line, two by trail and 7.20 by road.

KAUGHT WITH A KODAK.

(BY C. E. EDWARDS.)

ONE of the adjuncts to a wheelman's outfit is a small photographic camera. How often does the pedestrian, in his rounds, come upon some scene that is amusing or interesting, that makes him wish for the pencil of an artist in order to perpetuate it by transferring it to paper. The wheelman, more than any other traveler, finds these odd things that entertain the tourist, and to him they are most interesting souvenirs of his trips. The amateur camera, therefore, becomes a part of the necessary impedimenta to the man or woman who keeps a "log-book" of the travels of the wheel. Not only does the diary bring back the incidents of the ramble over hill and dale, but the fleeting scenes have been caught and are speaking witnesses testifying to the pleasant hours on the cycle.

Do you see a beautiful bit of scenery, a pressed button, and its image is yours forever; do you find something interesting in animal life, you catch the shadow and it is immortalized; perchance some mother is seen in the act of chastising her unruly boy, and the negative will send her down the hill of time recorded as following the precept of Solomon; some persistently objectionable small boy has endeavored to make a portion of your life a burden, and you catch the fleeting likeness to an imp and hold him up as an example of total depravity; another small specimen of humanity has probably met with a swift retribution for his meanness, and his ghastly remains are vividly shown as a warning to all coming generations; does the bucolic native stand in gaping amazement at the new Centaur an instant, and the yawning chasm of astonishment is transfixed with the sun's rays, and it goes out to the world as a species of humanity; some road hog, who by the purchase of a horse imagines that he thereby becomes the owner of the road, makes himself particularly obnoxious to the members of the magic circle, and his countenance adorns the rogue's gallery, showing that one more man is to be shunned by respectable people.

This list could be indefinitely prolonged by also showing the pleasant things in life that go to make up the sum of happiness that enlivens the cycler's ride. There are sly glances from fair young girls who never dreamed that the sun picture of that killing look is filed away in the archives of the club, and is a source of pleasure to the elect who are entitled to wander in the sacred precincts; again, two fond lovers may imagine that no human eye beholds the sacred kiss, but the soft rubber tire has allowed the approach of the camera-bearing wheelman, and alas! they have been mirrored in that truthful instrument, and all the local wheelmen know of their love.

The grinning school-boy recognizes his legitimate prey and stoops for a stick or a stone with which he intends to shy at the passing wheel.

Here is another who finds the pleasure of adorning the caudle appendage of a stray cur with a tin medal second to that of yelling at the wheelman, and the dog thus has a brief respite from torture.

A "little German band" discourses music for pennies and at the same time adds to the stock of subjects of the photographer.

Here a descendant of the patriarchal ancestors has a "gray" in his clutches, and will doubtless sell him a new coat that "fits like the paper on the wall" before the wheelmen have finished their ride.

There a fond mother is seen administering a needed correction to an erring offspring, while his howls send a thrill of fiendish glee through the souls of the cyclers, who congregate to enjoy the pleasure of "getting even."

The first-born does not fare so well as does the little one caught in this window, who is held up by the young mother to see the glittering wheels spin by and then turns to be kissed for the cute manner in which the unwonted sight has been received.

But it is not only babies that are seen in windows, and many a curtain only half conceals the form of some one who has expected the draperies of the pane to keep off the gaze of the passer while a glance is taken at the riders.

A particularly refreshing glass of milk has satisfied the cycler at a farm-house, and the grateful man has taken the picture of the animal that furnished the lacteal fluid.

Here on a pleasant knoll is found a number of brother wheelmen who have ended a run with apples, cider, and colic, and the group is taken to be placed on the roll of honor with the other more interesting features of the trip.

A short stop by the wayside brings us many curious people, and a relic of slavery's days is very inquisitive in his examination of the wheel. Thus the two extremes are brought together, and the camera binds barbarism with civilization by one touch of the magic button.

Yonder howls a youthful scion of the old African, who is filled with terror at the bicycle, or the rider, and a fleeting expression is caught and saved for posterity.

The usually stolid descendant of Confucius unbends, and his slant-eyed countenance with its reflectant astonishment is transferred to the sensitive paper ere he is aware that he is noticed. Thus it goes, and in just one hour's ride a most delightful series of pictures is taken and the party is ready to disband, when a roguish maid casts a glance that caused the camera-bearer to tremble to such an extent that he barely retains sufficient nerve to press the button and save his record by adding the last and best picture to the gallery. The foregoing is a sample of what may be found during a short ride in the city by one who keeps his eyes open, and is indicative of what may be found if the wheelman takes a tour through the country in the highways and byways where the face of nature takes on another aspect and the stereotyped types of city life are unknown.

The little things of life are those which go to make up the sum of it, and the little pleasures are the ones that we have every day, these little pleasures are the ones that are found by looking for the bright and amusing things that are always happening, and the cycler with his camera thus adds to his enjoyment of life, while those who sneer at his "boyishness" are traveling along in the same old rut and seeing only the yellow tinge to everything that is painted by their own jaundice.

EXPLANATION.

By means most vividly impressed on our mind, the following remarkable manuscript fell into our hands, and we propose to print it just as we found it; but to spare our readers' feelings, we shall dole it out in small instalments. That the author will never call to reclaim the manuscript we feel pretty well satisfied, as at the time he left the papers he had just negotiated the loan of a V from us, and we rather think that the forgetting to take away these papers was largely due to a paralyzing surprise at being successful in securing the loan.

We hope Mr. Bellamy will not imagine that these feeble scribblings are any plagiarism on his "Looking Back," so we give them as curiosities, and as showing to what extent imagination will carry a man. The idea that seems to possess this dreamer is that the whole economy of life is changed by the introduction of the cycle, all of which will appear from time to time as we print the series of "talks."

We especially ask our readers to note the dates on which these articles are supposed to be written. For want of a better name, we shall call the series

None will gainsay but that your venerable and much to be commended father showed great good sense and judgment, my dear Lucullus, in placing your tender young mind under my fostering care, to so compass and mould same that you may meet and battle successfully with the difficulties of this cycle-a-day world.

That my capacity to teach you from my vast store of knowledge and unlimited experience will prove a boon and a blessing to you, I have no doubt, providing, of course, that you show the proper quality of humility, modesty and tractability. These traits are indeed to be cherished in young and old alike, and from my earliest childhood my estimable pater graciously instilled the beauties of modesty into my infantile mind, until this virtue became a part of me, and to this very hour is the ruling force of all my actions.

My method of instruction will not consist in dry homilies and lectures, delivered within the four walls of close, stuffy schools, as was the custom fifty years ago, but will rather be by means of in-

NEW MAIL.

Three ◎ Unsolicited ✻ Letters ◎ Just ◎ Received.

From F. D. ELWELL,
Champion of Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Feb. 19, 1889

DEAR SIRS:

I desire to express my appreciation of the 56 inch New Mail bicycle purchased four months ago.

The great rigidity and easy steering of the Trigwell Ball Head is a pleasant relief after years of experience with the ordinary cone.

Since receiving the New Mail, I have won from scratch all races in which I have competed, and am more than pleased with its easy running qualities. I truly believe it is the best all-round bicycle manufactured.

F. D. ELWELL,
Champion Cal. Div. L. A. W., 1888.

PROVIDENCE, March 7th, 1889.

MESSRS. WM. READ & SON, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—Kindly send me your bicycle catalogue for '89.

The 58-inch "New Mail" purchased of you last year has given perfect satisfaction. I have tested it in all possible ways, and it gives me pleasure to report that it is the best mount I ever had, having been a wheelman for a period of twelve years.

Last season I did the most wheeling of any previous year, the greater part of it being over rough country roads, and not one cent did I expend for repairs; the machine is now apparently as good as new.

Considering the size of my wheel and my weight (168 pounds), too much cannot be said in praise of the "New Mail."

Yours truly, F. N. MACLEOD.

SPRINGFIELD, Illinois, March 12, 1889.

MESSRS. WM. READ & SON, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen—Please send '89 catalogue. I am happy to say that my wheel (52-inch New Mail) appears to be faultless. Since I bought it new, last June, I have ridden it every week, and almost every day, in all kinds of weather and over all kinds of roads. In this time I have adjusted the head once, and oiled it only three times, more on general principles than because it needed it. I must have ridden it very nearly, if not quite, 1000 miles, and now it runs as smoothly and noiselessly as when I first got it. This record is duplicated only by another wheel here, and it is a 54-inch New Mail. While I ride a bicycle I want no other than a New Mail.

Yours respectfully,

formal talks and chats, held under God's blue canopy, and in company with nature herself; so that while your ear drinks in the words I shall utter, your nostrils can inhale the pure oxygen of the life-laden, unconfined atmosphere.

Even though the whole end and aim of humanity has, during the past half century, focussed on cycling, yet, not to cloy your tender intellect, I shall occasionally digress, and give you a taste of other mind food, never forgetting, however, that cycling is the Alpha and Omega of the present generation of happy mortals.

It will not be the purpose of my conversation to enlarge unduly on the circumstances which have led to the present happy state of affairs. Much blood and much more good writing fluid have been spilled in order that we might reach this Utopian condition of existence. It is now over fifty-five years since the close of the last war in which actual guns and bullets were used to prove that the "other fellows" were in the wrong. This dire event is, however, a matter on which you can gather facts from the excellent text-book of the present day. [The venerable Demetrius evidently refers to the German-American-Samoan dispute. These islands, of course the reader knows, are now known as the "Acme Air" Islands; the Acme Air Cushion Fork Co. having purchased, and are now occupying the entire territory, in the manufacture of the celebrated air cushion fork of that name.—Ed.]

Yes indeed, my son, the bayonet and sword have been turned into spokes, and the steel-armored vessels of the olden days are broken up, and the material is now doing duty as back-bones, rims, and other parts of millions of cycles.

Instead of killing each other nowadays, men and nations settle disputes by a competition exhibition of cycles, and the overwhelming victory of the United States of North and South America lately achieved over Great Britain, in one of their bloodless but instructive engagements, is one of the most remarkable events of modern history.

Let our discourse for this day now close, my son, and as we are some seventy-five miles from home, and it is within half an hour of dinner, let us mount our cycles and return at once, so that we need not use unseemly haste.

AN ARTIST ABROAD.

"An Artist Abroad," as he is called, has succumbed to the intense pressure of his profession His wheel, or wheels, or in short his tricycle, reposes some twenty-five or thirty miles away, in the depths of the Forit de Rambullet. It rests, and rusts and grows grimmy in the small but ancient town of St. Lign, some four miles from the old feudal town of Montfort, the birthplace, I believe, of the famous Simon de Montfort. If the tri. is proud of reposing so near the remains of this feudal fiend or not we will not take upon ourselves to say, but we have not the slightest doubt that it continues to rust all the same, and by this time has taken upon itself a beautiful tint of red that will cause the aforesaid "Artist Abroad" some hours of muscular amusement in the spring. But a sojourn of three years amongst the Bohemians of Paris, has given to him the divine power of taking things easy, and therefore he plugs away at his tableaux in the great city of the world, with scarcely a thought of his valiant steed thus slowly dissolving in the depths of a historical forest.

Alas! so are the old loves and friendships of this life cast aside, and left to pine away in solitude while we revel in the pleasures of the new. Malheur! If we could honestly do so we would be excessively delighted to write, for our friends, the readers of the World, a long, eventful and exciting account of a trip down into Auvergne and Brittany, or perhaps even as far as Egypt.

For instance, "A Trip up the Nile on a Tricycle" would have the casket of elegance that would at once sell several editions of the World outside the subscribers. But to tell the truth we have not the courage to tackle it, even if we thought it permissible to suppose that a recorder of truths like the World would publish such a work of fiction. What a pity! How we could pile on the hair-breadth escapes: A race for life, chased by a camel—ten miles across the desert, sand up to our hubs—a view of the Pyramids by moonlight—fight with a lion, with no weapon but a pocket wrench: why, we could fill three or four numbers with this one incident alone.

How in the depths of the silent desert (somewhere about 2.35 A. M.) we were startled from a deep and heavy slumber (weighing somewhere in the neighborhood of several liters of koumeiss) by a roar that caused the spokes of our quadrants, of course, to twang like guitar strings. How two balls of fire shone in the Egyptian darkness; how we sprang from our Arabian rugs and retired behind our wheels; how there was a movement as if the night itself were leaping upon us, and, amidst clouds of dust, descended upon our valiant steeds; how he (the lion, not the night) got tangled in the iron web and rolled with it several leagues, while we calmly pounded poles in his noble cranium with the point of our pocket-wrench: how, when all was still again, and the dust had settled once more onto the peaceful bosom of the earth, we stood with one foot on the quivering carcass of the king of beasts, waving our wrench, dripping with blood, in the air and shouting, "sic semper tyrannis." Then we could go into a lengthy description of our wheels, recounting minutely (to make it last through several numbers) the curves of the rims, the parabolic line of the steerer, the spider-leg appearance of the spokes, etc., etc.

You see by this what we might do, what a Victor Hugoist novelette we might produce for the edification of the readers of the World, provided we were not born of poor but honest parents. But, as it is, we resignedly chain up our imagination, and while it is growling within will calmly write about Paris and the life here.

There is little of the bicycle enters into it. A safety or a tricycle now and then passes along the Boulevard Mt. Parnasse, through the quarter, or if we walk down towards the Invalides we see numerous little boys, on ancient mounts, following each other in the form of an endless chain around and around a church, which, fortunately, has a fine concrete laid all about it.

But usually our walks are in the direction of the Louvre, where we go to see how some old fellow painted an eye, or composed his light and shade, or constructed a figure: where we go to fill ourselves with the divine fire of an artistic age in this practical century of iron towns and electric lights.

We fully appreciate iron towns and electric lights, but what a pity there are not painters like Titian and Valasquez and Rembrant for the electric lights to shine upon and to climb up the iron towers. But in lieu of Rembrant, Valasquez and Titian, we have some thousands of students made glorious on the Grand Boulevard and in the dance halls by these same electric lights, and who watch with enthusiastic eyes the prodigious growth of the iron tower.

Two hundred and fifty meters already rise above the banks of the Seine, and the remaining fifty are fast growing.

This enormous skeleton of iron, cried at, hooted at, petitioned against by the art-loving Parisians, rises in its dignity and demands attention.

We cannot argue or reason about it. Every form of reasoning goes conclusively to prove that the thing is inartistic in the extreme. When one thinks of St. Peter's or Notre Dame, or the cathedral at Chartres or Milan, why it is a beastly piece of terrible work. A railroad bridge set up on end. But just stand five minutes before it, and the cathedrals, and St. Peter's even, sort of melt away in your mind.

There is something vital and nervous and modern about the whole thing that strikes at once the feelings of this electric-motor century.

We do not know if it will be possible to give an impression of this strange building in words.

It is a gigantic iron skeleton that sweeps up from the ground in four powerful curves and mounts up and away in converging straight lines until it is lost in the fog. Its massive iron beams seem to grow from the earth and as they rise are laced together by threads of iron that soon lose themselves in a general gray tone and all is swallowed up by the mist.

It is nearly dark and you stand there wondering at the immensity of the whole thing and mentally fixing on a point in the gray atmosphere which may be the end. Suddenly a flash of light attracts your attention away above the imaginary point you had fixed upon—instantly it is dissolved into a little star like that from a skyrocket but remaining stationary. It is the light from a workman's forge and grows in brilliancy, and by its aid you discover the long arm of a derrick or the end of an improvised truss.

You are naturally enthusiastic at once—it is already beyond your imagination and you forget that under a glaring noon-day sun it is simply a great and practical piece of iron construction used heretofore for spanning chasms and connecting the banks of impassible streams. Everywhere it is the iron tower. One can see it from almost every part of Paris and when the original is out of sight there are reproductions of it in bronze, macaroni, straw, tape, spools of cotton or silk, glass and every other conceivable substance.

Men sell official drawings of it for 20 centimes—crowds of people go to watch its growth from the Trocadero where numerous telescopes are arranged with little money boxes placed conveniently at hand marked in big numbers, 10 centimes. It is in part the centre of attraction past and present, and will be, possibly, the key note of the exposition of 1889.

Although it is not a thing of beauty we hope it will be a joy forever.

IN FAVOR OF MIXING ORDINARY AND SAFETY IN RACES.

Editor Bicycling World: I would like to put in a few words concerning the competition of the "dwarf safety" in same races with the "ordinary."

Some men are so constituted that they can or will get more speed out of a safety, and why should they be deprived of taking advantage of this fact? A man who is powerful but cannot acquire the fast pedalling (through lack of nervous force) necessary for the ordinary, finds in the safety, and by the aid of gearing, that he can accomplish a given distance as fast or faster than he could on the ordinary. On the other hand, a man with less strength but with greater nervous action, has no need of the safety. Still others are deterred through fear (and this one fact has kept more than one man from being a fast rider) from putting all their power to the test on an ordinary; the safety gives them a chance with others.

I believe the greatest objection to the safety lies in the supposed or real element of danger. In 1885, Messrs Englehardt and Allard rode safeties in some of the open events at Springfield. There were no accidents caused by them, and I heard no complaints against their riding. Very true they rode "Kangaroos" but they were dwarfs. At the same meet, one of the worst racing accidents occured through the carelessness of a rider of an ordinary; and I think you will find that a large majority of mishaps are caused by these two faults, common to most racing men: riding up to close, and looking around. When Mr. Van Sicklen and others were injured at Buffalo, last Fall, the rider preceding them was looking around. A bad spill at the Berkeley races, in October, was caused by a man looking around and, if you go right through the list, you will find it was the rider, not the wheel, at fault. I believe a man can learn to hold a safety as stiff as an ordinary. I failed to see any "wobbling" or bad riding by Fred Allard, last Fall, and I will take him as an example in support of my first argument. On an ordinary he could never get nearer, to scratch, than the 60 yard mark; on a safety, he has made as fast time as the best. I doubt if S. G. Whittaker can ride an ordinary in 2.31, or anywhere near it. If these men and others can do better with the safety, why should they not be allowed to use them? In other sports, competitors use best and best implements: why not in 'cycling? If it is the fault of the rider that causes an accident, why not rule him out, or suspend him instead of attributing it to the machine? Yours, H. S. Cornish.

MR. WORDEV ON THE RACING QUESTION.

Editor Bicycling World: In regard to improving track racing would state that the only way to interest the public is to give handicap and heat races. I must, however, differ with your correspondent, Mr. Corcoran, who thinks a 150 yard handicap is enough for any man in a one mile race. In England, where they had races before we had learned to ride, the handicapper gives starts as high as 250 yards or more to the mile. A 3.10 man would have no chance with a 150 yard handicap, with a 240 man on the scratch. Now that the Racing Board has wisely appointed district handicappers, it should take but a few race meetings before the handicappers should be able to place the competitors where they belong.

Heat races should be 1-4, 1-2, and 1 mile. The one mile would probably be a "waiting race" until the last quarter; but as it would take only three minutes to decide it, the patience of the audience would not be very severely taxed. And first-class men cannot be expected to enter every race on a day's programme with the intention of running themselves all out in every event.

Long races, no matter who the competitors are, bore the public. Take, for example, the ten mile race at Buffalo. Considering the condition of the track and the wind, the race was ridden in good time: yet the public, until the bell rang, were looking everywhere but at the contestants.

The idea another of your correspondents, Mr. R. H. Davis, advances in regard to having men do "donkey work," would say that this may work O. K. in professional events where two or more men work as a team, but it will never work in amateur events. The "small fry," as he designates them, may not be able to do 3 minutes, yet may think as much of being defeated as a first-class man would. Take four men, two being 2.30 men and the others 3 minute men; both 3 minute men afraid of each other, will either of the 3 minute men, having in mind the fact that one man must be 100 yards better in a mile to be able to get away from another, set the pace for all he is worth and pull the "cracks" around? I should say not.

Regarding racing rules. I think the L. A. W. rules, as amended superior to the rules of the A. C. U. These rules show careful study and conscientious work on the part of the board.

I notice Rule 13: "Safety bicycles shall not be ridden in ordinary bicycle races." This must meet the hearty approval of every racing man, as the line of demarcation cannot be too sharply drawn, yet I trust it is not intended to bar safeties from bicycles championships. It is true the Racing Board has established safety championships, yet to bar any machine from a championship at once impairs the openness of the event. I would suggest that the Racing Board run safety championships at the same distances, time and place as ordinary championships, running safety heats after the ordinary heats, then the openness of the events could not be questioned.

I notice Rule 32 is amended to read: "A team shall be limited to three riders, each of whom must be a member of the club entering the team, and a resident of the city where the club has its headquarters." The object of the Racing Board in framing this rule was probably to prevent three "cracks" from different sections of the country, entering in the name of some club and winning the prizes. Would not a rule stating that a man must be an active member of the club from which he enters for one year before the race was run, have had the same effect? The rule as it now reads is manifestly unjust. As a suppositious case: "A," living in Boston, belongs to both the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York, and the Lynn Cycle Club of Lynn, Mass., and numerous other organizations, and has paid his dues in each for years; yet if either of these clubs wishes him to represent them on the track he could not do so, his residence being in Boston.

Trusting that the managers of this year's race meetings will give us plenty of handicap, heat and novice races, and few open events over a mile long, and that their efforts may be appreciated by the public so that their coffers will be filled to overflowing, I remain, Yours very truly, G. Minturn Worden.

HOW TO LAY A TRACK.

The second layer.—Having well rammed down and given your heavy basis a little time to settle, and having had the roller over it—a steam roller if it can be hired—the next point will be your second layer. This should consist of smaller rubble of the same kind, no unbroken stones to be used; whereas your first basis rubble may have measured a foot cube, nothing should now be used larger than four inches cube. The first layer of this should be preceded by a good sifting of gravel, rough cinders, or small broken shingle or clinker into the interstices of layer No. 1, and then the smaller material of layer No. 2 should be put down and well rammed, the effort being made all through to get the rubble solidly impacted. Half bricks and similar stuff may be used. This layer should be of varying thickness; if layer No. 1 is very thick, layer No. 2 may not be very heavy; if the base is sound, and layer No. 1 thin, layer No. 2 may be a bit thicker to fill up. Layer No. 1 should have been so arranged as to provide the necessary bevelling or banking, and layer No. 2 should be of an even thickness all over.

The board edge.—A board edge is a great point in a track's favor; it gives a base for accurate measurement, and if the boards are properly chosen and well pitched before being put down, they will last a long time. The board edge should be set in before the last two or three inches of layer No. 2 are put down.

The third layer.—Layer No. 3 should consist of the rough siftings from the gravel, the coarser fragments will be sifted out and laid over layer No. 2. In any case some finer rubble must be used, the first layer being raked and brushed to and fro over layer No. 2 to fill up the interstices. Layer No. 3 is usually of but slight thickness, and is rammed, raked and rolled until it presents a good even surface. If it can be left to the weather for a bit it will now be better for the track, and the constant use of a heavy roller will be of material service.

The surface.—Although this is to the eye the main point of a track, it is in effect far less important than the base, as the surface can be, comparatively speaking, easily changed, whilst the base is permanent. The material of the surface will depend on circumstances and surroundings. Finely sifted blue gravel makes the best surface, and it must be dusted over the surface thinly, each layer being well rolled down before another coating is put on. The finishing coat should be sifted through the finest kind of a sieve. Should a track drain with great rapidity on a sandy or shingly subsoil, burnt clay may be used with care; if, on the other hand, the wet is held, cinders and unburnt coal dust will be found preferable.

The banking.—Tracks made especially for cycling should be well banked. The corners of a twenty-foot track may be lifted three feet if necessary, or even more. The curve should be graduated, and the banking should extend well up into the next straight. The swing out is felt at the middle of a curve, and preparations should be made accordingly. A track should never be haggard, ie., made high in the middle and dropping to the sides. The straights should be made dead level, and the corners raised from inside to out.

The inside edge, by the board, should be just level with the grass, which should be pared down or banked up to the level of the inside edge, so as to give every rider an easy escape in case of accident. The edge of the board may be advantageously painted white, but the tin handicap distance marker should be fixed on the fence, and not on the board edge, into which, however, a brass-headed nail may be driven to mark the exact spot.

The outside edge.—For reasons known to themselves, most track builders put their fences right on the outside edge of the track. This is a mistake. A yard, or even two, of grass should be left clear, and then the fence should be erected. This gives the rider a chance of a soft fall, and by making a wider circle enables more of the lookers on to get a sight of the racing.

The fence should be a good four-foot fence with battens two inches apart. A mere post and rail is no protector, as boys, dogs, etc., easily push under it, to the detriment of the riders' safety.

Winning posts and distance posts should be set back at least a yard from the inside edge of the track. The cramming of big obstacles of this sort right on the inside edge causes many riders to go wide to the danger of their competitors.

A good path cannot be made in a hurry.—This is an axiom which contains the whole secret of track laying. Time must be allowed for the components of the track to settle down, and the heavy rains, snows and frosts of winter are almost a necessity to success. The frequent use of a heavy roller is also very serviceable. In spite of all this care, soft places will often show themselves, the path sinking, and thus causing waves and bumps. Half measures here are no good, and, wherever possible, the best way is to take the bull by the horns and set the matter right in the following way: Get a good long plank, and stand it edgewise on the path; the hollow will be then easily localized. Mark it on either side, and use this "straight-edge" every foot from inside to outside, making a mark where the track first touches on either side; then carefully remove the surface; take out layer 3, and put in very carefully the necessary thickness of layer 2 material, using the rammer most assiduously; replace the other layers, water freely, and roll frequently.

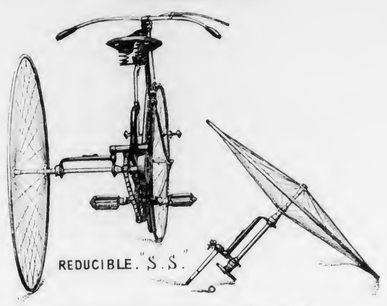
A BOOK FOR MONEY MAKERS TO READ.

Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr., of the Pope Mfg. Co., can congratulate himself upon producing about the most unique thing in the shape of a book that has appeared in a long time. The production cannot only claim distinctiveness, but usefulness as well. Homilies are seldom interesting, but "The Art of Local Advertising and Commercial Printing" is not only that, it is more. Those matter-of-fact persons who never read books, because there are no dollars and cents in them, will not find that objection here. It comes as near actually giving specific directions for the acquisition of wealth as is possible for human help to come. And this information is given so graphically, so entertainingly, that the reader turns the last page before he is aware. The book overflows with bright, pithy suggestions, and, above all, has the essence of truth. "To folks who live on printers' ink" there is not an assertion in it that is not capable of verification. How to advertise, and why; how to write advertisements so people will read, and not only read but heed; how to print them, and where; how to advertise in other ways; to trim windows and decorate stores; disguise newspaper "puffs"; in fact, how to catch the public eye and hold it afterward, is the motif of the work, and that it is cleverly treated cannot be gainsaid. In its way the book is a gem. The book is sent prepaid on receipt of price, two dollars, by the publishers, L. Barta & Co., 54 Pearl St., Boston, Mass.—Chicago Tribune.

REST YOUR LOWER EXTREMITIES.

Mr. J. F. Ives, of Meriden, Conn., sends us the cut shown herewith, and a description of the device. He says: "My invention is a hollow steel case, containing coil springs to take the place of the usual rubber, the idea being to reduce all jar and vibration to the muscles and nerves of the legs, and thus avoiding cramps, and the trouble of the foot jarring off the pedal. My argument is that while thousands of dollars have been spent in perfecting a saddle and springs for the body's comfort, no attention has been given to the comfort of the lower limbs, that have to do all the work on a wheel. My attachment being a trifle heavier than rubber, it hangs down, always bringing it under the ball of the foot in use."

AN UNPARALLELED OFFER.



We call the especial attention of our many readers to the generous offer which the John P. Lovell Arms Co. make to the wheelmen in this issue (see advertisement). We have personally examined the Champion Single Barrel Breech Loading Shot Gun which they offer, and find that it is all that they claim for it. It is the popular top action gun, with twist barrel, rebounding lock, patent fore-end, rubber butt plate, and pistol grip finely polished stock.

This house has been established forty-nine years and has won a reputation among the sportsmen of this country which is unequalled, and now we see them coming to the front with a special inducement which they intend the wheeling fraternity shall profit by. It is certainly very gratifying to us to see this stirling firm recognize the value of the wheelmen's trade.

The John P. Lovell Arms Co. have well earned the reputation as an energetic and enterprising business house, and we know that our readers in general will appreciate their offer. They have gone into the bicycle business very extensively this season. A large show room fifty feet long has been fitted up exclusively for this branch of their business, and arrangements have been completed for handling a fine line of bicycles, tricycles and safeties.

This house issues a large 100 page illustrated catalogue which is a complete encyclopædia of sporting goods, and which they will send to any address by mail, on receipt of six cents in postage stamps. In addition to this catalogue, a large list devoted exclusively to bicycles, tricycles, tandems, safeties, and bicycle sundries will be published which they will mail to any address upon application

This catalogue will contain the L. A. W. racing rules in full, just adopted by the Racing Board, and will prove a valuable book for reference. They solicit a personal examination of all of their goods, and we would advise our readers to give them a call and examine their stock before purchasing their outfits for the coming season.

SINGER'S REDUCIBLE FRAME.

The accompanying cut illustrates the reducible frame for a tricycle made by Messrs. Singer. The great trouble with a tricycle is the difficulty of storing same and passing it through a narrow doorway, they have, therefore, designed an axle by means of which the width of the tricycle is reduced, not by telescoping, but by dividing the axle. The arrangement used is very simple, and the strength of the axle is not affected. The driving mechanism, brake, gear, etc., are contained in one part of the axle, and this part is not disturbed in the operation of division. The detachable part is separated from the other by removing one nut. By a simple mechanical operation a tapering spindle is then loosened, and the part is removed in a few seconds. The strength of this axle has been severely tested during the last few months.

The details of the tricycle are similar to those of the "S.S." No. 3, except that it is fitted with brake on axle and has ball pedals.

A NOTICE.

The Bicycling World Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—Will you please publish the enclosed circular in your next issue, as a letter to the public. We wish it published in full.

Yours respectfully, WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO.,
March 20, 1889. Geo. K. Tapley, Treasurer.

CIRCULAR.

Having what it believes to be reliable information that the Pope Manufacturing Company of Boston, Mass., and the Overman Wheel Company are attempting by means of threats of litigation, to intimidate the customers of the Warwick Cycle Manufacturing Company and prevent as far as they can, by such proceedings, the sale and use of the said Manufacturing Company's machines, hereby informs its customers and all others interested, that the said Company will defend them in any suits that the Pope Manufacturing Company, the Overman Wheel Company, or any one else may attempt to bring against them, based upon the alleged infringement by said Warwick Cycle Manufacturing Company of any existing bicycle patents, and the Warwick Cycle Manufacturing Company hereby requests all of its customers and correspondents to communicate to it at once any threats, verbal or otherwise, that they may receive as to legal proceedings in the matter of said alleged infringement, or any other papers having relation thereto, in order that it may at once take upon itself the duty of protecting its customers from such annoyance.

Farther, the Warwick Cycle Manufacturing Company hereby informs the public that the rumors which it has reason to believe are circulated by the Pope Manufacturing Company and the Overman Wheel Company, or their agents, to the effect that legal proceedings have been commenced against the Warwick Company for infringement of patents, and that an injunction has been obtained against the said Warwick Company by the Overman Wheel Company, or by anyone else, are utterly without any foundation in fact, and the Warwick Company is pursuing its manufacturing and selling business now as heretofore, and intends so to do.

WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO.,

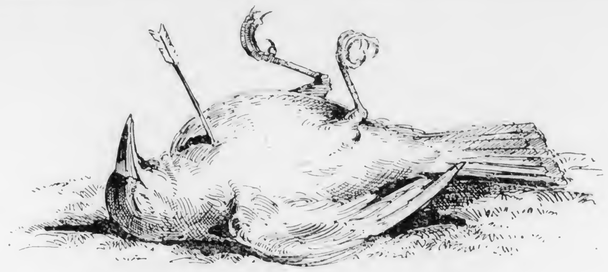
Springfield, Mass., March 22d, 1889.

THE GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO.

It was about a year ago that we reproduced some illustrations of the Gormully & Jeffery Co.'s factory, in Chicago, at which time we stated that that concern was the first in the United States to own its own factory and plant for the special manufacture of cycles. We have many times been invited to take a tour through their establishment in Chicago, but we never have been able to go out so far west. Our representative, however, has visited their factory, and he reports what he considers to be one of the most completely equipped establishments of the kind in the country. The Gormully & Jeffery people told our representative that every part of their cycles, with the exception of the rubber tires, was made in the factory, and he remarked, "I should not wonder if they put in a plant to produce even the rubber, as it seems to be their aim and object not to go outside for any of their material, excepting in the raw state. The machinery is such and so complete in detail that they are able to reduce the cost of production to a minimum, thus making competition easy for them. The factories are situated at the corner of North Franklin St., and Chicago Avenue, within fifteen minutes by horse-car from the City Hall.

As manufactures of the special cycling sundries, we doubt if there is a concern in the United States that produces as great a variety. They make their own saddles, tool-bags, lamps, wrenches, bells, etc. They are also very large, in fact, probably one of the largest, jobbers of sundries not of their own manufacture, west of Boston; as they buy in large quantities, they are able to figure way down, so as to compete successfully with other firms.



We take pleasure in calling our reader's attention to their long line of bicycles and tricycles, the illustrations and prices of which can be found on pages 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371. Their catalogue this year comprises some eighty pages, mostly solid brevier, and describes in detail their different machines. Their novelties this year are the two rear drivers, the American Rambler and Ideal Rambler. The former is an open fronted machine and admirably adapted to the use of a whole family. Its reach runs from 48 to 60 inches. It is very powerfully built, of the best material obtainable. We are assured that nothing but weldless steel tubing, drop forged and pressed steel is used in its construction. Its principal features are the placing of the vibration spring in the rear so that the steering is not effected, fastening the crank directly to the sprocket, thus giving a certain amount of additional power; and its new drop forged steel chain, which is perfectly interchangeable, and is absolutely noiseless when in use. Another nice thing about this chain, it is claimed that it does not depend upon the rivet in the least for its longitudinal strength, the rivets being necessary only to hold the chain together laterally. The American Rambler is geared to either 48, 54, or 60 inches, and is guaranteed to carry any rider up to 200 pounds, over any kind of American road. The American Ideal Rambler is designed to meet that peculiar niche which has long been filled by the American Ideal bicycle. In appearance and design it follows very closely the lines of its elder brother, the Rambler. The tubing is weldless steel, and the parts are all constructed with a view to strength and rigidity. It has the same vibration spring as the Rambler, the same general style of sprocket wheel and crank, and is so strong that a 160 pound trick rider was not able to injure the experimental wheel on rough and hummocky roads, although it is not guaranteed to carry over 125 pounds. In reach it runs from 30 to 48 inches, and will be found a capital machine for most lady riders, and its price, $65, is so very reasonable that young men can afford to have an Ideal Rambler for the use of their lady friends. The standard construction includes ball bearings to both wheels. It is furnished with ball bearings to the other bearing parts for an extra consideration.

The Champion and Light Champion of this year are improved wherever possible. These two machines have successfully held, for the past two seasons, all the important World's Road and Long Distance Records. Like all the G. & J. productions their vital features are original. Most of our readers are tolerably familiar with these wheels, and it is, therefore, hardly necessary for us to dilate upon their merits.

The American Challenge, Safety and Light Safety come before the market again as thoroughly first-class wheels with a long and distinguished record, while the Ideal bicycle is, as it always has been, a first-class boy's machine in every respect.

Gormully & Jeffery have not added to their line of tricycles this year, but offer again the American Challenge and Ideal Tricycles and the American Challenge and Ideal tandems, all of which are two track and therefore practical for American roads.

The foregoing but briefly describes the many excellencies of the American cycles, but to get a thorough understanding of them one must either actually see them, or, if they cannot do that, send for their catalogue, which is cheerfully mailed on application.

QUERY No. 1--Who killed Cock Robin?

QUERY No. 2--Who were the first makers in the world to make bicycles all forged steel?

QUERY No. 3--Who were the first American makers to place on the market bicycles with tangent spokes, hollow rims, spade handles, swing saddles, compressed tires, etc., etc.?

QUERY No. 4--Who made the first American Rover type safety?

QUERY No. 5--What American makers have the habit of leading in high grade cycle making?

Now, in regard to the first of the foregoing momentous questions, probably you are aware that it is quite generally conceded that the atrocity was committed by a rather disreputable member of the lower classes familiarly known in the circles in which he moves as "The Sparrow." However, as to this we know not. We give it up.

HOWEVER, when you come to Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5—how different the case. Verily here are matters of fact and not of hearsay or opinion.

An odd thing about it is that the answer to all the four questions is the same, and the VICTOR people offer a prize of one of their elegant new catalogues for '89, to any wheelman, actual or prospective, who will publish in next week's World the answer, which they guarantee is made up only of the following letters:—an N, 3 E's, an R, an A, 2 O's, an M, an H, an L, a W, a V, and a C.

THE OVERMAN WHEEL CO.

SEVEN years ago, Mr. Overman, now president of the Overman Wheel Co., established the Overman Wheel Co. They began by adopting the principle that cycle making is worthy the best that can be given it, and this has been the watchword of the company ever since. Finding solid rims, direct spokes, straight handle bars, and old-fashioned long distance saddles, they put in their first bicycles, tangent spokes, hollow rims, cow-horn handle bars, compressed tires, swing saddles and all high grade features, with no extras in the list. Their first bicycles were also of forged steel, and the price for these machines was much below that maintained in the market at the time of their placing these machines on sale. The road was a hard one to travel, the construction of their machines very expensive, and litigation staring them in the face on all sides. They were only able, after a four year's war, to settle their legal difficulties, on account of the fact that they had purchased the Bown ball bearing patent and were able to use that as a lever to get into the trade. If they had not owned this patent, there is little doubt that they would have finally become exhausted with the expensive litigation brought to bear against them. We understand that the profits of the company have, since their organization, been wholly invested in their plant, the stockholders being willing to look to the future for their returns and to devote themselves to founding a plant for cycle manufacture, the best that could be made. Their bicycles have won many of the great road races of the past, and the company were the first American makers of the Rover type safety, now so popular with riders. The company has its own plant at Chicopee Falls, Mass., where it has unsurpassed facilities for cycle work.

THE full page illustrations of Columbia cycles amid rural scenes, are the most artistic kind of outline drawing, and will no doubt attract their full share of just and sincere admiration.

PRESIDENT LESCOMB has invested in a New Mail Safety.

THE question of the day is, "Who killed cock robin?" An illustrated answer appears in our advertising column.

IN the advertisement of the Coventry Machinists' Co., we have neglected to change the announcement so as to read that the catalogues of their concern are now ready for delivery. Send for one of their 32-page catalogues, and keep posted as to what is what.

"Diamonds" seem to be trumps. See the page illustrated with the precious stones.

THE greatest kalamity that kan befall a man is to be without a Kodak Kamera.

THE Kingston Knitting Co. are large and most reliable dealers in knit goods for use by athletes of all kinds. We sincerely commend this firm and their goods to our readers. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

MURRAY, on Columbus avenue, is doing a big business in the hiring of cycles. He also handles the Gormully & Jeffery goods.

WE have received a copy of L. H. Johnson's catalogue, containing handsome illustrations and full description of the Premier Safeties, Sparkbrook Bicyles and Humber Tricycles. Copies may be had direct or from the many agents for these popular wheels.

A WOODEN bicycle is certainly an innovation in this "age of steel." We have this week a new advertiser, the Sterling Cycle Co., who is building a safety and several other styles of wheels, the material used being more than four-fifths wood (hickory). "If this be madness" we suspect that there may be more "method in it" than the casual observer would give credit for. A prominent theatrical manager once said that the only critic he ever feared was the man in the box office. If we are to measure the hickory wheels by this standard, it only need be added that the factory is being run both night and day on orders already booked.

MESSRS. WHITTEN, GODDING & CO., of Providence, R. I., during the past year have increased their business two-fold. They not only keep all the leading cycles in stock for local trade, but are supplying sundries to dealers throughout the country. They are prepared to furnish gymnasiums with all kinds of apparatus, and always have full lines of boxing gloves, foils, etc., etc., which they can furnish to dealers at bottom prices. Clubs who are about to enlarge their athletic outfits would do well to write them.

WE would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. A. G. Spalding & Bros., which announces that they will open a photographic department in connection with their New York house, on April 10th. Cycling and amateur photography may be said to go hand in hand, and as the well-known business methods of this house generally bring them success in all they undertake, we predict that this new venture will prove a success. The new department will be a branch of the bicycle department, managed by Mr. A. B. Barthman, and will be in charge of Mr. J. F. Borland, the the ever smiling "Baldy," as he is familiarly called, who, by the way, has quite a reputation as a racing man, and is an enthusiastic amateur photographer. Baldy has a host of friends, and we extend to him our best wishes in his new undertaking.

AMONG the machines which have earned a reputation to be proud of, the Quadrant Cycle is entitled to a positive right in the front rank. The Messrs. Clark Cycle Co., of Baltimore, advertises in another column the fact that they are selling these splendid tricycles. We know from personal experience what the Quadrants are, and we have nothing but words of praise. The same firm also handle the King of the Road Lamps, than which none better exist.

THE Erie Knitting Mills turn out excellent goods, as is proved by the very flattering testimonials which they print from well-known wheelmen.

NEW YORK ladies should remember that Geo. R. Bidwell is the pioneer in starting a ladies' riding school. Mr. Bidwell's enterprise ought to bring him solid results and increase the number of lady cyclists in Gotham.

DO you want a second-hand wheel? Then read the list of Charles Schwalbach: he certainly can fit you in a machine and at a price that will suit.

MESSRS. CLARK CYCLE CO. of Baltimore, write that never before have the New Rapid Bicycles had such a sale as during the present season. A large order was placed with the St. George's Engineering Co. and the goods were delivered. These have been disposed of and a new order placed, and is now being delivered. The public appreciate a good thing and in placing its confidence in the New Rapid Cycles it demonstrates the truth of the above statement.

THE New Mail seems to be right in front again this year. The Safety is taking immensely, and is much praised.

THE series of full-page engravings which appear in this issue, with the cabalistic word "Columbia" on the old fence, the barn, the mill and other spots, are a most artistic and interesting series, and are worth the most careful preservation.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., is a perfect nest of New Mail wheels. The clubs there are large and very flourishing.

W. J. NEWMAN, of Cambridge, represents the Premier Cycle for Boston and vicinity. See his advertisement. The Premier are taking well. Mr. Newman also handles New Mail Cycles.

THE Elastic Tip Company have an advertisement in this week's issue. Not only to the rider do they appeal, but to the manufacturer and the repairer. Any part of the bicycle that is rubber can be procured of them, and they also make tire cement and elastic tape. No careful wheelman will be without cement if he is riding ing a wheel on which the tire is cemented.

THE Smith National Cycle Company of Washington are hard at work in their new factory, working "long hours" to get out the Dart machine of which this firm make a specialty. The Dart is not unknown as many were in use last season, and the expectations as to running and other qualities, have proven equal to the hopes of the Washington firm.

HARRY D. HEDGER of 473 Tremont street, Boston, can do about as fine a job of repairing as any in this city. He is also a large dealer in the Singer and other cycles and he has a large line of sundries. Call on him at his new place of business and see how fine and complete an establishment he has.

MESSRS. HOLMES & CO. are a thoroughly reliable firm; what they promise they will fulfil. We refer you to their advertisement for further information. Customers in Boston and vicinity will do well to remember that Holmes & Co. are at No. 109 Kingston street, and there is a free elevator in the building to take you up and down sia ri s.

CERTAINLY the "Rover" safeties, made by the world renowned firm of J. K. Starley & Co. is one of the very best of this now fashionable type of machine. This firm was the first to put the rear driver on the market; hence, the familiar name of Rover type as indicating the rear driver. A reference to the John Wilkinson advertisement will give all information and prices relating to these splendid machines.

WE are in receipt of a leaflet containing excellent reproductions of photos of the Premier Safety, Premier Tandem Safety, the Premier Safety Stand. Mr. L. H. Johnson of Orange, N. J., is agent for the Premier Wheels, and by sending a stamp to Mr. Johnson, he will, no doubt, send you one of these beautiful little leaflets.

THE H. B. Smith Company advise us that the reception of their new rear driver has far exceeded their most sanguine expectations. To be in the swim, now-a-days, one must have a rear driver and a good one withal. The Star rear driver is a machine that will be heard from on the road and hill during the coming summer.

TESTIMONIAL.

WILMINGTON, DEL., February 13, 1889.

Frank Fairbairn, Esq., Erie, Pa.:

Dear Sir—I have used your jersey garments during the past season, and consider them superior to any I have seen. They are very well made and finished, and make a handsome and durable suit. The great superiority of jersey over cloth or woolen garments is well known, and I expect to use only jerseys in my riding this year.

THE books for renewals are now open and fees will be received from this date. We publish in this issue a renewal blank which we hope will be universally used. A blank of this kind is more satisfactory than a notice of renewal written on a note or lette sheet. Club secretaries will be supplied with these blanks free of charge on application. Chief Consuls may have renewa blanks in quantities for recruiting purposes on application.

THE books of the League for 1888-9 are now closed, and those for 1889-90 are opened. Applicants may now send $2 and they will be put on the books for the year ending April 30, 1890. No further lists will be published till April 5, and on that date the candidates will be applicants for membership for the year impending.

Fire Brick Pavement.

Mr. Editor: Fire Brick pavements have been in us on one of the streets of Germantown for over a yea and are in as good condition as when first laid.

I do not know how they would wear with very heavy traffic, the street in question being mostly used by carriages and light teams.

They have been, on the whole, so satisfactory that the authorities are extending the system.

They never get slippery in wet weather.

NEW YORK PETITION.

At the request of the New York Bi. Club, we repeat the petition published last week giving it in larger form:

To His Excellency the Governor, and the Honorable Legislature of the State of New York.

The undersigned respectfully prays that no change be made in the present law establishing a half holiday on Saturday throughout the year; and especially protests against the enactment into law of the bill introduced into the Assembly for the substitution, therefor, of a whole holiday during the months of July and August; which would take away a needed time for rest at that portion of the year when the strain of business life makes it most useful, without any adequate compensation.

but art is weak when it comes to such subjects. To appreciate the "lines," the strength, the grace, the finish of it, you must see the the thing itself. The men who ride it will tell you all about it, ask them, any of them. It has won more and better road races than any other machine in the market. Never mind the little ones, here are a few of the good ones, notice that they were ALL 100 MILE RACES, OPEN TO THE WORLD, and contested by all the leading makes.

Philadelphia, Penna., Sept. 27, 1887

Messrs. Holmes & Co., Gentlemen:—I received my full tights and trunks on the 11th, and after a thorough trial, am more than satisfied with them. They are a perfect fit, and so comfortable that I would not now be willing to wear any other costume for cycling.

Yours very truly, John A. Well.

Birmingham, Conn., August 28, 1888

Weight complete, 42 pounds. Price, $90.00.

Will carry five times its own weight.

Our ideas as to how and of what material wheels should be constructed differ somewhat from those commonly accepted by the wheeling public, and we are glad they do. For if we are wrong, we shall, by means of our failure, still farther confirm the prevailing custom, and that would be justice.

If on the other hand our departure in wheel construction shall be vindicated (and to this end we are doing something more than to hope), then we shall not have lived in vain. However, we have the in tangible form, and are pleased to furnish particulars to all who may want more light. You can get more weight anywhere.

THE SPECIAL PREMIER SAFETY. An Answer to our Query of the 15th.

Montpelier, Vt., 3, 15, 1889.

Mr. L. H. Johnson,

Dear Sir:—

The Special Premier Safety reached me to-day at the machine shop, in Al order. It was immediately inspected by a number of skilled machinists, who without an exception, pronounced it as handsome and as good a machine as is possible for mechanical skill to devise. The machine is more than I expected; the distribution of metal is a most marked feature of the Special Premier. The construction is such as makes a good ladies' bicycle, while it is equal in appearance to any gentleman's machine. In less than an hour after the machine reached me, your agent received an order for another Premier Safety.

Yours truly,

J. J. Williams.

Prompt delivery. Send for New Calatogue, just out, containing full particulars of this machine as well as the Premier Tandem Safety, Popular Premier Safety, and others.

English Testimony on an American Invention.

Speaking of anti-vibration devices, The C. T. C. Gazette (London), for Jan. 1889, says, editorially :

"As bearing upon this matter we may add that no anti-vibrative frame we have yet seen exceeds in efficiency the one used on the 'VICTOR' safety--an American invention shown at Harrogate this year. In this the front wheel is mounted in a steel cradle as flexible as whale bone, while a ball bearing is fitted to every joint.

It is a pity that Messrs. Overman Wheel Co., the makers, do not put it upon the English market, or license some of our manufacturers to make it under royalty."

BUT A WORD.

The twelfth season since we began the sale and manufacture of bicycles has just opened, and it is particularly appropriate and opportune at this time to extend to the American wheelmen our most sincere thanks for their magnificent patronage and uniform courtesy. We have always believed wholly in high grade machines, considering that only the highest grade machine is economical, and the Columbia factory has never turned out any bicycle, tricycle, or safety which has not been the result of our honest endeavor to present to the American wheelmen machines as near perfection as modern mechanical skill could produce. Our endeavors have always been appreciated by the majority of American wheelmen, who agree with us that a poorly made bicycle, even though sold at a seemingly low price, is a poor investment, and with their advice and hearty co-operation, we, for the twelfth time, present a new season's line of Columbias.

Gentlemen—I am very highly pleased thus far with the 39 inch, as a road machine. It is a better hill climber than any machine I have ever before ridden, for all I can see it is just about as speedy as the larger sizes, and I am astonished to find so slight a difference if any, in the jar on rough roads.
Very cordially yours,

The Star Mfg. Co.

I have been riding a 51-inch American Star for the past few months, and find it a constantly increasing source of pleasure. I am city editor of the Chester Times, and find my wheel valuable in reaching suburban points quickly. A friend also began riding a crank when I started in on my Star; has three times broken his handle-bar by headers, while I haven't spent a dollar for repairs to my machine, and it is an old wheel, while his is new.

This in brief is my experience with a Star, and though it is of the old pattern I wouldn't exchange with any one of the other fellows. If you wish to use this as a testimonial I have no objections. Very truly yours,
T. W. Entwisle.

VIBRATION IN CYCLING was the subject of a paper recently read by Dr. Benjamin Ward Richardson, at a meeting of the Society of Cyclists (London). "I am of the opinion," says the Doctor, "that nothing produces so much injurious fatigue, or so bad an effect on the health in cycling as vibration. It is a shock to the nervous system, causing a continued feeling of vibration through the body, a sense of nausea, and a degree of nervous prostration, accompanied with a reduced power of the lower limbs, which, to say the least of it, is very inconvenient, and which in a feeble person may be attended with actual risk."

The cause of the mischief is what medical men call "spinal shock." It is very much like, and in essence is the same as that kind of shock which is noted in railway accidents, the difference being that in railway accidents the shock is inflicted by one or two violent concussions, while in cycling the shock is produced by a number of minor shocks, which produce the injurious effect from an accumulative action upon the spinal cord, and, through it, to some extent, on the brain. Excessive vibration causes a general fatigue and a painful reduction of muscular power in the lower limbs.

An efficient spring fork annihilates vibration.

A perfected spring fork is found only in the Victor Safety.

NEW MAIL.

Three ◎ Unsolicited ✻ Letters ◎ Just ◎ Received.

From F. D. ELWELL,
Champion of Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Feb. 19, 1889.
DEAR SIRS:

I desire to express my appreciation of the 56 inch New Mail bicycle purchased four months ago.

The great rigidity and easy steering of the Trigwell Ball Head is a pleasant relief after years of experience with the ordinary cone.

Since receiving the New Mail, I have won from scratch all races in which I have competed, and am more than pleased with its easy running qualities. I truly believe it is the best all-round bicycle manufactured.

F. D. ELWELL,
Champion Cal. Div. L. A. W., 1888.

PROVIDENCE, March 7th, 1889.
MESSRS. WM. READ & SON., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—Kindly send me your bicycle catalogue for '89.

The 58-inch "New Mail" purchased of you last year has given perfect satisfaction. I have tested it in all possible ways, and it gives me pleasure to report that it is the best mount I ever had, having been a wheelman for a period of twelve years.

Last season I did the most wheeling of any previous year, the greater part of it being over rough country roads, and not one cent did I expend for repairs; the machine is now apparently as good as new.

Considering the size of my wheel and my weight (168 pounds), too much cannot be said in praise of the "New Mail."

Yours truly, F. N. MACLEOD.

SPRINGFIELD, Illinois, March 12, 1889.
MESSRS. WM. READ & SON, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—Please send '89 catalogue. I am happy to say that my wheel (52-inch New Mail) appears to be faultless. Since I bought it new, last June, I have ridden it every week, and almost every day, in all kinds of weather and over all kinds of roads. In this time I have adjusted the head once, and oiled it only three times, more on general principles than because it needed it. I must have ridden it very nearly, if not quite, 1000 miles, and now it runs as smoothly and noiselessly as when I first got it. This record is duplicated only by another wheel here, and it is a 54-inch New Mail. While I ride a bicycle I want no other than a New Mail.

Yours respectfully,
A. A. BILLINGSBY.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 5 APRIL, 1889.

WE present to our lady readers Miss Helen Grey, who will hereafter conduct the ladies' column. We hope she will have the support that she asks for from our patrons.

WE are more and more convinced that the manufacturers do a wise thing in refusing to supply the riding public with a lighter safety than is now being made. The reason why we commend their wisdom is because the general rider has no sort of consideration for his wheel, nor apparently the slightest idea that the resisting powers of steel have any limit. These remarks are particularly applied to the riders of the safeties, many of whom seem to delight in testing the safe qualities of his machine by riding down and over obstructions just to prove how "safe it is." In this way the machine gets strains and tests never intended by the maker or designer. Sometimes, under these unnecessary and unreasonable strains the machine goes to the eternal smash, and then the rider d——ns the maker, d——ns the machine, but forgets to d——n himself for his idiocy. No, the manufacturers are all right, and just so long as the apparent aim and object of some riders is to experiment and see how much the machine will stand, just so long must the makers provide for the possible contingency of a thoughtless experiment-riding public, and so build for strength—ergo weight.

OUR esteemed contemporary, the Sporting Life, of Philadelphia, in the following item, draws a rather florid comparison, nevertheless hits the nail pretty squarely on the head: "The bicycle is the modern alchemist's oven: you shove in an old man, shut the door: there is a sizzling sound for a few moments, the door flies open, and out steps a youth." Extreme as is the simile used, there is truth for the foundation, and no doubt had Ponce de Leon lived in these days he would not have searched for the Fountain of Perpetual Youth in the everglades of Florida, but he would have turned his attention to the great cycle emporiums and factories for the Fountain, the use of which would keep old age and decay at arm's length, for an indefinite time.

In these days of artificial living, confining and brain wearying occupations, the true humanitarian hails with delight the evident tendency of the age towards sports and pastimes which will take the brain worker and the man of sedentary habits out into the pure air of the rural districts.

Sometimes a very serious warning is heard in just such sad and fatal cases as that of the late Mr. Stout. It cannot, in all fairness, be said that cycling is responsible for these happily rare catastrophes, as in almost every case the cause can be traced to some decided violation of the laws of nature by the sufferer.

IN another column we print an obituary of Mr. Stout, and also an account of his death. From this account we learn that the deceased drank copiously of cold water while he was in an overheated condition; a most dangerous thing to do, as the sad results recorded have fearfully proven.

Cycling is pre-eminently a healthful pastime, but it must be born in mind that Nature will not allow even the sturdy cyclist to disregard her laws, without incurring a penalty of more or less severity. In such cases it is not the Sport that is to blame, but rather the unfortunate victim himself, who brings dire disaster on his own person by overdoing and in other ways abusing the powers that God has given him to use and not abuse.

WHILE the attention and the influence of wheelmen and citizens generally is turned towards roads improvement legislation, we wish that something could be done towards suppressing, or rather, governing that destroyer of good roads and streets, the "sprinkler fiend."

The sprinkling is usually "contracted" for, and the contractor, of course, wants to travel over the streets as few times as possible, hence he "drenches" the surface instead of "sprinkling" it. We wish that cities and towns would make a law to govern these fellows, and see to it that the distributing pipe contained so many holes of a certain size. As far as Boston is concerned, we wish the city authorities would insist on the use of sprinkling carts exactly like those used at Chestnut Hill Reservoir and on the park driveways. Those carts sprinkle and don't drench. As a matter of economy we should think City Fathers would regulate this matter, as the methods used by these contractors ruin the streets, and cost the city hundreds of thousands in repairs. Now, gentlemen, let us turn our attention to this little matter and see what can be done.

IN accordance with the suggestion made by Gov. Ames in his inaugural, bearing on the appointment of skilled persons to have oversight of the State roads and bridges, a bill has been drawn appointing a "commissioner of roads and bridges," which will be presented as a substitute for the adverse report of the committee now upon the table in the House.

Outside of the benefit to cyclists which will naturally accrue from better roads as the result of the appointment of the commissioner, this bill has great merit.

Massachusetts is blessed with an abundance of good road material; to know what to use and how to use it is all that is needed for better roads. Some stone when crushed is first class for road building, other stone is useless; some gravel is fit only for a base, other is excellent for surface. A first class civil engineer, who has had experience, can select the proper material almost at a glance.

A bill has already passed the legislature this session providing for a superintendent of streets in each town; this is a long step toward better roads, over the old system of highway surveyors, but towns cannot afford to hire a first class civil engineer with a knowledge of road building for superintendent of streets; the person appointed as superintendent will need the advice of an expert, and this bill gives him the much needed advice, with no charge, at a cost to the State of only $5000, or less. It practically provides a scientific expert on road building for each town at this small expense.

The judicious use of the money at present expended, under the direction and advice of an expert will show material results in better roads within three years.

In regard to bridges, the commissioner is likely to save thousands of dollars to towns and even cities.

In many places where proper stone is abundant a stone arch, practically eternal, can be constructed at the same cost as some flimsy structure such as we now see, which in a few years becomes unsafe and has to be rebuilt.

Such an officer in the State, with the information which his office will gather, will be a rich paying investment for the tax-payer.

Every farmer, merchant, stableman, and all persons interested in better roads should use all the influence at his command, either by a personal interview or by letter, to induce the representative to the legislature from his district to favor this bill.

In so doing it would be better to keep cycling in the background, lest unjust prejudice be aroused.

WHEN the League and all well regulated cyclists are fighting for equal rights on the highways and fighting such fossilized notions as those presented in the "Warner bill," of Missouri, it is rather discouraging to get cutting letters constantly, complaining of the actions of the "sidewalk hog." The latest section heard from on this question is Rochester, N. Y. We hold it is no excuse for a rider in the crowded city to use the sidewalk because the street is unrideable. In such cases walking is good enough. If the bicycle is a "vehicle," as we hold it is, then we must insist that it be used only on that part of the street especially allotted for use by vehicles. The cycle must be kept off the sidewalk, even at the possible discomfort of the rider. We wish that this Rochester complaint was to be the last of the kind ever to be made. These kind of things hurt cycling and put us back just so much.

WE are aware that the racing rules, as adopted by the League, are the best that organization has ever had, and we are at the same time aware that suggestions have always been accepted in the same spirit as offered. We therefore would respectfully suggest that the remuneration fixed to be paid the handicapper is far below its actual value. Fifty cents a race is not enough to pay a man who conscientiously performs this difficult duty. It makes the services of the handicapper practically gratuitous, and the proposed fee is so ridiculously low as to make the "remuneration" absolutely nothing. We think the fee should be at least twenty-five cents per entry, and we hope the Board will see it to be in the interest of good handicapping to make the fee not less than the amount we suggest above, either do that or wipe out the "50 cent per race fee" altogether. It does not pay a man, this fifty cents, and so he might as well be asked to perform the duties gratuitously.

DEATH OF MR. F. BOYDEN.

In our Chicago notes this week our correspondent reports an accident which occurred to Mr. Fred Boyden a week ago. Last Wednesday we received a telegram from the Stroller, which reads as follows:

"Boyden died Tuesday morning, unconscious for six days and to the last."

MERRITHEW, McDaniel and Elliot on Victor Safety and Victor Light Roadster established new records for Philadelphia and Wilmington in the 100 miles in less than 12 hours, and McDaniel on the Victor Safety doing up Dalleth records made last year.

HERE & THERE

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

THE Fool Tournament resulted in a victory for the Chicago's, their team defeating the Lincoln team to the tune of seven series to two, thereby winning the twenty-five dollar cup. Bode, of the Chicago's, won the ten dollar cup, he losing the least number of games during the tournament. A challenge is now expected from the Illinois Club.

BOYDEN, of the Illinois Club, met with what may prove to be a fatal accident, last week. While riding west on Jackson street, at the Ashland avenue crossing, he was run into by a wheelman coming at full speed down Ashland avenue. Boyden was thrown heavily from his wheel, fracturing his skull, and at present writing has not recovered consciousness, and grave doubts are entertained of his recovery, by his physician. This is the second bad accident on this boulevard this spring. About two weeks ago a wheelman while coming at racing speed took a header and broke both arms, to say nothing of other minor injuries. The boulevard is of astphalt, and as smooth as a floor for a mile, and some of our wheelman seem to be unable to resist the temptation of riding at the utmost speed there, which habit, if kept up, will result in all wheelmen being barred from the boulevards here entirely. Boyden has the sympathy of all Chicago wheelmen in his misfortune, and all hope that his recovery will be speedy.

MR. BREWSTER and Mr. Childs (brother of A. Kennedy) and Bert Owens, of Washington, were recent visitors at this burg.

THE six day tournament to be held here, under the management of Sam Miles, will commence May 13th. The Exposition building has finally been secured, and arrangements are rapidly being completed for the tournament.

CYCLING is on the boom here this spring, for sure. One dealer's sales last Monday making a total of $2000.

HARWOOD, of the Chicago's, has left for Texas. If any of the Houston wheelmen get roped in on a game of pool by a Chicago wheelman, they may be sure his name is Harwood.

I SAW Chief Consul Davis without his cycling costume on the other day, and that is a rare thing for him. I was going to ask him wherefore the reason of this change, but Roe and Oliver appeared upon the scene, and I fled in dismay.

SLOAN, the president of the Illinois, keeps away from the club house since a party of the officers went to see Hoyt's "Brass Monkey" on his recommendation.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

NOW that it is about settled that there will be no national meet this summer, the division meetings should have all the more attention. Right here in Missouri we have several large towns centrally located and surrounded by good riding districts, such as Sedalia and Moberly, which would be materially benefitted in a cycling way if the meet was held within their gates. Both of these towns have good race tracks, and the division championships could be contested thereon. In addition to this, fine riding can be had in and around the towns mentioned, the most popular tours being from Moberly to Paris, a distance of 42 miles, and from Sedalia to Windsor, 20 miles, over fine, level prairie roads. The Missouri Division never yet gave a well attended meet, and if this thing is taken hold of properly, success is sure to result. No better, or more easily accessible towns could be selected, and in my opinion it all depends on Consuls Jennings and Kelly to say where the meet shall be held.

CAPTAIN HILDEBRAND writes in lavish praises of the treatment he received at the hands of Boston cyclists, particularly Dr. Emery and Geo. Hendee, during his brief stay there.

A MEETING of the cyclists of Quincy, Hannibal, Louisiana, St. Louis and Clarksville, to be held at the latter place during the first week in May, is talked of. Last year's gathering at this place was the most enjoyable one I ever attended, and I hope to see this take shape.

THE Missouris have sixteen applications awaiting action. How's that for boom.

JNO. S. RICHARDS and Will Carlin, while riding on the Olive street road, near Lake P. O. a few Sundays ago, met a farmer who tried to run the latter down and he narrowly escaped serious injury. It seems the $600 lesson taught Farmer Ehlert is not heeded by some of these road hogs.

WHILE riding on Jefferson avenue last Sunday, on the return from their run to Pt. Breeze, the Missouris were shot at by some cowardly miscreant, and several of the members narrowly escaped being hit. The whizzing of the bullet was distinctly heard by both Alex Lewis and Robt. Holm. They are naturally very indignant about it.

ST. LOUIS is to hold a grand Washington Centennial Celebration April 30, the main features being parades and speeches. This offers a fine opportunity for the local cyclists to give a parade. This would make a parade some five miles long, and would open the eyes of the non-cycling public.

NOTICING the great amount of printers' ink used in heralding the approach of the lady's bicycle, led me to make some inquiries here as to how many, if any, ladies ride. Investigation proves that St. Louis has, at present, not a single lady bicycle rider, and the only extended run taken by the fair sex on tandems was the trip to Manchester, a few years ago, by the sisters of Art. Young and Percy Stone.

DE SOTO, which was formerly known as the starting point of all that was tough in cycling, has, through the efforts of Consul Coxwell, experienced a big cycling boom, and there are now some ten wheels ridden in the town. Clubs who intend taking that tamous run should notify Consul Coxwell, and he will do all in his power to make their stay pleasant.

MACON.

"RAMBLER."

MORE letters of interest in any issue of the WORLD than appeared in the last two numbers I do not remember ever having seen, and the general make up of the paper was pleasing to the extreme. I can't rest in peace and see my brother wheelmen writing of places and things, and not have my district represented, so here goes:

IN the first place, I don't care to monopolize so much territory, and shall hereafter be located in Macon, and not "Georgia."

THOUGH the riding season has hardly begun with you yet, I notice that you are talking of tournaments, so I guess I will have my little say, too. Under the auspices of the Central City Wheelmen and the Georgia State Agricultural Society, the former will hold a four days' race meet, while the annual fair of the latter is in progress here next October. There will be between twenty and thirty events in all, and a main feature is that all professionals are barred. It is quite likely that some of your Boston manufacturers will make an exhibit at the time.

IN my opinion there is no one subject that is being discussed by the cycling press of more interest than the safety wheel. Several parties here would have had mounts now but for their inability of deciding between that and the ordinary. There is no doubt though but that the former will forge ahead in time, as there will soon be several on our roads, and down this way the latest thing goes. I'm going down the street to buy a new one now, and as I havn't an accident policy, please—I was going to say pray for my safety, but as I hadn't observed the pun I think I'm excusable.

KANSAS CITY.

"KAW."

IN glancing through the WORLD, I note with pleasure the numerous tours that are being talked up by various clubs, and wishing to see the United Wheelmen included in the ranks, I'll proceed to unravel. Messrs. Edwards and Boyd have mapped out a two weeks' tour through Kansas, which will take in a number of the principal cities and towns. About fourteen of the boys have made up their minds to go, and when Shortie and Fritz put their heads together you can look out for a cyclone of fun.

"ERRATIC QUILL" has written you about a few of the social events here. We are at present working up a wheelman's ball, as the grand finale of the winter season; spike-tail coats and knee breeches will be in order. This will be the grandest of all our social events.

THE club house is a thing of beauty in its new coat of paint. The boys having tired of being painters, metaphorically speaking, made the landlord spill considerable on the house. Red seems to be the predominant color, as being appropriate.

THE boys have the laugh on George Curtis in great shape. It appears that Curtis is the happy possessor of a Kodak camera, and the other Sunday being a nice day for outside work, he mounted his bike and went on a grand shooting jaunt. But alas! George got excited and forgot to pull the string after each event; consequence, twenty-five exposures on one negative. Talk about composite photography! When anyone asks him about those pictures, he quietly pushes himself out of sight.

MESSRS. W. L. HUTCHISON and John J. Wirtner gave us a call on Friday evening a week ago. A very pleasant evening was spent, in which some of the club's talent shone forth in music, both vocal and instrumental. They say that the boys want to keep their eyes on the date of the Buffalo tournament this fall. Ducker will not have charge this time. The Fair Association will do the "artistic" themselves this time, and it will be done up in good colors.

DENVER NOTES.

"AMERICUS."

WHEELMEN here are awake to the fact that the L. A. W. rules, as regards racing, are sadly deficient. With a view to making some improvements in that direction, which will put a more liberal construction on the word "professionalism," an organization has just been formed, called "The Union League of Cyclists." Already the undertaking seems to have met with a good deal of favor, as letters from all parts of the country are daily being received, asking for particulars. Membership in the proposed organization will in no way affect standing in the L. A. W. [Experience will prove to you, as it has to us, that the amateur rule, as "she is," is the only rule that will work. We frankly acknowledge it.—ED.]

THE members of the Social Wheel Club, on the evening of the 21st, gave the first of a series of social hops, at which about fifty couples enjoyed themselves. The affair was an entire success.

"AMERICUS" is indebted to Mr. "Occasional" for the gratifying information that he "Americus" is a "tenderfoot." Poor, deluded boy, I fear that his bump of discernment is as poorly developed as are his powers of journalism. [Now, gentlemen, this controversy must cease.—ED.]

MORRISON is a small village lying in among the foot hills, about eighteen miles from Denver. The village itself possesses no particular attractions, but its picturesque surroundings draw a good many visitors to the place. On Sunday, the 17th, a party of the Social Club had a run over there, and after dinner several of them started for a five-mile tramp through Turkey Creek Canon. It is a beautiful place, and we drank in the wondrous beauties of nature for a long time in silence. At last, tiring of so mild a form of amusement, we commenced to entertain ourselves by starting huge boulders rolling down the mountain side. We were suddenly startled by the sound of a shrill whistle, rising from the valley below, which was at once recognized as the signal of the Denver Ramblers. It was then discovered that the latter club was also reveling among the beauties of nature, and that an immense rock had narrowly missed bringing the earthly existence of Mr. "Parkins, of Colorado," to an untimely end.

AT a recent meeting of Western Railroad Passenger Agents, held at Chicago, the practice of checking bicycles, as baggage, was adversely commented upon.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

THERE is a policeman on the beat fronting the New York Club house, whose name is Graham, and who is, literally as well as figuratively "one of the finest," standing, as he does, six feet six inches in height. But it is not to the credit of his length of frame that Officer Graham owes the fame of being introduced to your 14,000 readers, but to the fact that he has taken to putting this height of frame upon a 60-inch wheel. Now for Graham a wheel of this size is as much too small as a 52-inch wheel would be for Dr. Beckwith, and when he sits astride of it, with every up stroke of the pedals bringing his knees in contact with the handle-bars, the sight is indeed most ludicrous. Added to the comicality of the whole affair, is the appearance of this magnificent specimen of manhood clad in the abbreviated jacket and knee breeches of a wheelman, which do not, to the uninitiated, differ much from those worn by our younger brothers, in fact this is, in the case of Graham, accented to an excessive degree, owing to his immense proportions, and a wag at the club the other evening hit the entire fact off very appropriately when he dubbed Graham "the Little Lord Fauntleroy of the wheel." Here's the finest chance for some enterprising manufacturer to get an advertisement I have ever seen. Let Graham have constructed for him, say a 65-inch ordinary, which will be about his proper size, and if the result won't be the best advertisement in the wheel world, I don't know what will.

I DON'T think that the fact that Louis Harrison is a relative of the President has heretofore appeared in print, has it? Well, it's a fact, and Harrison's recent trip West wasn't entirely to hunt buffalos and "sour mash," but had something to do with collecting "influoence" in the direction of a foreign consulate. I am sure I don't wish him any ill luck, but I do hope he won't succeed, as he is too good a fellow to exile, and he has taken out his papers here as a citizen of this village and joined the New York Club, so I do not want to see him sent as an American offering of toothsomeness to the festive cannibal, or in some other way expatiated, just when we are beginning to know him.

How appropriate sometimes is one's name! I see the Captain of the Moscow Bicycle Club is Stanilaus Kunawisky, which, taken in connection with his riding, seems an ominous cognomen, I think.

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

THE safety is doing missionary work here in New Haven, as the "grave and reverend" professors of Yale are taking to this style of machine in great shape. Many of our staid and venerable business men who could not adopt the ordinary as a regular mount are happy, in that the dwarf comes in as a compromise. Not only are the middle aged and venerable taking to the rear driver, but many of our most rapid scorchers are also riding the geared machine. The ordinary is good enough for me, however.

THE New Haven Club had its regular smoker a week ago, and the punch and tobacco furnished were most thoroughly enjoyed. The entertainment consisted of music by Mowers' orchestra, and the following members contributed towards the general jollity: John Moxley gave a cornet solo; a comic song by Chief Consul Larom, and this same gentleman also gave a speech as an encore; sparring between Le Heup, Bacon, Tell, Vann, Blatchley and Morse. These smokers are very much enjoyed, and are helping to bring new members into the club. There are five names on the bulletin board to be voted in at the next meeting, and others will come in later. We have 52 members now, and are one of the few old clubs (organized Jan 24, 1880) who have not degenerated into a social club; but all our membgrs are riders and own a wheel, and several of the members own two or more wheels.

LOOK out for our big tournament next fall. We have not had a race meet here for four years, and we are just starving for one—a good one. We are having a new track built, and we guess it will be just as fast as ever the Springfield track was.

IN the report of the L. A. W. Committee on Transportation it mentioned a few railroads that do not carry wheels free, but among them it did not mention two of the most important ones that give wheelmen the most trouble, namely, the N. Y. N. H. and Hfd. R. R. Co. and the Long Island R. R. It costs $1 to carry a wheel from New Haven to Boston, and 50 cents for any distance, no matter how short, and the Long Island road is just as bad, and you can make no terms with them. I think these ought to be named in the list.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE coat of arms of the Town Club, of Boston, and which adorns a large space over the fire-place of the parlor, is a beautiful work of art, from the brush of Mr. C. W. Reed, who, together, with Papa Weston, designed same. It is "quartered," and in the different quarterings are represented the bicycle, tricycle, tally ho coach, the celebrated dog Bess, fishing tackle, canoe, yacht, guns and saddle and bridle, all indicative of the aims of the club. This club owes its origin, inception and establishment to the Boston Bicycle Club. Long may the joint occupancy of the beautiful new quarters, at 14 Boyston street, be enjoyed by the New and the Old.

WE could not help being late last week. It's quite a job to get out a 76-page paper.

EX-CHIEF CONSUL HAYES has returned from Para, Brazil, after a six weeks' stay in that country. He says that six weeks was enough time to prove to him that Para is not the kind of a city where an American can make himself content. Boston is good enough for him.

THE Winsted, Conn., Wheel Club will have a series of races, on Decoration Day.

A WHEELMAN of Hartford, Conn., was seen one day last week putting out for Windsor. Since he left the city limits he has not been heard of. The services of a dredge have been secured to drag for his remains at the bottom of the canal of liquid mud, "yclept," the Windsor Lock Road.

THE New Haven, Conn., Club held a smoker at the club rooms last week Tuesday. A light feed and plenty of cigars and fun made the hours to pass quickly.

WE are glad to notice the name of the Waltham, Mass., Cycle Club and "activity" in close communion again. The Walthams used to be the liveliest of the lively, and they now promise to revive the good old times of active riding during the coming season.

FROM a pro-pectus sent us we learn that a firm in Philadelphia has been formed for the purpose of manufacturing noiseless cab and carriage wheels, now so popular in London and on the Continent.

ALL the clubs in and around Boston called runs for Fast Day. At this writing the weather looks dubious.

Two hundred and fifty members of the various Brooklyn, N. Y., bicycle clubs went to the Brooklyn Park Theatre the other night, to see the "Pearl of Pekin." After the theatre the party went to the Clarendon Hotel, where dinner was served. We think this is record for the "largest."

A LADIES' bicycle club will be one of the new things for Cincinnati this season.

THE Chicago Journal says: "Along Ashland boulevard, from Madison to Twelfth streets, this city, the residents declare the bicycling a nuisance. It is said a petition is now being circulated, and will be presented at the next meeting of the West Park Board, asking the prohibition of bicycle riding on the boulevard."

AN Ansonia, Conn., writer says: "A number of bicyclists are contemplating a trip to Washington on their wheels, this summer. If they go that far and once get in the city, they will either stay there or sell their wheels when they return. Washington is the city for cycling, and comparisons are odious."

THE Kings Co. Wheelmen, Brooklyn, N. Y., are considering the advisability of holding a two day's race meeting on the Washington Park base ball grounds in Brooklyn. Schwalback and Murphy are the committee, and so we think it will be a "go."

WE regret to learn that Mr. Ed. D. Fisher, of Nashville, has been seriously ill with pneumonia, but we are pleased to hear that he is at this time convalescing.

THE Taunton, Mass., Club will endeavor to have the association of which it is a member, hold a tournament at Taunton soon. The other clubs in the association are North Attleboro, Fall River and New Bedford.

THE Call, of Newark, N. J., in answer to our query as to "where, oh where will the L. A. W. meet be held this year?" says, "What's the matter with Newark or Orange?" Echo answers what? Now, Newark and Orange-peelers, what say you?

THE Saco wheelmen, of Biddiford, Me., will hold races on the driving park in connection with the State meet, May 30th.

ALLARD & Lee, at Buffalo, stated their belief that no man living had complete control over a safety at a high rate of speed. Both these men are of the opinion that it is not safe to allow the two types to meet in the same race. This from safety riders of undoubted skill, has weight as an argument.

DR. EMERY, Chief Consul for Massachusetts, spoke to upwards of two hundred wheelmen, at Worcester, last Thursday evening. The theme of his discourse was of course the advantages offered by the League, and his words also had the effect to stir up the wheelmen of that city to push their local legislators towards adopting laws for road improvements.

OUR Australian contemporary, the Cycling News, has ceased to exist. It breathed its last Feb. 5, 1889.

THE Roxbury Bi. Club annual ball will take place at Orienta Hall, Roxbury, on the coming April 17th.

THE Cincinnati (Ohio) Bi. Club is domiciled in its new headquarters. Great indignation is expressed at the fact that the valuable library of "back numbers" and ancient almanacs have been stolen from the club room.

ANOTHER proof has been added to the already long list that shows conclusively that Cincinnati is a musical centre. The genial, handsome, and ingenious Charley Hanauer has attached the crank of a small music box to the rear sprocket wheel of his safety. In the future he will start out on club runs to the tune of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Coming," and return to the tune of "Home Sweet Home."

A BILL has passed the Ohio State Legislature authorizing the issuing of bonds for paving the streets of Cumminsville with granite. The "hog wallows," as the streets out there are called by the natives, will soon therefore be in a ridable condition.

IT is reported that the Centrals, of Cincinnati, Ohio, are to reorganize and consolidate with the Brightons, of the same city. As both clubs are composed of scorchers of the hottest kind, their consolidation is very appropriate.

ROAD HOG—There's one 'er them pesky bicyclers, Jake. Lets run him down?

JAKE—"Run him down a heap!" Didn't I chase that same feller for most two miles t'other day, and couldn't get more'n near enough to catch his dust, and the old mare can do better than three minutes, too!

R. H.—Yes! but don't you see he's a try'n to ride the thing backwards; we can be on him 'fore he can turn it around.

JAKE—That's just where I got fooled; its ment to go that way; they say it's a new kind of machine, and that you can't make them take headers any more; it's no use chase'n them. They can ride over just as rough ground as we can, and that feller there can lift up that little wheel of hisen and ride more'n a mile all on the big 'un. They say down in town that it's called "The Eagle," and "by gosh" it does come purty near to flyen.

The object, to boom the League and insure proper legislation towards the improvements of the highways. All cyclists are invited, and it is hoped they will show their interest by being present. Opportunities will be given to all who desire to suggest plans for the general good of riders, both practical and social.

ON to Chicago May 13th to 18th. This will be the biggest tournament the West has ever seen.

A CLUB made up of the newspaper men of Boston was informally organized last Saturday, at the Herald Office. Committees were appointed to nominate permanent officers, and to present constitution by-laws for the same. The club will start with a membership of some twenty-five.

SYNYER, Osmond, Sharpe, Hinchcliff, York, Archer, Bromson, Adams, Robinson, Williams, and Stroud, all English cracks, have signed an agreement not to race in any open event, in which safeties are allowed to enter against ordinaries. The championships, which have to be open, are excepted in this agreement.

THE Missouri Bi. Club has sent to all Chicago wheelmen, through Mr. Miles, an invitation to attend the Stone-Lumsden race on May 25th, and remain over the next day as guests of the club. Quite a number will accept.

Two thousand cycling photographs will be on exhibition at the Chicago tournament. They will include the champions of America, England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany and Australia, besides celebrated newspaper men, manufacturers and officers of various institutions.

A BICYCLE collision occurred on the sidewalk leading to the depot at Rising Sun, Md., recently, between Harvey Bouden, who was riding the bicycle, and Jacob Grist, which developed in a fistiana opposite the post office. Dr. Kirk, who is the Town Commissioner, ordered the fight off and also the bicycles off of the sidewalks. No arrests.

"THE big four," Dampman, Merrihew, McDaniel and Elliott, is a road team which we believe cannot be beaten by any other four amateur road riders from one locality in the country.

ISAAC HINDS, of the Baltimore Club, met with a serious accident not long ago, while returning from Druid Hill Park. He took a header on Eutaw Place, and knocked out several teeth, cut his head, and split his chin. It will be some time before he can get out.

There was a jolly party assembled in Newton last week, met for the purpose of trying the ladies' bicycle. Mr. Elliott furnished the machines and there were present, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, Dr. and Mrs. Southwell, Mrs. Elliott and several others. The ladies easily learned to master the wheel and those who were persistent became good riders before the evening was over.

BUYING UP THE FAST MEN.

Editor Bicycling World: I will beg a little of your room if you will permit. The subject I desire to air is one that I think will soon need attention, if "amateur" cycling is to be kept pure, and would like to hear from some of your many readers if they think—Should not the reducing of initiation fee or annual dues, paying the entrance fee to races and all expenses of a racing man, in order to secure the fastest men from smaller clubs (that are devoted to only one sport) by general "athletic clubs" be sufficient cause to debar such racing members from competing under L. A. W. rules?

Such athletic clubs do not want these men "as members," but as an attraction and a money making scheme, the same as "Barnum" would, only he (Barnum) pays by the month, and such clubs by a reduction of dues or initiation fee and expenses at races, and if wheels are broken, paying same repaired free to racer.

How a man can say "I am an amateur," who has left his bicycle club that has stood by him through many a race, and his fellow members who have been ready to swear by him and always ready and willing to render any assistance to him, can become an attraction under such a ban, is more than I can quite understand.

I am not against athletic clubs which keep in their place, they have attractions enough in their race track, tennis courts, base ball, grounds, etc., without trying to buy the fast men from canoe, tennis cycling and other clubs that are devoted to their one sport. These clubs need and love their fast men, want them to associate with and not to make money by. I hope I have not crowded too much of your good reading out. I am fraternally. L. A. W. 820.

TALKS BY THE TUTOR.—NO. II.

[When we specially called attention, last week, to the date of the article under this heading, and when we found that the compos and proof reader had played us false and omitted said dates, we felt sanguinarely inclined. The papers are dated 1940. The crime of murder does not blot our soul.—ED.]

LAZINESS and sloth, my dear pupil, are the very sappers and miners of our healthy enjoyments; they impede the circulation, they dull the brain, and are allies of indigestion and its kindred evils. Thrice did I rap on thy door, my Lucellus, ere thou answered me this morning, and now the sun is two hours high, and instead of being a hundred miles on our way, barely five and twenty lay behind us. I will not chide thee, because my thoughts are tender this morning.

Somehow, I never can look on those twin, silver spires which crown those saint-containing shrines on Corey Hill, without the tenderest feelings welling up in my heart.

To you, Lucullus, the fact that in that magnificent shrine the sacred remains, St. Pope and St. Overman, repose side by side, excites a feeling of reverence only, but in me, your aged preceptor, the knowledge that two of the founders of the greatest and most powerful institution on earth, the "College of Cycling," rest there, is more than a mere, cold fact of history. Why?—well, because I knew those noble men, Lucellus; I have grasped their warm hands, I have eaten their good dinners, drank their choice wine, smoked their most excellent cigars. What if my voice does falter, what if the tear does come unbidden, canst thou chide and deride my emotion, my pupil?

I have seen these men and enjoyed sweet converse with both, and Oh, my son, what a power they were when in the flesh; what a power they are, even though they have gone. Linked together through life, arm in arm, fighting the good fight, subduing the universe with cycles, establishing a new order of things; never ceasing in joint work, joint support and sympathy, until the Cycle Era was an accomplished fact: then, and not till then, did these staunch allies lay down their peaceful instruments of subjection and die, and now side by side they lie and have their reward. Pardon, Lucellus my son, 'tis but the emotional tribute of a weak old man to his personal recollections of the the two Fathers of the Cycling Epoch.

Thanks, my pupil, the rest in the cool spot has brought my feelings to a calm again, and in answer to your question as the other members of this great college, there are now living, the most venerable Director Gormully, the most excellent and supreme Father Warwick, and the Senior Father (lovingly called Papa) Weston. Westminster Abbey, you know, my son, has lately been cleared out, so that on the happy demise of these "Venerables," their remains alone will occupy the former resting place of England's greatest dead.

But, my son, we linger; we must make Chicago for lunch, or we cannot reach San Francisco by evening.

"WHAT SHALL I RIDE?"

Is there a cycle editor living who has not been approached in a confidential way by some callow youth or foxy veteran, and perchance also by those with the most honest and guileless intentions, with the question which heads this article, "What shall I ride?"

On such momentous occasions the editor has a chance to put in his best licks and establish a reputation of dealing in a vast quantity of "glittering generalities. "What shall he ride, forsooth!" Now when a physician visits a patient and comes to some conclusion as to what his sick man needs, he prescribes and doses, and in case the diagnosis is not correct and the physic not the proper remedy, the patient is none the wiser as to the real cause of the medicine not proving efficacious, but rather he lays it to the stubbornness of the disease, and he has another "go" at it.

Now how different the case of a cyclist, who is sick for a cycle, and nothing will cure him but a dose of "the best mount." He looks to ye editor, as an expert who can diagnose his case and administer the proper cycle. Ye "foolish editor" prescribes, and the individual in search of a cure takes the scribe's advice, buys and takes the prescription. So far the doctor and the editor are even—on a par, so to speak—but alas, while the patient cannot prove that the physician has made a bull, the cyclist will pretty soon discover that he is not cured if the cycle does not suit, and then how he does "bless" (?) the sapient scribbler!!

You cannot choose for another man what a satisfactory mount would be. We have an idea of what we want, but the machine we choose may not cover the requirements of our friend Jumbo, Skinney, Jones, or even Smith.

For general guidance we can lay down a few rules which may aid the groping ones. If your roads are sandy and very deep ruts, then stick to the ordinary, the Star or the Eagle, as there is no doubt but that these machines still lead in utility over roads heavy with sand or scarred with ruts.

If the roads are hard surfaced, no matter how rough, then the dwarf can be used. "But what kind?" Ah, there's another point. Are you a scorcher and road racer? then get a machine with stiff forks; or if you are an ordinary potterer, and one who likes an eight to ten miles an hour gait, and further, love comfort, then take a spring fork machine.

Unless you weigh less than 130 pounds, don't think of getting a machine that weighs less than 30 to 40 pounds.

If the ordinary or the safety do not fit the idea, then we can show you the Star and the Eagle, both of which machines, in the hands of skillful riders, are practically unicycles, as the little pilot "skims" the ground more than it "rolls" over it. We have seen skillful men on these two machines riding along with the little wheel touching just enough to give steering.

Now just make up your own mind as to what you must ride. Take into consideration the roads you are to ride over, the weight of your own person, the ease or roughness with which you use a machine, and the question as to whether vibration upsets your nerve centres, and you will be able to make a much more satisfactory selection for yourself than even we could make for you, with all our fathomless knowledge and cycling lore.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[All communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—Ed.]

At first I was astounded; then urgent pleadings made me take the matter into serious consideration. Then I met the common fate of the woman who hesitates. I feel that I have taken up a burden that, without assistance, will be more than I can bear. How easy it is to say, "sit down and write something on this or that topic," but, my dear reader, what can we do without ideas well backed by inspiration? Your editor must be in touch with all that the world is doing if he would furnish mental pabulum that the world is hungry for. And therein is the keynote to my talk this week.

Ladies, the editor has asked me to conduct a column in your interest. I can do this if you will help me. If, in a word, you will keep me in touch with all that is going on, so that I may tell the ladies of Massachusetts what their sisters in Chicago are doing, and so that New York and Brooklyn ladies may know what is going on in Washington and in Philadelphia. I have consented to act the part of hostess, and will give you kindly greeting at the door, but you are expected to contribute your mite to the entertainment of the company, and to do what you can to make this department one that even the gentlemen will not neglect. Address communications to me, care of the editor.

The lady's bicycle is now the object of our earnest thought. I have been asked, I don't know how many times, if I should ride it. Now I never was much of an enthusiast, and I have a dread of new-fangled notions. I don't know: I can see very many advantages possessed by the single-track, light weight machine, and I am not blind to several disadvantages. She who rides the bicycle can easily run away from her sister on the tricycle, and she will cover a given distance with less fatigue. Moreover, she can go over roads impassable to the tricycle. But, on the other hand, there must be no little nervous force expended in keeping the balance, though after a time this may be imperceptible, and one who is timid, as I confess to be, will miss the security felt when she is hemmed in by the wheels of a tricycle, and therefore safe from the attacks of dogs. Is this latter point a thing of little consequence and not worth serious thought? 'Tis a fact. I have had ferocious dogs chase me again and again, and I do not know how I should have escaped them on a bicycle.

I am not writing this to turn away the thoughts of the ladies from the bicycle. Perish the thought. But there are always two sides to every question and I hope that this one will be duly considered in all its bearings. I do not believe that the tricycle is going out. It has advantages in its luggage and bundle-carrying possibilities that never can obtain with the bicycle, and the ability to stop without dismounting is of no little importance. I do not believe the end of lightness has yet been reached in the tricycle. Makers have made machines to carry two hundred pounds or more of masculine humanity and poor feminine humanity has been forced to propel just about twice as much steel and iron as she need to. There are better days ahead for us whether we ride the bicycle or that light tricycle that I hope will soon be given us.

I saw two very pretty girls on bicycles at the Reservoir last week. It was indeed a beautiful sight. They rode well, they were dressed in exquisite taste, and the faces glowed with the exhilartion induced by the ride. If you have gained the idea that I have a prejudice against the bicycle let me say that I cannot believe that so pretty a picture could be un-folded to my gaze had these young ladies been on tricycles. But I have no prejudice against the bicycle.

CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

After some hitches the Exposition Building has been positively secured for the Referee Tournament and Exhibition, and so now Miles is happy, and the thing will surely go.

During the past week a general meeting was held. A business committee, consisting of Messrs. J. M. Erwin, Lincoln C. C., Frank Riggs, Illinois C. C., N. H. Van Sicklen, Chicago C. C., E. F. M'Pike, Oakland W. C., Thomas Bray, Æolus C. C., H. J. Gottlieff, Douglas C. C., and Geo. Dennison, Englewood C. C., has been appointed to assist Mr. Mills in selecting committees for various duties. The racing committee will meet in a day or two, and arrange the programme, which, however, will contain, among other events, the following: Scratch events, one and three mile novices; one mile for men who have never raced; two miles, members of suburban clubs only; quarter-mile dash, open; one mile, three minute class; two miles, six minute class; two miles, 6-20 class; two miles, safety, Rover type, open; one mile, flying start, open; five-miles, open; half-mile unicycle, open; two-mile tandem, open; ten-miles, open. Handicaps: one-mile, safety, Rover type; one-mile, two-miles, three-miles, five miles and ten miles, all open; one-mile, local, Lumsden, Van Sicklen, Rob. Ehlert, Winship and Hammel barred; one mile, boys under, sixteen; one mile, boys under seventeen; two miles, L. A. W. members only. Special events: three-mile teams of three from any club in the world; club-drill; fancy riding.

The president of each club has been requested to appoint two of his members to serve on a reception committee. It was considered impossible to arrange to meet all teams, but large parties, notifying the committee, in advance of its arrival, will be met and taken care of. For the benefit of those who arrive by twos and threes, headquarters will be established, at which some one will always be in attendance to meet them.

The exhibit of wheels is expected to be the largest on record in America, but as there are over 30,000 feet of space available, there will be no crowding, and each exhibitor will be able to secure a desirable location.

Communications should be addressed to S. A. Miles, 199 S. Clark street, Chicago.

THE COLUMBIA FOLK "RECEIVE."

The hospitalities of the Pope Manufacturing Co. was enjoyed by some 650 people on Saturday evening, the 30th, and it goes without saying that the affair was most enjoyable and the supper which was set before the guests was, to use the expressions of the guests themselves, "elaborate, plentiful and delicious." The Boston Mandolin Club, the best organization of the class anywhere, rendered delightful music and their efforts were applauded to the echo. The affair took on the semblance of a gigantic smoker, and there were over sixteen boxes of cigars consumed. The Committee of Arrangements are certainly to be congratulated on the grand success of the affair. The following gentlemen were on the Committee of Arrangements, and acted as Reception Committee, assisted by the entire force of employees: President, Col. Albert A. Pope; Treasurer, Edward W. Pope; Secretary, A. E. Pattison; Charles E. Pratt; and Advertising Manager, N. C. Fowler, Jr.

"EN MASQUE."

The Cambridgeport (Mass.) Club gave a grand masquerade party at Central Square Armory last week Wednesday. One hundred couples appeared in costume, and the range of costume covered a list from the humble nineteenth century milkmaid to Cleopatra, the magnificent. Mr. J. W. Bean officiated as floor director in an efficient manner, and was fortunate in having such assistants as Edwin P. Craig, Arthur E. Hutchinson, Fred C. Ball, David Rice, John A. Crocker, Frank E. Carman, Charles E. Fayard, A. J. Schaffer. The grand march, led by Floor Director Bean and lady, was started at 8.45, and the music of Edmand's orchestra did not die away until two in the morning.

THE CAMBRIDGE CLUB DINNER.

The Cambridge, Mass., Bicycle Club shows a good deal of vitality for an organization about the existence of which sinister rumors have circulated lately. The club is very much alive, and thanks to the push and energy of those who had faith the Cambridge Club is revivified and strengthened so that to day it is stronger than ever.

Last Wednesday, at Young's, this club celebrated its seventh anniversary by a dinner, to which about fifty wheelmen sat down. Distinguished guests were present, and the speeches were above the average.

ROUTE WANTED.

Editor Bicycling World: A small party of wheelmen of this place (including myself) are going to "wheel it" to New York City the coming season. Perhaps some of your readers can give us the needed information as to the route and roads, etc. Can we go by way of Pittsburg, Pa., without encountering much rough road? or will it be a better route to keep south of that city?

FRANK M. HARTMAN, No. 18 Sq.

THE BUGGY HAS GOT TO VAMOOSE.

The Washington Post, of Monday last, printed an article on the economy of tricycle riding in that city in comparison with that of the buggy, in which it said that the impecunious clerk who cannot afford a buggy ride on his munificent salary of $7 per week, is perfectly willing to invest $1.50, which is the hire of a machine for the afternoon in that city, for the delectation of his girl. There is a growing increase in the number of tricycles used in that city on Sunday, and it seems as if the prosaic buggy is no more to be the Sunday afternoon vehicle for love-making. It is said that last Sunday there were over 300 hired machines on the roads surrounding the city; a great majority of them were double machines. There is more joy in riding them, and the pastime is becoming more popular, and it is only a matter of time before "Will you take a tricycle ride?" will be a more popular question than "Will you go buggy riding?"

NORVAL.

ANOTHER LOCAL RECORD FOR THE WILMINGTON TEAM.

Last Saturday night Mr. McDaniel missed the midnight train from this city to Wilmington, and he started out on his safety for the latter town, riding the thirty miles on a moonless night and over the roughest kind of roads. After two hours' sleep he started out with Merrihew and Elliott (or rather after them, they having started at 7 o'clock, while McDaniel did not get off until 7.27) for Dover, which they reached at nearly 1 o'clock. After putting away a dinner that astonished the hotel keeper, they turned their wheels toward Wilmington at 1.30. The pace soon became a lively one, and Elliott, who was riding in remarkably good shape, began making it warmer and warmer for the other two, and for a while it was a regular scorch. The roads were in too poor a condition to enable this to be kept up, however, and the gait settled down to a steady one, that brought the trio into Wilmington about 7 o'clock, making the 100 miles in less than twelve hours, breaking the local records; while McDaniel's mileage for the 24 hours beats Dallett's figures, made last summer, on the Lancaster pike and one of the country roads.

It is the intention of McDaniel, and either Elliott or Merrihew, to go for the pike records as soon as the weather permits—both tandem and single—and I violate no confidence when I state that I think some of those figures will have to go. "ARIEL."

Philadelphia, March 31, 1889.

"STARLEY" NOT "STANLEY."

Last week we printed the advertisement of John Wilkinson Co., as selling the "Stanley" Rover. Heaven save the mark and also shrive the soul of the mutilated and dead compositors who, for some inscrutable reason took out an R and substituted an N after the proof and revise had been corrected. We make amends by printing the advertisement correctly this week, and asking the pardon of the John Wilkinson Co. See the advertisement.

WHAT GOOD ROADS MEAN.

What good roads mean is this, described in a letter from a bicyclist, who rode over some of the South Ohio highways, and found them all to be desired. At Hamilton, in the auditor's office, a gentleman told me that he thought farms were worth one half more for being on the pike than if they were off it. Pikes are certainly worth many times their cost to the people.

The auditor of Union County told me that their pikes cost them $2000 to $2500 per mile, according to the distance of the gravel, and that they sometimes hauled the gravel as much as four miles. The Hardin County plan of taxation seems to me to be the best for making roads. They assess half the cost on the property owners of the road, and the other half on the general duplicate of the whole county. By this plan the city has to stand a share of the expense, which I think is only right, considering that they will be benefited almost as much as the farmers. This farmer I mentioned, in speaking of prices, said he got from four to ten cents a bushel more for his grain, in consequence of having good roads. He said the grain was brought in slowly and regularly, and there was no forcing down of prices by a rush to town when the roads happened to be good. His roads were good all the year round.—Ravena Ohio Republican.

A COUNTER-"NOTICE."

The Bicycling World Co.,

Gentlemen: As you permitted the Warwick Cycle Co., to publish in your columns a disingenuous and untruthful statement to the public under the diaphanous disguise of "what it believes,"—will you please permit us to say to your many readers briefly that we have made no threats of litigation, are not attempting to intimidate its customers, and have not circulated any rumors to the prejudice of that Company. If that Co. were half as industrious in getting at the truth as it is in advertising what it hasn't got and abusing its neighbors, it could have found out whether its absurd information was correct more courteously, at least.

Now that that Co. has itself raised the question, we may answer it as publicly—that its advertisements show that its machines, if constructed as described, infringe three or more of our patents, as we have been advised; but so far we have been unable to find any of its machines to examine. When the long advertised "Warwick Cycles" are really on the market and examined so that we have facts to go by, if we find they do in our belief infringe, we shall according to our custom notify the makers of our claims, and proceed according to law and business courtesy, but without "threats verbal or otherwise" to it or its customers and correspondents."

Pardon us for resenting an unfair and misleading attack in the eyes of the generous bicycling public with whom we have endeavored to deal honorably during these many years of business, and believe us, Yours with respect. POPE MFG. CO.

THE "ADAMS" MEDALS FOR HIGHEST MONTH'S MILEAGE.

Messrs. Adams & Sons, the manufacturers of Adams Tutti Frutti Chewing Gum, so extensively used in this country and abroad, are unique advertisers. Their latest form of advertising is an enterprising step, which will be appreciated by all road fiends. Messrs. Adams & Sons have offered two gold medals, valued at $100 and $30, the first of which will be presented to the American wheelman who makes the highest one month's record between the first day of May, 1889, and the first day of November, 1889. The fifty dollar medal will be presented to the wheelman making the second highest record. The first medal will be more costly and valuable than the first prize presented at the Pullman Road Race of last May.

The conditions are as follows: All records must be submitted to C. W. Fourdrinier, of the Bicycling World or to Mr. F. R. Prial, of the Wheel. The records must be accompanied by sworn affidavits of the rider and captain of the club to which he belongs. The affidavit must state distance ridden each day and cyclometer must be inspected before and after the trial. The cyclometer used must be tested before final awards are made. The records will be published from time to time.

Entries for the Pullman road race this year will close on May 10, handicapped May 12, and made known after the tournament.

Circular No. 11.

MASS. DIV. L. A. W.
Office of Chief Consul.

Boston, April 2, 1889.

To wheelmen of Boston and vicinity.

A meeting of wheelmen will be held at America Hall, 724 Washington street, Boston, on Monday evening, April 8th at 8 o'clock, to consider plans in the interest of better roads, the advancement of the interests of the League and any scheme which will benefit wheelmen the coming season.

Let every cyclist be present. Good speaking.

Fraternally, Wm. H. Emery, Chief Consul.

Rhode Island.

To the members of the Rhode Island Division:

I desire to call the attention of League members in Rhode Island to the renewal season. The books of the League are now open for renewals, and Local Consuls are supplied with the necessary blanks. Hand $1.00 to any Local Consul, and he will forward it to League headquarters. Every wheelman in Rhode Island should join the L. A. W. The paper alone being worth the dues, not to mention the tours and meets, reduced hotel rates and road books.

The League strives continually to attain benefits for its members, and a wheelman, who does not aid in the good work, must feel mean indeed to take advantage of these benefits, secured by other wheelmen's money and efforts. The work accomplished by this Division in the past year is well known to every rider in the State, and every cyclist should be proud to know that they are assisting to push forward the cause of wheeling. This they can easily do at an expense of less than two cents per week. More members, means more money, and with more money a greater number of benefits can be obtained. Every old member should use his best efforts to bring other wheelmen into the fold, because by so doing they not only assist the cause of cycling; but indirectly benefit themselves Rhode Island must reach 350 members this year, and consuls are earnestly requested to increase the membership in their districts if possible.

Wheelmen who desire to join the League may obtain full information of the Local Consul, and if there is no consul in their vicinity, a letter addressed to the Chief Consul, at Warren, will receive prompt attention.

Fraternally, Chas. S. Davol, Chief Consul.

New York.

To the members of the New York State Division:

In accordance with the By laws of this Division, I hereby assume the duties of Chief Consul vice Mr. George R. Bidwell resigned.

Closely associated with Mr. Bidwell as I have been for the past three years in the capacity of Vice Consul I have had abundant opportunity to know of his unselfish labors in the cause of wheeling rendered oftentimes at the expense of his own private business affairs. The wise judgement and unrivalled executive ability displayed by him in the interest of, and by which he has made, the Division of the Empire State the Empire Division of the League deserves grateful acknowledgement. I desire, therefore, to express the thanks of the New York State Division to Mr. George R. Bidwell for his great labors and untiring zeal in behalf of our organization.

Hoping to receive from the officers and members of the Division the same hearty support they have accorded my predecessor I desire to call attention to the necessity of promptly renewing membership and of recruiting new members. All the energies and resources of the Division are being devoted to securing an improvement in our highways. In order to secure the necessary legislation we need a largely increased membership.

As improved roads, and the right to use them which has been secured to all wheelmen by our organization, appeal to every cyclist there should be no trouble in adding to our strength it each member will only bear in mind that the privilege of membership in the League of American Wheelmen is not without its accompanying duties. The most important of these should be the endeavor on the part of every member to increase the numerical strength of the organization, thereby advancing its interests and extending its influence.

Trusting that it will only be necessary to call attention to the urgency of an earnest and immediate effort on the part of every member and anticipating a largely increased membership. I am, Yours fraternally,

W. S. Bull, Chief Consul.

To Consuls—New York State Division:

In assuming the duties of Chief Consul, the support of the Local Consuls is asked for, in maintaining the present high standard of the Division, and also in making a concerted effort for its increase.

Your attention is called to the following:

"Consuls shall acquire and give information concerning roads, laws, hotels and other matters of interest in their localities, when called upon to do so, to members of the League only; perform such duties as the Chief Consul may require of them, and generally promote the interests of the League and its members. Consuls' term of office shall expire on the 1st day of September of each year."

It is my desire to have a corps of Consuls in this State, who will be ready and willing to perform the duties as above, and also take an active interest in increasing the membership. An acceptance of a re-appointment would be very gratifying from those who will continue to devote the attention to the office that has been given in the past.

Those who cannot give the necessary time and attention to the duties of the office, are asked to suggest some League member of their locality. In the event of acceptance please return to me at once the application, properly filled out and signed. Yours fraternally,

W. S. Bull, Chief Consul.

To the members of the New York State Division:

I hereby appoint Dr. George E. Blackham of Dunkirk, N. Y., third member of the Executive Committee vice, Mr. John C. Gulick, resigned.

W. S. Bull, Chief Consul.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 25th, 1889.

PEORIA, ILL., March 18th, '80.

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co.,

Chicago, Ill.,

DEAR SIRS—Please send us at least afew more of your Ramblers, just as soon as possible, for we are entirely out excepting sample, and are needing them badly. This machine is taking wonderfully well, and we hear nothing but favorable comments on all sides. We are glad that you have made it ridable by ladies as well as gentlemen, and we are much mistaken if numbers of them do not sell to ladies. We find it especially liked on account of its steering and also because of the entire freedom from vibration, which you obtain by the use of a rocking joint, without complicating the machine a particle. The new chain is a feature in itself, and is the most original and most noiseless chain on the market. In fact the machine bristles with good points, and is well worthy of the large demand.

Very truly,

"An Ever Glowing Stream of Light."

We have recently closed an arrangement to handle the INVINCIBLE SAFETY AND TRICYCLE LANTERN, the most satisfactory that we have seen of domestic or foreign make. It has an adjustable grip socket to fit the clip of almost any machine, attached to the lantern with a parallel link and spring arrangement which reduces vibration to a minimum and checks sudden jars. The glasses and reflector are good-sized, and it is a splendid lantern in every respect. Price, japanned, $6.

SHALL WE HAVE ROAD RACING?

Editor Bicycling World: The announcement that Missouri's Legislature has sent to be engrossed a bill to prohibit road racing, brings to the surface the question of whether or not cyclists should not as a body, by word and example, discourage this abuse of our highways. The very wording of Missouri's bill may cause to those who are not racing in competition but are indulging in a burst of speed, a judicial investigation and serious annoyance. I appreciate the certain value road racing possesses and its influence upon the trade. I know that much benefit has resulted from the convincing proofs of the speed and capacity of cycles when well ridden; but the question to be considered is, What on the whole is the best for the largest number. It must be admitted that the use of highways for racing is an abuse of them. The public has, hitherto, been exceedingly indulgent; but with the increase in the number of road races and the large entries, we may expect opposition. The most likely form of this opposition will be in restricted legislation enactments. It should be always born in mind, that ninety-nine wheelmen out of every hundred are not personally interested in racing, and only ask to be allowed to use the roads in common with others and in a proper and rational manner. Nothing will do more harm to the sport than to have it under constant police supervision. To make the public an enemy by the abuse of our undoubted rights, and I contend that road racing is an abuse of them, will put us upon the defensive—a position wheelmen cannot afford to occupy. The League should discourage and, if possible, prevent open road races, especially for the short distances. The dealers, too, if they will consult their best interests, should not encourage this abuse by promoting road competitions.

THE ORDINARY vs. THE SAFETY.

Editor Bicycling World: I have been in the wheelman's harness for something like six years, and I have watched with much interest the fluctuations of the cycling mind. Some cyclers seem to have the bump of variableness particularly prominent; their satisfaction with any particular machine appears to be of not exceeding a year's duration. This vacillating opinion and practice is particularly noticeable this season, which has marked what enthusiastic Safety riders call "The Beginning of the Age of Safeties." Frequent articles appear in the cycling and secular press, from which one would gather the idea that the Safety bicycle is to be the bicycle of the future, and that the ordinary crank machine would be ridden into an ignominious grave. I have taken pains to make inquiries and while I find there is a great demand for Safeties among the older and timid riders, the great majority of the wheelmen will ride the crank machine this season, and will probably ride that machine until they become old and will then descend to the safety. Do not understand that I intend to say anything against the advantages of the Safety; for I consider that the Safety has advantages over the crank machine, as much as I consider that the crank machine has advantages over the Safety. Both of the machines have their mission, but that the Safety is generally taking the place of the crank machine, except under peculiar conditions, is not so, and any statement to that effect is born of sentiment and prejudice, and cannot be substantiated by present or apparent fact. For the majority of American wheelmen the crank machine is the machine to ride: the rider looks better on it, there is less friction to it, and consequently I hold that it must ride easier, than the Safety machine.

A MIDDLE-AGED RIDER.

MR. O. S. BARRETT of Adrian, Mich. was, during the Rebellion, a lieutenant in Co. B, 4th Mich. Vols. At Gettysburg, he was shot in the legs, the ball breaking the bones and shattering the nerves. Rheumatism and neuralgia set in, resulting in paralysis of both legs and hips. Some ten years ago, it was suggested that he buy a Singer Velocimen; as to the result we will allow Mr. Barrett to tell his story in a letter written to Mess. Singer & Co.

I have used the Tricycle Velociman two years and a half. It is a hand power exclusively, not being able to use my feet. I have been run into by a run-away horse and vehicle. The left big wheel was twisted out of all semblance of a wheel, yet nothing was broken except two or three spokes were twisted off. I had it repaired by Frank McKinster, a mechanic here who, by the way is capable of building a cycle. It has been examined by experts; they could not tell it had been delapidated from its appearance. I speak of this to show the good qualities of the material of which it is composed. I will say to any who are unfortunate like myself, they will not learn what a genuine pleasure is until they mount a velociman and perambulate their surroundings. It is exhilerating, especially in the bloom of springtime. My condition is such I have to be put upon my steed, and also lifted off, and a rail around my seat to hold me in place. I have but imperfect use of my arms, yet I can make a speed of 6 to 8 miles an hour on average according to track; a strong man can make ten miles an hour. I would not change it for the best equine and phaeton to be found. This statement is for no boom, but facts."

FROM Easton, Md.—It will not be many weeks before a bicycle club is organized in Talbot County. There are about twenty-five riders here. It is probable that the cyclers all over the Eastern Shore, which has over a hundred riders, will form a subdivision of the Maryland Division L. A. W. Baltimore City should have, they claim, the Chief Consul and one Representative, the Vice Consul should go to Western Maryland, and the other Representative should be from this side of the Chesapeake. Few members are at present members of the L. A. W., they say they cannot see what benefit they will derive!!

He has purchased a large line of cloths suitable for uniforms and expects a big demand for them. His announcement on another page is short and crisp, and will, no doubt, meet with the approval it merits. Volume XVIII.
Number 24.

VIBRATION IN CYCLING was the subject of a paper recently read by Dr. Benjamin Ward Richardson, at a meeting of the Society of Cyclists (London). "I am of the opinion," says the Doctor, "that nothing produces so much injurious fatigue, or so bad an effect on the health in cycling as vibration. It is a shock to the nervous system, causing a continued feeling of vibration through the body, a sense of nausea, and a degree of nervous prostration, accompanied with a reduced power of the lower limbs, which, to say the least of it, is very inconvenient, and which in a feeble person may be attended with actual risk."

The cause of the mischief is what medical men call "spinal shock." It is very much like, and in essence is the same as that kind of shock which is noted in railway accidents, the difference being that in railway accidents the shock is inflicted by one or two violent concussions, while in cycling the shock is produced by a number of minor shocks, which produce the injurious effect from an accumulative action upon the spinal cord, and, through it, to some extent, on the brain. Excessive vibration causes a general fatigue and a painful reduction of muscular power in the lower limbs.

An efficient spring fork annihilates vibration.

A perfected spring fork is found only in the Victor Safety.

Dears Sirs—My new 39-inch Star arrived yesterday, and it is a beauty. I gave it a good trial, and find that for the rough, sandy, hilly roads which surround this place, it gives me better satisfaction than my 45. As

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 12 APRIL, 1889.

WE are flooded with complimentary letters and postals (likewise verbally) on the excellence of our issue of the 29th ult. This gives us a chance to say to our readers that it was the generous patronage given us by our advertisers that enabled us to issue the paper as it was. On behalf of our readers, as well as ourselves, we again thank our generous advertising patrons for their most generous patronage accorded us in that "record" issue.

THE Coventry Machinists' Company insert their entire catalogue in this issue of the WORLD AND BULLETIN. It is unnecessary for us to more than call the attention of our readers to the Coventry Machinists' Company's catalogue, and to bespeak a careful perusal of same at the hands of our readers. The high reputation of that firm for making high-grade machines is too well known to need our dwelling on that point. We sincerely hope that as they have generously sown so will they also generously reap.

THE appointment by Gov. Beaver, of April 29 as Arbor Day, in the State of Pennsylvania, opens up another phase of what we look on as a "road improvement." There is no doubt but that in a climate of extremes, such as we denizens of the United States experience, that a good road may, well protected by shade trees, last much longer than the same kind of a road will that is exposed to the full blaze of the mid-summer sun, and the heavy and unchecked downpour of thunder showers. Those who have ridden over naturally good roads thus protected by trees will bear us out in the statement that there is a great difference between the portion shaded and unshaded, and that the difference is vastly in favor of the former.

This is the practical and economic side of the question only, but we could enlarge greatly on the comfort of riding along a well-shaded avenue, if we felt it was at all necessary. All riders will, we think, accept this phase of roads improvement as being a blessing indeed, and almost as much of a desideratum as the improvement of the surface itself.

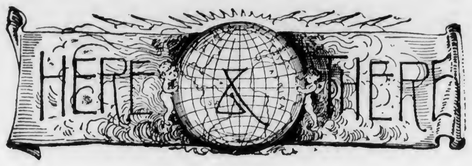
VERILY we are entering a period in the country's history when the people and the representatives thereof are turning their attention to roads improvement in all its branches. Gov. Beaver, of Pennsylvania, has already, in his inaugural, asserted his position as being in favor of road improvements, and now in appointing April 26 next as Arbor Day, further establishes his friendliness to all proper schemes to bring about the desideratum. After a stirring appeal to all good Pennsylvanians to plant and nurture trees, he finishes with this earnest sentence:

"Let our thoughts turn to preparation for the coming Arbor Day. Let trees be provided in advance. Let the citizens of our several communities consult together as to the species of trees suited to each locality likely to grow into what will be useful as well as ornamental. Let preliminary meetings be held to arrange for the details of the observance of Arbor Day, and let our roadsides welcome with smiling verdure the era of better roadways, which, we hope, is dawning in Pennsylvania."

OUR correspondent, "Erratic Quill," paints a very pleasant picture of how the question of roads improvement is being handled in Kansas City and adjoining country. Just think of a park district containing "100 square miles" of land!! Oh ye pinched up and contracted cities of the decaying (?) and effete (?) East, think of Western enterprise and ideas of expansion. Still we won't crow too loud or too long over the Kansas City proposed park system, because the bill which provides for it is not yet a law. With all our heart we hope it may be, and we can assure our sister city that thoughts of congratulations and not envy will fill our mind.

OUR esteemed contemporary, the Wheel, backs us up in our position that safeties should be barred from "ordinary" races, and Mr. Prial then goes on to say: "We trust the Board will legislate in favor of classing the rear-drivers."

A careful reading of the new racing rules and the amendments will show that the Racing Board have done just this thing. In rule E, among the national championships, it will be found that the Board have established one, two and three mile events.



In rule 13, the following clause appears: "Safety bicycles shall not be ridden in 'ordinary' bicycle races."

We do not see how the usually well posted editor of the Wheel came to overlook both these clauses, except he did as we did two weeks ago, ie., write an article before the rule was formulated, and that it slipped in by oversight just for "fillin'."

THERE seems to exist more galantry in Philadelphia than we are used to in Boston. Witness the fact that the Philadelphia Club and the Century Wheelmen, of the Quaker City, admit lady members. We are in thorough sympathy with this tendency towards a desire on the part of the male members of such large and influential clubs as the two above named, to affiliate in the club house and on the road with their wives, sweethearts and sisters. None can gainsay the fact that the tendency is one of refinement, and we want to see more of the large clubs extending the privileges of full membership to ladies.

The taunt that club men are the essence of selfishness cannot be thrown at the members of the Philadelphia and Century Clubs.

TO pass the twelvemonth without a League meet will be too bad, and yet there seems to be a lack of enthusiasm on the question, which seems remarkable. The time is getting short, and if we have a meet in the year of our Lord 1889, some one must wake up pretty soon. We notice that Albany wheelmen have the subject under advisement.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

It is understood that the Crescent Club also owns its club house, situated on North avenue. The house is handsomely furnished. The furniture of the club was put in last week. This club was formerly located in the county near Waverly, but not long ago moved into the city and located at the present site. The house will be opened the Friday following Easter.

The Chesapeake Club proposes to buy a club house and fit it up with all modern conveniences. The club at present is on Fulton avenue. It is understood that $5000 will be subscribed for that purpose.

The wives of several of the members of the Maryland Club gave a dance and entertainment at the club house on Mt. Royal avenue, Thursday, the 4th, and was very much enjoyed by all present.

The Centaur Club will celebrate Arbor Day by tree planting, in Patterson Park. A pleasant ceremony and addresses will be made, followed by a run down the shell road, and festivities at the club house at night.

Charles Ludwig, of Ashtabula, O., an ex-member of the Baltimore Club of this city, arrived in the city on Friday, the 5th, at 3 P. M., was married to Miss Nehr at 4, and left with her, at 5 P. M., for their distant home. "Rather quick work," and very "fly," although it is not at present "fly" time.

Mr. Isaac Hinds, who not long ago received several injuries while riding his cycle on Eutaw Place, and which laid him up in bed for several days, has improved, and has pluckily gone back to riding. Mr. Hinds is one of the fastest riders in this city.

A party of wheelmen took part in the club run of the Baltimore Club, which started from their club house at 10 o'clock Sunday, March, the 31st, and took the road to Reisterstown. Among them were: Fred Townsend, Fred Pape, Victor Emerson, Walter Lowery, Arthur Emory, "Joe" Giegan and "Lew" Warrington. Mr. Emerson made the trip from Reisterstown Hotel to Halstead's in the remarkably quick time of one hour and ten minutes, including an eight-minute stop.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

Garden's annual dinners seem to have been the cause of throwing one of our dealers here into spasms, and while suffering from an attack of this kind he penned a letter to the "Powers that Be," complaining of these aforesaid dinners, and in sarcastic words protested against influencing trade in this way. But he forgot to add those mystic words, "burn this letter," and thereby proclaimed himself no statesman by his forgetfulness. The letter was sent to Garden, and, although I was not there when he read it, I understand that his expression was a study for an artist while his vocalisms were something forcible, if not melodious. At first I feared a duel, but at present all is peace on the surface, although I tremble for the future.

The Chicagos have two exciting questions to wrestle with Monday evening, the Sunday question and whether they shall be a League club this year or not, although since Burley Ayres has left, it is doubtful whether the last will be brought up; and I am also told that Smith, the rash man who sprung the Sunday question of playing pool, etc., has been converted, and will not press the issue at present, while Skinkle is red hot in favor of the same, and Langworthy threatens to resign if it should go into effect. If these questions are brought up there will be fun, sure.

Garden's better half will shortly sail for Scotland for a protracted visit, and genial Bob is mournful at the thought of keeping bachelor's hall again.

Lumsden has gone into active training for the series of races with Stone, and Chicago money is waiting to see what odds St. Louis wants on the "Prof."

The Chicagos have adopted a new method of collecting back dues of delinquents, by handing accounts past due to a collection agency, and it seems to work like a charm.

The entries for the Pullman road race, May 30th, are now being received. Entries will close May 10th, handicaps will be made May 12th, and will be given out May 25th, giving each and every man five days before the race to kick about the same. It is believed there will be one hundred starters this year.

We are to be inflicted with the female cyclists this week, at Battery D. I don't know what we have done to deserve this affliction; but we are going to have it, and I suppose all we can do is to grin and bear it.

Farrant, Arthur, Barrett and Percy, four of our best local athletes, have taken to cycling and propose to enter in the Pullman road race, and try our famous sand hill for a place at the finish.

Phil. Hammel is thinking strongly of racing this year, and as a starter will enter the Pullman road race.

Wisship weighs over 150 pounds, and looks as though he could not ride a mile in four minutes. But I have not got any money that says he can't.

Spooner is thinking seriously of making application to the Chicagos, so as to ride in their racing team.

I am told the Captain of the Pastimes will shortly resign, and return to his first love, the Lincolns.

Ah, "Ariel," so you recognize your old chum? Shake, my dear fellow; but say, for Heaven's sake do not let any one bribe you to reveal the identity of the "Stroller." For the sake of old times do not, I beg of you, as I desire to linger here for some time yet, and were my identity known I fear the result.

Over 180 couples attended the Æolus Club's fifth reception. The members were very nattily dressed in their club uniform, and all present enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

Edlert will probably make a desperate effort to get the time medal in the Pullman road race this year, and also to uphold the glory of the Illinois Club, although some of the I. C. C. members say they have a youngster over there who will surprise them all when the day comes.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

The Century Wheelmen sit down on me vigorously, because my notes in the World give no account of their new house, yet I believe I sent you a full description, Mr. Editor. Is it not so? I trust you will clear my skirts, publicly. They claim that one of the largest clubs in the country, in the second greatest city, should have at least a brief notice of such an important event as the occupancy of a new club house, and I should, myself, call it more important news than some of the items which it was crowded out for. How say you? [Our fault. —Ed.]

The Centurions, with the fitting up of a spacious seventeen-roomed house on their hands, naturally have all they can do, and their committees are on the continual jump. The club has just received its charter of incorporation, and in accordance therewith have amended their constitution and by-laws. At the regular meeting on Friday evening these changes were presented to the club, and a most lively session was the result. The most radical departure is the admission of ladies to membership, and its advisablity has been strongly questioned by a number of the members. That the fair sex are a most decided acquisition, the experience of the staid old Philadelphia Bicycle Club has proved beyond a doubt, and the Pennsylvanias are taking in ladies at the last few meetings. There is no question as to the great success this has proved throughout the winter, and it is to this combination that we must look for the life of our clubs during the season when our wheels are housed. In the early days of cycling the club was a riding organization almost solely, but now the social element is being recognized as a most important adjunct, and wisely so. The most serious drawback, as far as Century is concerned, is the fact that they would have to incur a very heavy expense in making the necessary plumbing changes, and for this reason it was decided to go slow. Several ladies were proposed for membership, and it was voted to extend to them the use and courtesies of the club house, pending the temporary fitting-up of the room which is to be set apart for that purpose. The move has resulted in increased applications for membership, and ten names are already down for next meeting. This will bring the membership up to 140, and at this rate of increase the close of the year will see 200. The initiation fees will shortly be raised.

Petitions have been placed in all the club houses and cycling depots, requesting the carriage of wheels free by the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia and Reading Railroads. The Associated Cycling Clubs are engineering the movement and hope to carry it through successfully.

Philadelphia danced again on Friday evening, the occasion being the regular monthly sociable, which came off at the club house, 26th and Perot streets, with the usual large attendance. For a thoroughly enjoyable time these informal dances of the Philadelphia Bicycle Club have no equal, as all who have enjoyed their generous and unassuming hospitality can testify. The ladies of the club run the affairs, which probably accounts for their success. They are becoming so crowded for wheel space that Mr. Osborne tells me the question of an addition to the building is only a matter of time.

Dancing and feeds will close the social season this month. The third annual supper of the Century Wheelmen is down for the 20th inst., at eight o'clock, at Colonnade Hotel, while Pennsy and the South End each have a full dress reception and ball on Thursday, 25th; the first at the club house, and the other at St. George's Hall. Both of these are to be swell affairs.

Owing to the boom in their club, the Mt. Vernon Wheelmen are looking around for larger quarters. At the last meeting they received reports from their committee on several eligible houses, all near their present place. They formally adopted a new uniform, of dark blue, with grey shirt.

KANSAS CITY.

"ERRATIC QUILL."

The most interesting topic, not only to wheelmen but to the general public also, that is being discussed in the metropolis of the West at this time is the Cravens Park Bill. This bill provides for the establishment of a park district that shall contain 100 square miles, and under its workings (provided it becomes a law) Kansas City will be fringed with large parks, connected by broad, paved boulevards, encircling the city, and accessible from the business centre by still other boulevards, which will branch out like spokes from a hub.

The bill provides that the entire city shall become a huge park district; that bonds not to exceed three per cent. on the assessed valuation of the city's reality be issued, said bonds to sell at par, bear five per cent. interest, and mature in twenty years; that the last-but-one assessment be taken as the basis of values; and that a Board of Park Commissioners be created, with no salary, which shall have the power to at once convert desirable streets into boulevards, provided, however, that no street railroad is now, or at any future time, shall be located thereon.

As the aforesaid assessment (a very low one) was $35,000,000 this would make $1,050,000 at once available for the purchase and beautifying of parks, provided bonds were issued to the full extent authorized, the boulevards being paid for, as aforesaid, out of "benefit" assessments. This would, I think, be more than necessary, as the park lands can in all cases be bought at very low figures, from parties who will reap a harvest by thus immensely enhancing the value of such property as they retain. Some, in fact, will donate the land, balancing the account very much on the right side in the manner stated.

There is some opposition, of course, to the bill, as old fogies exist in all communities. "Pay as you go" is good enough as a maxim, but the next generation should in all such cases as this contribute its quota of aid. Besides, now we can obtain for a song, comparatively speaking, what in ten years will be worth many fortunes. In short, I regard the scheme as a wise one, more especially as it takes a two-thirds vote of the people before the bonds can be issued.

To thoroughly appreciate our condition, however, you must know that we have practically no muncipal debt, and that the two Kansas Cities—K. C., Mo., and K. C., Kan., only separated by an imaginary line, and having a population of over a quarter of a million—haven't an acre of park lands between them. Private parks we have in plenty, but they are owned by the various cable road companies, who build high fences around them and exclude all vehicles—even a bicycle—so as to rake in the nickels.

By the way, the grangers are waking up to road building. Four miles of the old Santa Fe trail, commencing outside of Westport (a suburban village) and running southeast, has been transformed into an elegant road, paved one foot deep with macadam and dressed on top with screenings, making it as smooth as hard-rolled gravel, and a farmer called on me the other day, to talk about paving four more miles of it. He had read a good deal in the papers, he said, about the United Wheelmen, and he thought the boys might like to chip in for a nice eight-mile road. We will probably "chip." We have a good road to Westport (three miles) and the villagers will macadamize the intervening road, thus giving us a good twelve-mile run each way.

Other schemes for roads there are, but of them anon. But, gentlemen, let us give them all what aid we can. Talk is cheap, and fifty good talkers in a community can do considerable in forming sentiments.

LOS ANGELES.

"VINDEX."

The fourth annual meet of the California Division, to be held in this city May 30, 31, July 1 and 2, will be a hummer "as is" a hummer, and wheelmen of the Pacific Coast can rest assured it will be the best ever held west of the Rockies. The programmes will be ready for mailing before May 1. The programme in condensed form is as follows: Thursday, May 30—Parade at 10 o'clock; afternoon, races at Agricultural Park; evening, grand ball at Hazard's Pavilion, to be preceded by a game of polo on Stars. Friday, May 31—A run through the famous San Gabriel Valley, starting at 9 o'clock, will be made. The route will be as follows: East Los Angeles, Arrayo Seco, Garvanza, South Pasadena, Raymond (the famous hotel), Pasadena (the Crown of the Valley), Lamanda Park, Sierra Madre Villa, through "Lucky" Baldwin's rancho ("Santa Anita"), Alhambra, Gabriel Mission, a church over a century old, and thence back into the city over a different route. In the evening the visitors will be tendered a reception at the Natatorium. Saturday, July 1—At 10 o'clock, a hill-climbing contest will take place; afternoon, a run to Cohuenga Pass, over-looking into the San Fernando Valley. In the evening a theatre party at the Grand Opera House, will be the programme. Sunday, July 1—A grand run of visiting and resident wheelmen to Santa Monico-by-the-Sea, where an opportunity will be had of taking a dip into the mighty Pacific. There could not be more rare enjoyment crowded into four days. Everything will be done to insure a glorious time to the visitor, and the wheelman who does not attend will regret it.

Our genial captain, M. A. Baker (he of the elongated legs and smoothly-shoven face) had an experience the other evening, and it is worth relating to the 14,000 readers of the World. Baker, clad in clean linen, etc., rode out to call on a lady friend, he rode up alongside a telegraph pole and leaned up against it, thus conversed with the dear creature. Along came a spring wagon, with a drunken driver. The wagon came rapidly around a corner, struck Baker's wheel, knocked it from under him, leaving him clinging to the pole. The young lady said: "Why, my dear Mr. Baker, I did not know you were such a hugger." Mention of the affair causes Baker to blush. The wheel was demoralized.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

We have had a hill-climbing contest, and the prestige of the "great and only" Teddy Allsup has subsided as suddenly and as completely as the collapse of a toy balloon. The hill has a perpendicular heighth of over 300 feet, and an average grade of 12.38 feet in 100. At the bend, however, it is much steeper. Teddy had expended so much wind in boasting that he could climb the hill four times without a dismount, and oftener if necessary, that he had only enough left to enable him to get up once, while Charles Roth, who had said nothing but had been trying the hill every morning for a month or more, astonished everyone by making the trip seven times without a dismount.

So the World is to have a lady editor! Well, some of us will have to comb the tangles out of our beards, have our hair cut, and spruce up a bit. We are glad of it for all that, for what would the world be without the ladies.

The C. B. C. received nine applications for membership at their first meeting in their new quarters.

There is to be a road race for the first Sunday in May, on the Hamilton pike. There will be a gold and silver medal for first and second men. Further particulars next week.

Those desiring to ride in the parks after May 1 will do well to secure badges at once.

Mr. Bridges, of Clermont County, who was deliberately run down by a road hog the other day, came to the city and applied for assistance to our Local Consul, M. A. High. The result was that a first-class lawyer was employed, and a suit for $3000 damages was entered against said road hog; and yet there are kickers who say that the L. A. W. is doing nothing!

The conditions of the five-mile championship medal of the Kenton Club have been changed from a track to a road race, and the present holder, Ed. Croninger, has been challenged by his brother Charles. The race will be run soon, but where has not yet been decided.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

We are pleased to announce that our cordial friend, Mr. Page, of St. Louis, has at last joined the League, and now, as a member of that organization, when he poureth out the vial of wrath we cannot make the vigorous protest we have been won't to when, as an "outsider," he let fly at the League and its methods. We welcome Mr. Page as a fellow member, and congratulate him on his right to haul the L. A. W. and its officers over the coal pile.

"Ariel," of Pennsylvania, offers to expose the real name of "Salina," of Syracuse, N. Y., and is open for bids. Well, "Ariel," my boy, you are welcome to peach if you want to, and "Salina" won't say a word. Only be sure you get one identity correct, "that's all."

Hyde—"Do you know that this rage for bicycling is going to exert a potent influence on the literature of the future?"

Jekyll—"Is that so?"

Hyde—"Yes. I was at the recent bicycle contest in New York, and I saw that every wheel resulted in making a fresh rider haggard."—St. Louis Spectator.

We are especially obliged to the St. Louis Spectator for words of commendation on our issue of the 29th ult. Do these kind words mean that the entente cordiale is now re-established between this office and the cycling scribe of the Spectator.

Our correspondent, Jim," from Omaha, Neb., writes us: "It is to be deplored that, with at least 500 wheelmen in the State, the League has only 98 members, but what can be expected with no State officials to arouse interest in the cause? Why not call a meeting of the old L. A. W. members and elect a Chief Consul and a Secretary?"

The St. Louis wheelmen extend a hearty invitation to their Chicago brethren to accept the hospitality of the aforesaid St. Louisians on the occasion of the Stone-Lumsden race, May 25. We are glad to hear it and we hope to see the rather personal rivalry between the writers of these two great Western cities become a matter of history only, and we would further wish that this history would be sunk in oblivion, and that the rivalry would take on more of the "generous" tone. The cyclists of both cities are too whole-souled and broad to indulge further in the personalities of the past.

This is the way "Jim," of Omaha, Neb., excites our envy and sets us to thinking whether we do live in a cycling paradise or not: "Speaking of glorious riding weather, come all ye wheelmen and enjoy a spin over our country roads, hard as asphaltum and smooth as a race course. We have, with very little bad weather to interfere, been riding all winter, some of the boys showing a mileage of 450 since Jan. 1, 1889. We pity our Eastern fraternity, who, we see by the papers, have not been enjoying the best of riding weather. Five members of the Ramblers Club had a run to Missouri Valley (forty-five miles) last Sunday, and reported the roads in elegant condition, and the hospitality of the Missouri Valley Wheel Club still better."

The Cyclist thus describes a new kind of wheel, which certainly is curious, even if it does not prove practical: "The hub flanges are large thin castings, nearly half the diameter of the wheel itself, but so skeletonized as to present the appearance only of an elaborate spoke arrangement. The spoke screw is perfectly tangentially. The rim is hollow and flat on the outside, in fact of ▭ section, and the tire, in place of being the usual cord of rubber, consists of a number of acorn-shaped pieces which fit into holes in the surface of the rim on the button and buttonhole principle, adopting, in fact, the principle of Singer's pedal rubbers for the tire."

With a good Boston northeaster whistling about our ears, and our ulster collar turned up, we cogitate on the following item, cut from a New Orleans paper: "While the Louisiana Bi. Club boys were weltering in the hot March sun, the New Orleans Club were quietly sitting in their cosy club house, chatting politics, cycling and society, and listening to Harry Hodgson's yarns."

It will seem very strange if the year 1889 passes without having a League meet. There does not seem that desire and push for the honor which has distinguished late years; but then, we nearly forgot to say that Chicago will "take it on" for 1890.

The Camden (N. J.) Wheelmen have moved into their new quarters. The house has three stories, and it is the intention of the club to build a wheel-house attachment.

They have a drink in Philadelphia which bears the name of "goat's milk." Verily a mild and inoffensive name, but when we learn that the South End Wheelmen use it to bribe the Sergeant-in-charge at Fort Mifflin, we suspect the innocently named drink of having something in it for which the "goat" is not responsible

No. 2028 sends us the following cutting, taken from a late issue of the World: "Hurrah for the effete East. Schwalbach of Brooklyn has a son who rides a bicycle younger than Mohrig, Jr., of San Francisco." Now comes the criticism which we hold is clever and to the point: "Is there anything hurrahable in the fact of Schwalbach, Jr., riding a 'bicycle which is younger than Mohrig, Jr., of San Francisco,' no matter how young it may be? Even if it is only an hour old, lots of people can ride bicycles which are not half as old as that. Vide, 'English as she is wrote.'"

The bottle of wine offered by the Huntington (L. I.) Bicycle Club to the first wheelman to reach their club house, from Brooklyn, in 1889, was won on Sunday last, April 7th, for the Kings County Wheelmen, by Harry R. Wicks and Chas. M. Isbill, who reached that point first in the face of a terrific gale.

From Tid Bits: "Jack wanted to convince his uncle that the bicycle was a practical and useful machine, and to that end mounted his machine and started off with a basket of eggs on his arm. Poor Jack met with a violent header, but was consoled by his uncle, who said: 'Never mind, my lad, it may not be a success for carrying eggs, but it makes an omelette first rate!'"

Buffalo talks tournament for this fall.

Captain Leach, of the Cambridgeport (Mass.) Club, has gone to New York to reside. New York's gain, Boston's loss!

Amherst wheelmen are petitioning the selectmen of that town for the privilege to use certain of the sidewalks.

T. C. Hoffman rode from Worcester, Mass., to New Britain, Ct., in seventeen hours. Is this record?

"Elm City," of New Haven, Conn., writes us as follows: "What has become of the Le Feur brothers, who started up the Amazon River. I have been awaiting news from them for some time. [Para seemed to be too attractive, and they never got further than that.—Ed.] I see some one in Meriden claims that city to be the cycling hub of the State. How about Hartford, with three wheel clubs, and ten times as many riders as Meriden, and much better roads? S. C. Sperry, for two years Secretary of the New Haven Club, resigned on account of business changes, and J. A. Dockendoff was elected in his place."

McDaniel and Elliott, of the Wilmingtons, will drive a tandem bike for road records this season.

Corey Hill is being repaired. The surface looked pretty rocky the other day when we were out there.

Mr. H. G. Priest, of Birmingham, England, sampled some of our Boston roads on foot last Sunday. The "sample" seemed to please the gentleman, and he will try them a-wheel later on.

The coming Chicago Tournament seems to be the event of the season so far.

Tom Eck and his female cyclists have been put down a date for Minneapolis early in May.

A writer to a New Haven paper, who claims it to be "of Puritan stock," imagines that the New Haven Bicycle Club is composed of bad, wicked fellows, because on Fast Day they "went a-cycling." Now we respect any good man's opinion, but we think our Puritan friend is stretching it a bit to complain because the cyclists choose to spend the day a-wheel.

The old Maine rivals, Patten and Ames, will meet again on the path on May 30, at Saco.

The Cambridge, Mass., Club held its last reception for the season last Friday. Among the distinguished guests present, were Lieut.-Gov. Brackett, Mayor Gilmore, Col. Higginson, H. D. Hyde, Chief Consul Emery, and Abbott Bassett. It was a brilliant affair.

Barman, of Brooklyn, is progressing in the arrangements for the 25 miles handicap race to take place May 30, over the Milburn Irvington course. The prizes will agregate $500 in value.

The Cyclists Union of L. I. is doing good work. It has brought about the macadamizing of Cobblestone Hill, Brooklyn.

Mr. Edwards of the South End Wheelmen of Philadelphia, has already over 1000 miles to his credit for 1889.

The Lancaster, Pa., Club will become a League Club, and this same club will hold a tournament July 4th.

F. H. Crapo, of Concord, N. H., sustained painful, though not serious, injuries lately, by being thrown from his bicycle.

The Cambridge, Mass., Club propose to repeat the success of last year in giving another minstrel show.

The Boston (Mass.) Press Bicycle Club will, next Friday, be formally organized.

Mr. C. Schwalbach of Brooklyn, N. Y., offered a diamond medal for the best local mileage record for 1889, but as certain reasonable terms did not meet with approval at the hands of proposed contestants, it is probable that the medal will be withdrawn.

EACLE ROCK HILL!

Climbed with ease on a 44 1-2 pound 50-inch Eagle Bicycle with 5 3-4 inch cranks, on Saturday, April 6th, by Wm. A. Clark of Stamford.

WHAT NEXT?

Now that the critics of the "Eagle" have had their pet theory exploded, and find that the "Bird" can climb with the rest of them, and perhaps may lead them all as its riders get more accustomed to it.

The Eagle depends on no complicated mechanism to aid it on hills, it has no chains, clutches or levers to get out of order, collect dirt, and rattle continously. It depends simply upon the weight of the rider, so placed on the driving wheel that NO POWER IS WASTED, and no unnecessary weight is placed upon the wheel which is not doing the work.

It may take a little practice to learn to handle the "Eagle," but those who have mastered it are better pleased with it, with each day's riding.

Apply for the agency for the Eagle in your town. Do not wait until it has been given to some one else.

THE Rochester, N. Y., wheelmen have officially endorsed the action of the city government in forbidding cyclists the use of sidewalks. Good for Rochester!

THE Advocate of Attleboro, Mass., does not like the idea of the wheelmen of that town enforcing the signboard law. It will be enforced, all the same.

THE "Little Wonder," otherwise W. H. Caldwell, of the Elizabeth, N. J., wheelmen, who made such an excellent showing as a racing man last season, will not race during 1889.

THE Ottawa, Canada, Bicycle Club will celebrate the Queen's birthday by holding a race meeting, to include cycle and foot races.

THE New York Bicycle Club is talking of a $10,000 improvement on their club house. When the New York's "talk" it means business.

A TEAM from the Elizabeth wheelmen and the Plainfield Bicycle Club, N. J., met in a tug-of-war last week. Plainfield pulled Elizabeth over the mark twice out of three times.

THE Albany Bicycle Club secured judgment against F. Ehrmann for $40. Ehrmann did not pay and did not show excuse wherfore. Hence Ehrmann had to cost his heels in jail for a time. Reason: Contempt of court.

AN exchange says: "Rochester, N. Y., has peremptorily prohibited bicycling on the main streets between six o'clock in the morning and nine at night, under penalty of arrest." [Nonsense! —ED.]

SELECTMEN of Peabody, Mass., have forbidden sidewalk riding, and also coasting, in the thickly settled portion of the town. Penalty, $20.

"VINDEX" tells the following story: "W. L. Van Horn, of Denver, recently elected President of the League of Western Wheelmen, is a beautiful yarner. He could give Eli Perkins or Mulhattan twenty points, and then beat him out. Your correspondent attended a League meet once, and Van was on the same train, and regaled the boys with a few choice yarns. Here is one: 'Down in Southern Colorado was a family who owned a snake, which became very much attached to the young hopefuls of the family. One day a big storm came up. Heaven's heavy artillery roared and lightning flashed, and it was a grand but dreadful sight.' The lightning became more frequent, more livid, more dangerous, and played around the house with devilish glee. The snake, realizing the dangers to both property and life, crawled up the sides of the house, and raising itself upright on the roof, defied the lightning to do its worst, and it did—the lightning struck the self-appointed lightning rod, but saved the family from a terrible death. Who says snakes haven't got a feeling of gratitude?'—but his hearers had fled into the next car, and had locked the car door."

THOSE enterprising Syracuse, N. Y., dealers in bicycles, tin ware, and in fact everything and anything from an egg-beater to a tandem safety—Reuben Wood's Sons—have offered a League pin to the member of the Syracuse Club covering the most miles this riding season. Cyclometers are in great demand, and many of our riders will gird up their loins and make a bid for that pin. The Wood boys are enterprising, and there is a rumor sneaking around Syracuse that they are about to occupy the whole Butler Block, put a livery stable in the basement, and build a summer garden a la Casino to adorn the roof.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED TO MR. WARNER.

Editor Bicycling World: I must confess myself almost a silent member in our great company, but I want to give vent to my opinion in regard to the now celebrated Warner Road Bill. It is very evident Mr. Warner is not acquainted with the pleasures of cycling. Whether his bill is the result of envy, being unable to ride, or of personal gain, being a dealer in horses and carriages, or that he owns a livery stable, I do not know. I would offer this amendment to his interesting "William:" "That when two teams meet on the road, for the more humble driver to alight and hold his horse by the head until his superior had passed."

I would also recommend said Warner to read the Declaration of Independence, especially the beginning, where it says all men are born free and equal. If any man choose to ride on the public highways of any State of this Union on any kind of vehicle, whether the motive power is furnished by a horse or the rider, please, Mr. W., keep your seat and do not say him nay, or try to make his act a misdemeanor, it's unconstitutional.

"Up and at 'em," Missouri boys. Not only load your batteries with solid shot for W., but drive them home with the force of good humor, "for an angry man availeth little."

Yours, in opposition to the said bill, No. 675.

Wyncote, March 25, 1889.

TALKS BY THE TUTOR.—NO. III.

[Dated from Los Angeles, Cal., June 14, 1890.]

I AM aware, my son, that to the young and ardent, the allurements of California, with her orange groves, charming women and soft atmosphere, are almost irresistable, but Lucullus, you must assert yourself, you must show yourself of sterner stuff, and tear yourself away. We must leave the orange and grape of California, and turn our attention once more to the beans and brown bread of New England.

But seriously my pupil, you must recollect that we cannot, or rather you cannot afford to omit one of the lectures on the subject of the Duckerian method and theories of imposing fines. Never since that rather mythical Englishman, Mr. Pickwick, struggled with his Tittlebatian theory, has such a difficult question arisen in the scientific world.

These lectures will be of more than passing interest, because of the fact that a grandson of Mr. G. L. Hillier, one of the most powerful opponents to Mr. Ducker's theory, will deliver the lecture, and could but the dead rise and protest, I am of the opinion that Mr. Hillier's ghost would show up, because in sooth, this same grandson is as warm an advocate of the ancient Duckerian theories, as his grandsire was an opponent.

Ah, me! those were merry days, even if they were before the sunrise of reason and cycling. They were great "face making" days. What ugly quirks and twists this same Hillier and an obscure scribe (who then did stand as a lay figure as Editor of the WORLD) used to make at each other. My memory slips on names of the obscure men of those days. I can remember facts, but alas, not names! It was turmoil in those days, it was snap and snarl, and one of the snappiest of all was a merry jester, who used to write pages of stuff for a St. Louis periodical. Yes, indeed, those were days of tumult and dissention. They were days of prevarication, and truth was mutilated to that extent that my eyes did weep tears of gall. The truth-defyer was everywhere; he was in the ranks of the record hunter, yea, even in the sanctum of the WORLD and other newspapers, could the prevaricators be found. Every club in those days, my dear Lucullus, had a regularly elected official, whose business it was to distort the truth. He was officially known as the Club Liar. Foorsooth, I must own up that fifty years of influence under the present Utopian system, have not entirely eradicated my love of a real good lie, boldly told.

After lunch at Omaha, and if we have time before we reach Philadelphia, I will lightly discourse on the subject of liars.

WANTS A PARADE.

Editor Bicycling World: Why not try and get up a division for wheelmen, in the parade of April 30th or May 1st, 1889? A large number of wheelmen (of New York) are willing to turn out if some one, or club, would only call them to a meeting or through the WORLD. No one could do the above better than the League. Why not try, because time is short. Respectfully,

New York, April 4, 1889. A WHEELMAN, of New York City.

BOSTON WHEELMEN IN COUNCIL.

NIGH unto 100 cyclists assembled in America Hall, Boston, last Monday, in response to a call made by Chief Consul Emery, to consider ways and means of advancing the interest of cycling and the League. Dr. Emery opened the proceedings with a very telling speech. He urged activity towards swelling the membership of the League, so that Massachusetts should take her old stand as the leading Division. He then related to his attentive hearers the good that had been done in the State by the League and its friends in influencing legislation towards securing better highways. The bill now in the hands of the Legislature will come up for consideration next Wednesday, April 17, and the Doctor urged every one of those present to use his influence towards securing favorable action.

Mr. Charles Pratt, Ex-President of the League, followed in delivering a most excellent speech, and appealing to all to put their shoulders to the wheel and heave ahead towards securing better roads. Mr. Pratt said he hoped the time would come when a rider over country roads would not be in danger of breaking his neck.

Vice Consul Robinson spoke on the proposed Commissioner of Roads Bill, and said he hoped that the farmers would fall in line and discern the great benefits that would accrue to them by the improvement of the highways.

A committee was appointed by Chief Consul Emery, consisting of Captain Benson of the Dorchester club, Captain Cubberly of the Somerville club, and Captain Robinson of the Charlestown Rovers, to inaugurate a series of monthly joint club runs, to be participated in by all clubs in the Division.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[All communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office,—Ed.]

Talking with a cycle dealer the other day, he told me that he never before appreciated the disadvantages of advantage. "Why, look at it," said he, "here is spring and good riding, when we had every reason to expect the snow and ice fortunately denied us during the winter. I am not nearly ready to supply the demand. I couldn't believe that we would have riding before May, and my machines are still in the factory." And so, you see, the warm sunshine is not always a blessing. But if the advantage is a disadvantage to the seller of wheels, it is by no means so to those of us who have been looking forward to the riding season. It has indeed been an ideal winter for those of us who are living under New England skies. I have ridden every month since the opening of the season of 1888, and I have done it with no inconvenience. That would mean little for those who live in the sunny South, but it means much up here among the granite hills.

I have been wondering why it is that Boston, universally acknowledged to be the centre around which the cycling interests of America revolve, and from which is supposed to come every new idea in cycling construction whether it be imported or of native growth, has been so lamentably slow in everything that pertains to the use of the wheel by ladies. We have lady riders in plenty, more I believe than any other cycling centre can boast, but there is something lacking, for Boston ladies follow those of Washington and New Jersey into every new field of cycling progress.

Even now we are looking askance at the bicycle, when Washington and New Jersey have tried, proved and accepted the new mount many months ago. Why, the tandem was a familiar sight on Orange roads before it was known in Boston, and the bar steerer was being ridden in New Jersey and on the asphalt roads of Washington at a time when New England women saw the ideal machine in a side-steering hundred-pound tricycle. And yet with all this enterprise, this go-aheadativeness and their ventures, I think these ladies of the southern countries must doff their plumes to Boston, for I believe we have more riders, better riders, prettier dressed riders, and more enthusiastic riders than can be found elsewhere. Witness the successful clubs we have, notably the Middlesex, the delightful meets, for instance that at Cottage City, and the successful tours, particularly the North Shore tours, and tell me if I am not right?

I am told that the Middlesex Club ladies are a unit in favor of the two-wheeler. The McArthurs will undoubtedly ride a tandem bicycle; the Hillbourns are to have a double two-wheeler, as well. The Heaths will have single wheels, and so will the Kirkwood girls. The Hopkins, of Wellington, have already mastered the bicycle; the Coreys will ride the tandem two-wheeler; and the Bassetts, of Newton, tell me they are determined to do as the rest do. I suppose the Stalls will keep to their double bicycle. They led the way for us. I hear little from Providence. The Davols have already ordered a tandem, but I do not gather what the young ladies of the club will ride. I can believe that Providence will be up with the times.

It occurs to me that we want a new word. The word "tandem" is thoroughly engrafted upon our language as the word to express a tricycle for two riders, one behind the other. "Tandem bicycle" is too long. Will not some one give us a single word for this machine so that we may economize words and time? Your Englishman is great at this shortening process, and it is to be wondered at that he has let this great double title escape him for so long a time.

One word with you, ladies. Have you renewed your membership in the League? If not, why not? The cause that the members are banded together to promote is your cause as much as it is that of the gentlemen. Good roads, guide boards, pleasant meets, and delightful tours, to say nothing of legal rights and hotel discounts should be promoted by you as much as by them. It is a worthy cause. Let not the women be slow to espouse it. Helen Grey.

A READING (PA.) ROW.

For some time there have been rumors of differences in the Reading Bicycle Club, and these culminated last week when W. I. Wilhelm was defendant in a suit for trover and conversion instituted by the club. It appears that the club had deposited the cup which was awarded to them at the Lancaster races last summer, for the team race, with a jeweller for safe keeping, but took it over to the Five-Mile House to grace the club banquet, which was given there. According to the testimony of Mr. Hoch, one of the directors, it was afterwards taken away by Mr. Wilhelm, who stated that he had made demand for the cup but never obtained it. The hearing came off April 3d before Alderman Denhard, and as Wilhelm put in no appearance the alderman gave judgment in trover and conversion for $125, in favor of the Reading Bicycle Club.

Mr. Wilhelm claims that the cup is his property, as he paid $40, the expenses of the team to Lancaster (how about the amateur standing of these parties?) and received nothing in return, and that he is therefore entitled to the cup.

Mr. Wilhelm withdrew from the Reading Bicycle Club a short time since, and he and his friends have rented quarters on Court street, and set about the formation of a new club. Ariel.

ATTENTION, NEW YORK RIDERS.

Editor Bicycling World:—Several signatures to the New York half-holiday petition, as printed in L. A. W. Bulletin of March 22 and 29, have been sent in to me, which is incorrect, as they should be placed in hands of the acting chief consul, Mr. W. S. Bull, at Buffalo. I wish you would note this conspicuously in your columns, and also call the attention of New York State members to the fact that there is such a petition, which they should sign at once, and send in to Mr. Bull, presuming, of course, that they are in favor of it. If the half holiday should be practicelly repealed, as is really proposed by the Rhodes bill, the wheelmen in not only this but adjoining states will find cause to regret when it is too late, that they have had a large share of the opportunity to indulge in their favorite sport, cut off without protest on their part.

CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

PARTICULARS AND PROGRAMME.

Numerous meetings were held in connection with the Chicago Cycling Exhibit and Tournament last week. At a meeting of the Business Committee, Messrs. J. M. Erwin, Lincoln, C. C., H. J. Gotthelf, Douglas C. C., and F. T. Harmon, Chicago, C. C., were appointed to assist Mr. Miles with the racing programme, selection of officials, etc., and a committee composed of Messrs. E. J. Roberts, T. T. Roe, Chas. Sieg, Otto Maas, Harry Angle, E. F. M'Pike, A. W. Harris, Fred Smith, T. Bray, F. M. Reynolds, H. A. Stoddard and H. J. Gotthelf was appointed to take charge of the parades.

The racing committee met on Wednesday, and produced the following list of events as the fruit of their labors:

PROGRAMME OF RACES.

1. One mile handicap. Nine prizes.
2. One mile scratch. Three prizes.
3. One mile, novices. Two prizes.
4. One mile scratch, for men who have never raced prior to this tournament. Two prizes.

The mile handicap, will, in reality, include three events in one. It will be run in this way: For example, say there are forty entries. The race will be divided into five heats, the winners of which will run in the final, the first three men taking the first series of three prizes. The thirty-five men beaten in the first round will then run again in a second race of five heats, the winners of which will run for the second series of three prizes. And so on with the thirty men beaten in the second round. Every man who fails to win one of the nine prizes will receive a silver souvenir of the event.

The one-mile flying start race will be another novelty, and has been introduced solely to test the practicability of such contests. The committee endeavored to give everyone, from the best to the poorest rider, a chance to win something.

A greatly reduced rate has been secured over all roads in the Central Traffic Association, the other organizations not having been heard from yet. Full particulars on this head will be duly announced.

Two parades will be arranged, one on the opening night, when every rider in the procession will be admitted to the building without charge, and one later in the week. Entry blanks and all other particulars are obtainable of S. A. Miles, 199 S. Clark street, Chicago.

WHAT SHALL WE RIDE?

Editor Bicycling World: I was very much amused, and somewhat astonished, at the position taken by the writer of the article, with above heading, in your last issue: That the spring fork, the annihilator of all discomfort, is a boon and a blessing to riders none can gainsay. As for speed and scorching abilities, I have had both ocular and physical demonstration that the spring fork does not impede the speed of any first-class rider, and as for comfort there is no comparison. I noticed your leading article in the issue of a few weeks ago, from Richardson, on the dangers of vibration, and I must say my experience has proven that the doctor is eminently correct. I know that there are hundreds of riders of the spring fork machines who, after trying and riding same, could not be hired to go back to either the ordinary or a stiff frame machine. All I can say is, Bless the inventors of the non-vibrating appliances. Yours,

New York City. Anti-Vibration.

[We can only echo the benediction of our correspondent and say "Bless the inventors etc." We have had two year's experience with the Victor Spring fork and we failed to find anything but excellence, speed and comfort in this machine—Ed.]

About fifty members of the Wilmington (Del.) Wheel Club have engaged Pullman coaches for a trip to Washington, D. C., for a three days' outing. They expect to leave Saturday of this week, sleep in the coaches, and return in time for office Tuesday. They selected Washington as their object point, on account of its many attractions and general beauty in the spring. They are to be the guests of the Capital Bicycle Club, and runs to Arlington, Soldiers' Home, Mt. Vernon, Cabin John's Bridge and Great Falls will be indulged in, and incidentally an inspection of the town; comparing the wide concrete avenues of the National Capital with the narrow and heated cobblestone streets of their native city. We predict a large time in the wheel feast before them, as guests of the Capital Bi. Club.

HARVARD vs. "TECH."

The date of the Harvard-Tech 15-mile road race has been changed from the 13th of April to the 20th of April.

Harvard's team will be R. H. Davis, W. B. Greanleaf, E. A. Bailey, S. M. Wirth, — Rogers, — Cromwell, T. Barrows and Kenneth Brown. The Techs will probably have 9 men in, and the race will be decided on points. The first five only to count.

THE VICTOR SPRING FORK IN ENGLAND.

The suggestion made by the C. T. C. Gazette, that some enterprising Englishman would be doing the riders of Europe a favor by manufacturing and putting on the market the spring fork used on the Overman Victor safety, has been grasped by Mr. Bown, who has secured the patents for England and the Continent, and is already filling large orders for machines fitted with this splendid patent of the Overman Wheel Co.

"The proof of the pudding," etc., is well illustaated in the fact that the Victor spring fork is meeting with such generous public recognition on both sides of the herring pond. We congratulate the Overman Co., Mr. Bown, and, last though not least, the English and Continental riding public.

THE "EAGLE" CONQUERS EAGLE ROCK.

On Saturday last, about 3 P. M., a score or more wheelmen from Orange, Newark and Elizabeth, gathered at Eagle Rock Hill to witness a trial of the hill-climbing qualities of the new "Eagle" bicycle. The climbing was done by Wm. A. Clark of Stamford, Conn., and the wheel used was a regular 50-inch "Eagle," weight 44 1-2 lbs., cranks 5 3-4 inches throw. As Mr. Clark had never seen the hill before he made two preliminary trials, and then coasting at a terrific pace from the top to the extreme bottom, he turned and rode straight to the summit again without a waiver or hardly slacking his pace. No time was taken, as the object of the trial was to test the climbing qualities of the machine and not the endurance or speed of the rider. Among those present were E. S. Walsh, L. B. Gaylor, I. F. Wardwell, C. S. Wardwell and C. E. Gaylor from Stamford. A. P. Folk of Brooklyn, Mr. Pierson, from Howard A. Smith of Newark, and several other representatives of the neighboring dealers.

A. H. Perrigo, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, has opened out in Omaha, Neb., with a full line of Coventry and New Rapid machines, and judging from the way he finds a market for his wheels, has struck a bonanza.

Mr. C. C. Candy, of the Overman Wheel Co., was in Omaha, Neb., a week ago, and placed the Victor agency with J. J. Hardin, who will undoubtedly find a ready sale for this most excellent wheel.

It will pay you to peruse the pages No. 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, and 503, occupied by the Coventry Machinists' Co.

The Capital Cycle Co., of Washington, D. C., are sole agents for and the first to introduce the famous Bell Rock Safety Lamp, made by H. Miller & Co., Birmingham, Eng. The Capital Cycle Co. claim that this is the first of the rubber cushioned hinged-back non-go-outable cycle lamps. This lamp is guaranteed not only to keep alight on any machine on any road, but to give satisfaction in every way, or they tell us the money will be refunded. The Capital Cycle Co. are evidently working in the interests of wheelmen as well as wheel women.

Mrs. J. T. Morehouse, who in company with Miss Mulford, coasted without brake the shute of the Essex Toboggan slide, says of the Special Premier Safety: "I am very much pleased with the machine. It is easy-running and steady, and is lighter than any other Ladies' Bicycle I have ridden. Two important features in a lady's machine that are generally overlooked by makers (I suppose because they do not wear dresses) are just right in the Premier. The chain is enclosed with a laced leather guard and the driving gear is placed below the frame. The success of the Premier cannot fail to be assured as ladies become more familiar with the delights of bicycle riding."

Some fine exhibitions of riding "hands off" have been made on the New Mail Safety lately at the meetings of wheelmen at the Boston Reservoir, and the claims of the makers of this wheel have been verified on this point by many. It is an extremely steady steering machine, and, as is well known, this feature is the one long aimed at in the Rover type. The Safety is having an enormous demand.

A great many New Mail Safeties are being bought in Philadelphia of the agents, E. K. Tryon, Jr., & Co.

Schoveling, Daly & Gales, for their first season, are waking New York up with the New Mails.

TANDEMING.

(Suggested by the Supplement of March 8th.)

The moonlight gleamed within her hair,
The fire flies diamondized the air
The night wind sang without a care
And yet, I d——d 'em.

The moonlight looked into her eyes,
She thought, how sweet the fire flies;
The car lists to the night wind sighs,
We rode a tandem.

I longed to take the moonlight's place,
From her, thoughts of fire flies chase,
My sighs, the night winds to displace,
We rode a tandem.

Therefore, perforce, I rode behind
And sullenly the pedals grind
And look and fume, and in my mind,
I d——d 'em.

HOW TO OIL A CHAIN.

HERE is a wrinkle worth having: Procure two gallipots; into one of them put half a pint of turpentine, and into the other about half a pint of oil. Undo the screw you will find in one of the links, take off the chain and drop it into the pot of turpentine. This is to clean it, and turpentine is better than paraffin for this purpose. Stir the chain about, take it out, wipe it, and then drop it into the pot of oil. You may let it simmer over a slow fire to make a thorough job of it. Now take it out, wipe it again, and, if you like, dust a little black lead over it, although there is really very little use in this latter operation. The chain may now be replaced. It has been oiled effectively. The old style of daubing the chain with vaseline is a mistake. It is the joints of a chain which require oiling. Vaseline prevents any oil which may be applied from getting to the pins, and it has a remarkable affinity for dust. If a chain is periodically oiled in the manner described it will last much longer. "Stretching," the bugbear of chain-driven machines, is simply wear between the pins and links, and lubrication is the only antidote for this complaint.

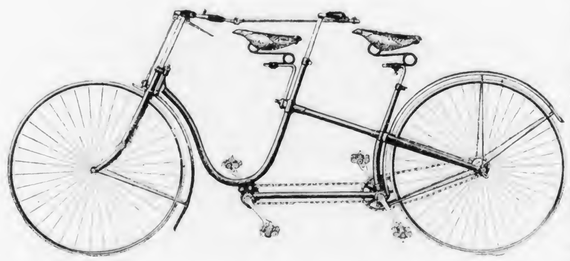
PSYCHO WHEELS FOR 1889.

IMPORTERS: CAPITAL CYCLE CO., Washington, D. C.



The Psycho cycles are imported by the Capital Cycle Company, of Washington, D. C. This firm were the first to recognize the merits of all forms of rear-driving safeties, and in 1885 imported the first one ever brought into this country. They also designed and introduced the first tandem safety in 1888. They designed and manufactured in 1887 the first rear-driving ladies' safety bicycle, and credit should be given them for their efforts in this direction. They have accomplished as much for the weaker sex by reducing friction, weight, and by giving increased pleasure, as did the inventor of the spider wheel for the stronger sex by improving the bone-shaker.

PSYCHO LIGHT ROADSTER, WEIGHT, 38 POUNDS.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S PSYCHO.
Three Weights, 39 lbs., 44 lbs., and 50 lbs.

PSYCHO TANDEM SAFETY, WEIGHT, 74 POUNDS.

They handle only one form of three-wheeled machines, and that a hand lever tricycle for cripples, which is remarkably light and can be steered and driven by the hands. The Psycho cycles imported by this firm are made from designs by Mr. H. S. Owen. The wheels are remarkable for their lightness, strength, harmonious and uniform construction, simplicity, fewness of parts and general gracefulness of design. They are made of weldless steel tubing throughout, including frame, rear forks, saddle post, handle-bar and upright. They have ball bearings to all parts except head, butt-ended direct spokes, more to rear wheel than front, done to proportion the machines for strains.

Psycho cycles do not have hollow rims, tangent spokes, ball head or spring forks. No change will be made in Psychos over the 1888 pattern. The Fish hammock saddle will be used. The plunger brake will be used, as it is the simplest and very powerful. This firm have hoped for years past, and now claim, that the wheel of the future will be a rear-driving safety with dropped frame, suitable for both sexes. They anticipate some prejudice at first, but show their faith in their belief by introducing four styles of dropped-frame safeties, suitable for either lady or gentleman, having detachable brace rods; and although they import two forms of straight-frame safeties, suitable only for men, they advise intending purchasers to give the preference to the dropped-frame, not only on account of its adaptability to use by all members of the family, but also for its grace and strength. The Capital Cycle Company claim to give the best guarantee in the trade, as they guarantee not only against defects in workmanship and material, as do other firms, but also against construction, which is more important. A machine may break not only on account of a flaw, but from bad proportioning. The Capital Cycle Company introduce seven forms of safety or rear-driving bicycles for both sexes for this season, varying in weight and construction. They are as follows:

1. "Men's Straight Frame Psycho Safety," 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, geared to 57 inches, weight 47 lbs. Price, $140.

2. "Men's Light Roadster Psycho Safety," (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 3-4 inch tires, made for gentleman riders and scorchers on good roads, geared to 60 inches, weight 38 lbs. Price, $140.

3. "Men's Dropped Frame Psycho Safety" is designed like ladies' safety (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, weight 50 lbs. Will carry any weight on any road. Detachable brace rod makes it suitable for ladies and a general family machine. Price, $140. Geared to 57 inches.

4. "Ladies' Roadster PsychoSafety," 3-4 inch tires, 29-inch wheels. Detachable brace rod, suitable for short or medium height gentlemen. Will stand any weight. Weight 44 lbs. (See Cut.) Geared to 50 inches.

5. "Ladies' Light Roadster Psycho Safety," 29-inch wheels, 3-4 and 5-8 inch tires, weight 38 lbs. Superb finish, very light and easy running, intended for light weight ladies, but will carry 175 lbs. Geared to 50 inches.

6. "Ladies' Extra Light Psycho," 28-inch wheels, made for short, light ladies, weight 34 lbs., gear 48 inches. Price $140.

7. "Psycho Tandem Safety," intended for lady and gentleman or two gentlemen, 7-8 inch tires to both wheels, very strong, light and simple. Will carry any weight. Price, with two separate brakes, $200. Geared to 57 inches.

The Capital Cycle Company have prepared for their share of the trade this year, relying upon the merits of their wheels. They only handle two-wheeled safeties: no ordinaries or tricycles.

ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

Mo. Division Touring Board.

The attention of the members of this Division is called to the fact that in spite of arduous labor the following counties in the state remain entirely unreported to date, viz., Atchison, Barry, Butler, Caldwell, Carter, Cass, Christian, Dallas, Daviess, Douglass, Dunklin, Grundy, Harrison, McDonald, Mercer, Miller, Pemiscat, Perry, Stone, Sullivan, Taney, total, 21 out of 113 counties. Wheelmen who live in and near unreported counties or have ridden through them are asked to send reports to the Chairman at once. The Touring Committee this year consists of seven members but with the honorable exception of Mr. Nelson C. Haynes, not a single report has been made to date. This is to be regretted and if the forthcoming road book is not up to expectations, members are asked to put the blame where it belongs.

Warren, April 5, 1889.

Attention, Members of the Missouri Division!!

The mere announcement that the time for renewing your League membership has arrived, should be sufficient reason for each one of you to send on your dollar without a moment's delay. The recent successful fight made in this State against obnoxious and hurtful legislation, is, in itself, a complete and conclusive answer to the oft repeated question, "What use is it to belong to the League."

Without denying to any the credit that may be due them, the fact remains and cannot be successfully contradicted, that the defeat of the "Warner Bill" was accomplished by the efforts, and through the influence, of the League members throughout the State, backed by the moral influence of the National organization. If the organization never accomplishes another thing for the protection and benefit of cycling, there is not a rider in the State but what owes it his allegiance for the good it has already accomplished. We propose, however, if given sufficient encouragement by a large and increased membership, to undertake this year the accomplishment of greater work in the direction of better roads, and to this end the aid of all riders is earnestly invoked. Local Consuls are urged to see that all the members in their respective districts renew promptly and that as many new members as possible be enrolled.

Blanks can be cut out of the Bulletins or they can be had in any desired quantity by applying to J. A. Lewis, Secretary Treasurer, care, Continental Bank, St. Louis.

Fraternally, W. M. BREWSTER, C. C.

New Hampshire.

Mr. Editor: What is the matter with New Hampshire? In the old days she used to be a leader in League affairs. Now we hear nothing from her. She gave us Gilman and Hazlett and Philbrick. Has she not a successor to these men? A former resident of the Granite State I am proud of the record and I want to see her in her old place. I have heard nothing from her this year though I have looked for something. With men enough to allow for a Vice Consul, she has elected none; with the right kind of fellows to make a meet interesting, she has had none. Innocuous desuetude is her state and condition. Men of New Hampshire assert yourselves! Choose a good Chief Consul and win back the place you have lost.

WANDERER.

Chicago Hotel.

Dear Sir—The "Commercial" is appointed the League Hotel for Chicago, rates $1.50 per day. Regular rates, $2.00 and $2.50. To secure this rate League members will be required to present their L. A. W. ticket.

Louie W. Hess of Ottawa is appointed Local Consul.

Yours, etc., W. A. DAVIS.

To the Cycling Trade.

Gentlemen: Will you furnish me with a list of your agents in New York State?

This is desired that I may obtain from the agents, lists of all wheelmen in their localities, these lists to be used in an endeavor to add to our membership.

I would suggest the advisability of your impressing on your agents the desirability of membership in the League of American Wheelmen and of their using their influence to retain and make new members for the organization.

The direct contact between dealer and wheelmen places the former in a position to largely aid in increasing the membership.

Every effort to influence legislation favorable to improvement of the highways is being made and the moral influence of a largely increased membership will aid us greatly in this work.

The legislative action secured by the New York State Division which opened to wheelmen the Parks of New York City and Brooklyn resulted largely to the benefit of the Cycling Trade.

Trusting that the above meets with your approval an early reply is requested. Yours very respectfully,

W. S. BULL,
Chief Consul New York State Division.

To Consuls, N. Y. State Division.

As it is important that there should be a League hotel in every city and town, I enclose a blank application, which has been prepared with the view of protecting both hotels and the League of American Wheelmen from imposition by wheelmen who do not join our organization. Please have the proprietor of the hotel you select, sign and return to me as soon as possible. On its receipt I will send the official certificate, which kindly deliver and ask that it be hung in a conspicuous place.

In a hotel it is desirable that it be the best and most convenient. If the proprietor will make a reduction from regular rates—Commercial Travelers' rate generally being granted—it will be appreciated, but what is most desired is attention and the best the house affords, we do not want a reduction at the sacrifice of these important items.

In making arrangements you will impress upon the proprietor that League accomodations or rates are to be granted wheelmen only on presentation of a membership ticket for the current year.

Immediate attention is asked that the hotel and its rates may be inserted in a "Hand Book of the New York State Division" which is almost ready for the printer.

If you have not forwarded the Consul's Application sent you last month please do so at once in order that the list of Consuls in the "Hand Book" may be complete and correct. Yours fraternally,

W. S. BULL, Chief Consul.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued seventeen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list to the following week.

LLEWELLYN H. JOHNSON, Orange, N. J.

Quincy, Ill., March 23d, '89.

Cormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co.,

Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen--I am more than pleased with my '89 Rambler, and after an experience of six years, during which time I have ridden several different makes of high grade wheels, both of the safety and ordinary pattern, I am safe in saying that the Rambler is the easiest running wheel I ever rode.

The new spring, which, with the aid of the broken joint, allows the pedals and saddle to move together, is a big improvement, and in rough road riding it does not have a tendency to throw the power off the pedals, as in the case of the springs in other safeties.

Yours truly,

HAL S. OSBORN,
Capt. Rambler Cycle Club.

WE DO NOT guarantee the safe delivery of goods.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY ceases when goods are delivered at Post-Office, Express Offices, or Freight Depots.

WE DO NOT TAKE second-hand machines in exchange, neither do we sell on the installment plan. Occasionally, we have a few shop-worn or second-hand machines, for which we would be always glad to quote prices if desired.

WE WARRANT all of our Bicycles and Tricycles to be free from imperfections in material or manufacture, and agree to make good, at any time within a year, any defects in them not caused by use, misuse or neglect. INTRODUCTION.

The Coventry Machinists' Co., Limited, in presenting their catalogue for 1889, embrace the opportunity of returning their sincere thanks for the continued and constantly increasing patronage bestowed on them by the cycling public. This increased patronage has necessitated a further very large at Cheylesmore. The new premises were opened by the Directors in November last, when 600 of the employees of the Company sat down to supper in one of the new large rooms.

The factory now provides room for ONE THOUSAND workmen, so that prompt deliveries during 1889 may be relied on.

Nothing is more irritating to a purchaser than to be unable to obtain that for which he is prepared to pay. And here it may be well to suggest that, to ensure prompt delivery, it is advisable to order as even a trifling deviation often causes delay.

Standard Pattern Machines,

What are the New Patterns for the year? is the first question a cyclist asks a manufacturer. During the winter, we have been busy in devising new patterns, and making what we consider to be real improvements in existing designs, although in some cases they may appear, at first sight, to be minor details.

The No. 1 "Swift" still retains its position as the finest safety in the market for all kinds of road work; and, specially for the fine roads there is the "Swift" Safety Light Roadster, a machine combining, as it does, all the strong points of the well-known "Swift," and scaling but 40 lbs.

The Lady's Safety is a light machine, of elegant, graceful outline, specially designed for a lady's use.

The Lady's "Marlboro'" is not merely a light roadster which may or may not be used by a lady, but a tricycle specially thought out on every point to suit those ladies who like to ride their own machines rather than occupy the front seat of a tandem.

We venture to hope that before purchasing this season all cyclists will favor us by examining our 1889 cycles, before deciding on the machines they will buy.

We also submit

A Tandem Safety

Bicycle, which can be ridden by a lady and gentleman. A tandem safety goes easily in any door, and having but one track, it can be ridden with comfort on the worst roads.

The "Club" Patent Hollow Felloe,

as used in the construction of the "King of Clubs" Bicycle, the Marlboro' Light Roadster, and all our racing machines, is made by rolling seamless steel tubing into a crescent form, thus avoiding the inherent weakness of other forms of hollow felloe made in two parts, or folded over. We have used this felloe now for eight years with perfectly satisfactory results.

Our New Direct Tangent Spokes, used in the "King of Clubs" Bicycle, are headed in the rim and screwed at a true tangent into the hub, without bend or twist of any kind, doing away with the liability to break, which is a great fault with tangent spokes laced through, or simply headed in the hub and screwed in the rim. Competent judges who saw the few samples we had last year, pronounced it the finest tangent wheel made.

The Patent Adjustable "Club" Ball Bearings, used in all our machines, are made entirely by us, with new and improved machinery constructed for the purpose. Five years ago we laid down an extensive plant for the sole purpose of making the balls for these bearings. They are made from the finest quality of steel, and will run for years without an appreciable amount of wear, unlike the cheap rolled balls in common use.

The Finest Cold Drawn Steel Tubing is used in all our machines, and we guarantee every part to be constructed of the very best material procurable. The nickel plating and enamelling is done by specially designed and improved processes, and the care and skill bestowed upon our machines has reaped its reward in making the workmanship and finish of the "Club" Cycles synonymous with the highest excellence attainable.

The above are a few of the points embodied in the machines described in the following pages. We have purposely refrained from filling the specifications of the machines with unnecessary details, but should our friends desire information on any point not sufficiently explicit, the same shall be cheerfully given them.

BOSTON, MASS., March 1, 1889.

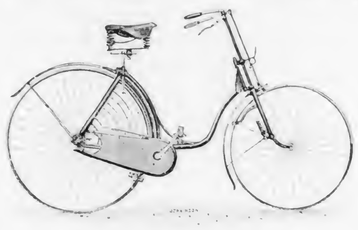
The anticipations expressed at the beginning of last season that the rear-driving safety had come to stay were verified by the remarkable demand for this type of machine, a demand which had its justification in the many advantages it possessed over the "ordinary" bicycle. These advantages may be briefly summarized. It is the only form of bicycle which is perfectly safe, and from which it is impossible to take a header; it has very great brake power, which may be used with thorough safety; it is easily mounted and dismounted; has great hill-climbing qualities; can be ridden where an ordinary or tricycle cannot; and lastly, is adjustable to riders of varying height.



Among all the various makes of rear-driving safeties we think that we may justly claim that the "Swift" is far and away at the head of all competitors. Embodying as it does the diamond shape frame, which puts the greatest strength just where it is required, with the very best materials that it is possible to procure, and the skill and experience gained during twenty-one years of successful bicycle manufacturing, we had every expectation of the "Swift" proving a success, and the result of last season's experience with it has not only realized those expectations, but greatly exceeded them. The remarkable successes achieved by the "Swift," both on the road and path, by amateurs and professionals, are a standing testimony to the excellence of the general design and workmanship. The testimonials to be found on other pages are only a few of the many unsolicited ones we have received.

The "Swift" for 1889 will be on the same lines as the successful machine of last year, the only changes being in minor details. Among the many points of this machine we would particularly draw attention to the improved method of attaching the mud-guard and chain protector, by means of which a perfect adjustment is provided, doing away with the rattle which characterizes machines in which the guards are attached in the usual way. Another great point is the simplicity and ease with which the chain can be adjusted. The adjustment is true, and, with proper use, cannot get out of order. The whole of the frame-work, including the steering fork, is of seamless steel tubing of the best quality, the spokes are of the well-known Club pattern, the bearings are all adjustable, and we confidently present the "Swift" for 1889 as the finest safety ever offered to the cycling public.

We make the "Swift" in two styles, one the full roadster weighing 48 lbs.; the other, the light roadster, weighing 40 lbs., the weight being the only difference between them. It was on a machine of the latter class that Mr. R. H. Davis of Harvard University achieved his many successes, including the amateur record for one mile in America. The same style of machine was also ridden by Mr. Benson in the 25-mile championship race of the Eastern Road Club, when he established a 25-mile road record for this class of machine.

A Light Roadster "Swift," weighing, all on, 39 lbs., has been ridden for six months constantly over all sorts of roads without so much as a broken spoke.

The Lady's "Swift" Safety.

SPECIFICATION.—24-in. and 28-in. wheels, geared to 53-in.; ball bearings to both wheels and cranks; ¾-in. rubber tires; adjustable seat and handles; patent method of adjusting the chain; spokes enamelled and bright parts plated, remainder enamelled plain black; rubber ball pedals; plated spanner and oil-can. Dress-guards completely cover the chain and chain wheels, effectually preventing the dress coming into contact with either, and the mud-guards are fitted by an improved method.

PRICE - - - - - - - - $135

Including ball pedals.

This is a novelty this season which we introduce to supply the demand for a lady's bicycle. It is built on the same general and tried principles as the Swift, and is finished in the highest style. We draw attention to the thorough manner in which the wheel and chain is protected, making it an impossibility for the dress to be caught. Another feature in this machine is the distance allowed between the two wheels, greatly adding to the ease of mounting and dismounting.

The "Swift" Safety Tandem.

FOR EITHER LADY AND GENTLEMAN OR TWO GENTLEMEN.

SPECIFICATION.—30-in. driving and 26-in. steering wheels, geared to 57-in.; ball bearings to both wheels and cranks; ¾-in. and ⅝-in. tires; adjustable seats and handles; double steering; two brakes; patent method of adjusting the chain; spokes enamelled and bright parts plated; remainder enamelled plain black; rubber or rat-trap ball pedals; plated spanner and oil-can, and club valise.

This is another novelty. The Bicycling News says of it in the report of the Stanley Show:—

"The machine altogether is built on very graceful lines, one tube running from the back-handle bar to the front head. The linking of the handle-bar is very nicely arranged, the handles themselves being far from the rod, and so placed that no pinching of the rider's fingers can occur. The small wheel, we may mention, reduces the length of the machine considerably, which, of course, is a great advantage. Two brakes are fitted to this machine."

PRICE, 50 inches - - - - - $130

Ball Pedals Included.

With or without Ball Head.

The "King of Clubs" represents the embodiment of much anxious care and thought, and we confidently place it before our customers as the greatest improvement on the ordinary which has been made for some years.

The front wheel has our patent seamless hollow felloe, into which the spokes are headed, then screwed directly (without bend or twist of any kind), at a true tangent, into a light, strong, and particularly neat hub.

The forks, backbone, and handle-bars are all of the finest steel tubing, and both front and rear wheel bearings are our own patent adjustable ones. The cranks and handle-bar are easily detachable by means of our own patented devices, the simplest yet invented, and can be used on no other wheel.

The rear fork is of the semi-tubular type, gracefully curved to admit the large rear wheel, and retain at the same time the close-built lines of the older type.

The head is made either of the ordinary Stanley type, or with a ball bearing head, at option of purchaser.

The handle-bar is made in two sections of hollow tubing, each part being easily detached, and is fitted with neat T-handles.

The step is detachable and adjustable, and can be fixed at any angle.

"The Coventry Machinists' Company's 'King of Clubs' bicycle has been, by but a very slight alteration, made into a rational type; the machine has a curved hind fork and plenty of clearance, all the excellent qualities of the original machine being, of course, retained in combination with the new lines of construction. This does away altogether with the general drawback attending novelties; viz., that they are untried; and the rational 'King of Clubs' is simply an old and tried friend in a new dress, and, needless to say, it is turned out with the usual C. M. Co.'s finish and completeness."—Bicycling News, Feb. 2, 1889.

"Last week you asked the opinions of some cyclists who had tried the rational ordinary. As I am, so far as I know, the only rational rider in Scotland, my experience of the new type may not be out of place.

"In the beginning of the season I saw that to keep up with the times I must change my mount, and being loth to descend to the undignified safety, I resolved to give the rational ordinary, built by the Coventry Machinists' Co., a fair trial. In due course the machine arrived. My expectations were fully realized—I was in possession of the fastest road mount in Scotland.

"Among some of the advantages I found the rational to have over the old type were the following:—(1.) Absolute freedom from vibration. (2.) Increased speed. (3.) The perfection of comfort.

"(1.) Freedom from Vibration.—This being the principal defect to overcome, I tried it first. There is absolutely no vibration in the rational type, which I proved by fixing a glass of water between the handle-bars and the brake handle, and riding the machine over a rough road; no water was spilled, and the vibration was scarcely perceptible.

"(2.) Increased Speed.—My 'King of Clubs' finished first in the great Scotch road race, the Pearce cup competition, beating all safeties by 300 yards, and all makes of ordinaries by over a mile, the distance being 25 miles over a rough road. My 100 miles road time is almost an hour better on this than on my old ordinary, and I can, on tour, do 15 miles more per diem than on any other mount with the same exertion.

"(3.) Comfort.—I can only say that in the saddle of my 'King of Clubs' I am as comfortable as if I were sitting in my easiest study chair. Riders of the old machine who have tried my mount are unanimous in their praises, and already six who have tried it contemplate mounting 'King of Clubs' next season. I myself will never ride another roadster, and that, I am sure, will be the opinion of all who try the 'King of Clubs' with its 24-in. back wheel.—R. VICTOR BEVERIDGE, Ayr B. C."—The Cyclist, Oct. 10, 1888.

The "Marlboro' Club."

SPECIFICATION.—A central-geared front-steerer; the steering rod is adjustable and carried direct to the front wheel; hand brake; fitted with our patent adjustable ball bearings to all parts; nickel-plated bright parts; enamelled plain black; ¾-in rubbers. Made with two extended bearings, or four, at option of purchaser.

STANDARD SIZE.—36-in. driving-wheels; 28-in. front wheel; gearing, 50 to 52 inches.

PRICE - - - - - - - $180

Upon its introduction in 1885, the Marlboro' Club Tricycle came at once to the front, and other manufacturers tacitly admitted its superiority by adopting it as their model. We have spared no effort to improve upon the details of this machine, and to-day it stands without a rival.

New and improved shaped handle-bars and a neat chain guard, render this the ladies' tricycle, par excellence. The introduction of the large steering-wheel reduces vibration to a minimum, and makes the machine light, fast, and a splendid hill climber. The Marlboro' Club is finished in the best style, has cradle spring and new pattern adjustable saddle, new patent spring lamp bracket, and weighs, all on, 70 lbs.

(LIGHT ROADSTER.)

34-in. driving wheels; 28-in. front wheel; geared to 54-in.

Weight, 55 lbs.

PRICE - - - - - - - - $180

This Tricycle has been constructed to meet the requirements of a numerous and increasing class of riders who want a light, fast and strong machine, combining the speed of the bicycle with the safety of the tricycle. For good riders, on ordinary roads, this machine is unapproachable, and has proved a distinct and unqualified success since its introduction last season.

The following extract from The Cyclist, gives the opinion of a practical rider, after a careful trial of the machine: —

"By the constant use for the past two months of a light 'Marlboro' Club' tricycle, we have become converted to single tricycle riding — a mode of locomotion for which we felt a certain contempt during a long period. When mounted upon this beautifully-finished little three-wheeler, we have found no difficulty in keeping pace with the average safety rider, and even occasionally sprinting him. For night-riding we prefer it to a one-track machine, and its hill-climbing capabilities are undeniable. Riders about to furnish themselves with a three-wheeler, should not fail to drop into the Coventry Machinists' depot, when going the rounds, before finally selecting."

The editor of The Bicycling World says: "We can say, without reservation, we found it the easiest-running tricycle we ever rode."

The "Marlboro' Club," No. 2.

SPECIFICATION. — 36-in. driving-wheels; 28-in. front wheel; ball bearings to driving-wheels and crank axle; patent double driving gear; crescent steel felloes; direct spokes; ¾-in. red rubber tires; adjustable handle; hand brake; automatic steering; handles and hubs nickel-plated; spokes and remainder enamelled black; rat-trap or rubber pedals; spanners and oil-can.

PRICE - - - - - - - - $100

A strong, reliable machine on the lines of the No. 1, fitted with chain guard, cradle spring, and all latest improvements. Admirably fitted for heavy weights.

This is the strongest and most soundly built boy's wheel on the market, and taking into account the ball bearings and general finish, is really lower in price than any of the so-called cheap wheels.

Patent Spring Fork.

It was with every confidence that we introduced our Patent Spring Fork to our friends last season, and it has more than realized our anticipations. A glance at the construction of the spring, as shown in the accompanying drawing, will show that the side play of the wheel, hitherto such an inseparable objection to spring forks of any kind, is here entirely prevented. It thoroughly absorbs the vibration of the wheel, and at the same time fully preserves the rigidity of the machine.

This Spring Fork can be fitted on the "Marlboro'" and "Swift" Machines at an extra cost of $5.00.

PRESS OPINIONS AND TESTIMONIALS.

Last week, by the kindness of Mr. W. Grinyer, the business manager of the Coventry Machinists' Co., Ltd., we were afforded an opportunity of inspecting the large and well-appointed works of the above old-established firm. To the many thousands of riders of the Coventry Machinists' Co.'s machines, the manufacture of their steel steeds, if witnessed from the first process of tube-drawing to the last of packing the completed machines in crates for despatch to the nethermost corners of the earth, would come as a surprise, and we may say a pleasure, as indeed it was to us, whose delight is in things mechanical. It is hardly possible for the unmechanical mind to realize the numerous careful, delicate, and anxious operations to which the raw material is in sequence subjected ere it proudly emerges the perfect cycle of the period, resplendent in nickel and enamel, gold lining, and varnish.

When, as is the case with the C. M. Co., Ltd., every part of the machine, be it bicycle or tricycle, tandem or carrier, is manufactured upon the premises, a tour of inspection under such able guidance as that we enjoyed becomes doubly interesting. It would be out of place in "Notes of the Week," to attempt a description of the huge shops in which lathes and planing machines, milling and drilling machines, stand so thickly that one wonders how the work-people, having once got among them, ever emerge in any other form than mince-meat; but there are one or two processes which struck us as being particularly remarkable among so much that was interesting.

Some time since the company found difficulty in obtaining an adequate and satisfactory supply of balls for the bearings of cycles and pedals, and on the principle that he is "helped who helps himself," they at once proceeded to lay down a plant for the manufacture of these very necessary little articles. Now, every ball running in a Coventry Machinists' Co.'s bearing is made (curious to say, by girls, from the solid steel rod. The whole process is mechanical and absolutely correct, so that no skill, save a little deftness, is required of the girls thus employed. The balls are closely scrutinized for flaws, and tested by gauges for size to a thousandth of an inch. Since the company have manufactured their own balls they have had no complaint as to failure of their bearings.

A machine which particularly invited our attention was one used by the wheelmakers, and by which spokes are headed as fast as the operator can feed them into the machine. Another proof of the care exercised by the management in matters of detail, was the existence of a special machine for the production of the cones with milled flanges, used in the adjustment of ball bearings, from the solid steel rod. These cones are bored, turned, milled, etc., at one operation, and are found infinitely superior to stampings, which cannot always be relied upon.

Our chief intent in this, our first visit to the Cheylesmore Works, was to take a look at the latest addition to the factory, which consists of two floors, two hundred feet long by thirty-five feet in depth. This addition was found absolutely necessary to cope with the ever-increasing demand for the company's manufactures, with which last year they were unable to keep pace owing to want of space, and notwithstanding that the factory and tools of the Caroche Company were hired for four months of the business part of the year. The old factory accommodated seven hundred men, but the two new floors will provide space for another three hundred, so that, with the employment of a thousand hands, the management hope to satisfy all demands in the coming season.

A word or two upon the origin of this famous company may not be without interest to our readers. The concern was floated in 1863, for the benevolent purpose of providing employment for the operatives of Coventry, thrown out of work by the failure of the ribbon trade, once the city's boast. In the first instance, sewing machines were the staple product, but the company being the first to build bicycles in England, and having the foresight to see the probable growth of the trade, the manufacture of cycles was taken up in earnest, that of sewing machines being gradually abandoned. At the date above mentioned, the capital of the company was £5,000; now it stands at the respectable figure of £100,000. —The Cyclist, Nov. 14, 1888.

There is no doubt that the Coventry Machinists' Co.'s manufactures enjoy a grand and well-deserved reputation throughout the world, the excellence of their construction and finish even bearing good fruit in a semi-civilized State like the Empire of Morocco. We understand that his Imperial Highness of that country is so delighted with the hansom-cab coolie-driven multi cycle made for him last year by the company, and which every visitor to the Stanley Show must remember, that he has ordered another, and that several other African potentates and highnesses, jealous of the latest acquisition of their imperial brother at Tangier, are about placing orders for similar vehicles. We believe the Sultan of Turkey himself contemplates giving the dolce far niente of cycling a trial. —The Cyclist, Jan. 2, 1889.

A LADY TRICYCLIST.—Mrs. Harold Emmons comes from San Francisco in six hours.—The first lady to make the fifty-mile trip from San Francisco to this city on a tricycle, arrived last evening in company with her husband, who rode a bicycle. It was Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emmons, the former a San Francisco attorney. Leaving the metropolis at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, they came by the eastern side of the bay, stopping at Centreville for a rest and at Milpitas for supper. Altogether the stops aggregated six hours, and, as they arrived in San Jose about 8 o'clock, they were travelling six hours. Mrs. Emmons is a member of the American Wheelmen, and had done considerable tricycle riding along the coast. The trip was made to demonstrate her ability as a cyclist.

Mr. Emmons rode a Swift, and his wife a Marlboro' tricycle.

The Coventry Machinists' Company scored a double record at Hartford last week. Mr. R. H. Davis rode a Swift safety when he made the American record time of 2:16; and also Mr. R. H. Davis and W. E. Crist took the tandem safety record on the Swift tandem in the American record times of quarter, 41:34; half, 1:22 2-4; three-quarters, 2:05 1-4; mile, 2:44 1-2. Well done Coventry Machinists' Company. At Buffalo, too, the Swift safeties and Marlboro' trikes swept the board.—Bicycling World.

EASTERN ROAD CLUB TIE. NOV. 8, 1888.—E. P. Benson established a safety record for twenty-five miles in the time of 1h. 35m. 25s.—Bicycling World, Nov. 16, 1888.

The machine ridden was a Swift roadster.

THE COVENTRY MACHINISTS' COMPANY AND THE GROWTH OF THE TRADE.—(Special).—Since the day on which the C. T. C., with Cotterell—in a gorgeous uniform of green, with real gold lace—in the chair, entertained at Coventry the first American team of cycling tourists who visited these shores, no London pressman has, until last Monday, been specially invited down to the city of three spires to take part in a cycling festivity. On Monday afternoon last, however, Wheeling, in response to a cordial invitation, set out from Euston to be present, in a representative capacity, at the opening of additional premises at their Cheylesmore works, which the growth of their trade has compelled the Coventry Machinists' Company to make, to meet the demands of their business for 1889. Unfortunately, as we go to press on Monday evening, we are unable to give this week a full account of the event; but, as our "forms" are being "made up," we have no doubt that our colleague is having a good time among the employés and friends of this great company, which was one of the earliest pioneers of the cycle trade in England, and certainly in Coventry.

DEVANY, HOPKINS & CO. (Display of Bicycles, Tricycles and Tandems).—The display made by this firm was of the well-known manufacture of the Coventry Machine Company (Limited), of Coventry, England, which has for twenty years been successfully engaged in the manufacture of bicycles and their congeners, the tricycles, tandems, etc. A very complete line of these machines was shown, of superior make, finish and enduring qualities—all possessing the latest improvements for securing speed and safety in their use. The best materials are used in the construction of these machines, and the nickel-plating and enamelling has evidently been done with great care and skill.—Report of Twenty-third Industrial Exhibition, San Francisco, 1888.

GREAT TRADE EXTENSION.—On Monday last the Coventry Machinists' Company (Limited) formally opened the very extensive additions they have just made to their already large premises. The whole of the front portion of the buildings in Cheylesmore, Coventry, have been added to the extent of two entire floors, each comprising two long spacious rooms, with a central smaller one, the floor space of each floor measuring something like 200x35 feet, or a total addition to the premises of about 14,000 square feet, and increasing the capacity for employment of hands from about 600 to 1,000. The new premises will be used chiefly as offices, stock-rooms for finished stock, and show-rooms, thus freeing the rest of the premises for the purposes of manufacture proper.—The Cyclist, Nov. 14, 1888.

P. J. BERLO and J. P. CLARKE, on a Marlboro' Club tandem, rode round the reservoir this week in 3:11 3-4. This is the fastest time ever accomplished round that circle.—The Bicycling World.

Coventry Machinists' Company, 239 Columbus Ave., Boston:

Dear Sirs,—In reply to yours of Oct. 16, inquiring as to the safe arrival and appreciation of the Swift No. 1 you sent me Sept. 20, will say am sorry to have delayed so long, but waited until I could give the machine a fair trial, as I have done in the last month. When the machine came here it was criticised, and attempt made to run it down on account of its lightness, all being afraid it would not stand our rough and bad roads, as we have some of the worst roads in Ohio. All I said was, "Wait and see." We waited, and I am now ready to report. I find that, as its name implies, it is Swift-er than any other machine of its kind, runs easier, nicer build, lighter, and as strong as any other machine made. It stands as hard usage as any, as I have not spared it anything; it goes wherever any other kind of machine can go, and is not stumped at anything. I am acknowledged to be as hard on a machine, and harder, than most riders here. The machine now, after one month's hard work, not only by myself, but by my friends who have borrowed it daily, is as good as when I took it out of the crate. I have not touched a tool of any kind to tighten it yet. It is the favorite machine of the kind in this city. One friend is about to sell an 1888 pattern Special Star, and another one an 1888 Rudge bicyclette, to get the Swift No. 1; you will see their orders in a few days. I am in love with the little machine. I hope my report may be satisfactory to you, and expect an early answer.

I am yours respectfully, E. J. DOUHET.

San Francisco, Nov. 5, 1888.

The Coventry Machinists' Company (Limited), Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen.—As the year is drawing to a close, perhaps you would be interested in knowing how the Swift has fared in this section as compared with other safeties. To be brief, there are more "Swifts" in use here than any other make of safety. We have not taken a single "ordinary," or any other kind of machine in exchange, as part payment for a Swift during the season. Not a single Swift, after leaving our hands, has, to our knowledge, been exchanged for other make of safety, or sold to a third party. There is not a second-hand Swift for sale or exchange. And finally, from present indication, there will be more "Swifts" sold here during the coming season than any two other makes of safeties.

Yours very truly, (Signed) DEVANY, HOPKINS & CO.

Coventry Machinists' Co., Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sirs,—You ask for my opinion of the Swift Safety. I believe there is no better material or workmanship put in any Safety now on the American market than in the Swift. Every one that we have sold so far this year has given excellent satisfaction. Yours truly,

Gents,—I received the "Swift" all safe. Am very much pleased with it. It far exceeds my expectations, both in beauty and ease of propulsion, all recognizing its superiority. Its popularity here is an assured fact.

The Coventry Machinists' Co., Ltd., Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sirs,—Lately I have been out riding on the "Swift," and it has been seen and examined by nearly all the wheelmen in the city; they all had to try it (as a matter of course), and the result is that two of the boys wanted to trade their American Champions for a Swift Safety.

I must say, that without exception, every one that tried it pronounced it a perfect machine, easy running, light, and very rigid; the chain adjustment and hinges on mud-guards, diamond frame, and the lamp, all strike the fancy of every one. None found any fault with it, something that is very unusual here, for whenever a new wheel make its "debut" here it is at once pulled to pieces by criticism.

Yours truly, W. H. RENARD, Jr.

Messrs. Devany, Hopkins & Co.:

Gentlemen.—I am perfectly delighted with my Club Tricycle, purchased of you. I have never been a great walker, and would consider a seven-mile walk quite an undertaking; but with my tricycle I think nothing of a fifteen or even a twenty-mile run. I have made a forty-mile ride in six hours, and repeated half the distance the next day.

I have always been devoted to horse-back riding, but much prefer my three-wheeled steed to the side saddle. Respectfully,

MRS. HAROLD EMMONS.

Devany, Hopkins & Co.:

Gentlemen.—I wish to express my complete satisfaction with the "No. 1" Swift Bicycle I got of you.

Before making a decision as to what particular make of machine I would buy, I expended over one-quarter the price of one, in the rental of various makes, and gave all of them a fair trial and close inspection. I think I can give half a dozen reasons why the "Swift" Safety is superior to any machine I have ever seen: the superiority of its "chain," it seems to me, there can be no doubt about. The same good point applies equally well to the Marlboro' Club Tricycle.

Although my machine is a very light one, and my weight 165 lbs., I have given it some very hard riding, and after six months' use have not paid one dime for repairs of any kind.

I am pleased to recommend the machine, both for its beauty and its mechanical construction. Very truly, HAROLD EMMONS.

Napa, Cal., Jan. 14, 1889.

Messrs. Devany, Hopkins & Co.:

Dear Sirs,—Having put the No. 1 Swift Safety Bicycle, purchased of you last September, to a severe test on our country roads and rocky hills, I take great pleasure in recommending it as a staunch, reliable and easy-running machine. As I carefully examined other makes of safeties before purchasing the Swift, the simplicity of the latter at once commended itself as being especially adapted for hard, rough riding on country roads. I think it is the best machine made. Yours truly, W. S. HOOVER.

San Jose, Cal., Jan. 15, 1889.

Messrs. Devany, Hopkins & Co.:

Dear Sirs,—The Swift Safety No. 1, purchased from you, has given me eminent satisfaction. I must candidly acknowledge that for ease of steering, rigidity of frame and ease of propulsion, not to speak of high speed, the "Swift" is, in my estimation, the "King of Safeties," and for simplicity and durability unexcelled. Yours very truly,

D. L. THORNTON,
Captain Garden City Wheelmen.

San Francisco, Jan. 17, 1889.

Messrs. Devany, Hopkins & Co.:

Gentlemen.—I have now used the "Swift No. 1" for six months on all kinds of roads, and I am thoroughly convinced that it is by far the easiest running, simplest, lightest, and most honestly made "Safety" I have ever seen, and can so recommend it to all intending purchasers.

Respectfully yours, C. H. ENGLISH.

"INVINCIBLE" HEAD LAMP.

For "SAFETIES"  and "TRICYCLES."

(SALSBURY'S PATENT.)

This lamp is fitted with a new parallel link-motion, which reduces the vibration to a minimum. The joints are conical, and so constructed that they are self-adjustable, and, being fitted with leather washers, the action is noiseless. A new form of spring is introduced, which keeps the lamp at an even balance, and also allays sudden recoils. Fitted with new door-fastener, sliding reflector for lighting and cleaning, nickel mounts, patent-lever burner, and combined side and back lights, and is attached to the machine by an adjustable grip-socket, as described below. The above has been thoroughly tested, and is highly recommended.

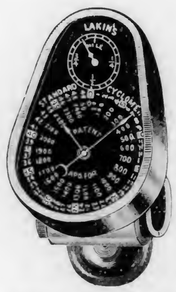
THE PERFECTION BICYCLE ALARM.



Will fit any machine made, is fastened to the brake upright, and is out of the way, and unaffected by headers. It will not rattle.

The spring to operate the alarm is contained within the bell, and is wound up by a button on the outside of the gong.

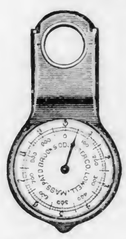
The alarm is given by a slight forward pressure on the projecting lever, which releases the spring movement.

A simple alarm stroke, a succession of strokes, or a continuous alarm, at pleasure of rider.

Price, Nickeled $2.50

THE STANDARD CYCLOMETER.

REGISTERS 2,500 MILES.



The action is positive and continuous; thus making it reliable in every respect. Can be read from the saddle. Can be used with or without Hub Lantern.

Wheelmen say it is the Standard all over the world, and the only instrument to be relied on for accuracy. Hundreds of them in use; and after being run TWENTY THOUSAND MILES, THEY ARE AS GOOD AS NEW.

PRICE OF CYCLOMETERS for Wheel, with axles of ⅞ or under, and not less than two inches between shoulders, will be, with balance weight and lamp attachment, $10.

THE BROOKS IDEAL CYCLOMETER.

Small, Light, Neat, Compact, Accurate and Cheap.

This instrument is specially designed to meet the demand for a strictly first-class cyclometer at a moderate cost. In the simplicity of its construction, and in the directness and certainty of operation, it is unrivalled by any cyclometer made. Being entirely without weights or springs, and its few parts being always in gear, it is the least likely to get out of order. Its weight is 11 ounces, about one-half that of other direct acting cyclometers. The collar enclosing the hub of the bicycle has a rubber packing, rendering its attachment to hubs of different sizes very easy. (This is an important improvement, peculiar to this instrument.) The glass front is the best thick watch crystal. The dial, which is the size of an ordinary watch dial, records miles and tenths to 1,000 before repeating, reading up to 10 miles by means of the small stationary pointer, and 10 miles for every space moved over by the hand. Sent, highly polished and nickeled, post paid, to any address.

This oiler, as the cut shows, consists of a tube for holding the oil, fitted at the top with an Acme tip, which can be unscrewed when it is desired to refill the oiler. The VICTOR SAFETY has the original and only efficient Spring Fork in the market. It is the only "diamond frame" Safety made in America.

FRAME OVERMAN WHEEL CO., Makers, FRAME
BOSTON.

There are many reasons why you should ride a PREMIER TANDEM SAFETY. It runs with half the effort of the best Tandem Tricycle, and goes where the latter cannot venture. You may take anyone on the PREMIER without previous experience on their part or extra labor on your own. You may ride it alone on either seat. For a quiet country ride with the partner of your joys and sorrows, or for a lightning scorch in your Club road race, it is alike unequalled. It is the strongest Tandem Safety made, and is the only one built on correct mechanical principles. You will find a demonstration of this statement in our new illustrated catalogues, which we shall be happy to send you on application. Immediate delivery. 55 or 60-inch gear at purchaser's option.

LLEWELLYN H. JOHNSON, Orange, N. J.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 19 APRIL, 1889.

OUR PAPER WAS MAILED.

LAST week our whole edition was in the Boston Post Office by 4.30 P. M. Saturday. All the New England papers were in the mail by Friday night.

Please send on complaints and we will try and trace the cause of the delay. We shall repeat this notice weekly for some time to come.

THE suggestion made by "A wheelman of New York" in our last issue to the effect that a parade of wheelmen in the procession of April 30 or May 1st would be a good thing, seems to have met with approval if we are to judge by the postals and letters we have received on the subject. As a specimen one writer says, "To have the wheelmen represented in this parade would undoubtedly give cycling a big boom in this city and State, as it is expected there will be nearly one million spectators of the great pageant. I hope the WORLD will push the idea for all it is worth."

The time for organization is pretty short and so if the wheelmen of New York desire to be in line on the occasion mentioned, they ought to be up and doing. For our part we are in favor of anything that will further the good of cycling and we think that a Division of wheelmen in a parade such as is proposed, will be an excellent idea providing the number in line will be sufficient to make a respectable showing.

THE extremely generous notice given our issue of the 29th ult. by our esteemed contemporaries, the Wheel and the American Athlete, calls for a special recognition at our hands. Unfortunately it is usually the case that business competition calls forth and engenders jealousy and heart burnings, but in the commendation above mentioned, and which we gratefully recognize, generous manhood rises superior to petty jealousy.

We cordially thank Editors Prial, Wells and Wheeler for their kind words, and as we said before, that while the work done on that paper was enormous, and the result one that gave us satisfaction and feelings of pride, yet the edition was made possible by the generous support and aid given us on all sides, by advertisers and contributors.

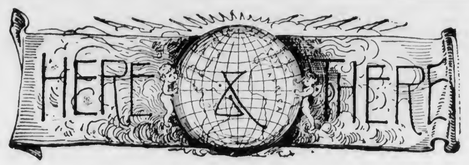
OUR correspondent "Skib," from Baltimore, is about right when he points out that League meets as run during the past few years are an expensive burden not to be demanded, but on the contrary it should be discouraged.

The generous hospitality extended by the different cities during the past few years is a pleasant recollection, but we protest that this princely method of free entertainment has established a precedent which has caused the Divisions that have entertained to cry "enough" and those who would like to, to hesitate before taking on the tremendous burden of raising large sums to entertain their visitors.

We are glad to notice that President Luscomb takes a stand on the side of economy and simplicity. Let us cry halt, and let our annual meet put on more of the nature of a real meet for the advancement of the cause of cycling and better highways, and less of the character of an annual frolic and spree. Let every man pay his own way and let the national organization pay for the use of the hall necessary for the use of the business meetings. Of course the local cyclist can do the "hospitable" act, but don't let us expect it at the rate of from $1500 to $2000 per day.

The Executive Committee should not only discourage such enormous outlay, they should absolutely refuse it, perhaps forbid it.

IT bids fair to be lively in racing matters this season. The spring season, with the Chicago tournament, the Harvard race meet and the Providence tournament, gives promise of gladness to the seasoned pot hunter and the callow novice. Then the road racers will have a chance at Chicago, and over the Milburn-Irvington course.



OUR valued correspondent, "Jack," has always some good, practical ideas on every subject connected with cycling, and as the question of separating the ordinary and the safety in races has caused some discussion (though now settled), his views, which coincide with ours, will be read with interest. Says "Jack:"

"This question as to whether safeties should be allowed to race with ordinaries in open events, is a somewhat difficult one. If the event is 'open,' certainly. But I'd rather see the two machines kept separate, especially among novices. There is nothing in the world which 'rattles' a man on a racing ordinary as to have a wobbler on a safety riding near him with the handles of his low machine in dangerous proximity to the pedals of the tall ordinary. Of course with a good rider there is no danger. I have seen G. L. Morris almost shaving the board edging on the inside of an English track, but then he could ride, and handled his machine as the mother of ten children would handle her 'latest,' and not as an inhabitant of Bret Harte's 'Roaring Camp' would handle the 'Luck.' To me (with my quaint ideas) a safety bicycle is almost as distinct a machine from an ordinary bicycle as a tricycle is from either of them. The only things the safety has in common with the ordinary are two wheels and one track. They are both of the bicycle family. If it is an 'open' race, or a question of 'the fastest man on any machine which can be classed as a cycle,' then ignus via (fire away).

You see it is unfair to the 'ordinary' rider. He runs a chance of a cropper through the presence of the safeties on the track. If they were barred he would have fewer chances against him, and would be able to ride with greater assurance of safety. With the safety rider, who has nothing to lose (at least in point of safety), it is all the same whatever kind of machine is competing against him. But there are at least two sides to every question and thing (dice cubes have six, each differing from the other)."

DEFEATED!!

JUST as we go to press, we learn that the bill providing for a Bridge and Roads Commissioner in Massachusetts has been defeated in the Assembly.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

PRESIDENT SKINKLE, it is rumored, will shortly leave for Cleveland, there to reside permanently, and wire pulling has already begun by candidates for the office of President. W. F. Bode is in the lead, with Thorne and Langworthy close behind, and it is said that Randall would like very much to try it again, and is on a still hunt for the place.

THE Illinois Club claim to have a dark horse in their midst, who, according to the enthusiastic members (and all Illinois men are enthusiastic) will rival Windle—almost. But with their present racing talent, and the addition to the same of Sauer, Ehlert, and probably Phil Hammel, the Chicagos will have to hustle to keep their end up in the racing line this season, as with Van Sicklen and Winship out of their team (for both "Van" and "Win" say they will not race at all this year), Hosford on a safety and Greenleaf at college, leaves them with only Lumsden and Roe, and possibly Spooner, aside from any dark horses that may be found in their midst, to represent them.

WHEN I read my weekly account of events in last week's WORLD, beginning with the pool tournament, I sighed and longed for a private interview with the "d—l" who made it read "fool" tournament, and found solace in the fact that my identity was still unknown, as it might have been quite unpleasant for me otherwise.

MANY letters of inquiry have been received at the different clubs as to what would be the best day to visit the Chicago tournament and see the races, and this is almost impossible to answer, as a very attractive programme of races has been made up for each day. Come and stay through the week, if possible, is the best answer I can give.

I AM told that the new constitution recently drafted by our Constitution Committee will be submitted to the Division for adoption by a mail vote, in the near future.

WHERE will the Illinois Division meet be held this year, is a question I am frequently asked, but up to the present time am unable to answer.

THE Æolus Club boys recently moved into a new club house, only to find that a clause in the lease made it imperative on their part to move out, provided that property was sold, and a consideration of $200 paid. The same week the club moved in the landlord sold the property, and now they are obliged to look for other quarters.

I AM told that Temple is an associate member of the Illinois Club, instead of honorary. Well, the honors are about even—Temple, professional associate member of the I. C. C.; Munger, professional privileged member of the C. C. C.

THE Lincolns gave a most successful smoker last Thursday evening. The Illinois Club were the guests of the evening. The gymnastic features were the most entertaining part of the programme.

BURLEY AYRES was on deck at the Chicagos', and was the same old Burley in spite of the Milwaukee beer, which Burley says is fearful strong.

NEW ORLEANS.

"NOKOMIS."

ON April 1st the annual election of officers of the Louisiana Cycling Club took place. After the election of officers, the club adjourned to the festive board, where they had their annual "feed." The "feed" was a great success, and everything that made its appearance was speedily demolished with gusto, until the introduction of Beccasine Fesande (a very French dish—in plain English "slightly off snipe"). This was too much. A bicyclist can eat most anything, but those snipe—well, the less said the better.

TEN applications for membership to the Louisiana Cycling Club were read and accepted at their last meeting.

THE club house scheme was freely discussed at the monthly meeting of the L. C. C. After a long discussion, it was decided to refer the matter back to the Executive Committee, with power to act in the matter. Amongst the fourteen members present $1375 was subscribed, nearly one third of the amount needed, and as there are some twenty or thirty members to be seen, it certainly argues that a club house for the L. C. C. is an assured fact. The spirit in which the proposition was received by the members was very encouraging to the officers, and if they will only continue to show that spirit, the building of the club house will be comparatively an easy matter.

ON motion made, the Captain of the L. C. C. was instructed to challenge the New Orleans Bicycle Club, for a team race of two and one half miles, eight men to constitute each team, race to take place within forty days of the next meeting of the N. O. B. C., and the prize and course to be mutually agreed upon, cost of the former to be defrayed one half by each club.

THE N. O. B. C. refused a former challenge of the L. C. C., and it is hoped they will not treat this one in the same way, as it will finally settle the question as to which club is entitled to first place in the matter of racing.

THERE was a meeting of the Louisiana Division L. A. W. on the 8th. A summer tour or encampment was suggested, and was received favorably and a committee was appointed to arrange details. H. H. Hodgson, C. C., presented two medals, a gold and a silver one, to be contested for by the members of the Louisiana Division L. A. W., and a committee of Messrs. Betts, Rea, Graham, Gore, Frederic and Russ were appointed to arrange details.

A. M. HILL was appointed Official Handicapper for the States of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennesee, Arkansas, Colorado, Nevada, Texas and Louisiana.

MESSRS. RANDALL, Shields, Renaud, Gore and Fenner were appointed to serve on the Racing Board for the coming year.

ROAD improvement is being agitated all over the State, and was started by the Louisiana Division L. A. W.

THERE are over twenty miles of new streets being paved in New Orleans, and gravel roads are being laid everywhere.

DENVER.

"OCCASIONAL."

OH, how we miss him; our leader in debates, in schemes for the club's good, in musical affairs and in fun; best of Secretaries and most courteous of gentlemen. How large is the space, in our affections, left open by his departure. But "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and in our loss one of the New York clubs will gain a member, in Mark E. Harris, worth the owning. On the evening (April 1st) of Mr. Harris' departure, a large delegation of the Social Wheel Club called upon and presented him with a handsome cane, upon the gold head of which was engraved, "To M. E. H. from the S. W. C." After the presentation a line of march was taken for the train. On their arrival at the depot the boys, aided by the club quartette, sang various songs to enliven the melancholy occasion, and had a large and appreciative audience in the passengers aboard the many trains. After a general hand shaking with all, Mr. Harris mounted the platform of the car just as the train pulled out, and the three cheers and a tiger given him as a send off, will long be remembered by all, and "Mike" especially.

THE Social Wheel Club have informed the Denver Ramblers that the challenge issued by them (the Ramblers) on July 30th has been accepted. The race is for a team of seven, nine or eleven, over a course thirty-six miles long.

A COMMITTEE is now out for the purpose of drawing up a Constitution and By-Laws for the new Western League Cyclers, or, as the name now is, "League Union Cyclists." The principal aims of this organization are the running of races on the class system and the abolishment of the amateur rule. Although the scheme does not meet the favor of most League members the numbers recruited for the new association are quite a number.

ON the evening of April 4th quite a number of wheelmen assembled at the rooms of the Social Wheel Club, in pursuance of a call issued by Chief Consul Beddo, for the purpose of selecting a new Chief Consul and formulating plans for the coming season. But—no presiding officer present—no meeting.

COMMITTEES are now out soliciting memberships to the Track Association. It is proposed to build the track in the new Broadway Athletic Park.

MR. KING, of Sports Afield, has engaged a gentleman from over the great pond to edit the cycling portion of his paper. The gentleman referred to has had experience in the cycling paper business, and gives promise of doing great things for the wheelmen of Denver.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

SOMETIMES I think that the sentimental "gush" that is besmattered over cycling by some of its admirers, whose intentions are better than their brains, often causes it to lose the support and adoption of many brainy and virile adherents, who, seeing these driveling attempts at sentimentality, conclude hastily and unjustly that the manly element of athleticism in wheeling is sunken beneath its load of flashing nickel, braying bugles and epauletted and bespangled riders. As an example of this, take the editorial page of a recently published journal devoted to the furtherance and improvement of the sport, so its head lines inform us, and see there such rot as the statement that the riders of a certain city were "enjoying a taste of Heaven," in the good roads abounding there, that is to say in the city quoted, not in Heaven. Now such printed utterances, which are more or less of an editorial character, cause anyone reading them, to at once conclude that such school-girlish use of superlatives is only indulged in when the readers of the paper, who are of course suppositiously wheelmen, are themselves of a like sentiment, and being so, are, as a matter of course, hardly liable to attract the attention and comradship of a seeker after a manly sport. For when any human being has reached a state wherein wheels, roadways and heavens become a conglomerate mass in his addled brain, he will hardly commend himself to the ordinary man as one whose company should be sought, and wheeling gets all the blame for putting the poor thing in this deplorable condition. There is, of course, no remedy for this unfortunate state of affairs, I well know. Manufacturers cannot supply brains to purchasers of their wheels, more's the pity, neither can they put a seal upon the lips or a padlock upon the pens of these unfortunate (though perhaps good intentioned) praise singers of cycling glory. Please, therefore, gentlemen, when you seek, in public print or speech, to sound the loud hosannahs of your imperial opinions, don't gush over it, don't slobber upon cycling in attempting to honor it with your laudations. Write manly, vigorous commendations, and both you and the cause will be benefitted by the change.

I HAVE noticed of late, in the public prints, that the crop of colored ladies who, during the infancy of George Washington, kindly consented to act as nurse to Georgie, have, strange to relate, almost entirely died off, though there yet remains a few dusky blossoms of this rare vintage. Now in view of the probable extinction of this numerous and long-lived old lady, I would like to call the attention of the public and the press to the individual who stands ready to take the place of this old lady when she passes from life and print; namely, "the-first-man-that-ever-rode-a-bicycle-in-America." Here's an individual who fairly revels in his multiplicity. Every village now has its simon pure specimen, and no bicycle club throughout the country is so poor that it cannot afford a brass-bound example of this wheeling dodo. Of course it will be claimed that the market is overstocked, and that there may be doubts as to the genuineness of the claims of these individuals, but this cannot be allowed. I will grant that the quantity just now is rather great, but then this is a great and growing country, and we never do anything in it by halves, so it simply rests upon the genuineness of these gentlemen's claims to being "firsts" that any contests can occur, and even here the proofs will astonish even the most skeptical. I don't propose to prove any of these claims until I have been able to interview some of the claimants, to learn from them what I am to get for my support in the affair, but for fear that they might not thoroughly appreciate the value of it, and hence might be inclined to put rather a cheaper valuation upon it than my ancestral pride would admit of my accepting, I just want to call their attention to the following: The real genuine "first rider in America" usually prefaces his claims by telling you that he had ridden in England long prior to the introduction of bicycles and bicycling here, just how long before, he usually forgets; and that "in the winter of 1875 or early in the spring of 1886"—just here's where the great battle takes place for the honor of "first rider"—he went to Philadelphia, where the Centennial was either open or preparing to do so, and that there he found an exhibitor who had a few old-time "Ariels" displayed, and the "first rider" then and there mounts the wheel and rides off, amidst the applause of the multitude and the joy of the exhibitor. Now this is the general frame-work of the claim that all genuine "first riders in America" usually make, though of course each embroiders it with the flowers of fancy, the web of fact, as best suits his individual idea of ornament. I want to say right here, however, that I spent eight months living in the Centennial grounds, and in making a systematic study of the wonders there contained, yet just now I cannot even recall the bicycle exhibit at all, though I know of course that there was such a one. What I can say, though, is that if all the riders who claim to have ridden these wheels then, and purchased them afterwards, were assembled together, I don't think that Fairmount Park would be large enough to hold them, so with these facts in view, gentlemen who "first rode a wheel in America" will find that my support of their claims in this direction will come high, but when they think of the fortunes that await them after once they have established them and found fame and "seads" upon the platforms of the dime museums, they will not regret. I am sure, having come down handsomely for the support of "Hawkshaw."

"TACK."

ALL KINDS.

THE English credit the Scotch with being a queer race, and there is certainly as much difference between these two races as there is in this land of the "Star and Garter" (I mean the "Stars and Stripes—Another Richmond in the field"), between the temperaments of the Northerners and the Southerners. Not a bad story is told of an American, General L——, who was in company where there were some few Scotch. After supper, when the wine was served up, the General rose and addressed the company in the following words: Gentlemen, I must inform you that when I get a little 'groggish' I have an absurd custom of railing against the Scotch; I hope no gentleman in the company will take it amiss." With this he sat down. Up starts M——, a Scotch officer, and without seeming to be displeased, said: "Gentlemen, I, when I am a little groggish, and hear any person railing against the Scotch, have a most absurd custom of kicking him out of the company; I hope no gentleman will take it amiss." It is almost superfluous to add that the last speaker had occasion to exert his talent. Yes, the Scotch are a queer race. I hope my friends, James R. Nisbet ("Aeolus") and David F. Brennet ("Steersman"), the editors of the Scottish Cyclist, will find nothing personal in this. I am "Scottish, quite Scottish, ye ken," myself, but I thought the story a good one, and you can judge for yourselves.

I SEE in the BICYCLING WORLD of March 29th that George C. Clarke, of Greenville, Miss., the Chief Consul of the Mississippi Division, L. A. W., has appointed league houses at Greenville and Natchez. Three or four years ago, when I was the first Chief Consul, L. A. W., for the State of Mississippi, being bung-starter, chief bottle-washer and eye opener and all that sort of thing, I appointed the Washington Hotel in Vicksburg a league hotel (vide Karl Kron's X. M. Miles), much to the surprise of one Welch, the proprietor, who did not understand exactly the meaning of the term.

THERE should be a good many rides in the State now. The road from Vicksburg to Greenville by way of Deer Creek is "a dandy" (especially if you leave your bicycle in the lobby or stable at home, and take the L. N. O. and F. train via Leland). Deer Creek used to be famous for "bicycling bees," during the social season, and "necktie-parties" were greatly in vogue also, while "balls" kept the community in a state of healthy excitement (pistol and Winchester balls, you know), and "dances" (at the end of a short rope) were diversions to wile away the hours that might otherwise hang heavily, so they hung colored divines who stole chickens, and malefactors also, to drive away their care, just to observe time honored custom and keep themselves out of mischief and harm's way. Whenever I read a word about Mississippi, I think of the land of coon and cotton, dear old "Dixie"—far away.

I HAD my first ride in America, for the 1889, a few days ago. At the Citizens nice club house at W. 60th street, I got the wheel, kindly loaned me by Mr. Elliot Mason, and started out to Central Park, where I had a good spin, "doing" the round of the park several times, and admiring now and then a fine American trotting horse which in many cases looked "better bred" than the man who was driving him. On my return to the Citizen's Club, I met several of the members, among these being Mr. John C. Gulick and Mr. Chas. A. Spear, and had quite interesting chats with them on "our sport." Mr. Spear said one thing I shall never forget, and which has a good deal of hard sence in it. The last time (I think) Mr. Spear was in England he was looking at tricycles. "I want," said he to the dealer, "a tricycle with three wheels and three screws." That's what took me. A simple wheel, a wheel that had no extras about it. In this he is about right. I believe in simplicity. Three wheels, an axle, a simple frame, a saddle and a handle-bar with a couple of cranks; sufficient bearings and two pedals, and some holes to introduce oil for lubricating purposes, and there you are. For my part I ri le with a safety stripped of mud guards, brake, lamp, bell, etc., and the only thing I have to carry that is not requisite to the running of the machine is the enamel and dust of travel. In the Citizens' Club wheel room was a full-plated Columbia safety, specially built for our old League Chief Consul, Dr. N. Malon Beckwith, I have never met the Doctor, but judging by the length of the ┐ pin of the saddle, and the low position on the front forks of the foot rests, he must indeed be a regular "R. S. Bryson" (a 6-foot 5 1-2 incher) who hoisted the flag-staff at the first Harrowgate Camp in England, and used to revel in wheels of over 60 inches in diameter.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

THE Hagerstown, Md., Club held a meeting, and fully discussed the question of holding the annual League meet at that place. A committee, consisting of President V. M. Cusheva and Captain Updegraff, were chosen to confer with Chief Consul Mott and the Executive Committee of the L. A. W. in Baltimore. If satisfactory arrangements can be made, work will be begun at once to make an immense meet. The boys, if they undertake it, will make a success of it.

THE Chesapeake Wheelmen Stock Company was incorporated by Cornelius F. Abbott, John C. Robinson, James B. Reed, John D. Wheeler and Wm. G. Speed. The capital stock is $5000, divided into 500 shares. Their object is for pleasure, social and beneficial purposes.

THE Chesapeake Club was regularly incorporated last week, with thirty-two active members. The members propose spending $2000 in fitting up their new club house.

THE Crescent Club are building another storage room for the wheels of its members. The room will hold about sixty wheels. The club housewarming will take place on Friday, April 26th.

THE Baltimore Club are in receipt of the applications of about twenty-five members of the dying Rambler Club.

THE Centaur Club planted on Arbor Day, at Patterson Park, the white oak tree, "Centaur." An address was delivered by Mr. C. H. Eisenbrandt, the President of the club.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

THE meeting of the cyclists of Quincy, Hannibal, Louisiana, St. Louis and Clarksville, at the latter place, is having the attention of our local riders, and both Captains Lewis and Sanders have agreed to call runs to that place on Sunday, May 5. The only thing needed to make it a big success is a large attendance from the other cities named, and to secure that end the Captains of the Quincy Clubs and the local Consuls at Hannibal and Louisiana have been written to. Those who participated in the meet last November, or in fact anybody who has ever spun over the beautiful gravel roads of Pike County, or took in their awe-inspiring coasts, will be sure to go up again. The fare from St. Louis is $2.25 for the round trip, or in parties of fifty or more $2, and in the latter event a special baggage car, which will be side-tracked at Clarksville, will be procured for the carriage of bicycles.

I NOTICE that L. S. C. Ladish has been appointed Official Handicapper for Missouri and Kansas, which is certainly a good selection, but as he is not a League member, how can he be appointed? ['Tis not necessary to be a member.—ED.]

THE cycle track is coming up in great shape, and a meeting will be held at the Missouris' club house next Monday, to discuss it. The needed amount is almost subscribed for.

S. C. NEWMAN, the efficient Secretary of the Missouris, will remove to Chicago during the early part of May, to engage in business.

IN reply to some questions about the new road book, will say that same will be issued just as soon as the Division Board of Officers see their way clear of the Warner bill, which to some extent still hangs fire in the house, and funds may be needed to defeat added amendments.

IF the report is true, as claimed by your Denver correspondent, that the Western Association of Passenger Agents reported adversely upon rhe carrying of bicycles in baggage cars, this will be an opportune time for the new Chairman of the Transportation Committee, W. M. Brewster, to show his hand.

FOR the first time in the history of cycling, St. Louis has been allowed to compete in the Pullman road race, an invitation to that effect having been sent on some weeks ago by Mr. Garden. A. M. Lewis, Pomarade, Hart and Hurck will probably enter.

CAPTAIN SANDERS took the Cycle Club on a tour of discovery last Sunday to Indian Cave situated about twenty miles south, on the Telegraph road. He reports the road to be in excellent shape, almost to the mouth of the cave, and the beauties of the cave will amply repay any cycler who wishes to make the trip.

SPEAKING about the roads in Cola County, which contains the State capital, W. A. Rothwell says: "I do not wonder that wheeling here labors under so many difficulties, the wonder is that there is a single rider to be found in the county, for the roads are simply atrocious."

"IT never rains but it pours." Just as the division is getting through knocking out that Warner bill, up pops the City Council of Columbia and wants to pass an ordinance forbidding the riding of cycles on their streets. Prof. H. C. Penn, the local Consul, has written Chief Consul Brewster about it, who will no doubt take prompt action, so that the city authorities will be prevailed upon to withdraw such a measure.

MINNEAPOLIS NOTES.

"PARSON."

SOMEHOW or other cycling has never been the same here since "Jack" (J. Purvis Bruce) left this city nearly two years ago to spend his life among the wheeling notables of England and Scotland. He was, while living here actively engaged on the Tribune, yet while attending to his many duties he always found time to look after cycling interests hereabouts. There was not a man who rode a wheel here, who did not know him and none who did not like him—who could help but like "Jack" with his quiet gentlemanly ways, and his thorough knowledge as to how a race meeting, or any other meeting, should be run? "Jack" is a well made little (?) man of about 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighs when in training between 140 and 150 pounds, though I once saw him so "trained down" after a hard tour across Minnesota that he weighed but 120 pounds "all on," as he sat on his bicycle, the thirteenth man to start in the most severe 25 mile road race that has ever been run in this State and over about the toughest roads and against a hard head wind part of the distance. But "Jack," though he looked "light" looked "powerful" and when he pedalled past the spectators at the crack of the pistol, it was plain to see that the little dark skinned fellow, with his mass of curly black hair, meant business and was in that race to ride. One by one the heavy weights dropped out. Flabby adipose-tissue was not equal to nerves, muscles of steel and pluck, so he had the satisfaction of beating Ed. Savage and Colie Bell, two of our fastest men. He also had the fun of beating by a few feet on the home stretch, his chum and friend, Jim Stockdale, the third man of the trio, who at present are the best riders in the State. It was a race long to be remembered by Minnesota Wheelmen as the closest, hardest fought race that ever occurred in this section.

OUR track is an assured thing and will be ready to race on by May 1st. So you may expect to hear of some good races from this section. Records will probably stand, as far as we are concerned, but there will, nevertheless, be some close, good racing.

THE Minneapolis Bicycle Club have formed a team that I think can hold its own with any team west of Chicago. It is composed of Colie Bell, J. R. Sockdale and E. J. Hale. As St. Paul, Winona, Fergus Falls and Fairbault all have large clubs and several have good tracks, a team race is a possibility in the near future, and then we shall see what we shall see.

THE season was formally opened on April 4th, as the M. B. C. took its first regular run then.

THE M. B. C. are soon going to have a formal opening of their new club headquarters over the Citizens' Bank. Music and light refreshments will be the main feature of the evening.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

MR. J. L. YOST, late Secretary and Manager of the Springfield Roadster Co., has returned from the Pacific Coast wonderfully improved in health. All Mr. Yost's friends will be pleased to hear this, as he left Boston some three months ago, a pretty sick man, but now he comes back with a fresh grip on health, and an enthusiast on the subject of Southern California. So delighted is Mr. Yost with that section of the country that he will close out his affairs here and take up his permanent abode there.

IT is possible that "Pedals" may go abroad with the Elwell party next month.

THE Framingham (Mass) police are after the sidewalk fiend. We cannot waste any sympathy on the rider who gets into trouble by riding on the sidewalk.

FRANK GAMWELL, of Bridgeport, Conn., was thrown from his bicycle the other day, and sustained injuries which the physicians pronounce "rupture." Rather a queer result for a plain header!

FROM the fact announced, that Attleboro' wheelmen have decided not to compete in the coming races at Taunton, it looks as though the racing association formed between the Taunton and Attleboro' men had passed from a condition of being, into one of history.

EAGLE ROCK HILL!

Climbed with ease on a 44 1-2 pound 50-inch Eagle Bicycle with 5 3-4 inch cranks, on Saturday, April 6th, by Wm. A. Clark of Stamford.

WHAT NEXT?

Now that the critics of the "Eagle" have had their pet theory exploded, and find that the "Bird" can climb with the rest of them, and perhaps may lead them all as its riders get more accustomed to it.

The Eagle depends on no complicated mechanism to aid it on hills, it has no chains, clutches or levers to get out of order, collect dirt, and rattle continously. It depends simply upon the weight of the rider, so placed on the driving wheel that NO POWER IS WASTED, and no unnecessary weight is placed upon the wheel which is not doing the work.

It may take a little practice to learn to handle the "Eagle," but those who have mastered it are better pleased with it, with each day's riding.

Apply for the agency for the Eagle in your town. Do not wait until it has been given to some one else.

A RIDER from Mason City, Iowa, writes and asks us whatever became of that proposed five-mile match between S. G. Whittaker and A. A. McCurdy, at Minneapolis, last January? Our answer is that nothing came of it except disgrace and chagrin. Just this and nothing more.

A YOUTH, who was once employed as office boy by us, sends a postal card, on which the following is indited: "What yer givin us? Yer talks by the tutor No. 1 never guv us no date at all. No. 2 sed it was 1940, and now No. 3 ses its 1890. Pretty mess yer makin sence yer gave me the sack, aint yer? If I warnt a better offis boy than the chump youve got now Id put my bed in a bag."

AN exchange remarks: "Every bicyclist should use his personal influence to secure good roads, but his duty does not require him to get off his wheel over the handles and smooth the highway down with the back of his neck."

MR. T. B. BRUCE, the Secretary of the Providence Tournament Committee, writes: "On the occasion of our tournament, May 30, we are going to work in tug-of-wars, foot ball, tennis, running foot races, feats of horsemanship and a broad sword contest on horseback, and make a field day of all sports, but we shall, of course, make bicycling the main feature."

A WELL-KNOWN Chicago rider writes us: "What can be a greater testimonial to the smoothness of Chicago pavement than the two fatal accidents happening there, by wheelmen scorching on the asphalt. They simply fall, and then die. Good old Fred Boyden has just died, as you have learned. He was a member of the Illinois Club, and one of our crack amateur racing men. I was very sorry indeed to learn of this. He was a good fellow, big and tall, and the last man I should think would succumb to such an accident. I have fallen all over creation and only been razzle-dazzled three times so as to be actually unconscious. I was fatally injured once, only. It seems, however, that when you take a header on the asphalt, it smashes you flat. It is simply terrific the way the Chicago boys have been riding of late years. I never cross an asphalt street on foot, but I look up and down for bicycles, fearing for my life. And all through the summer months chronicles of accidents on the asphalt come in. Fred Boyden used to figure in them, too, he having tasted the asphalt seriously before. Now, it finally fetched him, alas."

AT the recent athletic entertainment held under the auspices of the Plainfield, N. J., Bicycle Club, the sum of $80 was cleared. The sports were excellent and consisted of foot, hurdle, sack, and slow bicycle races.

THE Press Cycle Club, of Boston, was formally organized last Friday at the Herald office. Officers were duly elected.

THE picture of Capt. Kendall adorns the pages of the Wheel of a week ago.

THE Cycle Club, of Chester, Pa., celebrated its first anniversary by a dinner, last week. Twenty men sat down to a nine-course banquet.

THE Press Cycle Club will have its initial run next Sunday. Capt. Kerrison will call a run to Salem! The worthy Captain evidently thinks that the members of the Press Club are all tough riders!

HOW to lay a track: Before you raise the corners, or even level off the ground, raise the requisite amount of dollars, and follow the instructions literally which are given in the last number, March 29th, of the BICYCLING WORLD. That's the best way.

THE time was when about every tenth man one met on the roads round Boston either sported the star of the old Boston Club or the Massachusetts coat of arms of the club bearing that name. But alas! now it is an event really worthy of mention to meet a rider carrying either one of those badges.

SENATOR MORGAN writes us: "I notice you are severe on the lady bicyclists, but please remember, Mr. Editor, that they are making their living at cycling, and as they are well behaved and intent on earning an honest living, I think their course is commendable. I do not think they will injure the sports or themselves so long as their appearance and conduct on and off the track is the same as it was at Omaha and Kansas City."

THE two miles National Championship race will be run at Providence May 30th.

THE Harvard Bicycle Club offer big inducements to those who are after glory and prizes, and also to those who enjoy a good afternoon's sport. See special announcement and also the advertisement.

THE Pennsylvania Club, of Philadelphia, has nearly two hundred members at the present time.

THE bicycle events to be run at the games to be held May 10th, under the auspices of the 12th Regiment, of New York City, are attracting great interest from the racing of Gotham, Philadelphia and Brooklyn.

ST. LOUIS is also troubled with the soul destroying surface running method of "sprinkling" (?) the street.

W. IRVING WILHELM, of Reading, against whom judgment had been issued for the recovery of the champion cup, is determined that he will not give up his trophy to the Reading Bicycle Club, which claims it, if he can help it, and to-day through his attorney he took the case into court. In our last issue we gave the particulars of the case.

MISS EDITH PRATT has the honor of being the first lady in Elmira, N. Y., to ride a safety.

THE Wanderers of Toronto, Ont., have lately "swelled out" into larger and more commodious quarters.

THE idea seems to be developing that Baltimore will take the meet again for 1889.

WE hope to see the annual meet of the future take on more of the frugal simplicity of our Puritan fathers. Make it a pleasure to entertain, not a burden.

MR. J. L. YOST, who has just returned from southern California, was much surprised that cycling was not more popular in certain sections he visited, where, he asserts, the roads are very fine.

CHARLIE KLUGE, the "old timer," will take to the path once more this year.

JUST as the big organ in the Union Park Congregational Church of Chicago began to roar its Sunday night melody, a young woman in a snug-fitting dress and wearing a tall bonnet rode gracefully up to the side of the building on a sparkling new tricycle. When she alighted, she unfastened a strap which had held her Bible to the machine, and walked jauntily into the big entrance of the church. A red-faced policeman who paces down Ashland avenue from Randolph to Madison street housed the tricycle for its fair owner in a shed near Warren avenue. This is the way one pretty, dashing Chicago girl attends divine service.

THE Long Island wheelmen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are celebrated for the generous way in which they entertain. There is no end to the enterprise shown by the committee in furnishing entertainment for its members and friends.

THE Omaha Bee in naming W. A. Rowe as professional champion of the world, does not really state the facts of the case. It is still a very open question as to which is the fastest, Howell Temple, or Rowe. Rowe holds all the world records from one quarter mile up to the hour record; but in competition?

IT is said by those who ought to know, that the county roads of Essex County, N. J., are the finest and best kept of any in the States. A party of Bostonians were lately taken over these Essex County roads. They aver that the suburban roads of Boston are "no where."

THE Leominster, Mass., Enterprise asks: "If the law recognizes the bicycle as a vehicle and gives the rider a right to travel in that way on the public streets, does it also give him a right to run his vehicle on the sidewalk? Some serious accidents happened last year by reckless bicycle riding on the sidewalk." To the query we answer: The law does not give the cyclist the right to to ride on the sidewalk.

THE Kansas City Journal favor the formation of a "Society for the suppression and care of imbecile wheelmen." It will be the aim of the society to "provide a secure retreat for the sidewalk fiend, and for a number of other unclassified nuisances who bring discredit on bicycling."

MAKE a note of this: The entries for the 25-mile handicap road race, which takes place on Decoration Day, over the Millburn Irvington course, will close on May 10 with A. Barkman, 242 Broadway, New York city.

MR. A. HULL, of Elizabeth, N. J., has been "doing" Bermuda a-wheel. He says the roads make up in quality what they lack in quantity.

MAY 1st is the day that the Massachusetts Road Commission Bill will receive its quietus, or live as an evidence of advanced ideas in road maintainance.

THE New York Press is responsible in the following: "There are rumors of an approaching consolidation of ten of the most prominent city wheel clubs, which, if accomplished, will result in an extremely powerful wheel organization appearing in club circles.

THE Board of Directors of the Scranton, Pa., Bicycle Club entertained the members and lady friends at a hop last Tuesday night.

MR. CHARLES RICHARDS DODGE is now in Europe. A letter from him, dated Queenstown, announces safe arrival. Mr. Dodge will remain abroad until about October 1st.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[All communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—Ed.]

I have been talking with a lady friend who was one of the first to ride the bicycle, and I find her enthusiastic in its praises. "I had my falls at first," said she, "but beyond a few slight bruises I received no injury. I suppose I was a distressingly poor scholar, for it did seem to me that I should never conquer the untractable steed. But my teacher was patient to a fault, and I was persistent, and so success rested with me at last. For many weeks I rode 'on my nerves,' and I would come home after a ride quite exhausted in brain and body, but that is all gone now. I am as much at home on my bicycle as I am on a tricycle, and I am conscious of no more expenditure of nervous force on the one machine than upon the other. One attracts much more attention on the two-wheeler, and rude boys have some cutting remarks to make, but pioneers in any cause must make up their minds to that sort of thing and take it calmly. I can take my bicycle on the train; I can easily find room for it at home; I can go farther and faster than on a three-wheeler; I obtain many advantages in the two-wheeler that the three-wheeler does not and cannot have, and I think have sacrificed very little in making a change of mount." Thus experience speaks. Hear ye, what it says.

I am in receipt of a letter from Providence, in which I am told that the ladies of that city are all bound bicycle-ward. Miss Cooke and Miss Webb, both members of the club, have purchased two-wheelers and have learned to ride them. Other ladies have ordered wheels, and several are not quite converted, though willing to be Rhode Island hopes to send all its lady riders to Cottage City this year equipped with bicycles.

From all that I can hear I am inclined to say that it will be easier to enumerate the ladies who will ride tricycles this year than it will be to take the census of the bicycle riders. I am told that Mr. and Mrs. McArthur, of Malden, have taken a ride of forty-eight miles on their tandem and found it an easy task. Mr. Kilby and Mr. Atkinson, of theatrical fame, will be seen on double two-wheelers this season, and Messrs. Grimes and Nash, of Cambridge, will, with their respective ladies, ride the same kind of wheel. And who then will ride the tricycle? Ye who have been looking for the day when tricycles shall be cheap may yet be gratified.

"One may as well be dead as out of fashion," is an old saying. In modern times we should change the adage a little, and, adopting the slang of the street, which too often finds its way into the dancing room, we might be led to so far forget ourselves as to say, "If we would keep up with the procession we must adopt the popular craze of the day." It seems to me that the rush towards the bicycle is not far from a craze. There is a break-neck speed about it. The tricycle is thrown aside in contempt. "We want only two wheels," the impetuous ladies say, why encumber us with a third?" And yet; the manufacturers have hardly begun to show us what they can do for ladies in the construction of a three wheeler. I firmly believe that the makers can give us a thirty pound tricycle that will carry a lady safely, with ease and comfort. A great many will adhere to the three wheeler. I sincerely trust that the makers will not be turned aside from their work of perfecting the tricycle with the mistaken idea that all the ladies want two wheelers.

I have received several suggestions relative to the shortening of the name "tandem bicycle." One writer suggests "Tanbike," and another thinks "Twoser" would be the proper word. A lady advocates "Tee Bee." I like the latter best of all though it is hardly the thing. I am aware that I am open to the charge of encouraging slang, but there is good slang and bad slang. Good slang can never be harmful, but both kinds, I regret to say, fix themselves upon the language and sooner or later smile at us out of the dictionaries.

Every once in a little while we are told that Mrs. Cleveland is going to ride a wheel. The story has come out again and this time we are told that she is having a tricycle built to order. I am afraid we shall have to dismiss this as an idle tale of venerable age. If the story had been recently concocted the writer would certainly have credited her with the intention of riding a bicycle.

DEATH OF H. C. SPAULDING, JR.

We regret to have to announce the death of Consul H. C. Spaulding, Jr., of Elmira, N. Y. The following is just to hand: "It is my painful duty to inform you of the death of Mr. Henry C. Spaulding, Jr., of this city (Elmira, N. Y.). He died at 5.30 A. M. Friday, 12th, of typhoid fever, after an illness of only two weeks. All that careful nursing and skillful physicians could do failed to save him; and in his death this city loses one of its brightest and most respected business men, and the League of American Wheelmen one of its most loyal and hardest workers.

He was a great lover of bicycling, and was the League Consul from this district. He had made preparations to join the Elwell party of cyclers on their European tour the coming summer; but death has claimed him. He leaves many friends to mourn his loss."

LOW BICYCLES AND DOGS.

What safety rider has not noticed the appalling increase in the apparent number of dogs to be met with on the highway. It is ungraceful even if it were pleasant to hold ones leg horizontally while propelling the machine with the other and watching a huge bull dog trying to eat the rubber off the recently vacated pedal.

Who has not wished for various things at such a time, including perhaps, more courage. I do not advocate cruelty to even the yellowest dog, but there ought to be some means discovered by which we could indicate to the "Barker" family that their attentions are distasteful to us and in some way cause them to look upon a bicycle as a thing to be avoided. Sheet iron leggings have been suggested. But I think it should be something to apply to the dog, rather than to the innocent wheelman.

If the right thing be adopted it would be only necessary to apply it once to each dog. Whatever is used, it should not injure him permanently but should so act on his memory that he will hereafter regard a safety bicycle with suspicion. Some sort of Homeopathy many do in the case of those dogs whose names are "Carlo," "Jip" etc., but those of the "Towser" variety are less sensitive. Who will place his name among the great ones by giving us the much needed antidote?

KANSAS DIVISION MEET.

The next annual meet of the Kansas Division will be held at Forest Park, Ottawa, Kansas, June 4th, 5th, and 6th. The managers are making every effort to have it the largest and most successful meeting of wheelmen ever held west of the Mississippi, not excepting the national meet at St. Louis, in '87. The race programme consists of twenty events, to be run on the 5th and 6th, and includes two State championships, and the half mile and ten mile National L. A. championships. $600 will be given in prizes. The Ottawa wheelmen have secured the exclusive control of the park for the meet, and the track for the ten days' preceeding. The track, which has always been on of the best in the West, has been recently improved at a large expense, and will be in the finest condition for racing. It is hoped that eastern wheelmen will not be deterred by distance from attending. The prizes will be of a character to repay the expense and trouble of a long trip. A guarantee fund has been raised sufficient to pay all expenses and for all prizes, and everyone can rest assured that all promises will be faithfully carried out.

THE LANCASTER, PA., MEET.

The Lancaster, Pa., Bicycle Club expects on the coming Fourth of July to outdo its efforts of last season and arrangements are already being made and everything at this early day points to success.

Last year we held a race meet in June at our driving Park. The track which is one half mile is exceptionably fine and all of the racing men spoke highly of the condition in which we had put it, and were all well pleased with the generous prizes offered.

Well it was "our first offense" but considering everything was very successful.

This year we intend to improve, and the annoyance to racing men of last season, of a crowd of wheelmen and citizens on the track which resulted from a misunderstanding all around will be absent. Races will be run in the morning and afternoon of the 4th. At the last monthly meeting an amendment to the by-laws was passed making the Lancaster Bicycle Club again a League Club.

We are all live and active wheelmen, and wheeling was never up to such a "high water mark" as now, and we hope any wheelmen coming through Lancaster will give us an opportunity to show our hospitality and interest in cycling affairs.

CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

The Chicago Exposition building, in which the coming exhibit and tournament in that city is to be held, is by all means the finest structure for the purpose ever built. It is the largest roofed area in the world, without interior support, even the mighty Agricultural Hall, in London, being insignificent in comparison. In lenght it is 1,000 feet, in width, 240 feet, and in height, to the base of the flag-staff, 160 feet. The location of this leviathan is one of its principle charms. It stands on the lake front, 100 yards from the starting point of the great Pullman road race. To the south lies Michigan avenue, a magnificent boulevard for upward of a dozen miles directly south. To the north lie the aproaches to Dearborn avenue, an asphalt road three miles in length, and Lake Shore drive, another famous boulevard, connecting the city with Lincoln Park. To the west is Jackson street, which the most popular of West-Side routes, running to Farfield, Humboldt, and Douglas Parks. The city hall, all principal hotels, theatres, and railroad depots are within ten minutes walk of the building, which, in addition to being the largest, is doubtless the most centrally located in America.

Around the side of the structure runs a gallery, varying from twelve to thirty feet in width. It is over 500 yards in circumference, and on it several records were made four or five years ago. The racing tracks, of course, will be laid on the main floor, one for amarteurs, and one for professionals.

RACING AT NEW ORLEANS.

On March 31st, the much postponed race for the Batson Medal took place. The course was from the Toll Gate to West End, a distance of three miles. The day was lovely, the race was fine, and the boys were all happy. There were sixteen entries, but only twelve started. The race was won by Foster DeBuys with E. M. Graham, Grivot, Renaud, M. S. Graham, Frederic, Hathorn, Hill, Angamar, Nathan, Bogel and Harris following in the order named. The fastest actual time made was by E. M. Graham who rode a safety, his time being 11.55 for the three miles over a shell road and against a strong head wind.

C. H. Fenner, R. G. Betts, C. M. Fairchild and M. B. Spigg were the officers of the race.

DeBuys, Nathan and Grivot made their "debut" on the racing path in the above race.

PROVIDENCE RACE MEET.

The Rhode Island Wheelmen, of Providence, R. I., having decided to hold a tournament Decoration Day, May 30, 1889, at the far-famed Narragansett Park, a few remarks perhaps would not be out of place, as regards the track, etc.

The Narragansett Park was laid out by the Spragues, regardless of expense, to be the best track in the United States, and to say that they were successful is unnecessary, as the track, grand stand and grounds prove to all who see them.

Rowe, after he made his first mile in the remarkable time of 2.39 at Springfield, came to Providence the same year and made 2.39 at Narragansett Park, and it is proposed to have the track in equally as good shape, if not better, for time and records as then.

The accommodation for transit is the best, as it is intended to run a train from Boston straight to grounds, without change. Horse cars run to gate.

The following will be the bicycle events, to be run under L. A. W. rules: Two-mile national championship, one-mile novice, one-mile team race, three-mile State championship, one-mile safety championship of State, two-mile safety open, one-mile safety handicap, one-mile tandem safety, two-mile tandem safety handicap, one-mile open, one-mile handicap.

B. T. Bruce is elected Secretary of Executive Committee, and G. L. Cooke Treasurer.

NEW ORLEANS.

The following is the programme of the New Orleans Bicycle Club's races for the Hill Cup:

May 18—From Valence street to Carrollton, on St. Charles street.

June 22—From Halfway House to first bridge at West End.

July 20—From Lee Circle to West End, via Carrollton avenue.

Aug. 17—From corner of Claiborne and Canal streets to Spanish Fort.

Sept. 21—Heat race at Audubon Park.

The Racing Board having charge of these contests is composed of Messrs. C. P. Chapman, H. H. Hodgson, C. H. Fenner and F. M. Ziegler, Jr.

GREAT CENTURY RUN.

Rendezvous on 7th at Mountain House, Mountain Station, D. L. & W. R. R. (wheels free; supper, lodging and breakfast, $2.00; lodging and breakfast, $1.50; first class). Start 1 A. M.; Trenton (65 miles) 1.30 P. M.; Philadelphia, 7 P. M. Average rate, 7 1-2 per hour.

THE ROXBURY CLUB BALL.

As usual, the ball given by the Roxbury, Mass., Bi. Club last Wednesday evening, was a great success, a repetition of last year's event.

Chief Consul Emery is the President of this club, and when we announce that fact it will be understood that anything the Roxbury's undertake will be done well.

The members of the club ride well, they dance well and they entertain most acceptably. We speak whereof we know, as personal experience has taught us.

Long may the Roxburys live to scorch on the road and play the generous hosts in the ball room.

ESSEX BICYCLE CLUB.

The tenth annual meeting of the Essex Bicycle Club of Newark, N. J., was held at Davis' parlors on Thursday evening, April 11th.

The reports of the several officers were most satisfactory, excepting that part of the Captain's "Log" which showed a falling off in attendance upon club runs. Action, however, was taken looking towards improvement in this direction. The Secretary reported a marked increase in membership since the last annual meeting. After transacting necessary business, which provoked some lively discussions, the club adjourned to the dining-room, to partake of the annual dinner. The toasts, although impromptu, were responded to with vivacity and wit, Elwood C. Harris responding to "The Old Guard," Wm. S. Righter to "Headers," E. Eugene Sargeant to "Individual Idiosyncrasies," Madison Alling to "Wheeling Sketches," F. W. Keer to "The Ladies," and S. N. Atwater to "Our New Members." A humerous poem by Herbert W. Knight was received with much favor, eliciting unbounded applause; followed by a general interchange of views on "Cycling," and the experience of several tourist members on the admirable roads in Bermuda.

HIGH JINKS AT THE CHICAGO CLUB.

The Chicago Club has been wrenched to its very centres over several questions. First, "Shall we play billiards on Sunday?" Laid on table—to die. Second, "Shall 'Birdie' Munger be admitted to honorary membership?" After several amendments offered by the sarcastically inclined, that Armaindo, Morgan, Eck and Whittaker be also admitted, Munger was elected and declared an honorary member. The result has produced "high jinks" in the Chicago ranks, and a special meeting is talked of to reconsider the motion and election.

BUYING UP AMATEURS.

Editor Bicycling World: I think when any man comes out in print and makes the statements and insinuations that L. A. W. 820 does, under the above heading, he should be bold enough to sign his own name at the end of the article. I shall be glad to reply to No. 820 if he will be kind enough to tell us who he is, and where he comes from.

By kindly inserting these few lines in your valuable paper, you will oblige

Yours very truly, Sidney B. Bowman.

190 Broadway, New York. L. A. W. 6353.

TOLEDO, OHIO, CYCLERS.

This club is composed of eighty-five of the most prominent and acttive young men in this city, and are very go ahead, as the L. A. W. members who were here last State meet, will testify. To end the winter season festivities, the club last Saturday evening, gave a "smoker" to its members and friends, and a very jolly and smoky time they had. Talk about smoke; well, we had several Africans to shovel it out of the back door, and it made 'em hustle to keep the room clear.

The first number on the programme was gymasium class drill, under the direction of Mr. Keller. The drill was very interesting, and showed the very satisfactory result of calisthenics in body building. The next on the programme was lunch and cider, and a very enjoyable feature it was. Covers were laid for one hundred, and after washing down the bread, and cheese, and ham, and olives, and pickles, topped with oranges, bananas, and apples, with cider, cider, and cider, pipes and tobacco were brought forth, clouds of smoke began to ascend upward, and speeches and toasts were launched upon the unsuspecting assembly. The opening remarks by the President, on "The Cycling Club," were well received. He reviewed the past and pictured the bright future that was in store for the club. "The wheel" was very ably and humorously replied to by T. S. Parkhurst, the local hits taking especially well. A solo; by Mr. Lewis, was exceptionally well rendered. The gymnasium; by Mr. McKinnon, was handled in a very masterly manner, and elicited frequent applause. A quartette, composed of Messrs. Colton, Lewis, Hahn, and Love, sang the "Waiter Song" so well as to call for an encore. Our guests; by Mert Robinson, who only rides a "four wheel," with horse attachment, won applause. Then the recitation, by Bert St. John, though last, was none the less amusing. As it was now getting to be very near Sunday, Mr. Lewis started the familliar song, "Auld Lang Syne," with everybody helping in chorus, and thus dissolved the Toledo Cyclers' smoker.

MY RESPECTS TO THE LADIES.
BY "JACK."

Editor Bicycling World:—I should advise every young man who contemplates taking an uninitiated lady out for a cycle ride, to first teach her indoors, preferably at a school, (what's the matter with Bidwell's for New Yorkers?) or in a very quiet country lane, where she can at least master the elements of cycle riding without the supervision of the dear public. But, no; they run the tandem up to the curb, the young lady is assisted onto the front seat, and away they go. The poor girl is soon tired of this (to her) unusually severe exercise, and besides making an exhibition of herself, is very likely never to get on a wheel again. If cycling is beneficial to woman-kind, (and in moderation and propriety I think it is,) then it is worth man's while teaching woman, and if worth teaching her, is worth teaching her well. There is no girl who will not profit physically by the exercise, if taught her in a proper manner. The American girl is pretty and strong, and should ride a cycle well. In England I have seen some eminently graceful lady riders, and oh, horrors! some who made me wish they had never been put on a saddle, so unsuitably were they dressed, so badly were they mounted, and so awkwardly did they pedal. There's nothing I like better than to take a pretty girl out for a spin, [We are with Jack on that point. Ed.] One who sits well and can pedal properly; but the awkward, shoulder-bobbing rider—never! My nerves won't stand that. I have some pride left yet. Every girl who is taught properly, and who consequently rides well, is a pioneer among her own sex; every awkward "shoulder-bobber," is a hinderance or deterrant to others who fain would learn themselves if it looked more graceful in others.

Jack.

BETTER THAN PILLS.

A Nashville, Tenn., exchange relates the following conversation which was overheard between two gentlemen:

"They were seated in a car, and the speaker, a man whose hair was tinged with the frosts of at least sixty winters, was telling his companion of his experience with this prevalent and peculiarly American disease. He had, he said, been troubled with dispepsia for a number of years. He had tried many remedies, and had been under the care of many physicians, but each subsequent course of treatment had apparently only augmented the severity of the ailment. His last physician had prescribed for him for six months, and he had patiently and conscientiously followed his course of treatment, but to no purpose. Finally, finding that the disease would not yield to the potions prescribed, the physician told his patient to invest in a wheel. Having faith in the judgment of his medical adviser, he purchased a "trike." He had been riding it but a short time when he found that he could eat things which before would have been as repulsive to his stomach as a red flag to a bull in a big field. His appetite increased and in a short time he found himself thoroughly recovered, and wondered why this simple and effective remedy is not more generally adopted."

BALTIMORE AGAIN—OR WHERE?

A correspondent from Baltimore, who signs the nom de plume of "Skib," sends us a copy of a letter from President Luscomb, addressed to the chief consul of the Maryland division, asking that officer to confer with the members of that Division to find out if they wish to hold the 1889 meet at some place in the State—presumably Baltimore.

The following very sensible suggestion appears in President Luscomb's letter: "I would suggest in considering the advisability of your Division undertaking the meet of 1889, that extensive and expensive entertainment be done away with; that the assembling of the League be upon simple principles for the general advancement of wheeling interests, the promotion of the welfare of the League, and the interchange of opinions and ideas upon all matters connected with wheeling and our organization. The object should be to bring our members together for mutual acquaintance, discussion, and enjoyment from the wheelman's standpoint."

Our correspondent then says that the chief topic of conversation among wheelmen was the letter aforesaid. That many looked on it as a complementary recognition of the Division's efforts of last year, while he, the correspondent, was of the opinion, from "its general tone," that this letter was of a "circular" nature, and had been sent to all Divisions alike. He points out that the tendency of the past meets is bad, because each year the attempt to outdo and excel the generosity displayed in free entertainment, is discouraging and pernicious." As run during the past three or four years, "League meets" have been a strain on the pockets of the local cyclists and merchants of the cities where the meets have been held, to say nothing of the demand on the valuable time of the local men. In a nutshell, these meets are getting to be an expensive burden, and usually a city having once generously entertained, is not anxious to again take up the burden in a hurry.

"Skib" continues: "As the by laws provide that the Executive Committee shall decide on the place of the annual meet at the February meeting of the National Assembly, let the committee so appoint time and place for the holding of the annual meet; let the proper officials confer with the Division wherein the committee determined to meet, and make the necessary arrangements. Not for an elaborate form of free entertainments, but for a business meeting as required by the Constitution, and if desired a race meet to run off the championships, and any other form of entertainment they may desire, but let the members attending such meets pay for same, and if any profits are derived from them let it go to pay the National Association, and likewise let the national body stand all losses. If the local clubs see fit to provide any entertainments, such as open houses, etc., all well and good. But do away with this practice of offering to those attending league meets, a long list of free entertainments. These meetings are already looked upon more as an "annual frolic" than a business gathering. I do decidedly score myself as one opposed to league meets as held of late years."

But what has all of the above to do with holding the meet this year in Baltimore? Only this: If the Maryland Division is to be called upon to manage another meet similar to the one given last year, I for one (and I think four-fifths of the other members in the State will agree with me) am opposed to it, and I would use all my endeavors to defeat such a move. On the other hand, if the Executive Committee sees fit to name Baltimore as a place of meeting, I would be glad to see the meet come to our city, and I am satisfied that the Maryland Division would profit by it." It is customary for the clubs of Baltimore to have a race meet once a year, and sometimes twice. Then why not have the League meet here at that time? and whatever profits are derived from the races, let half or all, be turned over to the National Association to be used in defraying the expenses of a hall for holding the business meeting. A two days' meet could be arranged with very little trouble or expense. First day—Morning, business meeting; afternoon, runs through parks, suburbs and points of interest; night, if the clubs see fit, and no doubt they would, could be spent in visiting the various club houses where open house could be held; in this way the first day could be spent quietly but pleasantly. Second day—Morning, parade, if desired; afternoon, races; night, attend theatre or take a trip down the bay, as fancy may dictate. This plan is just in brief, but nothing is impossible, and I believe a meet held on the lines of the above would be very pleasant, either in Baltimore or anywhere else, and would be of more benefit than one of the old time frolics, both to the Division and to the National Association. It may not bring as large a list of visitors, but I venture to say that more in a business way would be accomplished, for the reason that those who attend meets for a grand frolic would stay at home, and those who have the interest of the organization at heart would attend, and further the interests of the L. A. W. and cycling generally."

The Western Arms Co., of Chicago, report big sales of the new Rapid Cycles.

Mr. S. T. Clark, of the Clark Cycle Co., has gone to England. The trade in the new Rapids imported by this firm is reported as very satisfactory.

The Capital Cycle Co., of Washington, D. C., report that of the seven forms of Psycho Safeties they sell 40 of their drop frame Psychos, suitable for both sexes, to one of their straight frames. This would indicate that the machine of the future is to be a safety wheel suitable for both sexes. This is as it should be, and will do much to disprove the statement that a bicycle is a "selfish" machine. We predict a prosperous future for this company, as the army of lady bicyclists increases daily. This company not only introduced ladies' bicycles, but has actually put on the market this season four weights of bicycles suitable for ladies, weighing 34 lbs., 39 lbs., 44 lbs. and 50 lbs.

Messrs. Schoverling, Daly & Gales have now the new stock of Wright & Ditson's well known Lawn Tennis goods, including their Sears' Special, New Pettitt and other rackets, Championship balls, adopted by all the leading associations, Columbia markers, Pettitt's shoes; also A. J. Reach's base ball supplies. They have also added a complete line of lawn tennis blazers, caps, belts, shoes, pants; an entirely new feature in blazers, in which they can supply any color or combination of colors, and would gladly send sample coats on approval. We think a visit to their store would amply repay any one. Agents for New Mail, Ideal, Vineyard, also a complete line of boys' safeties.

J. R. Rieumottom, on page 507, makes a pretty good offer to any one wanting a Gamera, a Roadster or a Racer.

J. W. Egolf, Spring City, Pa., writes: "Find enclosed cheque for Special Premier safety. The machine is giving good satisfaction. Please deliver the popular safety as soon as possible."

For business men, the Daily Cash Balance Book, published by W. L. Surprise, of Memphis, Tenn., is certainly a valuable addition to the counting room. See his advertisement, and send to him for a facsimile sheet.

We were walking down town the other morning, when we saw a handsome van, the body of which was painted a beautiful light sage green picked out with black, the wheels were lemon, lined with black, and the springs were painted a rich scarlet. A pair of large and sleek horses drew this wagon. On the panels of the van was painted the legend: "Singer & Co., Bicycles and Tricycles, 6 and 8 Berkeley Street." So the trade moves on!

Letters from the St. Georges Engineering Company report big sales and large orders from this country. They add: "Our order book for English trade proves that the ordinary here is more popular this year than it was last."

In a personal letter to J. Purvis-Bruce—"Jack"—Mr. Wm. Edwin Haskell, proprietor and editor of the Minneapolis Tribune (the cleanest and most progressive paper in the Northwest), on whose staff "Jack" some time ago did the sport and "cycling" work, writes as follows: "I am doing some bicycling myself now, and am riding, with a good deal of benefit to my health, one of the new Victor Safeties." Mr. Wm. E. Haskell is a son of Mr. Haskell of the Boston Herald, and has long taken an interest in cycling, owning the first tandem that ever came to Minneapolis, many years ago. His paper has long been favorably regarded by cyclists throughout the Northwest, as it has always been a champion of their wants and interests.

MY CYCLING LOG BOOK. By "Papa" Weston. The transitory pleasures of cycling can be made as permanent as its physical benefits, by jotting down in a well devised log book, the distances and incidents of one's various journeys. Knowing that such a record is a most pleasant thing to have, and believing that the keeping of such should be encouraged, as tending to the permanent good of cycling in more ways than can be referred to here. The Log Book is handsomely and strongly bound in red leather, will last for years of constant use, and is the best arranged book of its kind ever yet devised. It fills a want often felt by the cyclist who values records of interest for future reference. Price, post paid, $1.25. For sale by Bicycling World Co., 12 Pearl st., Boston.

☞ Postage stamps not received in payment.

LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS:
12 Pearl Street, - - - - Room 27
ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

WE are under obligations to many members who have sent us literature regarding fire brick pavements. Our columns are now so crowded that we cannot use the space we would like to give the subject, but we have sent all the papers to those parties who wished to get, through us, information regarding the pavement.

THE renewals are coming in very fast. We have at date of writing 3000 renewals on the books. On the even date of last year we had but 1125. If the pace keeps up we shall go far ahead of the best record.

St. Louis, April 10th, 1889.

From the Racing Board.

To District Handicappers, Race Meet Promoters and Racing Men:

We now have the country divided into Racing Districts, in each of which is located an official League handicapper, who will attend to handicapping and classifying the racing men. Racing men are warned that to compete in a race not handicapped or classified by the proper official, means suspension from the race track.

For the benefit of all parties the following plan should be adopted as it will make the handicapper's work easier, insure the racing men fair handicapping and classification, and do away with much of the "kicking" always to be heard at the tape.

Promoters of Race Meetings should request (on the entry blank) each racing man, who enters a handicap race, to give the distance of the handicap and position in the finish, in his last two races. They should also request (on the entry blank) each racing man, who enters a class race, to give his best previous time for that distance, and also his best time for each shorter distance, than the race for which he enters. Every wheelman will readily see the advantage to be derived, it this plan is followed. Racing men must send in correct answers or be liable to suspension under clause 2 of rule 23. If they neglect to furnish this information, providing the Race Promoters request it, they are liable under the same rule. The clause, requiring that entries to handicap and class races, close seven days prior to date of contest, and that the lists be forwarded to the handicapper not later than five days previous, must be strictly followed. There is no city or town in any of the Racing Districts from which a letter, properly mailed, cannot reach the district handicapper, the lists be arranged and the same be returned in time for printing on the score card. In order to accomplish this the rule must be observed to the letter. If the promoters of the different race meetings will adopt this plan, it will save the Board from again amending the rules; otherwise we shall be obliged to make this plan, or one similar, compulsory.

The Racing Rules are in the hands of the printer, and will be ready for distribution very soon. We dislike to amend them so soon after their issue, and trust it will not be necessary.

Copies of the rules may be obtained of any board member, or of the handicappers by enclosing a two cent stamp for return postage.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued seventeen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and address are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list to the following week.

Centlemen--I am more than pleased with my '89 Rambler, and after an experience of six years, during which time I have ridden several different makes of high grade wheels, both of the safety and ordinary pattern, I am safe in saying that the Rambler is the easiest running wheel I ever rode.

The new spring, which, with the aid of the broken joint, allows the pedals and saddle to move together, is a big improvement, and in rough road riding it does not have a tendency to throw the power off the pedals, as in the case of the springs in other safeties.

Yours truly,

HAL S. OSBORN,

Capt. Rambler Cycle Club.

Dear Sirs—Enclosed find check to balance account for 39x24 Star. It is the best wheel I ever rode. Have surmounted hills that no one ever thought could be ridden, and generally confirmed the other safety riders as to speed as well. Yours truly,

Gentlemen—I ride a 48-inch Special, and am more than suited with it. This is the third season and it is as sound as a new wheel. I never had a spoke grip on it yet.

Dears Sirs—My new 39-inch Star arrived yesterday, and it is a beauty. I gave it a good trial, and find that for the rough, sandy, hilly roads which surround this place, it gives me better satisfaction than my 45. As to speed I think there is little if any difference. Truly yours.

Gentlemen—Star received on the 14th. Handle bar and brake lever very satisfactory. This is quite a machine, I like it better than either the 45 or 48-inch Star; it is the easiest wheel up hill I ever rode, and under favorable conditions has lots of speed. If you had only got this 39x24 out before the "Safety craze" struck us there would have been no limit of its sale.

Yours,

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 26 APRIL, 1889.

OUR PAPER WAS MAILED.

LAST week our whole edition was in the Boston Post Office by 4 P. M. Saturday. All the New England papers were in the mail by Friday night.

Please send on complaints and we will try and trace the cause of the delay. We shall repeat this notice weekly, for some time to come.

THE thoughts of every hard worker is now refreshingly turned toward the near at hand season, when the early closing on Saturdays will once more be in order. We believe in this half holiday on Saturday most thoroughly: it is equally good for the employer and the employed. The idea that the employer was losing just so much valuable time is an exploded one, the employer and employee are both benefited. We Americans have been apt to think that every moment lost from our business was dollars thrown away, but a practical test has proven this not to be so. We would like to see every store and every office in the city of Boston closed at 12 noon every Saturday during the summer season. It gives the boys a chance to take a little run on a cycle away from the business cares and fretting of this work-a-day world.

THE riders of the West who are active in the movement to form a racing organization, in which the lines dividing the amateur from the professional are abolished, are making a great mistake. History will simply repeat itself, and the fate of the A. C. U., formed by Mr. Ducker some three years ago, (and dead nearly as long ago), will be the fate of the "League Union Cyclists." We quote our Denver correspondent. "The principle aims of this organization are the running of races on the class system, and the abolishment of the amateur rule."

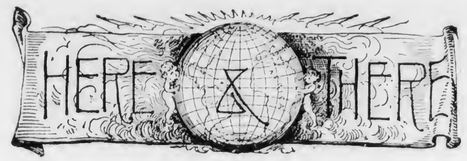
These gentlemen should remember that they are placing themselves in direct antagonism to every one of the many powerful organizations that are built on the foundation of amaturism. They must recollect that the L. A. W. is not the only organization that insist on the amateur law, and therefore, if the L. U. C. becomes an organization, and holds races under the proposed rules, the competitors will be barred from all amateur contests, not only by the L. A. W., but by all the other amateur associations in the country. This may seem a very trivial matter to our Denver friends, but in all good feeling we raise the word of warning, so that they cannot hereafter plead ignorance.

WE thought that it was strange that the usually well-posted editor of the Wheel should make the erroneous comment on the racing rules governing the barring of safeties from ordinary races, but the explanation he made, that the sheet containing the amended racing rules got lost, and it thus escaped his eye, is a reasonable one. We are all liable to slips, even if we are editors.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., has sent out an invitation for the League to meet in that city.

THE defeat of the bill for the appointment of a "Commissioner of Roads and Bridges," in the Massachusetts Legislature, leaves the Massachusetts L. A. W. Division with something to work for. The bill would have given the State an almost perfect system of road improvement. This some of the committee who reported against it acknowledge, but the old prejudice against wheelmen, together with a feeling that the bill which created a Superintendent of Streets in each town, which was gained early in the session, was sufficient for one Legislature to do, was strong enough to prevent the average member from doing perfect work for the State.

One member stated upon the floor of the House, that "wheelmen are never satisfied: we have given them the earth and they want a fence: we have given them the Superintendents of Streets, and now they ask more."



Is this Statemanship? not to consider the merit of the bill, or the benefit to be obtained from it, but d—n it because wheelmen desired it? Had the member stopped to consider that better roads in many localities are an absolute necessity to prevent personal injury to a wheelman, he would have known that the wheelmen would favor only that measure which would give the best results. Better roads are admitted to be a desirable object by everyone, and wheelmen are necessarily honest in the support of the best measure to obtain the desired end.

The doing away with the worn out system of Highway Surveyors and the appointment of one responsible head, a Superintendent of Streets in each town, is alone sufficient success for the division to congratulate itself that it has made a long stride toward better roads, perhaps all it ought to have expected for its season's work.

MR. E. J. SHRIVER has something to say, on another page, on the reconstruction of the election system of the L. A. W.

WE notice that our Chicago correspondent talks of raising $10,000 dollars for the entertainment of the League next year in Chicago. This is very generous, but we sincerely hope that it will end in talk. Last week we spoke about the bad effects of expensive entertainment, and we urge on the wheelmen of Chicago, and every other place where the meetings of the future may be held, to go slow on the appropriation business. Let us have less money spent in entertainment. Let the "visitors" pay their own way more. This extravagant method of running things is too much of a strain on the generosity of wheelmen.

PROBABLY there will be no road racing in Missouri. The amended Warner Bill, forbidding it, has passed the House of that State by one vote.

BUFFALO.

"ALI BABA."

WM. S. BULL, Chief Consul of New York State Divison, has issued a new form of application for official hotels in this State. Mr. Bull stated that it was a difficult matter at first to get the principal hotel men to recognize the League. But that has all passed. They are now clamorous for the League's patronage, and will recognize the applications sent out by Mr. Bull. He intends to have placed in each official league hotel a record book, which will only be shown to the applicant upon presentation of his league ticket. He may make such entry as to condition, etc., of the road over which he has just ridden, as will be of benefit to those who will afterwards refer to it. The proprietor of the hotel, who consents to the agreement, will hang in a conspicuous place in the hotel office the certificate of appointment.

WHILE Buffalo has been enjoying the warm sunshine and the balmy air of spring, our southern friends have had the satisfaction of wading through snow up to their hubs. It does seem ridiculous to read the shout of the press—it is something like this: Ho! for Buffalo as a spring resort! It is very easy to be adapted to present conditions. The dreadful is so soon forgotten; one ray of sunshine dispels many former ills.

THIS is the time when the wheelmen need to be cautious. It seems warm enough down on earth, but when you stride the saddle and go sailing through mid air, you seem to go through a cold stratum, which soon numbs the fingers, and will chill one to the marrow unless you wear everything double.

MR. BULL returned from New York recently, whither he had gone to visit the New York and Brooklyn clubs. He has a strong desire to get the Brooklyn clubs back into the League.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

ALL Illinois Club members have boycotted the Herald, owing to an item that appeared in that paper, stating that Tom Roe was the Referee in the ladies' bicycle race, and that Mr. Roe was Captain of the Illinois Cycling Club.

IT is quite probable that an amateur twenty-four-hour race will be one of the features at the coming cycling tournament here. If so, the local contestants will propably be Mason, Riggs, Roe, Hammel, Spooner, Bert Myers, and Maas Otto.

THE Lincoln Club are trying hard to have Lincoln Park thrown open to wheelmen in the evening, and are getting up a petition to present the Park Commissioners that has already assumed mammoth proportions.

VAN SICKLEN, Winship, Lumsden, Hammel and Ehlert will probably be the scratch men in the Pullman road race this year, although Van says he will not ride in the race, as, if he should win, he would be cheated out of the victory. This sounds rather childish coming from the old "war horse."

THERE has been nearly a hundred ladies' bicycles sold in this burg this year thus far, and the end is not yet.

THE latest addition to cycling clubdom is the Alpha Cycling Club, located at Normal Park, who threaten to sweep everything before them in all contests this year.

SAM MILES has been in St. Louis the past week, in the interests of the coming tournament.

J. C. ELLIS has a new idea, and is trying to get it in operation, and that is to have an association of Chicago wheelmen, composed of L. A. W. members only, and thinks that if this was brought about we could easily raise $10,000, to entertain the League with here, next year; while some of the politicians think this would never do, as the organization would be run entirely by the Illinois Club. As every member of that club belongs to the League they would have a large majority in the new organization, if one were formed.

ELLIS also says that why he should be called club kicker is something he never coulld understand, as he does less kicking than any man in his club.

THE bicycle part of the parade in honor of "Spaulding's Globe Trotters" was considerable of a fizzle, there being only twenty wheels in line.

"TWINKLE" devotes a column of the L. A. W. Pointer to a criticism of a recent article in the Inter Ocean, descriptive of a tour made by six young wheelmen of Jacksonville, Ill. Poor "Twinkle" evidently must have been suffering from indigestion (certainly it could not have been from jealousy of the author, when he wrote that criticism. We shall have to call you the "Critic" in the future, Mr. Secretary.

MINNEAPOLIS NOTES.

"PARSON."

THE weather, which has been very rough for the past few days, has cleared up, and we smile again. The several agents report this as the best year known for the bicycle business. The safety craze has struck this town and struck it hard, and now all one hears is "what kind of a wheel shall I ride?"

I DROPPED into Morton's the other day and found everyone busy, so strolling into their bicycle department I ran across a safety with a card on, which bore the following: "No, you can't take a header on me. Yes, I can go up a steep hill. No, I am not as fast as my larger cousin, but I try to get a lunch while he is taking a square meal. Don't mention it, sir, you are welcome."

THE M. B. C. had to postpone their club run this week, on account of rain, but if the weather permits a run will be taken to Anoka on Sunday.

MEMBERS of the club are all busy preparing for the formal opening of their new rooms, which occurs on Thursday next. A very interesting programme will be presented. Will give you full particulars in my next.

THE M. B. C. team have issued a challenge to any team in the State, for a race any distance, on road or track.

SEVERAL of our "scorchers" are thinking of entering the Chicago to Pullman road race. I should give the following celebrated advice, as given by Punch: "Don't," the company is too fast for you.

THERE are several clubs in the State who talk of building tracks. If this amounts to anything more than talk some good races will be the result.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

SOME of the Centurions were beautifully taken in the other day, while on the road. Coming down Broad street they tackled a rider on a safety, who was dressed in plain everyday clothes, and looked like some tender-foot, so picking him up at a lively pace, they proceeded to "warm" him, according to the time honored custom of doing a gr en-horn. But the gray-coated Century men did not know that the quiet-looking individual was one of the oldest and best known riders in the city, and that he was riding a safety geared to 57, consequently the small machine "stayed there" right along down Broad street, and when opposite Monument Cemetery, Mr. G, (let us call him) put on a little more steam, and left the graycoats far in the rear, a more surprised set of Centurions you never saw.

PENNSYLVANIA'S ball on Thursday night, together with that of the South End Wheelmen, which comes off at St. George's Hall the same evening, and the third annual banquet of the Century Wheelmen at the Collonnade Hotel, will give us a week of festivity. The only question, so far as I am concerned, is as to whether, after a midnight supper with the choice spirits of the Century, I will be in any condition to do the ball on the following evening.

GREAT rivalry exisits between the South End and Pennsylvania Clubs, as to the respective merits of the scorchers of each organization on the road, and there have been several little brushes of late. In order to definitely settle the question, Captains Supplee and Dimon will each call a club run to Norriston on the same day—probably next Sunday—and on the ride home a sort of impromtu road race will be indulged in. Under the silver keystone will ride Merrihew, McDaniel, Supplee, Hill, Fuller, McCloskey, Elliot, and a few more noted names, (what do you think of them, gentlemen from down town?), while the main stay of the South End will be the three Klobs, Wilson, Dimon, Bradley, et al. There will be some fun, and I am going to see it.

THE Century Club house is being rapidly furnished. The new wheel room is 66 by 25, one of the largest in the city, and they have just put in a magnificent suite of parlor furniture, with carpets to correspond. As an evidence of the boom the new has house given them, twenty-seven new names have been proposed for membership within the two weeks elapsing since last meeting.

AT the regular meeting of the Mt. Vernon Wheelmen, last week, the club decided to rent a new house on Continental avenue, and will move as soon as arrangements can be made. Their membership is now over fifty, and in fact, all the clubs are reporting heavy increases. Cycling is on the boom in the Quaker city.

MR. GEORGE D. GIDEON, the well-known rider of the Tioga Cycling Club, has been appointed official handicapper for this district, and is busily engaged in figuring out the respective abilities of the local racing men. Of the latter, Merrihew, Saxis and Draper will bear the most watching. Saxis has shown up remarkably well in practice this season, and will, I think, make a flyer.

A VERY enjoyable occasion was that of the visit paid by the Camden Wheelmen to the South End Club rooms last Saturday night. Some twenty-odd Jersey men came over and spent a lively evening, wrestling, sparring, etc., soothed by the music of the club orchestra, and interspersed by fancy riding by Messrs. Bradley and Green. Of course they smoked, furiously, (they always do) and as the active exercises whetted their appetites, cider and doughnuts were provided in liberal style by their entertainers. The South End are noted hosts.

DIAMOND street has always been one of the noted resorts for riders, but since the introduction of the new electric light last week, night riding appears to have doubled. All sorts and conditions of wheels are spinning over its smooth surface every afternoon and evening, among which are a number of ladies riding safeties and tandem bicycles. Of the latter, I must say that I prefer the type with a bar connecting the two handles. Its main objection—in fact the only one—is the claim the front rider would be impeded in case of a side fall, but this is not so unless going at a high rate of speed.

NEW YORK.

"JACK."

I WONDER if Prial, of the Wheel, knows that there is a newspaper published in Stillwater Penetentiary (Minnesota)? If he does, he should exchange with it, so as to let some of his editorials on prison life (as it is and should be) gain circulation among the inmates. One of the Younger Brothers (of Jesse James notoriety) is managing or society editor, or something of the kind, and might deign to read editorials in the behalf of jailed men.

I WONDER if the cycling critic is one of the favored ones of nature. He is the rooster that sits on the fence and crows scornfully at the effort of his fellows to do something. If they fail, he crows them (as is his mission) into the grave of oblivion. If they succeed, he crows yet the louder that he may perchance detract from their successes. Honest workers go to the wall, but the unproductive soured creature crows on unmolested. He cries "chestnuts" when every other man is "snowed under," and when Gabriel blows his trumpet the "creature" will be found crowing away, and criticising the quality of the note of the horn. There are a few of these chaps in our midst, who do nothing but cry "chestnuts" at other people, when their own face is in need of Pears' or Proctor & Gamble, and their own stockings need mending.

A. B. BARKMAN'S twenty-five-mile Irvington-Milburn road race is going to be a success, as things look now. A. B. never has a moment to talk about anything. Fly up and down the stairs at Spalding's like a sheet of tissue paper in a gale of wind; "must get that 'safety' off," he yells, and then there is a vision of a blue Norfolk jacket, a pair of brown eyes, a beard and a derby hat, and the man has gone to lunch. Bless his heart, but I'll interview him yet, and give him three columns and a cut of his upper anatomy that will send him "daft."

THEN there's Elliot Mason and that man of his who always laughs. Dammie! if I don't believe if you told him it was to be the last day in twenty-four hours, that he'd laugh till he sprinkled the floor so that the boy with the green watering-pot would be knocked out of his favorite pastime, of making circles round the knot holes in the pine floor.

I HAD the pleasure of meeting on Sunday, at the Citizens' club house, two of the members, Dr. Brooks H. Wells and Mr. George Martin Huss. Had a long chat with Dr. Brooks, who seemed to think cycling was growing very fast. Mr. Huss is a great authority on the delights of the bath after a run in the dust and heat.

IN the Park on Sunday I noticed some fellows who should be well spanked. There were some fourteen of them, dressed in skin-tight black full tights, who only wanted a few spangles and a lime-light effect to make them look like black demons. I wonder how these men would like to walk home in that abominable rig? Now do show some decency, some of you fellows, for the sake of other people, and for the cleanliness of the sport, if for nothing else. It is not decent—that is the long and the short of it.

THE club men with the gold epaulets and shoulder stripes are also objects of great admiration to nurse-maids and other crude organisms, but to more civilized eyes they are barbarous a wee bit. The cycling suit is giving place to the cycling uniform, which is a nuisance, and of which there is no earthly need. No horseman rides in uniform. His clothing is only adapted (as should be the cycling suit) to the requirements of the wheel. That is all.

AT his health factory and dispensary, at 313 West 58th street, I saw Mr. George R. Bidwell, a gentleman of goodly frame and exterior and pleasant, easy manner, who reports business in all the various directions in which he pushes it in the cycling line, as extremely good.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

THE Hagerston, Md., "Norval" club expresses their desire to have the coming L. A. W. meet held in that town, and they are making an earnest effort to have Hagerstown selected. The club has answered Mott's letter, and he has sent the invitation to President Luscomb. The invitations for their meet to be held July 2, 3, 4 will not be sent out until a reply is received from Mr. Luscomb.

KINGSLAND, the Baltimore crack, will soon go into active training for the Chicago races to be held in May. He thinks he will pull out several victories.

THERE is some talk of re-organizing and changing the name of the "Cycling Ramblers," a club which organized at Westminster, Md., about two years ago. Lately very little interest has been taken by the members of the club.

THE Centaur Club has given out the contract for its club house.

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

LAST Thursday the N. H. Bicycle Club held its final smoker for the season. The punch bowl bobbed up serenely, and was emptied with the usual dispatch peculiar to the methods of the N. H. Bi Club members.

APRIL 12th is Fast Day in this State, and we celebrated it by having a parade, a photograph taken, and a run to Beauford Point. Dinner at the Beauford House was taken, after which a game of base ball was played in a style that would have made your ten thousand dollar beauties weak, could they have seen it.

I NOTICE in the last week's Wheel an article urging cyclists to join the League. The Wheel has usually claimed that there was no advantage in League membership, and so I was pleased to see this evidence of a change of heart.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

A CURIOUS case of mistaken identity, in which a cyclist acted as detective, occurred in Belleville, N. J., the other day. A Mrs. Snow, of that place, rushed out of her house and shouted that a couple of men who had just boarded the Newark car had robbed her. The charge was heard by a cyclist who was riding by, and he at once followed the car and at the first opportunity telephoned to the Newark police to be on hand to arrest "the burglars." He then continued on, and as the men alighted he identified them, and they were arrested. It turned out to be a case of mistaken identity, and apologies galore filled the air.

IN Massachusetts, if a dog rush out at you while passing quietly along the highway, you may kill him if you can, and the law will not say you nay.

THE Lansing (Mich.) Bicycle Club prohibit sidewalk riding.

THE Albany (N. Y.) Wheelmen respectfully decline to consolidate with the Albany Cycle Club, and so the proposed deal is off.

WINDLE is building a five-lap track on his father's farm at Millbury, Mass., so that he can do all his training at home.

THE St. Johnsbury, Vt., trustees have commenced to improve and rebuild the city streets. In congratulating the people of St. Johnsbury on the proposed improvement, the Republican of that place says: "The announcement that something is to be done in the way of permanent improvement of our roads will be good news to everybody. Under the old and antiquated system which has so long been followed no good results are possible, while at the same time it is the most costly and expensive system that could be devised. For instance, during the last fifty years enough money has been spent on Eastern avenue to pave it its entire length with silver, and yet its condition this spring has been a disgrace to a civilized community."

HARTFORD will be at the front, as usual, this year in giving a grand tournament, at about the usual date. This tournament will be strictly amateur, no professional events at all.

NEW HAVEN is talking tournament; in fact, racing this season seems to be on the boom.

E. P. BURNHAM, the appointee of Chairman Davol as handicapper for New England, is a good selection. We believe Mr. Burnham will establish a good record in his official capacity.

HARTFORD Wheel Club will hold a hill climbing contest Decoration Day. The eminence selected is situated in the Capital Park. The contest will be one for best time, one ascension.

IN all probability Windle will go to Europe, as representing the New York Athletic Club, and compete in all the open and prominent events. This great little man stands five feet six inches, and when in training weighs 145 pounds. He has started in sixty races, winning fifty-five firsts.

THE Hartford Wheel Club have lately renovated their club house at an expense of over $600. The house has been entirely "cleaned out," and the walls and paint renewed, and entirely refurnished, and now the house can scarce be recognized by those who have not seen it since last fall. The club will probably give an opening reception some time in May.

THE Forest City Ramblers, of Cleveland, Ohio, will have a 25-mile handicap road race May 30th.

THE Long Island wheelmen will hold a ladies' reception on Monday next, the 29th.

THE New York Press states that "by actual count 228 wheelmen went by a given point in Central Park on Sunday last, while at the same time and place only ninety-seven vehicles of every other description passed."

WE had a pleasant call from Mr. Geo. K. Barrett, of Chicago, a prominent member of no less than seven amateur associations of that city.

LYNN, Mass., has one lady who cares not for the public prejudice, and she rides a safety.

THE papers seem to have more than the usual number of accidents recorded to riders of the bycycle. Perhaps the inaction of the winter months has something to do with the state of affairs.

THE Cambridge (Mass.) Club will give a minstrel entertainment at Union Hall next Thursday, May 2d. The Cambridge Club is justly celebrated for the excellence of their performances and we have no doubt that standing room only will be posted at the door on that occasion.

WE shall be pleased to hear from No. 21033 when the spirit moves him.

PROF. CARL MEYER seems to think he hss solved the problem of aerial navigation. For our sake we hope he has; but it is so easy to theorize and so difficult to put into practical operation. The flyer is described as being so compact that the rider seated upon it almost conceals the apparatus, with the exception of its driving wheel, of which two sizes have thus far been built, of twelve and forty-five feet respectively. The larger wheel weighs only six pounds and has a motion in revolution of about fifty feet per second. It is intended to be worked like a bicycle, but runs along the air lines instead of on the ground, and is driven by the hands and feet of the rider just high enough to escape obstacles. It steers simply by leaning in the direction the rider desires to travel—up, down, right or left—and is adapted to be supported by either a parachute kite or a so-called "hydrogen spindle."

NEW JERSEY is the most progressive State in regard to improvment of highways in the country. Witness the fact that the Union County Board have decided to raise $150,000 for the improvement of county roads. Bravo, Jersey.

HOW easy it is for a racing man at the end of the season to say, "I will not race next season," and how difficult when the "next season," comes around for this same man to keep off the track, vide Willie Windle's resolves made in 1888, and his entrance to the Havard Bicycle Club events this spring.

THE two miles L. A. W. championship will be run at Providence, May 30th.

W. WINDLE will appear on the path May 11th at the Harvard Bicycle Club races.

THE Brownsville, Pa., Cycle Club willl have a meeting July 4th.

THE Kings County Wheelmen, of Brooklyn, will hold a two days' tournament, June 28-29. A committee has been appointed to arrange details.

THE Long Island Wheelmen will hold a tournament June 15.

RALPH TEMPLE was in town last week. His friends were glad to see him.

REMEMBER the date of the Harvard Club races is May 11th. See advertisement.

LAST Saturday Windle took a tremendous header, the effects of which may interfere with his early spring engagements.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[ALL communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—ED.]

My dear friend, Miss H., of Jamaica Plain, has astonished all her acquaintances by a demonstration of her ability to ride the two-wheeler without "falling off." They were not aware that she had a machine of this kind until they saw her riding it with the ease and grace of an old rider. And this is the way she did it. The sitting-room of the family mansion is very large, and it was an easy matter to improvise a riding hall by removing the furniture. This was done each evening for a week or more, and, guided by her father, the young lady circled the room until she was able to make the circuit alone and unaided. No matter if a bit of paint was knocked off here and there; no matter for bruises on the paper and the necessarily resultant dirt. Spring cleaning is at hand, and soon there will be no handwriting on the wall to tell the world that once this sitting-room was a riding school.

It was to be expected, and therefore I am not surprised. I looked for some over enthusiastic rider of the bicycle to let go the flood gates of wrath upon my devoted head, for my temerity in suggesting that perhaps the bicycle was not the only machine which ladies should ride, and that there were useful and pleasant purposes to which the tricycle and tandem might still be put. It has come. A writer in the Wheel gives a column to my case, but as she does not even attempt, except in one instance, to reply to my arguments, I do not feel called upon to take up cudgels in my own defence. Moreover, I agree with my critic when she tells the WORLD that a great mistake has been made in securing Helen Grey to conduct the Ladies' Department of this journal.

The one instance in which the correspondent takes issue with me leads to the assertion on her part that a rider is in more danger from dogs when on a tricycle than when on a bicycle, because, forsooth, the dogs always come at one from behind, and there the tricycler is unprotected. It may be that the dogs of Washington and New York attack one from the rear, but New England dogs have an exasperating way of coming at one from the side. A gentleman once said to me, "why don't you run over the dogs when they rush out at you?" This is a case where the spirit has been often wickedly willing, but the body woefully weak. Your correspondent, Mr. Elliott, who complains of the dog nuisance, will probably refuse to believe that he is safer from their attacks on the two-wheeler than he is on the three. But it were idle to discuss this point.

A Providence correspondent tells me that the ladies of that city are, to a woman, united in favor of the bicycle. In addition to the ladies who have been announced in this column as converts, she instances Miss Ashley, who rides an Invincible, and Miss Blackmar, who rides a Swift. Miss Sheldon and Mrs. Waterhouse have ordered wheels, and the Thurbers are to have a T. B. The Rhode Island Wheelmen have received a Columbia T. B. for the use of the members. Providence never does things by halves. They are to have a whole day of sport on Memorial Day, and there is good prospect that a very sizable procession of ladies on wheels will be seen moving towards the park at Cranston when the eventful day arrives.

From away down in Mississippi comes this suggestion: "In answer to Miss Helen Grey's call to suggest a short name for the tandem bicycle, I would reply that a name, covering the qualities of bicycle, safety and tandem, would be propper to apply as name to above mentioned machine, therefore I submit to your kind consideration the name 'bicyclope.'"

I am afraid that is too long. The following comes from a lady of Manhattan. I will venture the assertion that her husband is a Mason. "In your issue of April 12th you say 'tandem bicycle is too long. Will not someone give us a single word for this machine so that we may economise words and time?' In this part of the country a single safety is called a 'goat,' why not call a double safety a 'goatee?'"

From Washington comes a news paper in which Mrs. Spooner tells of a delightful ride taken by herself and a companion into the

THE EAGLE.

OPINIONS OF THOSE WHO RIDE IT.

NEW YORK, April 14th, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in saying that for easy running, as a hill climber, and safety, the "Eagle" ranks with the best, and in point of material and finish cannot be improved

Respectfully yours,

W. C. MARION, JR., Capt. Kings County Wheelmen.

NEW YORK, April 17th, 1889.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Dear Sirs: I have had my "Eagle" now, about a month, and I like it better every time I ride it. It took me but a few minutes to learn to mount, and I think any "Star" rider can handle the wheel "on sight"; an ordinary rider it will take a little longer.

I have been riding for several years, and have tried almost every kind of wheel, and now feel more thoroughly suited than I ever have been.

I can assure you that it is a comfort to be able to ride them down dangerous hills without fear of "headers," and at the same time run no risk of having to train or walk home on account of a broken chain or a "busted" spring.

As regards finish and workmanship, every one who has seen the wheel, bears me up in saying that they are equal to the best.

Yours very truly,

W. E. ELDRIDGE, 323 York Street, Jersey City.

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., April 16th, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: During the past six years I have ridden as many different wheels. I have ridden the "Eagle" for four weeks, and will candidly say that I never rode a wheel that pleased me as well. It is the lightest running wheel I ever rode, and the reason for this is simply because the large wheel carries all the weight, and the push of the rider is directly down, thus giving the benefit of the weight of the rider to the push.

I can ride it on one wheel about as well as if the forward wheel was on the ground, and as to workmanship it is simply perfect. To sum it all up, it has the best points of both "Ordinary Crank" and "Star" wheels combined in one machine. If I could not get another "Eagle" I would not trade mine for two of the best wheels I ever saw. Very truly yours,

CHAS. B. SCUDDER, Capt. Huntington Bicycle Club.

BOSTON, MASS., April 16th, 1889.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: Yours of the 15th at hand and noted. Your "Eagle" machines forwarded have come to hand, and we must say that they surprise us as being elegant wheels in every way as regard make-up and finish. So many crude affairs are the result of a first season in most makes that it pleases us very much to note the perfection at which you have arrived from the very start.

Trusting that your evident care and forethought on this wheel may meet with due reward, I remain, Yours,

W. W. STALL.

SOUTHAMPTON, CT., April 16th, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycling Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: Now that I have ridden an "Eagle long enough to form some idea of what there is in the machine, I desire to express my satisfaction both as to the workmanship on same and as to its riding qualities. The workmanship certainly compares favorably with that of any other make of wheel. As to its riding qualities, it is enough to say that after having ridden the "Eagle" for less than four weeks, I have decided to discard my former mount in favor of the above wheel. Very truly, EDWIN N. WALKLEY.

NEW YORK, April 17th, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: I have never seen or ridden in my seven years' experience as a wheelman, a machine that could be ridden up hill with so much ease. There being no gearing or clutches of any sort, and the rider being directly over the pedals, makes the "Eagle" in my estimation, the best hill-climbing bicycle on the market to-day. As to finish, ease of running, workmanship and beauty, it is all told in the one word "incomparable. It is the coming wheel.

Yours truly, HARRY PARK, 129 E. 16th Street, New York.

DANBURY, CT., April 19th, 1889.

L. B. Gaylor, Stamford, Conn.:—

Dear Sir: I am more satisfied with the "Eagle" ever day that I ride it. Can climb almost as steep hills as I ever could on an "Ordinary," and am only beginning. It runs remarkably easy on the roads, and on our stone block pavement, it can be ridden at greater speed, with less jar and vibration to the rider, than any wheel I ever rode, which I think is due to the spring frame and the small amount of weight on the front wheel. I remain, Yours very truly, ORVILLE W. SWIFT, Danbury, Conn.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 17th, 1889.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:—

Gentlemen: In reply to yours of the 15th inst. can say I have never ridden a machine in which there were so many elements of worth as in the "Eagle." I have never seen its equal for ease of driving, for hill work, for comfort or for safety, and I have ridden nearly every machine on the American market. I am satisfied that it is a conscientiously built wheel, and well calculated for the heavy work of our roads. Truly yours, FRED SHUTT.

country. With it comes a letter from which I will make a few extracts:

"While out riding the other day I passed a man who seemed very much surprised to see a lady riding a bicycle. Turning to another, he said, 'She ought to have been a man in the first place.' Now I suppose he thought I wanted to be a man. He never was more mistaken in his life. If there is anything that I am thankful for it is that I am a woman. My husband used to say to me, 'I do wish you would go out more and get strong. Let everything go. Get out!' I don't care whether the house is clean or not.' But I could not summon up courage to get out until I got my bicycle. It is such a different way of going, and gives me so much pleasure that I no longer need to be urged. I am now out every day that is pleasant. I am very much stronger, and I have gotten out of that old notch in the scale beam that would tell me the same old story every time that I got weighed."

It is the old, old tale. How many of us can tell it. Putting aside the enjoyment, putting aside the hardening influences of life awheel, and looking at the health promoting qualities of cycling, there are, oh, so many of us, who have much to be thankful for.

CHICAGO FEMININE RACES.

BATTERY "D" has been fairly well filled every evening the past week by enthusiastic audiences, to see the lady bicyclists, and Saturday evening, at the finish, the place was crowded. All the clubs were well represented, and cheered lustily for their favorites. Miss Baldwin and Miss Woods wore the Chicago's colors, Miss Oaks wore the Wanderers' Athletic Club colors. The Douglas boys lavished flowers in profusion on their favorite.

A drunken constable attempted to garnishee the box office in the interests of a sporting goods dealer here, but Mrs. Eck was too quick for him, and escaped to the hotel with the receipts for the evening in her hand satchel. Mr. Constable, foiled in this, then attempted to stop the race by poking his cane between the spokes of the wheels of two of the contestants (fortunately neither were injured), but "Birdie" Munger (the "privileged" member): Roe and Eck and several others jumped on Mr. Constable and landed him, bruised and bleeding, out in the alley.

The following is the result of the week's riding, the contestants riding three hours each evening:

	Miles.	Laps.
Oaks,	255	9
Woods,	246	8
Baldwin,	241	9
Brown,	225	6

PROVIDENCE RACES.

Editor Bicycling World: Although we have not got a great number of races, the reader will see, by consulting the list of races in last week's BI. WORLD, that they are of the best. We shall work in between the races other athletic games, to give the racing men a chance. We would call your attention to the tandem safety races. Why not enter these races, with your partner, for a record, as we are straining every nerve to have a track second to none? This is a pointer, and we want men to take advantage of it and enter.

See our advertisement next week for all particulars. I would also state that the rules for racing will be found in the BI. WORLD of Jan. 25, 1889. This meet will carry out the rules to a letter, so post yourselves.

B. T. BRUCE.

HARVARD—TECH. ROAD RACE.

IN spite of the rain last Saturday, Harvard and Tech. held their semi-annual road race. The course, which was gone over twice, began at the new Beacon street extension to Englewood avenue, round both Chestnut Hill reservoirs and back to the starting point. Shortly before the start it began to rain, and the men were sent off in the midst of a hard shower, which made the roads very heavy and greasy. This, together with twenty hills in the course, made the time—59 min. 31 3-5 sec.—for fifteen miles, very fast.

Greenleaf, Bailey and Brown, all of Harvard, went to the front, and soon had a lead of several hundred feet. "We've left them already," said Bailey. A few minutes later, Norton, of Tech, passed the Harvard men like a steam engine, and for the rest of the way set them a pace that strongly discouraged futher conversation.

When turning into Englewood avenue, Bailey's wheel slipped, and he fell almost in front of Brown. Roots, who fell while while coming down Engleston avenue, caused Barron to fall over him.

Kirk Coney had started out with the riders, and when Bailey fell Coney gave him his machine. At the end of the first lap, Bailey changed to Davis' wheel. At this time the points stood 28 to 27 in favor of Tech., and her men entertained great hopes winning.

Norton at various times during the race, made desperate efforts to shake off the Harvard men, sometimes gaining several hundred feet, but they always caught him again on the hills.

A mile from the end, Bailey, coached by his brother on a tandem, spurted, followed closely by Norton. Greenleaf and Brown fell behind, but the former caught them again half a mile from home, and despite the exertions of the other two, won by a yard, amidst the cheers of a large body of wheelmen. Norton was close to Greenleaf, and Bailey, who was considerably handicapped by his fall and two changes of wheels, a second behind. Brown, who came in fourteen seconds later, had not trained for this race at all, and only went in at the last moment because Wirts, one of Harvard's best men, was disabled by a severe accident.

The men came in as follows, Harvard winning by 29 points to Tech's. 26:

		Points. Harvard	Points. Tech.	Time. min.	Time. sec.
1.	W. B. Greenleaf, '92,	10	0	57	31·6
2.	Norton,	0	9	57	31·8
3.	E. A. Bailey, '90,	8	0	57	32·6

THE TWENTY-FIVE-MILE HANDICAP RACE.

MILBURN-IRVINGTON, N. J.

EVERYTHING for the twenty-five-mile handicap road race is booming. Entries are being received fast, and prizes also. Mr. Barkman has, up to the present received a Victor bicycle, as selected from catalogue, one gold watch, a silver watch, a Kodak camera, an elegant M. & H. revolver with interchangeable long and short barrel in case, handsome clock, umbrella, cane, also several smaller prizes and several yet to hear from. Twelve or fifteen prizes will be given, with a special medal to the person making the best time, regardless of handicap. For entry blanks, etc., address A. B. Barkman, 241 Broadway, New York.

A meeting was held Thursday evening, at Knickerbocker Cottage, Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth street, New York, of representatives from the clubs, to arrange details. Everything indicates a grand success.

THE "UNION RUN."

One hundred and ten men, riding by twos, and under the command of A. W. Robinson and Carl Cubberly, rode into Salem last Sunday about noon, and sat down to dinner at the Essex House. Every club round Boston was represented in line except those old timers, the Bostons and the Massachusetts. Alas, how have the mighty fallen! After dinner, and photograph by Hilliard, a return party of fifty men was made up under command of A. B. Benson. Some twenty split from the party, and the balance of thirty men, under Robinson and Cubberly, continued onto Gloucester, where the night was spent, and the return trip to Boston made on Monday. A most enjoyable affair, and much credit is due the committee of arrangements. Not an accident or a disagreeable incident to mar the whole affair.

THE WILMINGTON, DEL., LOCAL RECORD.

Editor Bicycling World: Your issue of the 12th inst. gave an account of a very recent run to Dover, Delaware and return, participated in by Messrs. McDaniel, Merrihew and Elliott over "Ariel's" signature, in which the local road record was broken by our worthy flyers and a new one made. The time stated, "inside of twelve hours," was somewhat ambiguous; be that as it may, I wish to take exception, and I hope you will indulge me.

The writer made a record for this vicinity upon a course one mile long, in poor condition, embracing three railroad crossings, and for five hours against a stiff wind. The trial was for the purpose of demonstrating that long distances and first-class time could be made with perfect ease on the Springfield Roadster, all of which was vehemently denied by certain parties in this bailiwick. The date was October 16th, 1888, the location just south of this city, and the time made was 100 miles in 8.52. After supper 13 1-2 miles addition were made in one hour, making 113 1-2 miles in 9.52. This was witnessed by W. H. Weldin and C. P. Daniels, and checked by a Lakin Cyclometer. I have no special hankering for records, merely making this one to forever set at rest idle and silly vageries. I take great pleasure in thus setting forth the merits of my style of "wreck," having formerly been a crank rider since 1878. Until this is bettered, in all fairness I claim the local record, and for the Springfield Roadster. Very truly yours, H. L. P.

[This cannot stand as record, being over such a short course. —Ed.]

NO ROAD RACING IN MISSOURI.

A telegram from Linneus, dated at St. Louis, April 22, states that "the amended Warner bill passed the House by one vote on Friday last." Therefore, as we understand it, road racing on the highways of Missouri is prohibited.

SIDEWALK RIDING IN ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Editor Bicycling World:—For several weeks I have been wondering why some club member has not taken the trouble to set the public right as to the silly rumors which have been going the rounds of the cycling press with regard to sidewalk riding in Rochester. A few years ago, in accordance with a very generally signed petition, the Common Council passed an ordinance allowing the cyclists the use of the sidewalks on all but the very central streets, where no man with common sense would think of riding, and on all sidewalks before 6 A. M. and after 9 P. M. It has been necessary in a few instances to fine some fool boys, but the only thing done since that time is to provide for properly enforcing the ordinance, and no one has done more in this line than the cyclists themselves. Wheelmen get much more here than the law would allow them, and appreciate the fact, and we challenge comparison with any city in the United States. Very truly,

MR. SHRIVER ON ELECTION.

Editor Bicycling World: Nearly a year ago the Baltimore meeting adopted a new Constitution, which not only perpetuated our old system of elections, but even removed the choice of League officials one step further from the membership at large. It was urged then that the Constitution should be adopted as a whole, and tried for one year, during which there would be full opportunity to test and discuss its provisions. We have seen one election under these provisions, and however one may view the results, there can be no question that the contest for the Presidency was conducted much on the lines of all that is evil in the ordinary political convention, and that very considerable dissatisfaction has been caused by the failure to get any direct expression of the popular voice.

As the weeks are rapidly going by in which the matter can be discussed—for any change could only be made by a Constitutional Convention, which would naturally be held at the time of the annual meeting—is it not about time for some opinions to be expressed on the subject, as to the best means of choosing officers, so that we may avoid the danger of becoming a mere piece of semi-political machinery before it is too late?

My own proposition—to which I have never seen any reply, let alone a valid one—is that both the National Assembly and the President should be elected by the entire membership, at the same time, and on the same ballot as the Chief Consuls and Division Boards. As to the detail of carrying this out, it would be much simpler than our present plan. It might be well to incorporate one feature of the Australian ballot reform, which is making such headway throughout the country, and provide for an official ballot on which should be printed the names of all candidates presented by a given number of League members, which would insure equality of chances for independent tickets; and another good feature would be the opening of polls in populous districts, where members could vote without having to sign their ballots. But neither of these features would be essential to having a direct and popular election. That is not only perfectly practical, but much easier to conduct than to hold three separate elections; first of District Boards by the members, then of a National Assembly by the District Boards, and finally of executive officers by the National Assembly; the last result of all this filtering resting on no broader electoral basis than the members in each district who originally voted for their Division Boards and might as well have voted for all the officers at the same time. Had they done so, a successful ballot in my own district at the last election would have looked like this:

For President—C. H. Luscomb.
For Vice President—H. W. Hayes.
For Treasurer—W. M. Brewster.
For Chief Consul of New York—Geo. R. Bidwell.
For Vice Consul of New York—W. S. Bull.
For Secretary-Treasurer of New York—Geo. M. Nisbett.
For Delegates to the National Assembly—Jno. Smith, Jno. Doe, Richard Roe, etc.
For Division Representatives, 2d District of New York—W. H. De Graaf, I. M. Shaw, etc.

Such a ticket had to be voted last summer from the Chief Consul down, barring the delegates to the National Assembly, and the men who were competent to name their choice for nine inferior officials could certainly have gone through the exhausting mental process of naming three superior officers and one or two delegates from each elective district. When the Division returning officers counted their own Division vote, they could at the same time have counted that for national officers, and have returned it to Secretary Bassett, who would have simply had to add up the grand total of all the returns so made.

Now, if this is not the better plan, I would like to know why not? And if it is, who will join me in calling a Constitutional Convention to consider it? To do so requires the signatures of not less than fifty members, at least ten from each of five separate Divisions.

Yours truly, E. J. SHRIVER.

A TRIP AWHEEL TO LICK OBSERVATORY VIA SAN JOSE, CAL.

BY H. ALLEN MATHEWS.

(Concluded.)

On his arrival at Smith's Creek, the fog broke and "Old Sol" came shining forth in all his glory. Almost every inch of the remaining distance had to be walked. The grade here varies from 3 to 9 feet in 100. The road was dusty and full of ruts, and last but not least of the difficulty of climbing was the rarified air, which is found 4444 feet above the sea level. This caused many stops to recuperate and get breath. The combination of poor roads, up grade, rarified air and no water made this seven miles the hardest portion of the trip.

At 11.15 our cycler reached the cottages, located on the saddle, between Mt. Hamilton and Mt. Capernicus, and he enjoyed a chat with two of the subordinate employees of the Observatory and at the same time made a raid, armed with a tin cup, on the Lick Observatory drinking water. Twenty minutes later found him at the entrance of the great Lick Observatory.

Sitting on the steps adjusting an instrument were three Professors and two gentlemen with the ordinary title of "Mister." Standing on this solitary mountain peak, almost a mile above the sea level, our cycler viewed the surrounding country, and he saw, towards the east Mt. Huygens (commonly known as East Peak) upon which is located the resevoir, holding the Lick Observatory water supply, the water being forced, by a steam pump, through a two inch pipe, 3-4 mile long from a spring 388 feet below. In the distance about 85 miles (air line) further to the east, he saw, with the aid of glasses, the Yosemite Valley. To the south is Mt. Isabel, a rugged piece of ground with shrubbery so thick that it is almost impossible to ascend it, and standing almost as high as Mt. Hamilton. Between these two mountains is a canon over 1000 feet deep and the "air line" distance from summit to summit is 1.25 miles. From the southwest to the north are low hills, some 600 feet below. This gave a commanding view of the road just travelled, showing its 365 curves appearing like a huge serpent twisted and wound around the hills, with its tail projecting over the first summit to San Jose, 15.50 miles away, air line, and 26.90 by way of the road, whilst its head rests at the Observatory. To the south, Gilroy, and to the west, Los Gatos, can be distinctly seen nestled in the heart of the Santa Cruz Mountains. To the north and west can be seen San Jose, Santa Clara and S. F. Bay, and on a clear day the city of San Francisco can be distinctly discerned. The mountains named Tamalpias (Marin Co.) Shasta (Siskiyou Co.) St. Helena (Napa Co.) Whitney (Tulare Co. and the Sierra Nevada Mountains) also appear in full view.

Let our cycler now turn towards the observatories itself and accompany him within the buildings. These buildings are of brick, sandstone and iron.

THE LICK OBSERVATORY.

A distance of 10 feet across the west vestibule he passed under an archway to the Centre Hall (about 20 feet square). Then facing north passed to the visitors room and after placing his name on the "visitor's register," returned to Centre Hall and passed under another archway to the Main Hall, which is about 9 feet wide and 190 feet long. He then walked 95 feet to the north end of the hall and climbing an iron stairway, entered the dome built for the "twelve inch" telescope. This dome is 25 feet 6 inches in diameter and is made of thin plates of nickeled copper, secured to a light framework of wood. The slit for observation is three feet wide and extends beyond the zenith. The dome can be revolved, once, in less than two minutes. The approximate weight is eight tons. The telescope is about 20 feet long and is mounted on a brick pier with a driving clock placed therein. To the south and next to this dome, is the clock room, containing five clocks and several chronometers and also the "standard clock." A watch can be set to the second by the ticks of this clock which can be heard through any telephone on this coast.

Our cycler now passed to the south half of the Main Hall, first visiting the Secretary's office, then Library, Director's office and last into the Great Dome. This was built by the Union Works of San Francisco and was placed in position Oct. 1887. No adequate notion of the design can be had without either seeing photographs of it, or seeing the dome itself. It must suffice to say that the outside diameter is 75 feet 4 inches, the inside 71 feet. The dome stands on a smooth cylindric wall of brick 3 feet 2 inches thick at base and 2 feet 3 inches thick at the top. The wall has but few windows. The dome itself is admirably constructed by the makers. The moving part weighs 99 1-2 tons and can be moved with a pull less than 200 pounds, that is, one pound can move 1000. Most of the bearings are anti-friction ball bearings.

To give an idea of the amount of work and material used in the construction of this dome, this summary is appended:

Total weight of cupola	174,000 pounds
Total weight of live ring	50,000 pounds
Total weight of moving parts	199,000 pounds
Total weight of metal in dome	289,000 pounds

Total number of bolts and rivets used only in the construction of this dome, two hundred and fifty thousand pounds.

As to the telescope there is no way to obtain any idea of the great size and of the mechanical perfection except by seeing it and by detailed verbal explanation on the spot. The height of the pier is 57 feet 10 inches, exactly, from the floor to centre of motion. Upon this is balanced the great telescope which is 2500 pounds in weight and counterbalanced by weights of the same number of pounds making a total of 5000 pounds supported by this iron pier. This weight is moved by a driving clock, stationed in the centre of the pier. This great weight moved by clock work gives one an idea of the perfect mechanism of this instrument. The tube of the telescope is 3 1-4 feet in diameter, at each end, and four feet diameter at the centre, and its length is 56 feet 6 inches. Under this telescope lies the mortal remains of James Lick, the man who donated $700,000 to build "the most complete and largest observatory in the world;" $575,000 was spent in its construction, the remaining $125,000 is placed at interest. The said interest is applied towards defraying the expenses of the Observatory. To the east of the north end of the Observatory Main building is located the Meridian Circle, Transit and Photographic Houses.

Nearly two hours were spent in the inspection and after a few minutes call upon Professor Holden, the director, our cycler again mounted his wheel homeward bound, and in less than one hour was enjoying a bountiful lunch at Smith's Creek Hotel. Coasting was then in order as far as the Junction House, and then began a 20 mile pump against a heavy head wind to Brooklyn. He stopped at Union City (near Alvarado) for supper and finished his trip awheel to Brooklyn in time to catch the 10.55 night train for San Francisco, after having completed a "century run" (101 miles) awheel for the day's trip.

ANCHORED.

(Being a Saccharine ditty of Ripley Town, by "Ta, ta.")

Sweet Ripley! Loveliest village of the bunch,
Where scores of cyclists breakfast, dine and lunch.
How often I've been "Anchor"ed or "Talbot"ted
As I read the Times or Tippicotted.
Sweet Harriet! (Her memory makes me sad),
Sweet Margaret, her sis, who called me bold and bad,
Sweet "old reliable" Harriet, and Annie at the "Anchor."
Light-footed Alf, so deft with glass or tankard.
Sweet everything about the pretty place,
(Except the "bitter beer") which we could trace
To Harrold Crooke, of Guildford, a hundred miler
A "rapid" man, and an accustomed "smiler."
Sweet church, where cyclists learn to pray
When the wind is high, or wet the way.
Sweet Ripley! famed the country far and near,
For all that to a bicycler is dear.
Dear Ripley! loveliest village of the lot,
Where we quaffed "bitter Bass" in pewter pot,
(And took a well remembered "header"
On the crooked stairs on the way to bed,) or Tucked full snug in our beds of down,
We dream of the frolics of Ripley Town.

THREE IN ONE.

Editor Bicycling World:—We had a fine ride (the two of us) a few days ago, and went rather off our usual routes, into Cambridge, on past the colleges, the Songfellow house, Fresh(man's), Pond and Red Mount boneyard, and so round via Watertown, etc., and back to the city by the Brighton road; saw many cyclists spinning, and some old 'papers a-riding in their carriages. The main point here is that while on the wheels we excogitated a dozen improvements for these truly pedaltonic lines of ours, a crude version of which is afloat:

THREE IN ONE.

A Centaur, we learn from the classical sources,
Was half a man's body grafted on to a horses's;
But that freak of old fable to-day is outdone,
Bicycling is a man, carriage, horse, all in one.

The editor offers a suitable reward to anyone guessing the riddles and concealed name in this note.

CYCLING AND HEALTH.

ON reading the speech of Dr. Danelson, given at a banquet of the Buffalo Bicycle Club, I was surprised to find that he took so strong exceptions to my article in the BICYCLING WORLD, cautioning bicyclers against wearing belts or other constrictions about the waist, as they had a tendency to induce hernia. As he is quoted, he says that he does not believe such a thing possible. I am not stating the theories of Dr. Blank on the suppositions of Dr. Humbug, but facts. If Dr. Danelson will look over the article he condemns he will find the statement not of a theory, but of two cases of hernia caused by bicycling. I do not think anyone can misunderstand that statement. I take great pride in my health and strength, and have always actively indulged in outdoor sports, have very often exerted my utmost strength in lifting, and had never felt the slightest ill effects until a hernia developed as a result of bicycling. I am satisfied that the real cause of my hernia was the tight belt used to retain my clothing in position. I hardly think that Dr. Danelson can ask for any stronger proof of the validity of my position. I am connected with one of the leading medical educational institutions in ——— City, and see a great many cases of hernia, and so I am not quoting theory when I say that constrictions of any character about the waist have a tendency to induce hernia, when one is lifting, jumping or suffering from a severe cough.

This is well shown amongst the longshoremen, who often hold their trousers up by a strap drawn tightly about the waist, and they certainly are as powerful a class of men as can be found anywhere, yet they quite frequently suffer from hernia, and it is almost an impossibility to prevent the hernia from coming down, even with a well applied truss, as long as the patient continues to wear the tight strap around the waist while lifting. Remove the strap and the truss retains the hernia easily. The doctor also states that when the bicycler is putting forth his greatest efforts, his body forms a right angle with his thighs, the strain being through his arms, along his back and down his legs, that his abdominal walls are relaxed, and on account of his rapid breathing his diaphragm is not fixed for any length of time, and consequently there would not be the rigidity necessary to force the interstices down, and tend to induce hernia. Now I do not think that the doctor could have read my article very carefully or he would not have committed the error of making statements which can readily be disproved.

In my article I spoke of the effort put forth in climbing very steep grades, and not of the effort put forth in spurting on the level or on an ordinary hill. In such cases the strain would come as Dr. Danelson has stated, but on a very steep hill the conditions are different. We have a great many bicyclers here, and I have observed that the position which they almost invariably assume in climbing our steepest hills is an erect one; in fact they stand upon the pedals, and supplement the weight of the body by pulling up on the handle-bar with all the strength of the arms, in reality they are lifting, with the body and limbs in very nearly a vertical position. The abdominal walls are rigidly contracted, the diaphragm fixed or moving but slightly, for the breathing is shallow, short and more or less rapid, depending on the length of hill being surmounted. If the bicycler has been riding at an ordinary gait before reaching the hill, and the first part of the hill is very steep, his diaphragm is then fixed and he is lifting with quite long strains. Now what I wish again to say is, that if that bicycler has a tight belt preventing the free expansion of the waist during the efforts he is putting forth, he is placing himself under very favorable circumstances for the development of hernia, as the power of the abdominal walls is then directed toward forcing the interstices toward the pelvis and out through the inguinal canals.

Any one who reads this carefully cannot help but admit that the ground I have taken is practical, not theoretical. I am glad indeed to see that medical men are beginning to find out the beauty and healthfulness of bicycling, and to use their influence (which is very great) toward its advancement. But is it wise to claim perfection for it and summarily take it for granted, that anyone who wishes to bring out a discussion of some of its few disadvantages is an enemy to the bicycler? I think that full and free discussion of all of its defects, would be an aid to bicycling, for I am sure that its peerless pleasures so far outweigh its few defects that no one would hesitate to adopt it for health or recreation. I do not write this to alarm a single bicycler, but if we run any risks, be they ever so small, and can avoid them by timely precaution, is it not wise to do so? It is far better to prevent than to cure.

Sincerely yours, L. A. W. 18,954.

Messrs. S. & J. Davis, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

THE WHITE FLYER.

Some few weeks ago, we promised our readers that as soon as we could get facts and cut, we would describe the latest addition to the cycling family, namely the White Flyer. It is a rear driving safety, with 30-inch wheels geared to 60-inch, and more if so desired. The pedals are so adjusted that they can be stopped in any position, and by equal pressure of both feet, they become foot rests. The length of the stroke can be varied, pushing one pedal down raises the other a corresponding distance. There are no springs used to draw the pedal back to the initial point; the weight of the down pressed pedal raises the other one. By this description it will be seen that the rider can lift himself out of the saddle in a somewhat similar manner as the rider of a crank machine can do. A point in this machine, and a peculiar one, is that for any person affected by either a stiff knee, or one whose leg has been injured so as to make one shorter than the other, an adjustment of the pedals and driving strap can be made to suit the peculiar conditions. The swing, or guide frame hanging from the backbone, on which the pedals move up and down, can be thrust, while the rider is in motion, to almost any angle. Thus, if he wishes a vertical tread, the frame can be swung so that the pedals come well under the saddle. If, on the contrary, the rider wishes to change the position, and get more of the thrust stroke, this can be done by swinging the frame toward the front wheel. It is claimed that its availability in change of position can be the means of resting the rider very much. It is claimed that when the driving pedal is on top of the guide frame, and in the beginning of a stroke, the constuction is such that the rider has more leverage in this point than at any other in the whole stroke. The leverage lessens as the pedal moves down, and as the legs straighten out, thus equalizing the force to be exerted necessarily in driving the machine. The bearings of the machine are rollers, and we are assured that the adjustment of the joints are so delicate, that the bearings are positively dust proof. It is further claimed that the bearings will, without adjustment or touching, save occasional oiling, wear as long as the bicycle itself. Care has been taken to have plenty of clearance between the bottom of the swing frame and the roadway. Those who have tried it, aver that the steering is very easy, and not at all sensitive. The brake is of the plunger pattern. The saddle manufactured by this company, was adopted after numerous trials, and was selected with special reference to the safety bicycle. It is readily attached, and is adjusted by a simple but effective device. All the parts of the machine are absolutely interchangeable. Any part that is wanted can be furnished by the factory or its representatives, and put in place without any extra fitting. The metal used in the construction of these machines, we are assured, is of the best quality of its kind.

As far as the ability to construct machines is concerned, we have already described the factory of the White Co., in the fitting up of which no expense has been spared to put in the most expensive and perfect form of machinery. These safeties will be put upon the market in June of the present year, and the public will have a chance to put to test the claims made by this company for the White Flyer. The patterns for a ladies' safety, and for a tandem for ladies and gentlemen as well as those of the single and tandem tricycle are well advanced. It will not be upon the market until next year. The White Cycle Co., of Westboro, are now issuing their catalogue, and on receipt of anyones' name who desire to have a catalogue sent them, we have do doubt that this company will send them one.

L. H. Johnson is receiving a few of the new Catford Premier Safeties, which are making a great hit among the road-scorching fraternity of England. These are snapped up on arrival, but he has placed cable orders that will insure delivery from stock in a short time. This road-flyer weighs complete, with brake, saddle and pedals, thirty-three pounds, has hollow felloes, butted spokes, and is used by Nairn, of the Cyclist, weight 184 pounds, as a road-ster. American riders of the "Catford," among whom is Mr. Louis B. Bonnett, the well-known road-scorcher of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, pronounces it the easiest-running safety he ever rode.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., report immense returns from their special advertisement in the Bicycling World of March 29th.

Mr. W. A. Clark, on an Eagle bicycle, renewed his attack on Bank Hill, Birmingham, Ct., last week Wednesday, and he climbed it in great shape. This is one of the very toughest hills in the state.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., are teaching the ladies of Newark, Orange, and the surrounding cities how to ride the safety bicycle. Oraton Hall is one of the best riding halls in the United States, being free of posts or other obstructions. Special attention given to ladies on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

The Capital Cycle Co. report that lady riders are discovering the advantages of a light over a heavy Psycho, and that while a bicycle is one half the weight of a tricycle, yet a lady's bicycle weighing over 40 pounds is still too heavy; also that strength depends upon proportion and not upon weight.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., state they have the largest stock of second-hand bicycles of any dealer in the Eastern States. Intending purchasers should write them for their list.

The Overman Wheel Co. are making immense additions to their already large factory at Chicopee Falls, Mass. The new buildings now being erected will add 30,000 square feet to their floor space. This will be encouraging to the riders who are waiting for Victors.

Ned Oliver, of the Gormully & Jeffrey Co., was in Minneapolis a week ago, on business connected with his firm. Oliver is always a welcome visitor, and all regret his leaving.

ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

ON Tuesday next the League year ends and all memberships that have not been renewed will cease. Members are, however, carried on the list till July 1 and may renew at any time during the months of May and June. The promptness with which members have renewed this year is unprecedented in the history of the League. Last year 1565 members renewed during the last month of the League year. This year the number is 3850. In the same month 97 persons applied for membership and this year we have published 868 names. Very much of this promptness in renewing is due to the fact that the renewal season has been changed from the winter months to those of the riding season and it may not be fair to claim a better record than was made last year since the conditions are different; but last year we published but 493 new names in April, and so, on the whole, we believe we are going ahead towards 15,000.

The Kansas Division has been officially notified of the assignment to it of two L. A. W. championships for '89; viz. the half mile bicycle and the ten mile bicycle. Chairman Davol of the Racing Board, in his letter of notification, says: "Try and make them warm." In pursuance of this admonition the Ottawa Wheelmen will offer, in addition to the regular championship medals, a special prize for each race. If the time made in either or both of these races is equal to the best time heretofore made in the same championships, the winner or winners will receive a handsome diamond stud valued at $25. The total value of prizes offered is $600, and as fourteen out of the twenty events will be open to all, it is hoped that eastern prize winners will compete. The track is a fast one and will be in perfect condition for the meet. All wheelmen are cordially invited to visit Ottawa June 5th and 6th next.

Massachusetts Division.

To the members of the Massachusetts Division:

A brief statement of what has been gained by the Division thus far this season and our plans for the future is necessary to a perfect understanding that we may all work effectively.

In the Legislature we have gained the bill for the appointment of a Superintendent of streets in each town doing away with the old system of highway surveyors. This is a great step in advance for better roads.

Our bill for the appointment of a "Highway Commissioner" which would have given us an almost perfect system of road improvement was defeated owing to the prejudice against wheelmen, a feeling that the Superintendents alone should be tried for one year, and causes outside of our organization of which we have a full knowledge.

With the experience gained we may reasonably feel certain of success another season, if all labor to increase our membership, for numbers will prove a powerful influence.

Before another session of the Legislature we hope to have stablemen and farmers organized and working with us, then the prejudice that it is a wheelmen's measure will be removed.

In the matter of renewals and new applications for membership, Massachusetts stands first at present but is being closely pressed by other Divisions. To maintain our front rank we must all work. Renew at once if you have not done so. Get at least one new member into the League, then we shall rank first instead of third as last year. We are growing rapidly but all members are not fully alive to the necessity of this work.

In comparison with this time last year when we had 171 renewals and 12 applications, we have at present 471 renewals and 109 new applications, again of 267 on renewals 152 new members.

The Division is being pushed forward by every possible means, will you not do your share and get one new applicant? It is but little to ask for the benefits you receive.

This review shows that we can well congratulate ourselves on our success thus far, and the thanks of the Division are due to those who have worked for the accomplishment of what we have attained.

Let us then go forward with renewed energy and earnestness for we can conscientiously recommend our organization for its merit and value to wheelmen.

A committee is considering the feasibility of publishing a road map of the State for the members of the Division.

No true wheelman will desert in time of battle and we are still fighting the battle of better roads, therefore I ask you again to renew at once and get one new member that we may have sufficient numbers to accomplish whatever we undertake and that we may stand first in rank in the League. Fraternally,

WM. H. EMERY, Chief Consul.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued seventeen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list to the following week.

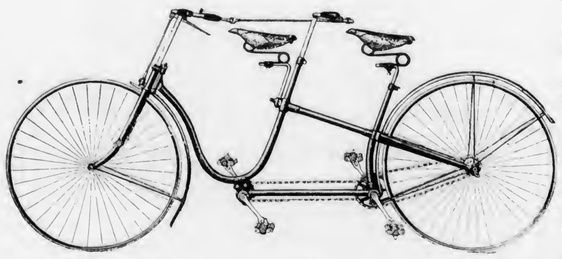
PSYCHO WHEELS FOR 1889.

IMPORTERS: CAPITAL CYCLE CO., Washington, D. C.

The Psycho cycles are imported by the Capital Cycle Company, of Washington, D. C. This firm were the first to recognize the merits of all forms of rear-driving safeties, and in 1885 imported the first one ever brought into this country. They also designed and introduced the first tandem safety in 1888. They designed and manufactured in 1887 the first rear-driving ladies' safety bicycle, and credit should be given them for their efforts in this direction. They have accomplished as much for the weaker sex by reducing friction, weight, and by giving increased pleasure, as did the inventor of the spider wheel for the stronger sex by improving the bone-shaker.



PSYCHO LIGHT ROADSTER, WEIGHT, 38 POUNDS.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S PSYCHO.

Three Weights, 39 lbs., 44 lbs., and 50 lbs.

PSYCH TANDEM SAFETY, WEIGHT, 74 POUNDS

They handle only one form of three-wheeled machines, and that a hand lever tricycle for cripples, which is remarkably light and can be steered and driven by the hands. The Psycho cycles imported by this firm are made from designs by Mr. H. S. Owen. The wheels are remarkable for their lightness, strength, harmonious and uniform construction, simplicity, fewness of parts and general gracefulness of design. They are made of weldless steel tubing throughout, including frame, rear forks, saddle post, handle-bar and upright. They have ball bearings to all parts except head, butt-ended direct spokes, more to rear wheel than front, done to proportion the machine for strains.

Psycho cycles do not have hollow rims, tangent spokes, ball head or spring forks. No change will be made in Psychos over the 1888 pattern. The Fish hammock saddle will be used. The plunger brake will be used, as it is the simplest and very powerful. This firm have hoped for years past, and now claim, that the wheel of the future will be a rear-driving safety, with dropped frame, suitable for both sexes. They anticipate some prejudice at first, but show their faith in their belief by introducing four styles of dropped-frame safeties, suitable for either lady or gentleman, having detachable brace rods; and although they import two forms of straight-frame safeties, suitable only for men, they advise intending purchasers to give the preference to the dropped-frame, not only on account of its adaptability to use by all members of the family, but also for its grace and strength. The Capital Cycle Company claim to give the best guarantee in the trade, as they guarantee not only against defects in workmanship and material, as do other firms, but also against construction, which is more important. A machine may break not only on account of a flaw, but from bad proportioning. The Capital Cycle Company introduce seven forms of safety or rear-driving bicycles for both sexes for this season, varying in weight and construction. They are as follows:

1. "Men's Straight Frame Psycho Safety," 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, geared to 57 inches, weight 47 lbs. Price, $140.

2. "Men's Light Roadster Psycho Safety" (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 3-4 inch tires, made for gentleman riders and scorchers on good roads, geared to 60 inches, weight 38 lbs. Price, $140.

3. "Men's Dropped Frame Psycho Safety" is designed like ladies' safety (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, weight 50 lbs. Will carry any weight on any road. Detachable brace rod makes it suitable for ladies and a general family machine. Price, $140. Geared to 57 inches.

TESTIMONIAL.

WILMINGTON, DEL., February 13, 1889.

Frank Fairbairn, Erie, Pa.:

DEAR SIR—I have been using your knit suitings steadily during the last year (1888) and to present time, and they have given perfect satisfaction.

I much rather prefer them to our own club suits, and have been wearing the same in place thereof, for both summer and winter riding. Have used knit goods of other makers, but find yours to wear better and more durable than any I have yet seen.

Yours, etc., B. FRANK MCDANIEL.

About one in three of the Ramblers shipped bring in something like this:

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 15, 1889.

MESSRS. GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.:

Gentlemen—I have ridden the machine (a Rambler) almost daily since last August, and do not think that there is a Safety, or, in fact, any wheel offered for which I could be induced to make exchange. Formerly rode a ——, and my experience is, can put this wheel through more difficult places than any wheel made. Have had no trouble in riding without hands since first few days after received wheel, and, in fact, am full of the merits of the wheel, and cannot fail, at all times, to let others know what a find have made.

Awaiting your pleasure, I am, truly yours,

Dear Sirs—Enclosed find check to balance account for 39x24 Star. It is the best wheel I ever rode. Have surmounted hills that no one ever thought could be ridden, and generally confirmed the other safety riders as to speed as well. Yours truly,

Gentlemen—I ride a 48-inch Special, and am more than suited with it. This is the third season and it is as sound as a new wheel. I never had a spoke grip on it yet.

Dear Sirs—Having disposed of the 39x24 Special Star we received from you the first of the year, and having proved by practical trial over our snowy streets that it is all you easiest wheel up hill I ever rode, and under favorable conditions has lots of speed. Dears Sirs—My new 39-inch Star arrived yesterday, and it is a beauty. I gave it a good trial, and find that for the rough, sandy, hilly roads which surround this place, it gives me better satisfaction than my 45. As to speed I think there is little if any difference. Truly yours,

Gentlemen—Star received on the 14th. Handle bar and brake lever very satisfactory. This is quite a machine, I like it better than either the 45 or 48-inch Star; it is the easiest wheel up hill I ever rode, and under favorable conditions has lots of speed. If you had only got this 39x24 out before the "Safety craze" struck us there would have been no limit of its sale.

for those "Psycho Ladies' Safeties" which we have been selling and advertising on this page. We have just been notified by Mr. H. S. Owen (Capital Cycle Co.) that such sales are infringements of a patent owned by him, with a request to "desist from such further sale, and to notify you that in the event of your continued infringement he will be compelled to seek legal redress."

Without admitting or denying the validity of this claim until we have it examined, we have asked Mr. Owen for terms of a license under his patent to such machines. In the meantime, not willing to invade any rights of others, we have to inform our patrons that we will neither receive nor fill any further orders for the Psycho.

Here is something from the former Editor and Publisher of the Wheelmen's Gazette, and at present Associate Editor of Peck's Sun:

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 25, 1889.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.:

Gentlemen—When riding your American Rambler over the delightful roads of Bermuda last winter, I many times thought it about the correct thing in a Safety. But since I have thoroughly tested it on the ordinary roads of this vicinity, I have come to the conclusion that it is perfection itself. Gentlemen, your spring is where it should be, to be effective, and avoids all the annoyances common to front fork springs. Your principle is correct, as you do not sacrifice the steering in absorbing vibration. As for easy running, I have always maintained that your bearing was superior to any I have ever tried. Altogether, I believe you can honestly lay claim to having the King of the rear drivers.

Truly yours, P. C. DARROW.

EDITORS:
C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 3 MAY, 1889.

OUR PAPER WAS MAILED.

LAST week our whole edition was in the Boston Post Office by 3 P. M. Saturday. All the New England papers were in the mail by Friday night.

Having proved that our paper gets into the Boston Post Office on good time we would say to those who don't get it on time, we have lodged a complaint in the Boston office, and we will do all in our power to have the trouble sifted down to its proper source.

THE death knell of the Bicycle Uniform has been pretty well sounded among English gentlemen riders, and in its place they wear a suit of grey or dust brown cloth. No horseman wears a uniform. He wears such clothing as the experience of Market Harborough and Newmarket have proved to be the most suited to his requirements. A bicycling uniform can hardly come under the heading of clothing. There is something too grotesque about it (with its military appearance) for that. The epaulet and gold lace must go, and the sooner the better.

D. W. LAING—old "Davie Laing" of many an honest and tough battle on the road and path, in Scotland—has at length succumbed to his vanity and has become the first President of a ridiculous Scottish union (which starts out apparently in opposition to the N. C. U.), to be known as Scottish Cyclists' Union. A short time ago he was the champion of the interests of the N. C. U., in Edinburgh, a man whose opposition of a contingent of able-bodied hot heads showed him to be a leader. Now he has "gone and done it"—left the van of the N. C. U. representation in Scotland. Old "Davie" may live to learn that it is better to be "at the tail of the gentry than the head of the common people," and that all such separatist leaderships usually end in ignominy, and that a vascilating policy is apt to result in distrust from both parties—the old and the new.

AN emotional Chicago writer grows enthusiastic over the aluminium chestnut. He says the world has had its age "of stone and bronze, that this is the age of iron, and that the age which succeeds this will be the aluminium age." So be it. But as yet we have only heard, to a tiresome extent, of aluminium bicycles; we hope to see one soon, and hope it may be tireless. We are told that an aluminium bicycle will weigh but one third of what the present day steel cycle does. Think of a bicycle of seven pounds for a fifty-four-inch racer. Whew! the two-minute mile ride might be a thing of every-day occurrence. There's no telling.

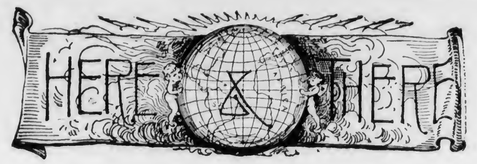
IT is with regret that we have to print the notice of Mr. Stephen Terry's death in another column. Mr. Terry was an ardent wheelman, and a man of decided and marked character.

The circumstances surrounding his death are peculiarly pathetic, and his family has our heartfelt sympathy.

IT is understood that Chicago desires to entertain the L. A. W. at the meet of 1890, to the tune of ten thousand dollars. Now, while Chicago is a vastly rich city, and ten thousand dollars could be easily raised with a little canvassing (and as easily frittered away in a gorgeous League entertainment of a few days), still we think that this sum could be made to accomplish permanent good, by a different method of expenditure. Supposing that instead of prodigally spending ten thousand dollars, that one thousand dollars be expended in an unpretentious entertainment, plenty of roast beef and bitter beer, and a glorious reunion of the English "Harrogate Camp" style, with little or no printing bills in the way of programmes and other superfluous expenditures, and the remaining nine thousand dollars be expended (in such judicious manner as Illinois cyclists might see fit) in the matter of improving the roads of that State.

This money might be subscribed to pay the salary of a State road improvement officer, whose efforts would be appreciated by horsemen as well as wheelmen. This would be a means of utilizing this money for lasting good, and horsemen would soon "chip in" when they saw the benefits of approved roads.

The average cyclist cares less for appearance and "gloire" than for solid comfort, and a little more tent life and freedom, and less hotel entertainment under the gaze of the public and the newspaper reporter, might characterize future League meets and "draw" larger congregations of good fellows and true, whose ideal of enjoyment is not necessarily controlled by the amount of money expended by the entertaining city or State.



"A dinner of herbs and content therewith, is better than a stalled ox and strife."

HAGERSTOWN, Md., has been decided on as the the place of the annual meet, and the dates July 2, 3 and 4. The Maryland Division and the Hagerstown Club issued the invitation, and it has been accepted, as will be seen by the letter of President Luscomb, in the official department. We are pleased to note the following sentence in President Luscomb's acceptance: "It is the desire of the present administration to relieve the annual gatherings of the expensive features which, although cheerfully borne, were nevertheless an unfair burden upon the hospitality of our resident members at meets of the last few years."

THERE is a good fighting chance that the Warner Bill may receive its quietus in the Missouri Senate.

PENNSYLVANIA LIBERTY BILL.

AFTER we had gone to press last week, we received a telegram from Sam'l A. Boyle, L. A. W. Representative from Philadelphia, stating that the Liberty Bill had passed both Houses, and was signed on the 23d by Gov. Beaver.

LOS ANGELES.

"VINDEX."

The approaching fourth annual meet of the California Division, to be held here May 30 (Decoration Day), May 31, July 1 and 2, is the sole topic of conversation here, among wheelmen. The interest is intensified by the fact that a division meet has never been held here before, and everybody is on the qui vive for the great event. The meet promises to be the most successful ever held on the coast, and to this end nothing will be left undone to make it such, and the people of Los Angeles are famous for the hospitable and royal reception of guests. The wheelmen have the good opinion of every woman, man and child in this city. This statement, no doubt, seems strange, but it is none the less true. Race meets have been held here frequently in the past, and they were always, without exception, successes—both from a financial and social point of view. The race track will be put in the finest shape for racing, and will be used exclusively by wheelmen during the month of May.

Intelligence has been received that E. I. Halsted, of Taconia, Wash., late of Philadelphia, will quietly come into town about May 30, and contest for the supremacy of the coast. This means good racing. With Halsted, Elwell and Wing, the races will be worth going miles to see. Mr. Halsted's victories on the track are well known, but we have racers on the coast who will make him hustle.

Charles B. Shannon, of the Forest City Ramblers, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been wintering here for the benefit of his health, leaves Wednesday (April 24th) for home, en route to Boston, where he joins the party of wheelmen who embark May 18 for a three months' tour of Continental Europe. Mr. Shannon has made many warm friends here, and all regret his departure exceedingly and envy his trip. Mr. Shannon will remain on the Continent until September.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

It is amusing to see how much printers' ink and composition is wasted each week through the publishing of correspondent's letters from California and the South, almost the entire substance of which is a bemoaning of the hard fate of Eastern and Northern riders who are deprived of the beautiful climate and sunny skies of these terrestial paradises—if one believes all that these correspondents continue to print about them. Now it is a strange thing that no one is wailing about the vigors and horrible features of this section except these gentlemen, who so bounteously bestow their unsought and unmerited condolence upon the wheelmen of the less tropical sections of the country. A foreigner reading these missives of pity would imagine that riders here had their uniforms made of buffalo hide, and wore ear muffs, mittens and goloshes all the year round, when endeavoring to ride and not freeze. Perhaps they do, and only these wise men of the wheeling West have discovered it, but if they do, it certainly is to their credit that they ride further, faster, harder, oftener than do the climate blessed individuals whose correspondents so generously do the wailing for the suffering of the Eastern and Northern rider, regarding which he seems singularly unconscious himself.

Roads improvements are almost as natural a sequence to cycling as can possibly be thought of. In the first place, the use of the wheel demands that the roads over which it is driven be of good quality, and in no other way than by being a rider can anyone pass upon the merits of the surface over which they ride. The rider or driver who passes along a highway, carried by the labors of a horse, cannot measure nor appreciate the extra power that the brute is called upon to exert when poorly constructed roads are the surfaces over which he so comfortably transports his passengers, but let this same individual become a wheelman and then note the difference. He will at once fully appreciate the hardships and waste of power and speed caused by defective highways, and will become as quickly a champion for their improvement. Roads will become to him a study, and when and wherever he goes, his eye unnoticed will note the conditions of the roadways around him, and a mental note be made as to whether their condition be good or bad. To such an extent does all of this grow on wheelmen, that I know many who, like myself, will sit at the window of a rapidly moving railway carriage, and find entertainment criticizing the roads of the country through which we pass, and if we find them good will afterwards say that such and such a section is good, when really we know nothing in the world about it, save that from the car window the roads looked like they offered good riding surfaces, and that to us was enough.

In the mad rush to accomplish the trick of getting something for nothing, that has during the past few weeks taken the form of an Oklahoma "boom," there has been presented one of the most striking examples of how quickly the civilization of to-day overcomes all the difficulties of whatever kind that may be opposed to it, and that only a few years ago would have been considered of stupendous magnitude. Encamped upon the borders of this promised land were nearly 100,000 human beings, each one of whom was anxiously awaiting the moment that the law would allow them to cross the border and grab one of the 30,000 homestead claims that Uncle Sam had kindly invited all to scramble for. As the proportion of claims to claimants was as one to three, and the law declared that first come should be first served, it became a matter of much moment to the boomers to be able to travel quickly, once they passed into this promised land. Exorbitant prices were paid for horses that had speed and for many that perhaps had none, but just here one of the products of our wasted civilization makes itself felt, it is the bicycle. A camp of wheelmen appear upon the scene, calmly wait the hour of opening, which arriving, they mount their wheels and, distancing the slower boomers, prove this time, at least, that the race is to the swift.

BUFFALO.

"ALI BABA."

Captain Donaldson is perfecting arrangements for another century run from Erie, Pa., next Decoration Day. From now on, "courage" will be the war cry. There will be a good many starters, but as to the number who will fall by the wayside, the writer knoweth not. It is certain, however, their number will not equal by half a fraction the Corporal's guard. The reason is, there was too much good, hard muscle won in the gymnasium the past season. Well, we even expect to bring the "Professor" through, and without any coaxing at that.

The Buffalo Bicycle Club made a run to Alden last week. The turnout was large. Arriving at their destination, and after a (small) lunch, base ball, foot ball and other sports were indulged in.

The Zigzag Bicycle Club claim the first country run from Buffalo this season. The boys have already accomplished the feat of riding (?) to the Falls, Aurora, Lancaster and other neighboring towns.

Captain Hearne ordered the first club run, which was to Aurora on April 30th.

The Zigzags took possession of their rooms at the Circle, May 1st. They are to be elegantly furnished. Visiting wheelmen will there find the latch string (of unusual length) on the outside, and will meet with a hearty welcome within. A donation party is looked for in the near future.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

The Pullman Road Race will be managed entirely by a committee made up from all the different clubs here, and the handicapping will be done by the same committee, Chief Consul Davis being chairman. A fine prize list is an assured fact, and entries for the race are coming in rapidly. The committee have been promised plenty of assistance from the dealers, in fact they rather had the dealers on the hip, as they visited them in a body, and a dealer would have be possessed of more than the ordinary amount of cheek to refuse the committee (that represented all the clubs here) almost anything in reason.

The Lincoln Club have finally succeeded in getting the Lincoln Park Commissioners to allow tricycle riding on the Lake Shore drive and Fullerton avenue after eight P. M. in the park, and are not a little elated over their victory.

The Æolus Club claim to have an offer from a capitalist to build them a club house, provided they will take a five-year lease, and are now looking for some one to guarantee the lease for them.

The fight for the Presidency in the Chicago Club goes merrily on, and it is anybody's race as yet. The candidates themselves remain discreetly silent, but their friends are on the alert, and lose no opportunity to secure a vote.

Chief Consul Davis and a small party of wheelmen left for Ottawa last night (26 April), to confer with the Ottawa boys in regard to holding the State meet there.

W. D. Banker, of Pittsburg, now wants a go at Lumsden for a mile, and Arthur appears to be quite willing to accommodate him.

Some fifty couple attended the German at the Chicago's, Thursday evening last. Of course Frank Cory was there to lead the same.

The heavy rain Saturday spoilt nearly all the club runs Sunday and the riding was confined to the boulevards in the city.

Chief Consul Davis has recommended Street, of the Illinois, an official handicapper for their district. I am inclined to think it would have given better satisfaction had he gone outside the clubs and recommended Miles, of the Referee, for that position.

A certain club man became quite infatuated with one of the lady bicyclists of the Eck-Morgan combination, sent her costly flowers, presents, etc., and made an engagement to take her out to a swell dinner, but when he arrived to keep the engagement was rendered speechless to see another man wearing some of his flowers, eating his bonbons, and to be informed by him that it would be impossible for the lady to keep her engagement that time, owing to an engagement with him, but that he would let her go the next time—perhaps.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

The St. Louis Bicycle Track Association is to be a permanent fact. The preliminaries have been gone through with, and Geo. K. Sanders will probably be president. Already over $500 has been pledged, and the balance necessary will be forthcoming. The site of the track is on the grounds of the St. Louis Gun Club, and work to build the track was commenced the other day. We shall have it ready for the Stone-Lumsden race of May 25. The track will be 20 feet wide on the back, and 30 feet on the home stretch, foundation of broken brick and top dressing of clay and red Pacific gravel, which will give a surface like cement.

A joint and concurrent resolution was engrossed in the House of Representatives on Friday, April 19, submitting to the qualified voters of the State of Missouri an Amendment to the Constitution, authorizing county courts to levy, for road and bridge purposes, an additional tax not to exceed 15 cents on each $100 valuation, and the tax so levied to be deposited to the credit of the road district from which it is collected. The Senate spent almost the entire forenoon of April 17, in the perfecting the revised bill on roads and highways.

W. A. Rothwell writes in regard to the Warner bill: "The League's influence has wrought a noble work. One can scarcely object to the bill as it now is, but it is a dangerous precedent to have the Legislature even tinkering with the subject of bicycling. This bill had a hair-breath escape in the House, and I think will disappear from sight entirely in the Senate."

We are having trouble on the signboard question. The law is explicit that signboards shall be erected, but it is not enforced. A move will be made to enforce it soon.

The Citizens Committee have appropriated $100 to the wheelmen of St. Louis, to be used in giving a nocturnal parade on the evening of April 30. From all indications it will be one of the most elaborate things of the kind ever held. There will also be demon, animal, Continental, and other squads, dressed in costume in the parade, and the whole will be lighted up by a mass of red torches carried by the riders so costumed. Prizes will be probably given for the best costume and best decorated machine, and there will be some 250 riders in line. The clubs will be in charge of their various road officers, while Prof. C. H. Stone will have charge of the unattached.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

The Hagerstown Club, on receiving the letter of acceptance from President Luscomb, to hold the 1889 League meet at Hagerstown, from Consul Mott, were very much pleased and they were already working and preparing their local meet into the L. A. W. meet. Hagerstown is one of the best places that could be selected, the hotels being ample and good, and the city being level; also its many elegant pikes, where historical and picturesque points, such as Pen-Mar, Cumberland Valley, picturesque Potomac, battle fields of Antietam, and South Mountain, and many other points, can be reached without any exertion, and any cycler who enjoys genuine picturesque scenery combined with elegant roads, will find three days but a very short time about Hagerstown. The programme, which will be novel and entertaining, is in course of preparation. Chief Consul Mott and E. F. LeCato of Baltimore left for Hagerstown at the request of Vice Consul Updegraff, to arrange some preliminaries for the meet, where they will stay for a few days. The meet will certainly be a success.

The L. A. W. championship races to be run at Hagerstown are the one-mile bicycle, one-mile tricycle and one-mile safety. The excursion will be a moonlight trip to Pen-Mar, the Gem of the Blue Ridge, which is only about fifteen miles from Hagerstown and which will afford much pleasure to the guests.

The Baltimore Club contemplates renting the cellar of the house adjoining theirs, in order to secure additional storage room for wheels, which is much needed.

Kingsland left May 1 for Chicago. Mr. Kingsland is entered in fourteen events. From there he goes to Woodstock, Ont., for races of May 24, after which he will spend a week with H. G. Crocker, the well-known professional, at the latter's home, at Machias, Maine.

The Crescent Club held a general old-fashioned house-warming at their cozy new club house, 302 Boundary avenue. The club house is ample and fitted up with all modern conveniences. Eighty guests sat at the table, and enjoyed an enjoyable supper. The house was profusely decorated with floral decorations, which enhanced the attractiveness of the interior of the club house. Mr. Lloyd, on behalf of the club, presented the President of the club, C. F. Hanson, with a handsome ring. The dancing was elaborate, and continued until the early hours of the morning.

The Baltimore Club is discussing whether the distance in their monthly races shall be ten miles each run, or five, ten, fifteen and twenty miles on the different occasions.

MINNEAPOLIS NOTES.

"PARSON."

The opening of the Minneapolis Bi. Club's new rooms last night was a brilliant success. Nearly seventy wheelmen attended and spent a most delightful evening. The programme was as follows: Opening address, by President Buchanan; musical number, by the mandolin club; humorous recitation, by J. R. Stockdale; mandolin solo, by Sig. Montivelli; original essay, by A. C. Clausen; mandolin and guitar duet, by Buchanan and Dickeson; recitation, by A. J. Blethen, Jr. The original essay by Clausen was, without doubt, the best thing on the programme. Among other good things it contained was the following:

> "Now brilliant waves of crimson-tinted light
> Are kissing nature, ere they say good-night.
> Below me, in prismatic light and shade,
> A brooklet murmurs softly through the glade;
> Whilst in the valley's graying, flocks of sheep
> Are homeward winding in the herdsman's keep.
> Anon, a hill demands a gentle strain,
> But well repays in coasting down again;
> And when a pebble gives the wheel a spring,
> It only makes the 'tangents' louder ring.
> All hail to thee, my steel-bound courser fleet,
> That takes me from the city's dusty street,
> And gives me recreation, priceless gem,
> Which bears me out to breathe in nature's realm."

This was followed by short remarks from Prof. Richardson, Capt. Herty of the St. Paul Club, and Chief Consul Slosson. The party then adjourned to Dorsett's ice cream parlors, where a most delightful lunch was served. Everyone went home pleased, and the event will, without doubt, be the means of swelling the ranks of the club. It is the finest thing of the kind ever attempted here, and Messrs. Buchman, Savage, Monasch, Pauly and Stockdale, the Committee on Arrangements, deserve great credit for the way in which everything passed off.

The St. Paul racing team has accepted the challenge recently issued by the Minneapolis team, so I shall soon have an account of a good race to send you.

Last Sunday the M. B. C. and St. Paul B. C. took a joint run to Anoka and took dinner, making the run back in the evening. Thirty riders turned out, and a very pleasant time was had.

Minneapolis is in mourning. Her ball team has not won a game, and now Jackson has whipped Cardiff. Such is life.

MEMPHIS.

"ANCHOR."

I think it about time that Memphis had a mention in the World on cycling notes, so here goes. We have at present a long distance race on hand, that is keeping the boys on a good move. The originator of this race is a gentleman worthy of praise and mention. He is known by his familiars as "Doc," but to the world at large he is known as Mr. Charles J. Scherer. This gentleman has formed a club of seven, and started them on a long-distance ride, to be finished in December, and the person covering the greatest number of miles in the alotted time will be awarded a handsome gold medal valued at $100, and given by our friend, Mr. Scherer.

The records so far are as follows: First, Julius Seelig, 739 miles; second, A. F. Alberts, 663; third, Julius Wood, 438 fourth, W. A. Whitmore, 350; fifth, Wm. Wood, 302; sixth, W. H. Haylie, 118; seventh, Geo. Phillips, 513.

Our Jocky Club have on hand their spring meeting, of which yesterday was the opening day, at which 10,000 people witnessed the start in the first race, and among them some of our local wheelmen.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

There is an ingenious colored man living in Hartford, Conn., who has invented a bicycle, the dread of which, by the Hartford people, is equal only to that entertained by the East Indian for the Juggernaut of old. Whenever "Charles" appears on the streets of Hartford there is at once a hiatus from the streets on which the engine of destruction appears. It weighs 110 pounds and is made solid. The saddle is a leather boot leg stuffed with straw. Down grade the machine is a terror, and we should think it would be also a terror up grade.

Bicycling News, in speaking of the collision of a wheelbarrow full of clocks and a tandem safety, with Bath Road Smith on the front seat, said that "had the foot-rests not struck the wheelbarrow first, that Smith, who had his head down in scorching attitude, would have been brained." We should never have thought Smith would meet his death in this way. This is about the last accident that could occur to the man with the "Otto horn." Oh Smith is a charmer.

Will "Hawkshaw" please note? From reliable authority we learn that "Tommy" has lost his old "world-famed" oil can, and has made careful selection of a successor, which does not leak as badly as the old one. Contemporaries please copy.

Mr. J. H. McKinnon & Co., of Waterbury, Conn., wants to know the best route between Springfield, Mass., and Montreal, Canada. Can anyone accommodate the gentleman.

The Mountain Wheel Club, of Phillipsburg, Pa., held a Book and Bric-a-brac Reception last week Tuesday. The result is that the club is just so much richer in the possession of some good books and specimens of bric-a-brac.

Hagerstown, Maryland, has been decided upon as the place of meeting of the L. A. W. for 1889. The meet will be held July 2d, 3rd and 4th. Paste this in your hat.

The New Haven, Ct., riders are agitating the question of building a bicycle track at the Trotting Park of that city. The probable cost will be about $1000.

The Fort Schuyler Wheelmen, of Utica, N. Y., will become a League Club, so a Utica correspondent advises us. The same correspondent writes: "Dobby, one of our climbers, met with a mishap last week, in being run down by a reckless driver, who was on the wrong side of the street. Dobby's new safety was ruined, and his knee considerably hurt. The driver of the team acknowledged that he was to blame and promised to settle, which he will do, 'peaceably if he will, forcibly if we must make him.'"

In speaking of the handicap road race over the Irvington-Milburn course, May 30, the Brooklyn Citizen says: "The handicapping will be done by a committee of three, and the general arrangements are to be in charge of a committee selected from among the principal clubs in this city, New York and vicinity. Everything possible will be done to make the race a fair and honest trial, and competitors from other States can feel assured of having fair play to the fullest extent of the meaning of the words. One hundred will be the limit eligible to enter the contest, and it is hoped the noted Western flyers will be on hand to try conclusions with the Eastern wheelmen."

The Melrose, Mass., Cycle Club gave its third annual ball at Melrose, Wednesday, the 24th ult. It was pronounced the most brilliant of the whole series.

The Pittsfield (Mass.) Club want a bicycle race track, and as the local Agricultural Society own grounds, and want cycle racing as an attraction, the Pittsfield Club may get a cycle track built for them.

The spring all day run Bostonwards of the Rhode Island Wheelmen is fixed for Monday, May 20. A straight course has been laid out, 21 miles from Sharon into Boston. Dinner will be had at the Clarendon at 1, and thereafter the party is at liberty to break up, although the main body will probably take an excursion over the new boulevard to Chestnut Hill reservoir.

Percy Furnival, the erstwhile cyclist, has dropped cycling and taken to boxing, at which art he is said to be an adept. Probably Racing Huie of Edinburgh (an old "war horse" for Scotland on the road and path) might like to give Percy a few rounds, just for the honor of Scotland, and for love of the "manly art." But in a recent match we learn that Percy was laid low in the first round. A rising boxer sometimes gets knocked down so hard that he does not rise any more.

The Cycle Club of Wheeling, Pa., met at the Police Court room, and elected officers last week. Rather a curious place for a meeting! Who went bail?

Complaint is made, by an exchange, of the habit of some wheelmen, when riding in large parties, of separating and riding on both sides of the road. The complaint is well founded, and wheelmen should avoid this bad practice. The law prescribes on which side the cyclist should pass.

May 13 to 18, inclusive, are the dates of the big Chicago Tournament.

"Peek-a-boo," of the Referee has "debutted," and will swell the ranks of the Tommy's-got-a-new-oil-can, brick-bat and milk-and-water correspondents. He will rank among the prominent chestnut gatherers "with little fur coats," and will no doubt have his admirers.

The only race in which a lady can take part without loss of caste is the human race. We know how manfully she has played her part in this most stubborn of all races, but we think she loses her charm and her womanliness in ladies (?) cycle races.

Few riders of tricycles and safeties seem to appreciate that the gear chain needs constant oiling, nearly as much so as any other part of the machine. A little oil is all that is necessary, put on about once in six or seven days. If the oil is not allowed to accumulate and gum, there is no danger of the clothing being soiled. Many a worn chain has been returned to the manufacturer with a claim for damage, when, if a little oil now and then had been put on, the chain would have shown as little wear as any other portions of the machine.

The following letter was received at this office a few days ago, and our office cat has had convulsions ever since:

Economyville, Ill., April 24th, 1889.

I subscribed for your valuable paper eleven months and two weeks ago, and sent you one dollar ($1.00) as payment in full. I have received 50 numbers, which have been in constant circulation among the wheelmen of this section. As the small potatoes are not large this year, I wish you would send me cash for the unexpired time instead of the remaining two numbers. Time is money in this section, and don't you forget it. I am,

Yours fraternally, Benjamin Big-heart.

We depleted our bank account to the extent of three cents, and this financier is happy. (Here's a chance for Prial.) We have written to the gentleman for a statement of the condition of affairs in his section, also for contribution box reports, and death statistics of parson "through neglect.

THE EAGLE.

The Lightest Running Wheel in the World.

SAFETY, SPEED AND COMFORT.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 22d, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—I can say that I am more than pleased with your Eagle Bicycle. I find that I can coast farther, climb hills better, and get just as much speed out of it as any wheel I ever rode, which is saying a good deal, as I have only ridden your machine a week to-day. I had it out on a fifty mile run yesterday, and it stood the rough roads in fine shape.

The only trouble I find with your wheel is that it runs too easy. The wheel that I have heretofore ridden was altogether too heavy (56 lbs.), and that with springs to overcome loss of power, friction, and the liability of the complicated machinery with which the machine was driven failing to work when you most wanted it to, made it a very unsatisfactory wheel to ride.

The finish of your wheel is the best I have yet seen.

I remain, yours respectfully,

Colie Bell,
Amateur Champion Minnesota.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 18th, 1889.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co.:

Gentlemen—The new fifty-four-inch "Eagle" reached me the first of the week, and, being a machinist by trade, I immediately gave it a thorough inspection, and I found it to be just what it was represented to be by you in your catalogue. I experienced no trouble whatever in learning, and haven't received a scratch yet.

It is certainly the most durable and handsomest wheel I have seen, and it will no doubt take well here, for we want something that we can climb these hills with, and the "Eagle" is certainly the climber.

Yours truly, W. P. Biddle.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[ALL communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—ED.]

I am having very many letters from beginners in bicycle riding, asking for hints regarding dress. There seems to be an idea gone abroad that the two-wheeler requires a costume somewhat different from the tricycle dress, and I am asked to suggest the best material, form, construction and decoration. Now I shall call for assistance. There are those among my readers who are no longer novices with the bicycle, and to them I will appeal in behalf of those who have petitioned for advice and counsel in this direction. Oblige me, ladies, by using the Reception Room for the benefit of the novitiates. The ideal dress should be plain, and yet not so plain as to offend the eye; it should conceal as much as possible the knee movement; and it should be made of material that will not catch the dust. I have a few ideas on this subject, born of a long experience, but before I say a word let me invite others to give of their experience.

From Alameda, Cal., comes a letter from the pioneer lady bicyclist, asking for advice regarding dress, and expressing eager anticipation of her riding. Out there they may ride all the year round, I am told, and cycling must be doubly, aye, trebly delightful.

From Chicago comes a letter from which I extract the following:

"CHICAGO, Ill., April 25th, 1889.

Dear Helen Grey—Since you have thrown open the 'Ladies' Reception Room" door, I shall proceed to tell you something of the general topics here in Chicago, bearing upon the use of the wheel by ladies. We are particularly favored so far as roads are concerned, having numerous macadam, asphalt and other smooth roads and boulevards, including a park system which almost encircles the entire city. Also another great advantage over most all cycling centres is the fact that the country is quite level, about the only hills we have to climb being the viaducts. There are two tricycle organizations in this city in which the members are about equally divided, as to numbers, between ladies and gentlemen, and in which no bicycles except those ridden by ladies or an escort are admitted. They are the South Side Tricycle Club, and the Garden City Tricycle Club of the West Side.

In regard to the bicycle for ladies' use, I will say that I am decidedly in favor of it by certain persons and under certain conditions and circumstances. It certainly must appear to a great many others as it has to me, that it is an imposition to see a gentleman gliding along with no apparent effort on a bicycle weighing say 45 pounds, while the lady at his side, on an 80-pound tricycle, which has double the friction of the former machine, putting forth her greatest exertions to keep the pace. Were the lady mounted on a 39 or 40 pound bicycle things would be different. I do not wish to convey the meaning that tricycles have no further use. There are, I think, circumstances under which they are capable of a great deal of good, and certainly have a mission to fill that a bicycle could never reach, but I hardly think the manufacturer will ever be able to make a 30-pound tricycle as you suggest, or even a 40-pound one that will be of any practical utility. I have often thought, however, one could be made to weigh only 50 pounds that would answer all the requirements of a light and reasonably careful lady rider. This would be a blessing in comparison to the heavy machines now offered.

I do not believe in girls with short dresses, mounted on full-sized ladies' bicycles, as I had occasion to notice a few evenings since, on one of our most prominent boulevards. Neither do I believe in ladies riding alone or on crowded thoroughfares, who are incapable or unaccustomed to such dangers.

I cannot see, however, any good reason why a lady should not preserve her dignity on a bicycle as well as on horseback, and it has been my experience when one has had a little practice at the former, it will be found that there is no comparison as to the genuine pleasure afforded.

We have ridden a tandem tricycle during the last two seasons, and have been very much pleased with it indeed, but since the tandem bicycle has made its appearance we have forsaken our old friend for a new one, which we think is all that can be desired for lady and gentleman riders. Although the ladies' bicycle is decidedly on the increase here, and the demand for this wheel will doubtless grow as the season advances, I do not think, from all I can learn, that there are over forty or fifty in actual service.

CLARA."

Thank you, Clara. Your visits will always be welcome. Chicago needs to be represented in the Reception Room, and you have now a place on her behalf as well as for yourself.

Buffalo is not backward, I am told, in things cycling, and already she counts several lady riders. The Misses Ducker are often seen spinning over the asphalt, and a lady cyclist is no longer a strange sight in the parks.

The Middlesex (Mass.) Cycle Club starts out upon the season of 1889 with flying colors. The annual meeting of the club was held last month at the residence of Mr. F. L. Washburne, of Wyoming. A business meeting, a literary and musical entertainment and refreshments were all participated in and enjoyed. The club has many talented members, and within its own circle there is material for much entertainment. President Gerrie conducts the affairs of the club with rare executive ability, and the Hilbournes are always active in promoting social occasions. The club is rich in the possession of two theatrical members, who have influence in the direction of inexpensive theatre parties, and above all the rest it has very many strong and enduring riders. If Massachusetts has not the pioneer ladies' wheel club, she has certainly one of the most active and progressive.

I am told that a large number of ladies will go awheel to the Harvard races on the 11th. I am not in a begging mood, but, Messrs. Managers, would it not be a good idea to allow any lady who comes to the races on a bicycle to have free admission at the gate? If the ladies go, the men will surely follow, and it may be you will lose nothing by the offer.

HELEN GREY.

CENTURY DINES, AND PENNSYLVANIA AND THE SOUTH END DANCE.

THREE events in the social line have made the past week an eventful one. First, was the third annual banquet of the Century Wheelmen, which took place at the Colonade Hotel on Wednesday night. Fifty-seven members and their invited guests sat down to the beautifully-decorated tables, which were arranged in the form of a U, and from nine o'clock until twelve discussed the elaborate menu, consisting of the delicacies of the season. With the advent of coffee and cigars began the speechmaking, and toasts, which were all drunk to a cold water accompaniment, an innovation, while a most commendable one, was not, it is to be feared, appreciated by all. A number of unavoidable regrets were received, one of which was from Chief Consul George A. Jessup, who was to have responded to the toast, "Pennsylvania in Cycling." Another absence, universally regretted, was Mr. Frank Read's. Following the address of President Hare, came that of the Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D. D., "The Clergy and the Wheel;" a happy "Cycling in the Quaker City," a reminiscent effort by President W. R. Tucker, of the Associated Cycling Clubs; and the toasts allotted to Messrs. Evans, Lang, Hallowell, Edwards, Rowland Evans, Dixon and Beitler. Mr. S. A. Boyle, Assistant District Attorney, was called upon in regard to the "Liberty Bill," signed by Governor Beaver last week, and explained how one of the most important victories for cyclers in this State was put through. But it is now a law, and henceforth wheelmen have precisely the same rights on the highways that any other vehicle possesses." Mr. Boyle was the recipient of the unanimously-voted thanks of the Century Wheelmen and their guests, to whom should be added the entire committees by whom the bill was introduced—Messrs. Tucker, Trimmer and Boyle. Adjournment followed immediately upon Mr. Boyle's speech, and the third of the Century dinners was a thing of the past. The committee in charge was: F. G. Strassburger, Chairman, and Messrs. Sadler, Collins, Schell and Allen.

The reception and ball of the

at St. George's Hall, on Thursday evening, was a great success in every way, reflecting great credit on the committee in charge, of which Dr. M. N. Keim, Jr., was Chairman. The grand march, at nine o'clock, was a novelty in its way, having been composed expressly for the occasion, and introducing the club bugle calls and club whistle, producing a very pretty effect. Fifty couples participated in it, under the leadership of ex-Captain Bradley, and many and devious were their evolutions. There were upwards of one hundred and fifty people on the floor after the dancing started, and the scene was a most picturesque one, the ladies being almost without exception in evening dress, many handsome gowns being worn, while the club members wore the full uniform of dark blue cloth, with knickerbockers and patent leather pumps. Twenty numbers were on the programme, with an intermission of about half an hour, during which Thos. R. Finley, of Smithville, amused the audience by doing everything that seemed possible—and much that seemed impossible—on his Star. He was deservedly encored. Two o'clock was the hour when the affair closed, and lucky were those who found cabs, for it was raining pitchforks. However, all got home safely, and general regrets were expressed that the social season had closed.

The same sentiments were heard at the

the same evening, but I reckon the boys are all glad enough that the riding season is once more here, and none would go back to the winter if they could help it. One more dance—that of the Philadelphias' on Friday night—winds up the social season, which has been the most successful ever known, and has resulted in a marked increase in the interest taken in club life.

Pennsylvania's sociable went off in the same happy manner as those which have preceded it, the patronesses being Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Supplee, Mrs. Street and Mrs. Worrall. Supper was served at about 11 o'clock, and the party danced until after midnight.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1889. "ARIEL."

DEATH OF STEPHEN TERRY.

Last month Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Terry, of Hartford, started out on one of the Raymond excursions, to visit Southern California and Mexico. Up to about the 15th of this month both Mr. and Mrs. Terry were enjoying the best of health, but when at Los Angeles, Mr. Terry contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia on his arrival at San Francisco.

He at once placed himself under the care of Dr. A. G. Sawyer, of that city, who, on the 29th, wired Mr. Terry's family of the serious illness and critical condition of Mr. Terry. On the 23d a dispatch was received in Hartford, announcing his death. Mrs. Terry, with the remains, started from San Francisco, April 25.

We clip the following facts from the Hartford Times: "Mr. Terry was 47 years old. He was a native of Plymouth, Litchfield County, and was a son of Eli Terry, the famous clockmaker. A graduate of Hamilton College, he came to Hartford immediately after the war, reading law in the office of the Hon. Elisha Johnson, with whom he was afterward associated in practice. Mr. Terry's first wife, a very pleasing and estimable young lady, from Bedford, N. Y., was the sister of Dr. Irving W. Lyons, of this city. His second marriage, in 1873, was to Miss Lucretia Salisbury, of New York.

Mr. Terry was a man of very upright and excellent character. He was technical, but a man of unblemished integrity, and of decided independence of character. This latter trait was evinced in many ways, and not the least noticeable of these was his political independence—for he acted politically with that class of Republicans who found cause for action separate from their party. He stood high in the order of Odd Fellows; and he was a prominent leader in bicycling. In that pleasant and serviceable sport he was interested from its American beginning. He was the President of the Connecticut Bicycle Club of this city, and first Chief Consul of the Connecticut League of American Wheelmen, as well as Vice President of the National League. Mr. Terry was a respected member of Christ church."

"THE YACHTSMAN."

WE have before us the first two issues of "The Yachtsman," a paper published in the interests of the sport indicated by its title.

We welcome among our exchanges this paper, the first we believe, ever issued weekly in the sole interest of the noble sport of yachting, and from its appearance and general get up we are of the opinion that The Yachtsman will at once jump into popular favor with those whose recreation is on the water.

The first page of the first number is a reproduction of an etching of the sloop "Katrina," while the first page of issue No. 2 is a splendid picture (also an etching reproduced) of the steam yacht "Electra," Commodore Gerry's superb ship.

The inside pages are illustrated by fine cuts of the latest models and celebrated yachts. The letter press is excellent, and is made up of the usual news matter and correspondence, special articles on boat building, measurements and classifications, and all questions which are of vital interest to yachtsmen.

The editor and business manager, Mr. Geo. G. Saville, is a gentleman who is thoroughly versed in all matters connected with yachts, and is entirely conversant with the special sport he so admires.

Mr. Louis M. Clark, whose name appears as Associate Editor, is one whose opinion on construction and rig are looked on by yachtsman as authority.

These gentlemen have an able corps of correspondents in all yachting centres, and those interested in the sport will find in "The Yachtsman" a weekly epitome of all that is interesting and of value in this particular line.

THE TALE OF A SKULL.

A STORY OF THE QUATIER LATIN OF PARIS.

In Three Chapters.

BY JAS. PURVIS-BRUCE.

CHAPTER I.

I am, as you must admit, odd-looking and eccentric. At least, so all my friends tell me, and by comparison with the rest of humanity, I have found that my individuality has asserted itself to such an extent unusual that I am generally regarded as a "character;" some coarse-grained organisms have even dismissed me with but one word of criticism—"crank." Be that as it may.

To myself, it is true, all my actions seem sane and natural. I only follow natural impulses and inclinations.

This story, as the headline would indicate, is about a skull, a human skull, which played a part in my life which I shall remember to my dying day—so vivid are all the scenes in my mind at the present time.

In skulls I have always found a quaint attraction. There is to me a strange pathos in those hollow eye-cavities where once evil or ennobling passion glowed; a grim look about the fleshless jaws and the set mouth that has always formed food for wholesome meditation to me. What an emblem of time, what a suggestion of the possibilities of enternity. "Alas poor Yorick! I knew him well."

Even in the careless days of my childhood this eccentricity asserted itself. In the museum of natural history where we often spent our Saturday afternoons, I would wander off to the case where without reference to the tender feelings or ante-mortem wishes of the owners of the grinning head-pieces, the "Skulls of all Nationalities" were exhibited.

This was my favorite corner, and I would have prized any one of the bleached or time-colored brain-boxes, as much as an ordinary child would have prized a box of confectionery, or a model steam engine.

The tall, pointed head of the Patagonian, and the flat-head and high cheek bones of the Australian aborigine or Moari, were my two favorites, though I coveted the red-looking skull in the far corner that had come from an American prairie and had a bullet hole, above the left eye, and was labeled "Comanche, U. S. A." Whether the owners of these articles knew of my affectionate or covetous longing I have never been able to ascertain.

On my slate at school, I was much more proficient with the drawing of a skull than with an algebraeical problem or a "prop" in Euclid.

In after life the same strange fancy possessed me, and people were constantly proclaiming my evidences of unsound mind, and lack of taste in having my walking sticks, umbrella-handles, pipes, and scarf-pins ornamented with the inevitable design (the skull), so repellant to most mortals, who, as a rule, wish to keep the thought of death to the "curtain act" of this life's drama. Unlike Sara Bernhardt, they wish to associate as little as possible with death while on this earth. No "Young Girl and Death" for them. And now I shall tell you of the most remarkable experience of my life; something which shall doubtless remain an inexplicable mystery as long as I live.

I had been living for some time in the Quatier Latin (the Latin Quarter of Paris), with a friend of mine, a "figure-painter," whose "den" of a studio was divided from my rooms by an old tumble down staircase, which creaked unmercifully, especially in the still night, when I would be returning late from some distraction after the opera. My friend and I were both Englishmen. He rejoiced in the prosaic name of John Green Brown, but such a name was a sure death blow to a picture, if put on its right hand corner, and so he styled himself Sage Vandyke, a name which was well known in Paris and on the continent, in connection with figure painting and quaint studies. He pursued his vocation of artist, while I corresponded for several London journals and periodicals, writing "Paris Letters" on art and music. Both thoroughly Bohemian in our tendencies, we were thrown together a good deal. His studio was our meeting and working place, where we lounged in our old loose coats, he painting and I scribbling; or chatting on the merits of some new singer or violinist, over our old pipes and a cup of fragrant Mocha, sent from Jacquesson's Cafe, a few doors off.

One day, while rummaging in a cupboard where he kept pigments of all kinds in most "admired disorder," I came upon a very fresh looking skull, nicely articulated.

It at once engaged my attention, and I asked its origin. "Picked it up at the sale of a medical student's impedimenta, who was going to London," said he, without looking up from the head of a "Grisette" which he was painting, the original sitting nonchalantly in the light, with her thumbs in her lap and her small slippered feet crossed before her, an old "model" who was a great favorite in the studios, as she had a picturesque head and good features, and a good torse, hand and ankle as well—qualificatious which are greatly in demand, as they are the stock in trade of an all around "model," and very rarely go together.

"Paid six francs for it," he continued. "Wanted it as a model for my little study of "Wild Bees in a Human Skull," which was so shamefully "skied" in last year's salon, that the picture resembled a small Dutch loaf with currents sparsely sprinkled on the top, rather than a human skull which honey bees had utilized as a storehouse for their golden treasure. This was what one of you art critics said, anyway."

"I will give you twelve francs for the skull," said I. "You know my hobby, and this is the finest specimen I have ever seen."

"You can keep it with my good wishes, if you will only transfer it to your own room upstairs. I present it to you. I was tired of it gaping and grinning at me on the mantel-piece; the first thing to catch the light in the morning, and sure to catch the glint of the lamp at night," said my artist friend. "I put it in the cupboard to be out of sight. I shall not want it again."

I thanked him for his present, and told him I'd keep it in remembrance of him.

"The man who owned it won't thank you, perhaps," he said, laughing, "though he, poor fellow, can't care."

I took the skull to my room, and for want of a better place I put it in my hat box, the head being small and fitting easily inside of a silk hat.

Before doing so, I examined it carefully. "A girl's head," thought I, "from the shape and size." The teeth were in exceptionably beautiful preservation, with the exception of one of the molars on the left under jaw, which had been slightly decayed and curiously stopped with gold, and one of the canines had a small speck of similar filling on one side. Evidently the head of a well-to-do person. Strange! I mused, that a skull like this should have come from some dissecting room or student's "diggings."

Closer examination revealed a small grey substance sticking in the bone behind the left ear. I rubbed my finger over it, and it had a rough metallic feeling, and upon taking it to the light, with the aid of a pen knife and a pair of scissors (which I used as forceps), I managed to extract from the skull a small piece of steel, which was evidently the point of a knife. It was very small, scarce three eighths of an inch in length.

When I joined my friend in a pipe down stairs, I showed him this piece of steel, and until long in the night, as we sat and smoked, we discussed the probabilities as to how that piece of steel got there.

"A piece of the blade of a pocket knife certain," said he, examining it, "probably belonging to the medical student who articulated the skull, or judging from the very thin portion of the skull where it was imbedded, that man (or as you say, that woman) was murderously dealt with."

"Then the gold filling in the teeth adds to the mystery. A person with such well kept teeth would be likely to have friends who would see him (or her) respectably interred, and, according to the evidence, very unlikely to go from some morgue or hospital ward to aid science in some dissecting 'theatre.'" The matter was dropped and I went up to bed.

MARYLAND HOSPITALITY.

Editors Bicycling World: It was a very graceful act in President Luscomb to suggest to the Maryland Division, in connection with the question of the annual League meet, "that extensive and expensive entertainment be done away with." It is noticed, however, that it has furnished a text for a few writers from this division, to preach a sermon on economy, and it is feared the false impression may get abroad that the Maryland Division, while inviting the fraternity to partake of its hospitality, really has not much, if any, hospitality to offer. Economy is an excellent thing in its place, but it has no place now, nor never had, at Maryland's hospitable table. Maryland's guests never yet felt a sense of being unwelcome, or of grudging hospitality in the host, and they never will. Any wheelman who takes a seat at our board July 2, 3 and 4 will experience the good old lang syne, with no modern innovations.

To the few members of the Maryland Division who are discussing in public the question of economy in annual League meets, and who in the main are right enough in their deductions, it is suggested that this is not the proper time, and they are urged to desist for the present, for reasons that will be apparent on reflection. The State Board of Officers will see that the division finances do not suffer; there shall be no unwilling strain on the pockets of the cyclists of the division, and the personal service of any cyclist who assists in preparing to entertain our guests shall be only those who volunteer to do so, and that cheerfully. In view of all this, members are asked not to embarass the workers by putting in "cold print" personal opinions, however worthy, which have a tendency to give our guests the impression that our hospitality will not be bountiful or that it is grudgingly offered. To entertain the League is a privilege, not a task.

To the members of the L. A. W. it might be said simply "this is the same old Maryland that had you for guests in eighty-eight," and they will know what that implies for eighty-nine.

Respectfully and truly yours, ALBERT MOTT,

Baltimore, Md., April 24, 1889. C. C. Md. Div. L. A. W.

THE PENNSYLVANIA LIBERTY BILL.

Editors Bicycling World: I desire to ask for a small portion of your space, in order to inform the members of the Pennsylvania Division that the liberty bill has passed the Legislature, and has been signed by the Governor. The facts concerning the passage of the bill should be laid before the division, and I will trespass upon you far enough to mention them briefly.

At a meeting of the division, held in December last, Messrs. Tucker, Trimmer and myself were appointed a committee to prepare and introduce a measure which would secure to the wheel those rights already acceded in some other states. Accordingly, in January, a bill placing bicycles and kindred wheels upon the same plane as carriages and horses, and securing to us rights equal to those enjoyed by carriages and horsemen, was presented by Hon. Wm. H. Keyser, of Philadelphia. At its second reading some opposition was shown to the measure by Hon. Frank M. Riter, Hon. Richard Patterson, Hon. V. Richmond and other members of the Legislature, in consequence of which the bill failed to secure the requisite number of votes, and failed. Mr. Tucker and myself immediately undertook to remove the objections of Mr. Riter, and I went to Harrisburg to secure the assistance of the other objectors, which was necessary to reinstate the bill; there being a rule of the Legislature that a single objection prevents a revival after failure to pass upon any reading.

After considerable argument, and the concession on our part of some of the specific features of the bill, which, however, did not alter the substantial recognition we sought, the bill was carried up again and subsequently passed. In the Senate it encountered no antagonism, and on the 23d of April, 1889, Governor Beaver appended his signature. It ought to be said that Mr. Trimmer did effective service by correspondence with members and senators, although his residence in York, Pa., prevented his personal appearance at the capital.

My object in this placing the details before the division is to inform the members that we are especially indebted to Messrs. Patterson.

Fow, Richmond, Keysey and Wherry, members of the House, and to Senator Watres for friendly and important service at a time when a single objection would have been fatal to our bill. Mr. Riter also should receive the thanks of Pennsylvania wheelmen for his change of attitude at the reinstatement of the bill. Governor Beaver's official recognition of the wheel in his annual message, and his prompt action upon the bill has given him additional popularity among bicyclers.

Yours respectfully,
SAMUEL A. BOYLE, Chairman.

THE LYNN TRACK.

As already announced, the Lynn track lease was sold a week ago to Isiah Graves, for $300, he owning the land, and one year's rent ($400) being due him. There was only one other bidder, and he had an interest in the premises amounting to $350. The park will be leased to any responsible party, for one or two years, for $400 per year.

RIDE WITH SHORTER CRANKS.

Editor Bicycling World:—"Jack's" respects to the ladies leads me also to encroach on your readers' time, in the hopes of advancing cycling among the ladies. I am an earnest advocate of cycling for ladies, but it is discouraging sometimes to see them on the wheel, and it is no wonder this exercise has not been more popular. It has often occured to me, outside of what "Jack" says, why the manufacturers, and why the ladies do not insist upon a shorter crank than is usually put on wheels, both trikes and bikes. The long lift of the pedal is not an exceedingly modest movement. Then, again, why don't the ladies practice the ankle motion? I am sure with the above combination, one of the very objectionable features, which has a great deal of weight among the would-be riders, would be removed. So ladies, if you are enthusiasts, and desire others to be, dress and ride so as to give a charm to wheeling, and you will have many followers.

No. 1253.

SHOW YOUR TICKET.

Editor Bicycling World: Why is it that the League Committees on Transportation and Hotels do not have the distinct understanding that a wheelman must show his League ticket before he can have either free transportation for his wheel or reduced rates at hotels?

I have been a member of the League nearly six years, and have never by a hotel keeper, nor until last week by a baggage-master, been asked to show my ticket.

I am satisfied there are plenty of wheelmen who would not hesitate to avail themselves of these advantages brought about by the League, but with no expense to themselves. I think that if wheelmen were obliged to show a League ticket in order to enjoy these privileges, it would cause quite an increase in the membership of our organization.

CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

A one-hundred mile race has been added to the programme already announced, for which ten entries are already assured. These will include Bert Myers of Peoria, Alec Lewis of St. Louis, two Omaha men, and Mason, Riggs, Hamnel, Spooner and Van Sicklen of Chicago. This event will occur on Thursday, May 16, starting at 2.30 P. M. It is open to both safety and ordinay wheels weighing thirty-five pounds or over.

Entries will be received up to May 14, the fee being one dollar.

The short amateur races will commence at 8 o'clock each evening.

Arrangements have been made by the reception committee to have two representatives at headquarters (Palmer House) during the entire week. Visitors desiring insormation on any subject can obtain it there. The club-room at the hotel will always be open for the exclusive use of wheelmen, and mail matter addressed there will receive careful attention. A large store room has been set apart for wheels.

Parties coming from a distance who notify the management in advance will be met at depot.

The most desirable hotels, with their special rates for the occasion are: Palmer House, $2.50 per day; Grand Pacific, $2.50 to $3.50; Tremont, $2.50 to $4.00 per day; Briggs, $2.00 per day; Continental, $1.50 and $2.00 per day; Commercial, $1.50 and $2.00 per day.

European Plan: Palmer House, 75 cents per day; Windsor Hotel, 75 cents per day; Kuhn's Hotel, 75 cents per day.

All of these houses are within easy distance of the building and the boulevards. There are scores of others within easy reach, and this list is given as being the houses most frequented by wheelmen.

At headquarters a list of desirable boarding houses and furnished rooms, with prices, will be found.

It is estimated that at least 1,500 visitors will be in attendance. Address all communications, S. A. Miles, 199 S. Clark street, Chicago.

THE DOG NUISANCE.

MR. STERLING ELLIOTT'S letter, printed in the WORLD of a couple of weeks ago, has caused many suggestions to be sent in by those who have been afflicted with the gay and festive but pugnacious purp.

Some suggest shooting the canine "to kill," other suggest carrying a revolver, half of the chambers with ball and half with blank cartridge; the idea being to scare if possible, but to kill if the dog does not retreat under blank cartridge fire.

Others use torpedoes, and they state that these have been found to be very efficacious. Cayenne pepper, snuff and dalmation, if properly applied, are said to cause tears of remorse to come to eyes of the inquisitive dog.

So here you are, you can kill the dog, or scare him or blind him and make him sneeze.

HARVARD CLUB RACES.

THE arrangements for the race meeting at Holmes' Field, Cambridge, May 11th, are now almost complete, and the list of entries is already very large. In race number four, the mile handicap, a silver lamp will be given as first prize, in place of a pair of yachting glasses; and in number six, the tandem safety race, two wrought iron lamps will be given as first prizes, in place of two brass lamps, and two Winchester single shot rifles will be given as second prizes, in place of two stop watches. The grounds will be in fine shape, and if the weather only proves propitious, all things point to a grand success.

The races will be started promptly at 2.30, May 11th. L. A. W. rules will govern.

A BIG ROAD RACE AT UTICA, N. Y.

THE Fort Schuyler Wheelmen, of Utica, N. Y., are to have a fifty-mile road race on Decoration Day, May 30th, not, however, with any especial motive of breaking the record, or anybody's neck, but simply as an opening of the wheeling season in these parts. The race will be over the best roads in this vicinity (no sandpaper racket, however), from Utica to East Winfield and return, taking the riders through several of our lively and pretty suburban villages, New Hartford, Washington Mills, Sauquoit, Clayville, Cassville and Bridgewater, in the order named. The race will be open to all amateurs of the State, thirty-minute limit handicap. Two prizes of gold medals will be offered.

FORT SCHUYLER.

ROAD RACING IN DENVER, COL.

THE final arrangements have just been completed to what will be the greatest race the Denver wheelmen have ever planned. The Social Wheel Club have accepted the Denver Ramblers' challenge to a team race to be run May 5th next, for a silver cup valued at a hundred dollars. The teams are to be composed of nine men each. The course starts just outside the city, and continues 33 1-2 miles, straightway to Platteville. The road is said to be one of the best in the country, and fast time is expected, as the race is for blood. Gerwing will head the Ramblers' team, and Banks the Socials'. Both of these men have wanted a go at each other ever since the BI WORLD'S 100 mile race at Buffalo, in which both rode. Full particulars after the event.

"OCCASIONAL."

HOT SPRINGS RACES.

HARRY GORDON got back from Hot Springs this morning, and reports: That the bicycle events of R. E. Neilson's 4-day bicycle and athletic tournament resulted as follows:

First day.—5-mile professional: Knapp first in 17m. 10s.; Ashinger second. Two-mile professional: Knapp first in 6m. 15s., Neilson second. One-mile amateur: Harry Gordon first in 2.59, E. B. Neilson second.

Second day—Three-mile professional: Knapp first, (forgot time), Neilson second. One-mile professional againt horse, won by Knapp in 2m. 44s. Five-mile amateur: Harry Gordon first in 18m. 15s., E. B. Neilson second.

Third day—One-mile amateur: E. M. Gordon won, Harry Gordon second. E. B. Neilson and Harry Gordon collided in this race, which caused the latter to loose first place.

E. B. Neilson is a young brother of Bob, and posesses considerable speed for a beginner. He will compete in the Chicago tournament.

Fourth Day—Three-mile amateur: E. B. Neilson, first in 10m. 18s., Harry Gordon second. One-mile professional: R. A. Neilson first in 2m. 47s., Knapp second. Five-mile professional: Won by Knapp.

Accidents were numerous, caused by the inexperience of some of the amateur riders, and a number of machines were wrecked in consequence.

Harry Gordon gave an exhibition of fancy riding each day and was warmly received.

LINNÆUS.

A. W. GUMP & CO.

ONE of the most successful bicycle houses in this country is that of A. W. Gump & Co., of Dayton, Ohio. Starting with a few wheels in 1879 their trade not only now extends to every corner of the United States, but has reached Bermuda, Mexico and South America.

A peculiar feature of their business is that they take bicycles, guns and type-writers in exchange, and guarantee their customers the lowest price on any new bicycle.

We copy the following from the Dayton Board of Trade Journal: "The bicycle house of A. W. Gump & Co. presents an unpretentious front on Second street, but the ramifications rearward and upward are quite extensive. A three-story building, 200 feet deep, is devoted primarily to bicycles, and incidentally to guns, boats, and other sporting goods. Back of the store room, on the first floor, are two commodious offices, and here the clerks, stenographers and type writers indicate an extensive business and an extended correspondence. Beyond the office, a ten horse power Otto Gas Engine furnishes power for the machine shop, where expert mechanics, with special tools are ready to do anything for a bicycle that can be done—turning out the old machine as good as new.

A. W. GUMP.

Making a specialty of difficult repairing, the firm is naturally familiar with all the wheels on the market, and their house has grown to be a great wheel exchange, familiar as a household word to riders of the steel steed all over the country.

They carry over 500 wheels, new and old, the largest stock in the United States outside of the manufacturers' warehouses, and the descriptive list of second-hand wheels they publish occasionally, in addition to the standard catalogs, shows over 300 machines of all makes, in all conditions of usefulness and of equal variety of price. Their variation in the latter regard is surprising, but the particularity of description shows an honest purpose on the part of the firm to post the purchaser, and sell him what he is willing to pay for, whether it is a "worn wheel that will do for a learner," or one of the best grade, worth $125 or $135.

The Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, the largest manufacturers of bicycles in the country, are special partners with Mr. A. W. Gump."

MESSRS. S. & J. DAVIS, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

THE New Mail people report several orders lately for their safeties for export. They are still behind their orders, and working nights to catch up. This safety is giving great satisfaction. The New Mail ordinary which Murphy rode 12000 miles last year is at Schoverling, Daly & Gales, 302 Broadway, N. Y., for a few days, and is a splendid evidence of the staunchness of this make. Murphy still uses the New Mail for this year's riding.

MESSRS. GORMULLY & JEFFERY advise us that the capacity of their factory is run to the utmost, in order to fill their orders for their machines; an evidence of prosperity that must be of great satisfaction to that driving Western firm.

A. G. SPALDING & BROS., of New York and Chicago, have issued No. 15 of their library of athletic sports, under the caption of "Hints on Cycling," being a concise treatise on riding touring, racing and training. The book seems to be an excellent little handbook, and contains lots on the above points. It can be procured of Messrs. Spalding, in New York or Chicago. Price, 10 cents.

THE Schwalbach medal, won by W. F. Murphy, is said to be the finest medal ever given to an amateur in this country. On the first bar of the medal are the words "Schwalbach Medal," in large raised letters. Above this is a fancy scroll of colored gold, to which is also attached a heavy pin to fasten to the coat. Below this, and hanging by three links, is an engraved, fluted bar, representing the setting sun. In the centre is a shield, and on each side, in enamel, are the words, "Long distance." Below, supported by several links is an eagle with diamond eyes and out stretched wings, emblematic of championship, supporting by his talons a Roman gold crescent, upon which is engraved the name of the winner, William F. Murphy. Fastened in the centre of this is a Maltese cross, in the centre of which is a small "S." In each corner is a figure representing the year 1888. Fastened to the ends of the crescent is a wreath, artistically worked in green and yellow gold, and in its centre is a polished plate holding the badge of the K. C. W. Attached to a streamer are twelve gold plates, representing the twelve months of the year, upon which is engraved the winner's monthly record from March, 1888, to March, 1889, thus: 151, 566 1-2, 831, 971, 1,218 1-2, 341 1-2, 1,490 1-2, 1,700, 306, 151 1-2, 200, 130. Below the record is a miniature Butcher cyclometer with the recipient's total distance, 8,177 1-2 miles, in enamel letters. The whole is appropriately mounted on a silk ribbon of cardinal and brown, the club's colors.

The medal was made by Cook, of Fulton street, New York, and is now on exhibition at No. 302 Broadway, New York, together with the wheel on which Murphy rode, a New Mail.

Annual Meet.

The Executive Committee takes pleasure in announcing to the membership of the League of American Wheelmen that the annual meet of 1889, will be held on July 2d, 3rd and 4th, at Hagerstown, Maryland, under the auspices and at the invitation of the Maryland Division.

It is the desire of the present administration to relieve the annual gatherings of the expensive features which, although cheerfully borne, were nevertheless, an unfair burden upon the hospitality of our resident members at the Meets of the last few years.

The locality has been selected from the wheeling standpoint; fine roads, points of interest and accomodations for the meeting of our members in large numbers.

During the meet there will be held meetings and discussions, to which the membership is generally invited, that an interchange of views and ideas upon all questions of interest to cycling may be had.

Each of these meetings will be under the direction of a member familiar with the particular subject to be discussed, and it is hoped by this means, to add to the annual meet-facilities for acquiring information and instruction, wherefrom many useful and valuable hints and suggestions may be obtained and the benefit of association in the League, in this direction, practically utilized by its members. A more full developement of the proposed scheme will be published later.

Fraternally, CHARLES H. LUSCOMBE,
President, L. A. W.

The Maine Meet.

The annual meet of the Maine Division, L. A. W., will be held in Biddeford, May 30th. To those that attended the spring meet in Portland last year, or the fall meet and races at Waterville, it is needless to give advice as to the fun in store for those who take in the event in this city. The York County Wheelmen are working hard for the success of the meet. They have arranged for a street parade through Biddeford and Saco at 8.30, A. M., ending at the Saco driving park, where races will take place at 10 o'clock. The races are not to be a Division affair, but will be under the charge of the local 'cyclists. There will be a one mile open race for the Pope cup; a York County Wheelmen's one mile race in heats; a safety race, one half mile, open to members of the Maine Division; and a one mile race in heats, open to Maine Division riders.

After the races a run will be made to Old Orchard, where dinner will be obtained at T. L. Cleave's restaurant and the afternoon devoted to general sports. In the evening the York County Wheelmen will entertain the visiting wheelmen at the clubs rooms in Biddeford.

A. L. T. CUMMINGS, Secretary-Treasurer.
Biddeford, April 30.

H. C. Spaulding, Jr.

To the members of the New York State Division:

It is the sad duty of the Chief Consul to announce to the Division the death of H. C. Spaulding Jr., of Elmira, who died in that city, April 12th.

Mr. Spaulding was a member of the Division Board of Officers and also of the Nominating Committee. He always gave the Division his best work and most judicious advice and brought with these an enthusiasm which helped to brighten and lighten the duties of his confreres.

He was soon to depart for Europe to do the Old World on his wheel proving that he was a practical wheelman who believed in the use as well as the pleasure of cycling.

The Division will mourn his loss as that of one it could ill spare. Yours fraternally,

W. S. BULL, Chief Consul.

Attention, Racing Men.

Rule 13 reads: "Safety bicycles shall not be ridden in 'ordinary' bicycle races." If race meet promoters allow the two machines to be ridden in the same race, they are not running their races under L. A. W. Rules, and racing men, competing in such races, are liable to suspension from the race track. The Racing Rules of the L. A. W. cannot be "doctored," to suit the fancy of every individual, they must be taken as they stand.

PSYCHO LIGHT ROADSTER, WEIGHT, 38 POUNDS.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S PSYCHO.

Three Weights, 39 lbs., 44 lbs., and 50 lbs.

PSYCHO TANDEM SAFETY, WEIGHT, 74 POUNDS

The Psycho cycles are imported by the Capital Cycle Company, of Washington, D. C. This firm were the first to recognize the merits of all forms of rear-driving safeties, and in 1885 imported the first one ever brought into this country. They also designed and introduced the first tandem safety in 1888. They designed and manufactured in 1887 the first rear-driving ladies' safety bicycle, and credit should be given them for their efforts in this direction. They have accomplished as much for the weaker sex by reducing friction, weight, and by giving increased pleasure, as did the inventor of the spider wheel for the stronger sex by improving the bone-shaker.

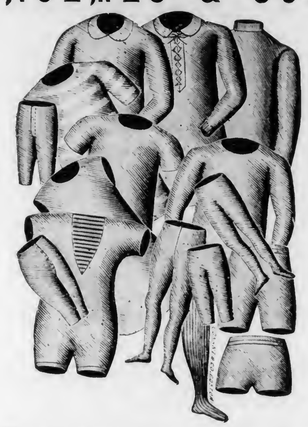
1. "Men's Straight Frame Psycho Safety," 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, geared to 57 inches, weight 47 lbs. Price, $140.

2. "Men's Light Roadster Psycho Safety" (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 3-4 inch tires, made for gentleman riders and scorchers on good roads, geared to 60 inches, weight 38 lbs. Price, $140.

3. "Men's Dropped Frame Psycho Safety" is designed like ladies' safety (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, weight 50 lbs. Will carry any weight on any road. Detachable brace rod makes it suitable for ladies and a general family machine. Price, $140. Geared to 57 inches.

4. "Ladies' Roadster Psycho Safety," 3-4 inch tires, 29-inch wheels. Detachable brace rod, suitable for short or medium height gentlemen. Will stand any weight. Weight 44 lbs. (See Cut.) Geared to 50 inches.

5. "Ladies' Light Roadster Psycho Safety," 29-inch wheels, 3-4 and 5-8 inch tires, weight 38 lbs. Superb finish, very light and easy running, intended for light weight ladies, but will carry 175 lbs. Geared to 50 inches.



6. "Ladies' Extra Light Psycho," 28-inch wheels, made for short, light ladies, weight 34 lbs., gear 48 inches. Price, $140.

7. "Psycho Tandem Safety," intended for lady and gentleman or two gentlemen, 7-8 inch tires to both wheels, very strong, light and simple. Will carry any weight. Price, with two separate brakes, $200. Geared to 57 inches.

The Capital Cycle Company have prepared for their share of the trade this year, relying upon the merits of their wheels. They only handle two-wheeled safeties; no ordinaries or tricycles.

Frank Fairbairn, Erie, Pa.:

DEAR SIR—I have been using your knit suitings steadily during the last year (1888) and to present time, and they have given perfect satisfaction.

I much rather prefer them to our own club suits, and have been wearing the same in place thereof, for both summer and winter riding. Have used knit goods of other makers, but find yours to wear better and more durable than any I have yet seen.

A great deal is said about vibration springs now-a-days, and if they are properly and scientifically constructed they are a boon to the safety rider without doubt.

When they are placed upon or are a part of the front fork however, they are not a success, as to absorb vibration they must needs be so exceedingly pliable as to render it difficult to keep the feet upon the pedals on rough roads. And too, in sharp turns the front wheel is liable to be forced against the forks, while the easy steering is perceptibly affected in both cases.

The vibration spring in the patented frame of the

is where it belongs, under the seat, where is the greatest weight, and is one of the many original features which go to make this rear driver the only practical and thoroughly comfortable machine of its type on all sorts of American roads.

EDITORS:
C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 10 MAY, 1889.

OUR PAPER WAS MAILED.

LAST week our whole edition was in the Boston Post Office by 12 M. Saturday. All the New England papers were in the mail by Friday night.

Having proved that our paper gets into the Boston Post Office on good time we would say to those who don't get it on time, we have lodged a complaint in the Boston office, and we will do all in our power to have the trouble sifted down to its proper source.

THE above figures show the present circulation of the WORLD: it is the largest circulation ever reached by a cycling paper in this country. In the five numerals above is contained a sermon more eloquent than words, and they are constantly preaching to the advertisers that the WORLD is the medium for those who have anything to sell. Advertise your second-hand wheels now. Howard A. Smith says that the returns from his advertisement in the WORLD, of second-hand wheels, is immense. If you want to sell, advertise in this paper.

OUR esteemed contemporary, the Boston Herald, interviews Stillman G. Whittaker, and quite a number of funny mistakes, both of fact and typographical, creep into the article. In the first place, Mr. Whittaker is reported as saying that he left the United States some years ago a pure amateur, and that he returned to the country a professional. Dick Howells' name gets into type as "Dick Howard," and Tom Eck gets called "Ten Eyck." Mr. Kerrison is a well posted man on cycling affairs, and so the errors and mistakes which have been pointed out are rather remarkable. When Whittaker left America for England he was a professional, dyed in the wool, and a wonderful little man withal,—but that Mr. Kerrison should have made the mistake he did in announcing Whittaker as an amateur a year ago is too amusing for anything, and we do not doubt but that Whittaker himself smiled when he read it.

Mr. Whittaker is reported as saying that when (?) he is "requalified he will meet Windle on the road or track," and then, to prove the real amateur motives which actuate him, he issues a challenge to any rider in the world to ride for a purse of £100 or upwards, and yet Mr. Whittaker is reported as talking of reinstatement!! If the gentleman will only announce his "intention" to give up racing (for twenty-four hours!) no doubt he can get back into the fold.

ALL eyes are turned Chicago-ward this week, and by the time this paper gets out west, the big tournament will be under way. We shall hope to give results of races up to and including Wednesday. We have to go to press early Thursday forenoon, and so cannot give later returns.

THE "Tale of a Skull," by J. Purvis-Bruce, is a story of more than ordinary merit, and though the cycle has not a place in it, the story will not be found to be out of place in the pages of this paper. It is a good story well written, as, in fact, are all of "Jack's" productions.

IN talking with an English gentlemen the other day, he made a statement in regard to the ladies' bicycle that opened our eyes as to the very conservative ways of our English sisters. He stated that the majority of the ladies' cycles were exported, as the English lady did not look upon the two-wheeler as a "proper" mount for the gentle sex. A good many English ladies owned bicycles, so he says, but they are chiefly used by them in the private grounds and parks, and are very seldom seen on the public highway. This seems strange to us, and were our authority other than what it is, we should be tempted to doubt its atheuticity.

AT the time that several of our erstwhile professionals made application to be reinstated by the League, we understand that the applicant made the statement that it was his "intention to abandon racing." And so having announced his "intention," he was taken back into the fold. That these "intentions" were sincere we have no doubt, and that the right to change such "intentions," 24 hours after having expressed them, is also the undoubted privilege of the "intender." A case has been brought to our notice, wherein a man applying for reinstatement refused to give it as his "intention" to abandon the race track, hence the reinstatement was denied. Now we consider that in the case we have in mind, the applicant was honest and would not give it as his "intention," etc., because in so giving it, he would consider his word of honor had been given not to race, and being a man of honor he would not allow himself to thus bind himself, as he considers he would do had he expressed his "intention." We do not mean to insinuate that the men who have stated their "intention," etc., and thus secured reinstatement are not honorable, far from it, but rather we would criticise the unfair yoke the Racing Board attempts to put about the neck of the reinstated professional. The intention expressed may have been of the most honest, but the right to reconsider is a man's privilege, hence this article is written to prove the folly of any half-way means intended to be radical.

MASSACHUSETTS DIVISION ANNUAL MEET.

AT a meeting of the Divisions officers, held at Dr. Kendall's office, Boston, last Monday, the date of the annual meet of the Massachusetts Division was decided on as June 17, but the place of meeting will not be decided until next Monday. There seems to be a strong leaning towards Squantum, a place on the Bay, and about 40-minute cycle ride from Boston. This place will give ample chance for all sorts of out-door sports on land and water, and it is within easy distance of the Hub. We hope Squantum will be chosen.

"JACK."
BOSTON.

MR. H. G. PRIEST, of Birmingham, England, has taken himself off somewhat reluctantly from the city of Boston. He goes to Assiniboine, a desolate portion of far Northwestern Canada, accompanied by a family hat box, (bearing many labels), and the good wishes of the many friends which he has made here, especially the members of the Manhattan Club, of which he elected himself a member, when his insular dislike to innovation wore off. He has been dividing his time between nightingale hunting and listening to the strains of "Boccaecia," and has done considerable "reading between the lines." American cyclers will be sorry to lose Mr. H. G. Priest and will welcome him back again whenever he condescends to put his low-cut walking shoes upon American soil.

THOMAS STEVENS, who is supposed to be going Stanleywards, has in him a good deal of the Oliver Goldsmith in his own way, of course). Strangely deficient in the power of speech, though a good writer, he may be said to:

"Write like an angel,
And speak like poor Poll."

LAST Thursday Mr. H. G. Priest, member of Parliament for the District of Manhattan, took a sail on the crafty craft "Alice," a slim sea boat of the canoe variety (31 inches by 15 feet), 100 pounds tonnage, with Editor Fourdrinier in the wheel house. The voyage of 2 1-2 miles, to Thompson's Island and Savin Hill, was thoroughly enjoyed by Mr. Priest, who has been chanting, "I'm going to be a sa-li-or and plow the deep blue sea," all the way to Winnepeg. Had it not been for about 80 pounds of sandwiches, the human cargo might have been "dumped" in the waters of South Boston Bay, but Mr. Priest thoughtfully brought this along as "ballyballast to steady "the beastly suddenness you know." Mr. Priest indulged in a prolonged note of joy when he put his foot on American soil again, and the mournfullness of his brown eye was changed to a "safe, safe-at-last" look, as he shook the brine from his boots and the salt from his dark hair. "American soil has charms after all, you know."

THE outside of a bicycle is said to be the best thing for the inside of a man, and I believe it. I am never in such excellent health and spirits as when riding a cycle, and I can recommend it to all in search of health and happiness.

THE only race a woman is ever intended to take a part in is the human race, and this she seems as well fitted to do to-day as she was some few thousand years ago. The quiet country lane, where health and enjoyment, and not spectators are the attraction, is the place for the cycling women, not under the glare of the electric light. Wheeling as a means of heath gathering is legitimate and all right for the gentle woman; wheeling for dollars (and perhaps not too many of them) is an unwomanly occupation, and I hope will be discouraged by your readers.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.
"STAR."

If Helen Grey should visit our village she would no longer advocate the tricycle for ladies, for on many of our roads we ride in wheel tracks or on narrow paths by the side of the road, and such roads, therefore, though often the most picturesque, would be no thoroughfare to the three wheeler. As for the dogs, she need but follow the example of Dr. Green, who had attached to the front fork of his safety a whip socket, in which he carried a whip with a loaded handle for the edification of inquisitive canines. It was so effective last season that it caused a perceptible decline in the price of wienerwurst.

THE Cincinnati Bicycle Club's Monday and Saturday evening social gathering are quite well attended. It is very amusing to listen to the eloquent "Duke" as he dilates on the convenience and fitness of the quarters to the visitors who have been quite numerous of late.

A FIVE mile scratch road race is to be run during the latter part of May, by three of the C. B. C's scorchers, namely: The "Duke," Charley Allen and Dr. Kempton. There is to be no prize, as the contestants have a lofty contempt for such baubles, but it has been mutually agreed that the second and third man to reach the goal will each contribute to the club library a book costing not less than $2.

OWING to a manifest desire on the part of several of the C. B. C. to have a trial of speed with each other, there is considerable talk of establishing club championships. There will be one for the track, and one for the road. The distances, however, have not been decided upon.

THE road race for the medals offered by Mr. A. A. Bennett will be a handicap, and will be run from the bridge north of Chester Park to the toll-gate at Glendale, and return, a distance of fourteen miles. The race will be open to any amateur in this vicinity, and is set for May 26.

THE C. B. C. club house recently had a very narrow escape from a serious calamity. The camera fiends had one of their instruments leveled at it, and were just in the act of firing it off, when a fortunate gust of wind blew the thing down and demolished it—the camera, not the building.

THE riding season in this vicinity began several weeks ago, and some of our clubs have taken runs of fifty and even seventy-five miles. It must be remembered that our roads are anything but level and smooth. The C. B. C., however, who are mostly persons of sedentary habits, and who regard such long jaunts at this season of the year as tiresome affairs, have been taking short but pleasant runs. During a run they ride double file whenever and wherever possible, the Captain and the 1st Lieutenent taking the lead, and the 2d Lieutenant bringing up the rear. In this way a pace is set that is easy, and each individual can readily converse with at least five of his companions; and they certainly make a finer and more striking appearance than those clubs whose motto seems to be "Every one for himself and devil take the hindmost."

PENNSYLVANIA.
"ARIEL."

LACK of space is the cry among all the the clubs, owing to the heavy increase in membership. Century admitted thirty odd on Friday night, none of whom were ladies, I am sorry to say. The question of lady membership has been negatived by the club for the present, owing to the lack of proper accommodations in the new house. Later, when the club is properly settled in their new home, the question will be brought up again, and I hope to see it carried through. The discussion at the meeting was a lively one, in which McGlathery bore off the honors.

Two trifling errors need correction. The grand march at the South End ball was led by President Jackson, instead of ex-Captain Bradley, the latter occupying a prominent position at t other end. And Tixis, not Sexis, is the name of the Y. M. C. A. racing mat.

PENNSYLVANIA is hard pushed for room also, and the club voted on Thursday night, to leave the matter in the hands of the Board of Directors, who have recommended the erection of an addition to the present wheel room, to be built of brick, extending back from the building, and with a permanent foundation, to admit of a second story being added later on.

INAUGURATION DAY was celebrated by the first ladies' run of Pennsylvania Bicycle Club being held on it, and the result more than justified the expections of its most sanguine promoters. Some fifteen ladies, accompanied by their escorts, turned out on singles, tandems, trikes and tandem bicycles, and rode out Bryn Mawr avenue and the Lancaster Pike to Wayne, where dinner had been ordered for the hungry party. Several of the ladies had never ridden a machine before, and it is needless to enlarge on the experience of their attendant cavaliers, in propelling a heavy tandem tricycle up the grade, under the rays of a warm sun. The Second Lieutenant is going to write a book on what he knows about it.

UNFORTUNATELY this same day witnessed a serious accident, by which ex-Secretary George Caryl, of the South End Wheelmen, was the sufferer. Scorching in with his party, on Lancaster avenue, beyond Fifty-second street, he took a tremendous header, and was found insensible in the road. An ambulance was hastily summoned, and he was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where he lay in an unconscious condition for several hours, not being removed to his home until night. The physicians at first feared concussion of the brain, but he fortunately escaped this, and is now out of danger.

THE first decade of the Philadelphia Bicycle Club's existence will close on the 21st instant, and the members propose celebrating its tenth birthday on the 22d. The winter sociables of the club were closed on Friday evening by a full dress reception and ball. The gymnasium was cleared and used as a dancing room, being appropriately decorated, novelties in this line having been arranged by the committee. Grouped at the ends and in the middle of the room were shown the past and present, in the way of the old bone-shaker and tricycle, and the modern light roadster, safety and ladies' safety. Supper was laid in the reception room of the club house, on the first floor, and was not the least enjoyable part of the programme. Full dress was the order of the occasion, and many handsome toilettes were shown. The guests included prominent people in social and cycling circles, and all of the clubs had their representatives present.

SYRACUSE.
"SALINA."

WELL, any way, cold as it was, we whooped her up for George W. on the 30th, and had lots of fun in whooping. Syracuse had a celebration with a parade, mass meetings, speeches, fireworks and all the necessary accompaniments of a first-class celebration. The Cycling Club were invited to lead the van, but owing to the very poor condition of our streets on that day, we couldn't. However, we viewed the parade from our windows, and after the coal, beer, grocery and ice wagons had passed, followed by citizens in carriages and strangers and small boys' contingent in the rear, we mounted our wheels and made a short run to Liverpool, where was served us a "spring chicken supper," and it was real spring, chicken, for "Salina" struck one of the springs. See the joke? Ha!!

GERE, AVERY & CHERRY are open for engagements. A first-class circus or variety show preferred. Address Hon. Lucinius Wilsonius, manager.

Genial Ted Hopkins is in New Haven, Conn., at present, and will no doubt have that suburban village thoroughly plastered with Adamant Wall Plaster ere he returns.

Decoration Day the Syracuse Cyclers will ride to Oneida, where after dinner a match game of ball will be played by Syracuse and Rome wheelmen. After the game, the ride will be continued to Utica, where supper will be served at the St. James. Return will be made by train.

You haven't heard from us of late, but that is no fault of Salina. He has sent down lots of news; 'tis but no doubt the editors of the WORLD had better material for their journal; and then perhaps Salina's items flavored too salty! Who knows?

JUST one word more. Will some one kindly ask the Secretary about the combination locks?

MINNEAPOLIS NOTES.
"PARSON."

EVERY one here closed up and celebrated on Tuesday last (April 30), so Captain Bell called a run to Minnehaha Falls, where the afternoon was spent, lounging around on the lawns of the Soldiers' Home, which, by the way, is just completed. It is situated in as picturesque a spot as one can imagine, on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River where Minnehaha Creek empties into it, and just a short distance below the famous falls. The home is surrounded by a large park. In this park are many delightful drives and walks, which, as soon as the macadam is put on, will make one of the finest runs that the Twin City wheelmen have. The club rode to St. Paul from the Home, when supper was had at the Windsor Hotel, after which the cyclists attended the opera, and the run home made about midnight.

WHEELMEN who have any idea of making Minneapolis a visit during the summer months should not neglect to bring their wheels along, as we have some of the finest short runs in the State. Lakes Calhoun, Harriett, Cedar, and the Lake of the Isles, all lay within five miles of the club rooms, and all have driveways surrounding them, making a total boulevard system of some two hundred miles. This system is being constantly improved and added to, so that Minneapolis will be, in the near future, a veritable "Wheelmen's Paradise."

A PARTY will attend the Chicago meet from here. NOT to race, but for the fun of the trip, and to see Chicago by "gas light."

THE safety has brought wheeling to a practical basis here, as this season a great many middle-aged and elderly men are using the wheel entirely for business, where before this, the riders have been composed almost entirely of young men and boys, who rode only for the sport of the thing. One of our most enthusiastic riders of the "solid men's" class now, is W. E. Haskell, of the Minneapolis Tribune.

THE Winona Cycle Club now have their quarter-mile clay track finished. Their first race meet will probably be July 4th. A large number of boys will go down from here, including the M. B. C. team, which hope to help carry off some of the prizes.

A RUN will be made next Sunday, by Colie Bell, A. M. Buchman, J. R. Stockdale and E. J. Hale, to Mankota, a distance of some 90 miles. This 90 miles may not seem much "on paper" to your Eastern rider, but when made over Minnesota roads it is "quite a distance." I will tell you in my next how they stood it.

NEW YORK.
"HAWKSHAW."

I SAW an amusing case of road hogism the other day. The scene of the tragedy was up on Seventh avenue, and the dramatis personæ were a dandified specimen of "cullered pusson," mounted on a back number edition of a bicycle, and a full blooded, yellow coated, red nosed, road hog. The hog driving rapidly, purposely or otherwise, runs down the sable gentleman, and the earth for several yards around is strewn with wearing apparel, spokes, handle-bars, "coon," pedals, and the other usual debris attendant upon such catastrophes. Gazing for a moment upon the wreck, but without checking his horse, the r. h. yelled, "Hi there! get out of the way." Upon which, the sable sufferer gathered himself together, and dazed by the destruction that had come upon him so unexpectedly, timorously remarked, "Fo' de Lo'd's sake, boss, yo' aint comin' back agin, is ye?" And the curtain was rung down, amid the laughter of the audience who had witnessed the affair.

THIS late Centennial show of ours here brought many strange sights to view. I think that during it I saw a perfect modernized example of a horse marine. It was a sailor in full naval rig, riding a bicycle through Central Park.

I HEAR rumored that there is a plan on foot here to launch a new wheel paper upon the already overstocked market of cycling literature. The projector of the scheme is, I am informed, an Englishman, who has but lately landed from Australia. After the gentleman has attempted to run a cycling paper upon a paying basis in America, I am of the opinion that he will wish he had remained in Australia. Perhaps, though, there is no desire on the part of the gentleman to make any money out of the venture, but is simply seeking after editorial glory, and an expeditious plan to get rid of superfluous funds, in either of which cases I am sure the venture cannot fail to be a pronounced success.

I SAW the other day, in some wheel paper, that Dr. Beckwith, the ex-President of the L. A. W., had been appointed Colonel of a New York regiment of the National Guard. As I always believe everything I see in print, especially in cycling publications, I hastened to offer the Doctor my congratulations upon his accession to the multitudinous ranks of the American Colonel. I "knew my little book," and as soon as I saw him I began to fire off a speech I had prepared, in which glory and gore, war and star-spangled banners were mingled in the greatest possible profusion. But I never finished, because I learned from him that once again I was too previous. The Doctor was not a Colonel, he was only a Sergeant. Now what worries me is to know what I am going to do with that spread-eagle speech I had committed to memory, for the purpose of congratulating him. At first I had thought I would just lay it away in one of the many empty chambers of my mental storehouse, and wait until the Doctor really had become a Colonel, through promotion, but when he told me that it had taken twelve years' service for him to reach the high position of Sergeant, a little mental circulation soon convinced me that at the same rate of advancement he could not possibly become a Colonel before 1980, and as I expect long before that time to be where I won't be either offering congratulations to any one, or writing for wheel papers, I concluded that it would not pay me to wait. There is, in consequence of all this, a speech for sale cheap at this address, which is a bargain for any one who has need for one of its kind. There is also a large and knotty club handy for the gentleman who penned the article in which Dr. Beckwith was made a Colonel.

MEMPHIS.
"ANCHOR."

THE latest report in the long-distance contest for 1889 was taken Saturday, April 27th, and is as follows: Julius Seelig, 862 miles; A. F. Alberts, 703 miles; Geo. Phillips, 668 miles; W. A. Whitmore, 446 miles; Julius Wood, 438 miles; Wm. Wood, 302 miles; W. H. Hayley, 260 miles. They are very closely bunched at present, and some good work can be looked for and in a very short while at that, as they are all in to win the medal offered by Mr. Scherer.

YESTERDAY the club took a run to a small station east of the city about thirty miles. They all took dinner there and supper at home.

THE season is now open, and we look for a good active season for the local wheelman. I must not forget to mention that safeties are becoming all the go here. We now have about fifteen or twenty safety riders.

ON Sunday, May the 19th, we expect some sport, as it is the date set for a safety race of four miles, over rough road, between C. J. Scherer and W. A. Whitmore, for a gold medal.

IN a slow race of 200 yards, held last week at Citizens' Park, Mr. Geo. Phillips won, with Julius Seelig second. Right after this race Phillips and Seelig rode a mile dash. Mr. Seelig turned the tables on Phillips and won handily.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

THE Rev. Wayland D. Ball, pastor of the Associated Reform Church, gave a pleasing talk, before an appreciative audience at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, on bicycling. The talk was mainly in the nature of personal reminiscences, which were quite humorous on some occasions. Mr. Ball has been riding a safety bicycle for six years, and can find nothing better. Mr. Ball's wife is also an ardent lover of the wheel, and together, on a tandem bicycle, they have scoured most of the roads around Baltimore.

MEMBERS of the Maryland Club have leased a ducking shore on the Middle River. The club house is fitted with every convenience, both for ladies and gentlemen. It has a fine shore for bathing, and there is room for base ball and tennis on the grounds. A first-class caterer has been permanently engaged. It has already become a popular resort for many members.

A NUMBER of members of the Baltimore Club took a spin last week to Washington, returning by rail. They report the roads in bad condition at some places.

A CLUB will be formed shortly at Sparrow's Point, under the efficient management of Mr. W. B. Sands, Jr., who is a graceful rider and an enthusiast in the art of cycling. A gymnasium will be opened for the young men of the club, under the management of Messrs. Langhorn, Sands and Markey.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

THE Æolus Club gave their last reception Friday evening, for this season. I hear that this club is having a bit of a shindy over the action of three of their members, in black balling an applicant at their last regular meeting. The unlucky applicant has been given the privileges of the club house until the next regular meeting, when he will try it again, and two of the "conspirators," as they are called, are having a rocky time of it at present.

CHARLIE SIEG has a very serious look on his face of late, and it is whispered among his friends that Charlie is contemplating matrimony, and that very shortly. Well, no wonder Charles is sober of mien, if such be the case. Success to you, "Gies," will be echoed many a time by a large circle of cycling friends.

THE Pastimes are saying as little about their racing men as possible, but as their men have been in active training all winter I look to see them well to the fore in what ever event they may enter.

An eight-minute class is one of the events at the tournament, and entries are expected from Oliver, Garden, Ellis, Blackman, and several others. It will be for blood, too.

MUNGER is also an associate member of the Illinois Club, as well as Temple. The Chicagos will now have to hustle to keep up their end.

"TWINKLE'S" description of the manner in which Van was praised up as being able to beat anything at Buffalo by a friend who knew him well, when at home but did not at that time on the train, is similar to an experience that Lumsden had recently. One evening while down town with a friend, talking wheel, on a street corner, they were accosted by a fresh young man, who had evidently heard enough of their remarks to know they were wheelmen, and, after breaking the ice, went on to tell that he was from St. Paul and one of the crack riders there, and as Lumsden, who is a very quiet, modest, unassuming young fellow, seemed to be taking every word for Gospel truth, the young man went on to tell how he had raced with all the prominent flyers in the West, and beaten many of them, and mentioned Lumsden's name among the rest. Arthur asked him if he was acquainted with Lumsden, to which he replied that they were fast friends, and asked Arthur if he knew Lumsden. "Art" replied he thought he did. After a few more words the young man started to go, saying that he had not yet learned their names, although they had been told his, upon which Arthur gravely introduced his friend, and said that his own name was Lumsden, commonly called "Arthur." The shock was too much, and silence ensued, which the young man from St. Paul could not be induced to break.

THE entries to the Pullman road race have already reached sixty, while the prize list is made up of bicycles and valuable medals donated by the different manufacturers. W. B. Greenleaf, now of Harvard, but a member of the Chicago Club, will be a contestant in the Pullman race.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

STERLING ELLIOTT, of Newton, Mass., has purchased the much-talked of bicycle that was constructed from cord wood by a boy at Clarksville, Mo. An interesting correspondence has been had between Mr. Elliott and the boy, and now the former has sent for the tools with which the machine was made. The wheel can be seen at the Newton factory, and we hear it will be put on exhibition soon at some place in this city.

REMEMBER that to-morrow (Saturday) the Harvard Bicycle races are to be held on Holmes' Fields, Cambride. The entry list contains the names of the fastest eastern riders.

WHEN the European tour party sails from Boston on the 18th inst., each member will carry with him a copy of the "My Cycling Log Book," ready to receive "notes of pleasant memories" and enable him to live the journey over again in the years to come. Mr. Elwell commends the Log Book very highly. "Finely bound, has a place for everything, admirably arranged, the very best cycling Log book to be had in this or any other country" are some of the pleasant things he has said about it. No cyclist's equipment is complete without a copy of "My Cycling Log Book," sent anywhere, post free, for $1.25, by the BICYCLING WORLD CO., 12 Pearl street, Boston, Mass.

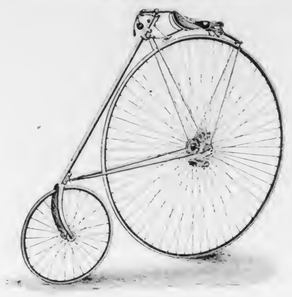
L'ALLEGRO writes us from Chicago as follows: "Please state that the Æolus Cycling Club, of Chicago, will give their closing reception for the season in the form of a May party, to be held at Central Turner Hall, on the 3d. The Æolus Club is having plans drawn for a new club house, which we hope can be got ready for occupancy in 90 days."

WE think Dunkirk, N. Y., has more ladies, in proportion, who ride safeties, to the inhabitants, than any other plac. There are five lady safety riders, and the population of Dunkirk is 7500. Who can beat the proportion?

MR. C. A. CONOVER, of Coldwater, Mich., writes: "Score one for the L. A. W. The train baggage man on the Wabash R. R., at Detroit, who took my wheel, asked me to show my League ticket, which he claimed was a permit to carry my wheel free. I showed up, and he said "All right."

A. A. O'NEILL, a Virginia flier, called here a few days ago, and found the editor out, and a very fresh red-coated individual in the editorial chair, who gave Mr. O'Neill his advice on training, which was: "Young man be sensible." Mr. O'Neill reported cycling as taking great hold upon the young men of Virginia.

SOME few weeks ago H. S. Bridge, a cyclist of Cincinnati, was deliberately run down by a road hog. The local L. A. W. Consul, M. A. High at once brought suit in the sum of $3000 damages. This prompt action on the part of Consul High, brought the road hog to his senses and he compromised by paying all expenses and a good sum for damages to Mr. Bridge.



THE late Stephen Terry was life member No. 42 of the L. A. W., and the first to depart from the list.

THE Chelsea Club held its annual dinner at the United States Hotel, last Friday evening. Chief Consul Emery was present, and made one of his ringing speeches to the members.

THE city of Haverhill, Mass., was once one of the strongholds of cycling. There are now very few League members in the city. Is it to be wondered at, that a Haverhill man was one of the most active opponents of the Massachusetts Road Bill?

THE following wire was received some hours after our paper had gone to press last week: "One-mile handicap changed to one-mile safety, scratch: safeties will be barred from open ordinary races." (Signed) Harvard Race Meet Committee.

MR. M. E. HARRIS, formerly of Denver, Col., writes us from New York, and says: "Will you, through your much-valued journal, express to the Social Wheel Club, of Denver, Col., my unfeigned and heartfelt thanks for their most generous eulogium of my virtues (?), so well expressed by 'Mr. Occasional,' in your issue of the 19th ult., which has been forwarded to me here."

SAFETY, SPEED AND COMFORT.

SCRANTON, PA., April 19th, 1889.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.

Gentlemen:—Wheel received in excellent condition the 11th inst. Being used to a lever machine, apprehended more difficulty than was experienced in changing to the rotary motion. The mount is not hard to acquire; was agreeably disappointed (?) in that.

The finish is as good as the best. An acquaintance (a wheelman) expressed surprised that a new concern should produce a wheel of so excellent a finish. "Why, said he, "that's good enough," which expressed my opinion exactly. Whether because lighter, or on account of the ball bearings, the fact remains it propels with less exertion than the wheel formerly ridden by me.

Very truly yours, M. P. CARTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17th, 1889.

MR. GAYLOR:

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 15th inst. at hand, and in reply will say that I am pleased to have a chance to express myself in regard to the "Eagle" bicycle. Apart from its safety qualities, which render a header an impossibility, I consider the "Eagle the best wheel made for all-around purposes, combining as it does speed, durability, hill climbing qualities, and, above all, ease of propulsion, which makes riding a pleasure, such as I never experienced before riding the "Eagle." I have been riding some years and have used all the standard makes, and I unhesitatingly recommend the "Eagle" bicycle for safety, economy and its excellent workmanship. I am more than pleased with mine, and can safely say, claim all you can for the machine and the machine will be ahead of the claim. Wishing you the best of success, I remain,

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

HARRY COREY and his wife are back in Boston, having returned from a trip to Philadelphia and Washington. Part of the time while they were away was spent in touring on a tandem bicycle around Washington, D. C., and in trying some of the Maryland and Virginian roads. Although Mr. Corey has not been actively engaged in the cycle business for the last six months, he takes as much interest in the sport as ever, and keeps quite a stable of machines at his home in Newtonville, and most any afternoon he and his wife can be seen speeding over the country on a tandem safety. We understand he has nearly completed his plans incident to settling his father's estate, and although independent of any business we should not be at all surprised in seeing him once more back in the bicycle business, either manufacturing for himself or connected with some of the present makers.

F. H. PETTENGILL.—The Massachusetts Road Book will no doubt give you the route you are in need of.

F. F. IVES has made application for reinstatement at the hands of the L. A. W., but his application has been refused. We understand that Mr. Ives would not agree to declare his "intention" to abandon the racing track, hence the door was closed in his face.

Bicycling News has devoted much space lately to tea-drinking. We think this is a nice, fresh subject, and if experienced men can be got to write on it, we might learn something about the merits of this beverage. We are divided on the subject, and though a cup of Indian tea is refreshing, still we like our tea infused at Burton-on-Trent and put up in black bottles with a terra-cotta pyramid on the outside, to denote the date of infusion, et cetera.

WE have a letter for F. G. Whittaker at this office.

THE list of entries for the Harvard bicycle races to-morrow (Saturday) gives promise of excellent sport.

THE Charlestown Rovers are talking of repeating their excellent minstrel performance at an early date, for the benefit of a charitable society.

HERE we get precocity: Henry Murphy is two years six months old, and his sister Anna is nine months old. This venerable pair live in Providence, R. I. Henry owns a bicycle, to the frame of which is attached a seat on which Miss Anna sits with the air of a princess, while Henry does the propelling act. Whenever the equipment appears on the streets of Providence a sensation is created.

A GENTLEMAN writing from Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "No. 4253 seems to overlook the fact that shorter cranks for a lady's use mean a loss of considerable driving power; and to compensate for this the gearing must be low and the driving wheel smaller than usually made."

THE dog nuisance remedies still come in. The latest and most scientific is as follows:

Take of Pb.	9 grains.
$Cr_2 O_3 C + 12\ 1\text{-}2\ S + 12\ 1\text{-}2\ K\ NO_3$	85 grains.
Insert in copper capsule.
Then of steel and rubber about	14 ounces.
Aim	45°.

The last ingredient must be of absolute purity: one dose is sufficient.

THE State meeting of the Michigan Division L. A. W. was held April 16, at Detroit. The date of the annual State meet will be decided on shortly and announcement made.

THE roads in the Central Traffic Association, Western Association and Southern Pacific Association have granted a rate of one and a third fare for the round trip to the Chicago cycling exhibit and tournament on the certificate plan.

DON'T miss the Harvard Bicycle Club races to-morrow, Saturday, at Holmes' Field. A grand programme and a grand entry list.

THE Cambridge (Mass.) Club Minstrel Show, given last week Thursday, was a repetition of the success attained last year. The jokes were good, and many being local won much applause. It would be difficult to pick out the bright particular star, as all the performers "did themselves proud."

THE fore part of a Marlboro' tandem was lately stolen from the store of C. Schwalbach, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

WHERE was the fool killer? Our correspondent, "Elm City," sends from New Haven the following items: "A daring feat was done here the other day, by one of our riders, who is a reckless and daredevil fellow. He climbed a toboggan slide here half way up, got off, turned round and coasted down. There is a drop off at the bottom of six or eight inches. He took it all right, used no brake, and is the only man to coast a toboggan slide on an ordinary roadbike."

"DAN" CAMARY was given a reception by his friends in New Haven on the evening of the 30th.

THE costume of the members of the Manhattan Club, on the occasion of their late reception was bicycle uniform, pecale vest, standing collar and four-in-hand pique tie.

MARCH this yarn! On the occasion of the sinking of the steamer Carlotta on the Merrimac River, a cycle rider was on deck doing the stand-still act. He was thrown overboard, and the New York World says: "Webb is thoroughly at home in the water, and when he went overboard he did not think of letting go of his machine, so he clung to the handles, and they both went down together. Webb in the saddle and sitting bolt upright. The wheel must have slid down between two stones, for when the machine struck the bottom it remained upright. Instinctively Webb's feet sought the pedals, and putting forth his muscle he actually propelled the bicycle over the hard, sandy bottom and up the incline of the ledge for a distance of sixty feet." Whew!!

THE members of the Boston and the Town Club will have a joint run to Squantum next Sunday. The men who go by land will get there by Tally-ho coach and cycle, while the nautical contingent will sail to the rendezvous in yacht and canoe.

THE New York Sun speaking of lady bicyclists say: "Of course, nearly all the lady wheelers here, as elsewhere, are youthful and slender, but once in a while a mature and solid dame appears on the scene and shows how several things can be done by skill and pluck."

THE Brooklyn, N. Y. Bi. Club moved into their new quarters a week ago Wednesday and the members are delighted with the accommodations.

THE Maine Central Railroad will carry wheelmen attending the State Division Meet, May 30th, at half rates, good for the Maine Central Railroad.

SUPERINTENDENT of Police, Roger O'Mara, of Pittsburg, Pa., says: "To tell the truth bicyclists are the greatest nuisance I know of!!!"

THE Melrose, Mass., Bi. Club gave a grand ball at the Town Hall a week ago. Previous to the dancing an exhibition of trick bicycle riding was given, and a concert by the Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club.

THE names of Wendle, Davis, Forster and Hendee appear on the entry list of the Harvard races to be run to-morrow (Saturday).

LAST Wednesday the King Co. Wheelmen of Brooklyn entertained the Long Island Wheelmen in royal style.

W. C. TAPLIN.—No duty on machines into England. On the Continent duty is sometimes charged but returnable on same goods being taken out of country by the one entering same and who paid duty.

MISS WILLIAMS and Miss Oakes will probably ride a match race in Omaha during the present month.

MACON, GA., will hold a tournament in October. Particulars of which will appear in an early issue of this paper.

LEAGUE MEET NOTES.

CHIEF CONSUL MOTT was in Hagerstown last week, helping to arrange the programme. The morning of July 2d will be devoted to the business meeting, which will be followed by a moonlight excursion to Pen Mar, by wheel and by rail, where supper will be served. On July 3d a run will be made skirting the battlefield of South Mountain, which lies eastward from Hagerstown, then following the line of the Confederate retreat through Boonsboro to Antietam battlefield, which lies in a southern direction from Hagerstown. Here the visitors will be shown by a party over the battlefield and then through the National Cemetery. The return to Hagerstown will be over a different route. After supper each man will be furnished with a towel and fireworks. A six-mile run will bring the party to Williamsport on the Potomac River, where bonfires will be lit and an enjoyable swim by the boys. Another supply of fireworks for the return trip to Hagerstown will be given after the bath. A parade on the morning of the Fourth will be made through the city over streets, which are substantial turnpikes and surpass those of Washington.

Parade will be dismissed in a grove where numerous lime-stone springs shoot forth and here refreshments will be served.

The races will take place in the afternoon, and will consist of one mile bicycle, one mile tricycle and one mile safety.

At night there will be a grand national open-air smoker in a beautiful grove, where a grand concert will be given by a military band. A thoroughly unique entertainment for a fourth day, and a number of smaller events which will be at the hotels will be added to the programme.

Chief Consul Updegraff has engaged rooms at the Hamilton House for President Luscomb and other officers of the national body. This house will be the League headquarters. Fifty rooms and a parlor have been engaged by the Maryland Club at the same hotel.

One of the clubs of Baltimore is making arrangements to camp out at Hagerstown from June 29 to the night of July 4th.

As the meet is to last 3 or 4 days from July 2d, it is suggested that the entire week be included in the period of bicycle festivities and that the meet be turned into an encampment of wheelmen. The visitors would not be so crowded in the hotels if this plan would be accepted. The Hagerstown Fair Grounds could be secured for the camp, and many tents thrown up by different clubs would be a novel and pretty way of carrying out the League meet, and such a plan would not be so expensive.

The large female seminary has been rented and will be run as a summer hotel, which, with a few of the principal boarding houses, will furnish ample accommodations for 3000 visitors.

The register used in Baltimore last year has been sent to Hagerstown, for use at the coming meet.

A STORY OF THE QUATIER LATIN OF PARIS.

In Three Chapters.

CHAPTER II.

I had not been in bed long, before I was greatly surprised to hear in the room a peculiar tapping sound, which I could not account for.

It did not come from the door. It came from the corner where my travelling boxes were piled. It was the strangest sound I have ever heard. I sat up with my hands behind me, and thus supported, listened. My lamp was only half turned down, as I often read or wrote when I woke up in the middle of a restless night, and so I could see all over the room with comparative clearness.

Presently, with a creak, the lid of my hat box opened, and a head appeared. I was benumbed with horror.

My tongue seemed paralyzed, and I sat like one spell-bound. I was a perfect skeptic on the ghost question, and when quite a little boy I had stayed out all night on a flat tombstone in the village churchyard, at home, just to prove to them that I had no belief in visitants or ghosts from another world. In the churchyard there was a newly-dug grave on my right hand, and the especially notorious grave of a shoemaker on my left, who had cut his wife's throat from ear to ear. This grave was said to be haunted (especially at the hour of twelve) by the shoemaker's wife, who appeared with her gaping wound exposed to view and her white finger pointing to the grave of her husband, who had once sworn "to love and cherish her." The village clock had struck its twelve long strokes, and the last one had died away.

I waited and no ghost appeared. I was not frightened, but sat through the whole long night on the cold, damp stone beneath me.

Next day I appeared in the village unscathed. After that the boys and old women of the village considered me wonderfully brave.

But to-night I actually saw something. The head came out of the hat box. Not the head of a skull, but the head of the most beautiful young woman I had ever seen. Slowly, from out of that box, rose the head, then the bust appeared, and finally the whole figure, and without any apparent locomotive power it had moved ten feet from the corner, and was now not twelve inches from my palpitating breast.

Laying a finger, which was icy chill on my shoulder, the figure remained motionless. The face was sad and white, as is the face of the dead. Long masses of blue-black hair fell over a full throat and a throbbing bosom; the hands were small and delicate, and on one finger glistened a most peculiar ring, which at once rivetted my attention.

It was a cat's eye of small size, surrounded with pearls.

As I said before, and as the reader will readily imagine, I was too horribly frightened to move. I was not, could not, be dreaming, had not yet fallen asleep. Was I suffering from phantasia? No. Presently the apparition spoke: "You are to be the avenger of my death. You see this ring?" pointing to the one I have just described, and which had attracted my attention by its glowing so deep and luminous in the half-lighted room.

I saw the ring true enough, but there was no power of speech in my lips.

"Henry Lawson Bouverie," the apparition said, "wears in substance what you see here in shadow. When you see this ring again, you will know my murderer. Tell him you have seen Marie Fouchette."

In vain I tried to gain control over my senses; in vain I tried to shout to my friend downstairs. I could have wakened all Paris that night, if I could only have found tongue. Suddenly I was alone! The figure had vanished. For some time I was so unnerved that I could not move, and my teeth chattered as in ague.

Presently, with a bound, I reached the lamp, and turned it on as full as the screw would permit.

There was my hat box as I had left it—shut—with the strap buckled, fastening the top and bottom securely together. Where had the apparition gone.

There was no sleep for me that night, and I built up the fire, and pulling on my dressing gown, I smoked until the workmen's feet could be heard outside pattering on the stone pavement beneath my window, as they hurried to their daily toil.

CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

Everything is in great trim for the Chicago Tournament and the list of entries printed below gives great promise for good sport. Every effort will be made by the local wheelmen to meet as many of the visitors as possible. The exhibition of machines will be fine, as every manufacturer and importer will be represented. All now needed is the public patronage and if we read the signs aright the Chicago public will flock to the building and pour shekels into the pockets of the management. For information of any kind visitors should apply at the headquarters of the Tournament management—The Palmer House.

A BRILLIANT SUCCESS.

ST. LOUIS NOCTURNAL BICYCLE PARADE.

The nocturnal parade of the cyclists of St. Louis came off duly, as announced, on the evening of April 30, and was an unqualified success. The order of formation was: Mounted police; A. K. Stewart, pacemaker; Vollrath's band in band wagon; Grand Marshal, Geo. H. Lucas, and aids, Edw. Stettinius, C. H. Vickers, R. E. Lee, and Robt. Holm; Missouri Bicycle Club demon squad, numbering sixteen men, under command of Lieutenant J. H. Lewis; Missouri Bicycle Club, A. M. Lewis, Captain; St. Louis Cycle Club, E. N. Sanders, Captain; unattached, Captain C. H. Stone, Lieutenants, H. W. Belding, H. S. Todd and M. H. Hanley. Fully 275 men took part in the parade, which started from 19 and Pine, and covered the principal asphaltum and wood block streets, in the presence of thousands of spectators, and on all sides could be heard words of admiration. As announced in my previous letter, the $400 voted by the Citizens' Committee, through the efforts of Mr. George B. Thomson, made the parade possible, and when it is considered that the wheelmen only had one brief week to make all preparations, the successful termination of the affair passed all sanguine expectations. Some of the wheelmen were content to exhaust their ingenuity in providing decoration for their wheels. The majority, however, went further, and clad themselves in handsome and fantastic habiliments. Pacemaker A. K. Stewart was clad in the garb of a gentleman of colonial days, and looked every inch of the character. Grand Marshal Geo. H. Lucas followed next, representing the revered Washington. Then came six riders abreast, each carrying torches of red fire; then the Missouri's demon squad, attired in full red costume lit up by dozens of red fire torches. Captain Lewis had one of the prettiest designs in the parade, which consisted of a large Japanese umbrella fastened to the head of his bike, which was adorned with small lanterns in all colors, very pleasing to the eye. Then followed the gaily decorated wheels of the Missouris, and riders arrayed as continentals, Indians and animals. These were followed by special designs, really too numerous to itemize.

The most unique float was a safety, ridden by an unattached wheelman, having a ship rigged out over it, beautifully festooned and decorated. The Cycle Club had a number of the prettiest designs and costumed squads in the parade.

The success of the parade is due entirely to the untiring efforts of Grand Marshal Lucas, assisted by his aids, the officers of the various divisions. As a fitting finale a banquet is being arranged for Saturday night, to which all the participants in the parade will be invited. Mr. Geo. B. Thomson, in conversation with your correspondent stated: "The wheelmen have now twice shown what they can do in the way of a novel parade, and I shall certainly use my best endeavor to make this illuminated bicycle parade a feature of our fall festivities hereafter, and will see that a sum of money sufficient to pay expenses is set aside for you." Every rider had wire fixtures for the head, backbone and pedals of his machine, and lanterns ad libitum furnished him, and in special cases more elaborate gas pipe fixtures for holding lanterns were furnished. Over 2000 lanterns were used in the parade and the effect was grand.

AN ASSAULT AND A QUICK SETTLEMENT.

E. McKinney and A. H. Knapp, two teachers of Morristown, Pa., while cycling on the road between that place and Bersburg, were run down by a drunken man named Tom Scullins, who was driving a team. The horse struck the wheel of Prof. Knapp, and put his foot through the spokes of the wheel, the horse, wheel, and Knapp all falling in a heap on the road. The left leg of Knapp was badly bruised, but no bones were broken. The machine was considerably damaged. The drunken Scullins then made an assault on McKinney, after which the latter rode to Blossburgh, arriving ahead of Scullins, procured a warrant and had Scullins arrested. The affair cost Mr. Scullins about $30 cold, cold cash, a pleasant and practical warning to the road hog.

OMAHA WHEEL CLUB.

The reception given by the outgoing officers of the Omaha Wheel Club proved to be a very elaborate affair. One hundred invitations were sent out, and sixty-eight gentlemen responded. The music was furnished by five gentlemen of the Apollo Club and the refreshments were served by the well-know caterer, Mr. Balduff.

Mr. E. B. Smith and Dr. Conner did the honors for the evening, and Perry Badollet, assisted by Ed. Lytle received the guests.

The evening was spent with music and recitations, and when the pary broke up, in the "wee sma' hours" of the morning, everybody left the club rooms with wishes for the prosperity of the Omaha Wheel Club.

CHICAGO CYCLERS NOTICE.

Dear Sir—We, as a self-appointed committee from the Lincoln Cycling Club, take pleasure in making this announcement to riders in regard to riding in Lincoln Park. The following letter explains itself:

Messrs. J. W. Gerould and C. P. Whitney, Committee:

Gents—At a meeting of the Commissioners of Lincoln Park, held on the 23d inst., your communication relative to bicycle riding in the Park after 8 P. M., was considered, and the following order entered:

It is hereby ordered that bicycle riding will be permitted on the Lake Shore Drive and Pullerton avenue, after 8 P. M., subject to the rules of the Board, and to such as may be from time to time prescribed. Respectfully, E. S. Taylor, Secretary.

The following rules are now in force in Lincoln Park, with reference to the use of bicycles:

Riders shall not be permitted to pass along the drives in a body, not more than two abreast.

No riding shall be permitted at a rate faster than six miles per hour.

No bicycle will be allowed in the Park after 8 P. M. without a lantern.

The Commissioners are very friendly toward cyclers, and are willing to do anything that is reasonable and for general good, but they make a special request that the rules in force be strictly adhered to, and we would urge all riders not to violate any of the rules, and also to assist the managers of the Park in enforcing the rules.

It is understood that if any of the privileges granted riders are abused, the order allowing riders in the Park after 8 P. M. is liable to be rescinded. Respectfully, F. W. Gerould,
C. P. Whitney,
Committee.

Chicago, April 26th, 1889.

RACING AT OMAHA.

The great six-day (three hours) amateur race, at the Coliseum, ended Saturday, April 27, and can safely be called the greatest success of any race ever held in this part of the country.

Out of sixteen entries ten started, and up to Wednesday night, nobody could tell who would come out ahead.

The prizes are first, a $140 bicycle of any make to suit the winner; second, a $60 gold medal; third, a $45 gold medal; fourth, a $35 gold medal; fifth, a $25 gold medal; and every man making 275 miles or more, a special prize of a $10 medal.

Frank Seifken was taken sick Tuesday night, and lost a mile, but like a little man, came to the scratch Wednesday, and after two hours of hard riding withdrew from the race, after having completed 123 miles.

The "ladies' favorite and the pride of the wheeling fraternity," Frank T. Mittauer, had to succumb to a sprained ankle on Wednesday night, after his 129th mile. His friends had been warning him to keep out of the race, but his love for racing wouldn't allow him to stay back while some of his old-time rivals were riding, and regardless of his sprain, started. He was a favorite in betting while he rode, and it is safe to say that some of the boys will go without a new spring overcoat on his account.

The Ramblers' Club is showing up excellent, having five men in the race, and the boys are getting up a good reputation as racing men.

The first mile on Wednesday night was made in 2 minutes 58 3-5 seconds, the fastest mile yet made on the Coliseum track.

The score of those who finished is as follows:

1. Beard,	301	5
2. Peabody,	301	4
3. Hutchins,	301	4
4. Flescher,	301	2
5. Tagger,	299	9
6. Kostman,	293	4
7. Francisco,	276

The result of the six days' woman's race (4 hours a day) finished Saturday, 4 May, is as follows:

	Miles.	Laps.
Woods,	354	7
Oakes,	354	6
Baldwin,	354	5
Brown,	353	6
Lewis,	351	5
Armaindo,	266	0
Williams,	149	7

Miss Woods will get 22 per cent. Miss Oakes 18, Miss Baldwin 16, Miss Brown 14, Miss Lewis 12 and Armaindo 10 per cent. of the gate money.

A CHALLENGE FROM MERIDEN, CONN.

As somebody takes exception to our being the wheeling hub of the State. Let all such produce a better team for a road race, or on the track, at hill climbing, or entertaining. What is the matter with our Canary, who we are expecting home this week from abroad, while there is Miller and Ives modestly waiting to hear from any one.

Success to the ladies, all who help to elevate and refine the health giving recreation of wheeling. A young lady here promises soon to help Miss Grey, in her kindly efforts to entertain, through the columns of the World. J. F. I.

April 23d, 1889.

The Bay City Wheelmen, of San Francisco, gave a very successful hop at Odd Fellows' Hall, on the 26th of April.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Strong & Green Cycle Co., in another column. This enterprising firm has secured the sole United States Agency for the Quadrant safeties. The Quadrant Tricycle Co., of Birmingham, have for years enjoyed a splendid reputation for turning out the highest grade of cycles, and they were the first manufacturers to place a large steering wheel on their tricycles. This is the first year that they have placed a line of safeties on the market, but this machine, as was the case with their tricycles, has proved itself an unqualified success from the start. Their No. 17 safety for men is scientifically braced, and therefore very rigid, and, although it weighs only 43 pounds, with 7-8 tires, it is guaranteed to carry a 200-pound man. Their No. 18 lady's machine is so scientifically braced at the neck that it is strong enough to carry a 150-pound man without the use of a detachable brace rod. The wire dress guard on this machine is extremely light, neat and most effective. The Quadrant machines are guaranteed to be made throughout of the very best quality of forged steel, and to be perfect in material and workmanship. Send to Strong & Green Cycle Co., for a Quadrant catalogue.

We have not yet seen the champion bicycle rider of Samoa, nor yet the fast 'un of Oklahoma, but we verily expect to have the pleasure of meeting them soon.

L. H. Johnson may be said to have an advertisement in this week's issue that throws light on certain subjects.

We would call attention to the special facilities of the Clinton Cycle Co., Clinton, Mass., for repair work. Light expenses make low prices possible, for first-class work. They also handle second-hand wheels, and represent the most reliable makes of bicycles and safeties, and invite correspondence.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., are supplying the entire trade with graphite for safeties and ball bearings.

One of the handsomest and costliest advertisements in the cycling line yet issued, is the Columbia statuette of Thomas Stevens, being presented by the Pope Mfg. Co. to its agents and the bicycle clubs of the country. It is a work of art that would be an ornament anywhere.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., have put on an improved catch on their hose supporters, which is pronounced by old riders to be the best yet.

The C. U. of Long Island is reported as being in a flourishing condition.

Trainer Corcoran writes from New Haven that the Yale men have to train for cycle racing events under difficulties, as the track is two miles from headquarters, and is so situated that it gets the full sweep of the wind. "It makes it hard work for the men," writes Mr. C., "and if Harvard or any other college had to contend against these difficulties, I doubt if cycle racing would be popular with them. I have a couple of men that will be heard from during the coming season."

W. S. Doane climbed Corey Hill last week Wednesday, on a Singer safety, geared to 54 inches. There was a strong head wind blowing at the time of the ascent, and the surface of the hill was in poor condition.

We can imagine we see Purvis-Bruce laugh if he happens to notice a paragraph from one "Lytate," from Alabama, in last week's Wheel. Possibly Bruce is more of a Southerner at heart than this correspondent, though he may be courageous enough to tell the truth as it really is. Whenever "Lytate" writes as well as "Jack" we shall mention the fact in our first editorial column.

The early closing movement this season promises to be almost universal, hardly a store of any standing in the large cities throughout the country remaining open Saturday afternoon, and the great majority of them closing at 5 o'clock on the other week days. To aid in furthering this movement the Pope Mfg. Co., of Boston, has issued a handsome lithographic announcement card which gives the hours of closing, and is convenient to hang in window or door. These cards are sent free upon application.

J. Purvis-Bruce (Jack), has given us the light of his countenance for the past week, and we must say we enjoyed the Bonny Scot's bright companionship to the fullest bent. But alas! the "laddie" has gone now, and

"When musing on companions gone,
We doubly feel ourselves alone."

Good old "Jack." We are now pleased to announce that he has accepted a position with the White Flyer Co., of Westboro, Mass., and will travel for that concern during the coming season. We must congratulate the White Co. in securing the services of such a wide awake, hustling fellow as Purvis-Bruce; he is a man who will not allow grass to grow under his feet, neither will he allow matters to go by default for want of attention. Bruce has not got a lazy bone in his body, and we predict that the campaign he is about to inaugurate will not be one of "innocuous desuetude." We wish him luck in his new departure.

Miss Alice Wood, of Northboro, Mass., has purchased of Lincoln & Holland this year, a Singer safety, specially built for her riding, and has learned to ride it in a most excellent manner. As she is the only lady who rides the safety bicycle in Worcester County, the fact is worthy of mention.

The Capital Cycle Co., of Washington, D. C., sends us a copy of their "Art Calendar," and as the beautiful specimens of the artists skill lay before us, we do not doubt but that the supply, no matter how large, will be soon exhausted. The calendar consists of twelve tinted card leaves, on which are reproductions of original sketches by Francios Noije, each one appropriate to the month illustrated. It is a gem of its kind, and those who are lucky enough to secure one are to be congratulated.

Howard A. Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., report immense returns from their advertisement of second-hand machines in the Bicycling World.

Board of Officers meeting at Detroit, April 27, 1889.

Meeting called to order by Chief Consul Richmond. Present, A. B. Richmond, C. C., Grand Rapids; C. A. Conover, Sec.-Treas., Coldwater.

Representatives, J. E. Beal, Ann Arbor, H. M. Snow and C. H. Smith, Detroit; E. M. Moour, Grand Rapids; W. H. Hayden, Tecumseh and J. H. Johnson, ex-Chief Consul, Detroit.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The Chief Consul reported that everything appeared in good shape for beginning the year.

The Sec.-Treas. reported as follows: Cash balance received from ex Sec.-Treas. $13.25, from committee on League Relief Fund $27.07, other sources $40.00; total $80.32. Disbursements $8.07. Balance in hands of Secretary-Treasurer to date $72.25.

Statements from Secretary Bassett were read showing balance due Division for applications $48.25. Supplies etc., $3.25, 15 cents per capita assessment on 357 members $53.55 leaving the balance due the League, $8.55. No assessment will be made now on the members individually as the League has been settled with for a sum satisfactory to them, we hope. In view of this fact, it was decided that the money already collected by the Committee should be turned into the treasury as resources.

On motion, the Chief Consul was authorized to appoint a committee to draft and report a new Constitution and By-laws to conform to those of the League.

The Chief Consul reported that the matter of a driver running over a wheelman at Grand Rapids had been satisfactorily settled.

Communications from St. John, Jackson and East Saginaw were read, all stating that they did not care to entertain the Division Meet this year.

A Tour meet of several days duration, ending at Detroit, was suggested and discussed, finally it was decided that the Chief Consul, Secretary-Treasurer and one to be appointed, should settle time and place of next meet.

The Chief Consul was given authority to go to an expense not exceeding $15.00 for printing a supplement to the Road Book. He was also authorized to employ a stenographer for Division matters whenever he deemed it proper and necessary.

On motion the Chief Consul and Secretary-Treasurer were directed to prepare a circular and forward a copy to each Consul in the State, urging them to work and use their influence with members of the Legislature from their respective districts, to secure the passage of the Louden House Bill No. 534, relative to new laws for the improvement of Highways.

The question of League Hotel for Detroit was discussed.

No further business appearing, Board adjourned subject to call of Chief Consul. C. A. CONOVER, Secretary-Treasurer.

PSYCHO LIGHT ROADSTER, WEIGHT, 38 POUNDS.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S PSYCHO.

Three Weights, 39 lbs., 44 lbs., and 50 lbs.

PSYCHO TANDEM SAFETY, WEIGHT, 74 POUNDS

The Psycho cycles are imported by the Capital Cycle Company, of Washington, D. C. This firm were the first to recognize the merits of all forms of rear-driving safeties, and in 1885 imported the first one ever brought into this country. They also designed and introduced the first tandem safety in 1888. They designed and manufactured in 1887 the first rear-driving ladies' safety bicycle, and credit should be given them for their efforts in this direction. They have accomplished as much for the weaker sex by reducing friction, weight, and by giving increased pleasure, as did the inventor of the spider wheel for the stronger sex by improving the bone-shaker.

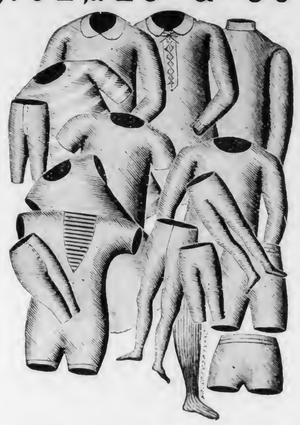
1. "Men's Straight Frame Psycho Safety," 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, geared to 57 inches, weight 47 lbs. Price, $140.

2. "Men's Light Roadster Psycho Safety" (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 3-4 inch tires, made for gentleman riders and scorchers on good roads, geared to 60 inches, weight 38 lbs. Price, $140.

3. "Men's Dropped Frame Psycho Safety" is designed like ladies' safety (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, weight 50 lbs. Will carry any weight on any road. Detachable brace rod makes it suitable for ladies and a general family machine. Price, $140. Geared to 57 inches.

4. "Ladies' Roadster Psycho Safety," 3-4 inch tires, 29-inch wheels. Detachable brace rod, suitable for short or medium height gentlemen. Will stand any weight. Weight 44 lbs. (See Cut.) Geared to 50 inches.

5. "Ladies' Light Roadster Psycho Safety," 29-inch wheels, 3-4 and 5-8 inch tires, weight 38 lbs. Superb finish, very light and easy running, intended for light weight ladies, but will carry 175 lbs. Geared to 50 inches.



6. "Ladies' Extra Light Psycho," 28-inch wheels, made for short, light ladies, weight 34 lbs., gear 48 inches. Price, $140.

7. "Psycho Tandem Safety," intended for lady and gentleman or two gentlemen, 7-8 inch tires to both wheels, very strong, light and simple. Will carry any weight. Price, with two separate brakes, $200. Geared to 57 inches.

The Capital Cycle Company have prepared for their share of the trade this year, relying upon the merits of their wheels. They only handle two-wheeled safeties; no ordinaries or tricycles.

MY CYCLING LOG BOOK. By "Papa" Weston. The transitory pleasures of cycling can be made as permanent as its physical benefits, by jotting down in a well devised log book, the distances and incidents of one's various journeys. Knowing that such a record is a most pleasant thing to have, and believing that the keeping of such should be encouraged, as tending to the permanent good of cycling in more ways than can be referred to here. The Log Book is handsomely and strongly bound in red leather, will last for years of constant use, and is the best arranged book of its kind ever yet devised. It fills a want often felt by the cyclist who values records of interest for future reference. Price, post paid, $1.25 For sale by Bicycling World Co., 12 Pearl st., Boston.

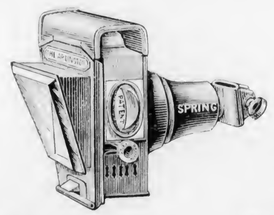
"Let Your Light so Shine Before Men."

This is not only sound Scriptural doctrine, but it has a worldly meaning that all wheelmen should heed.



Our line of Cycle Lamps has been made specially for us by Snell & Brown, of Birmingham. They are equal to any and better than most of the lamps offered, and are sold at a moderate price. They are made of selected metal, are strongly riveted and cannot come apart. Heavy cut glass front; Ruby side prisms, throwing the light back. Detachable reflector, side slide for lighting, large oil reservoir, wick adjusting from outside with a simple arrangement that prevents jarring down. Our Safety Lamps are fitted with a patent coil-spaing ball-socket, that prevents the flame from being jarred out when machine is ridden up or down an 8-inch curb. This test has been repeatedly made without a single failure. It is noiseless and, having no joints, cannot wear loose and rattle.

The H. B. Smith Mach. Co., Smithville, N. J.

Gentlemen:—The wheel I am now riding has carried me 12,000 miles and is in first-class repair. I have ridden it by day and by night, over all kinds of roads in this country and Canada, met with dozens of mishaps incident to night riding—my work being for years confined to the hours of 7 P. M. to 3 A. M., which would have not only laid me out, but the wheel as well, had it been on any other kind of a mount, and the faithful old machine is still good for many a season, a trifle logy, perhaps, and heavier than the modern style of roadster, but good enough for all practical purposes.

Very truly yours,
R. W. WRIGHT.

Kincardine, Ontario, April 19th, 1889.
The H. B. Smith Mach. Co., Smithville, N. J.

Dear Sirs:—Please send me one of your catalogues of Star wheels. I have a 55-inch Star here, the only one in this part of Canada, and the boys are struck on it. I find that after riding almost every kind of a wheel made, that the Star is the best one on the market. There are quite a few large hills here, but it makes very little difference to any one who owns a Star. I bought mine through your Detroit agent, W. E. Metzger, and have been so far as San Francisco with it and back, without needing one cent's worth of repairs. Please send at your earliest convenience and oblige.

Yours very truly,

A great deal is said about vibration springs now-a-days, and if they are properly and scientifically constructed they are a boon to the safety rider without doubt.

When they are placed upon or are a part of the front fork however, they are not a success, as to absorb vibration they must needs be so exceedingly pliable as to render it difficult to keep the feet upon the pedals on rough roads. And too, in sharp turns the front wheel is liable to be forced against the forks, while the easy steering is perceptibly affected in both cases.

The vibration spring in the patented frame of the

is where it belongs, under the seat, where is the greatest weight, and is one of the many original features which go to make this rear driver the only practical and thoroughly comfortable machine of its type on all sorts of American roads.

NEW MAIL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 18th, 1889.

MR. H. W. HIGHAM, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that "The New Mail" Safety bicycle, which I recently purchased from you, as the representative of the Messrs. Wm. Read & Sons, Boston, is an unqualified success.

The amount of ground I have to cover, and the hills I have to climb, daily, demand a good, speedy, staunch and reliable machine. The "New Mail" has all these qualities in a marked degree: the brake action on the rear axle being especially commendable.

My brother wheelmen that I meet daily on the road, all express their admiration of my wheel, and I argue with all of them, "Why buy imported wheels, when Uncle Sam can turn out a steed like this?"

With all success to American industries, and especially to "The New Mail," I remain.

Yours truly,
C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

To our request to use the testimonial, we received the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20th, 1889.

MESSRS. READ & SONS, BOSTON:

Gentlemen—By all means use my letter of recommendation. Greater strength and force is added day by day the remarks therein.

I have not let up on my enthusiasm about your "New Mail Safety:" It only increases: no let up whatever, mene.

Very truly yours,
C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

BOSTON, 17 MAY, 1889.

OUR PAPER WAS MAILED.

LAST week our whole edition was in the Boston Post Office by 12 M. Saturday. All the New England papers were in the mail by Friday night.

Having proved that our paper gets into the Boston Post Office on good time we would say to those who don't get it on time, we have lodged a complaint in the Boston office, and we will do all in our power to have the trouble sifted down to its proper source.

A CURIOUS question has arisen and is being discussed as to "why the crack cyclists only follow it a few years." One writer avers that it is only in cycling that the short lived excellence is common. We join issues with the gentleman on that point, and state that in all sports where a course of training has to be taken, long continued pre-eminence does not last. Rowing, running, boxing and wrestling, and, in fact, any sport where a high and perfect state of training is necessary to success, it will be found that a few years, more or less, will put a man stale. This condition of things is not peculiar to cycling alone; it has been the experience in all branches of athletics ever since training became a science.

THAT the Racing Board means business, none will deny who have noticed its action in the case of the men who raced at Cambridge last Saturday, in an event in which the safety and ordinary competed.

To the very letter and to the very last inch will the Board exact compliance with its rules or enforce the penalty. The Providence Journal speaks of the matter as a "mild rebellion," and no doubt the Board looks on it as mild, and hence the mildness of the penalty. We must say that we are of the same opinion as our e. c., Bi. News, holding that a safety should be barred out of an ordinary race, just as much as an ordinary is barred out of a safety race. The wisest laws some times don't work as we could wish, but for every time they do not work correctly, they hit the nail on the head a dozen times. So let the rule stand.

LEAGUE MEET.

IN connection with the tenth annual meet at Hagerstown, Md., the following races will be run on the third day, viz., July 4, 1889: One-mile bicycle, ordinary, L. A. W. championship; one-mile tricycle, L. A. W. national championship; half-mile heat race, three heats; two-mile handicap; one-mile novice; 100-yard slow race; one-mile club championship; one-mile team race. All open events, L. A. W. rules to govern. The course is a fine, half-mile track, and especially prepared for fast time. Handsome gold medals for all first prizes, and valuable second prizes. In the team race the prize will be a fine silk banner. Inquiries and applications for entry blanks should be addressed to Harry B. Irwin, 34 West Franklin street, Hagerstown, Md.

Chairman Davol, of the Racing Board, announces that the League will not claim any of the profits on the races, as has been customary heretofore. President Luscomb has asked Chief Consul Mott to act as one of his aids, and that official has consented.

The Western Maryland Railroad is posting attractive bills along their line, advertising the races of July 4th, which will probably draw several thousand people from the country surrounding Hagerstown. The General Committee has secured the Opera House, for the division headquarters during the week.

THE PROVIDENCE RACES, MAY 30.

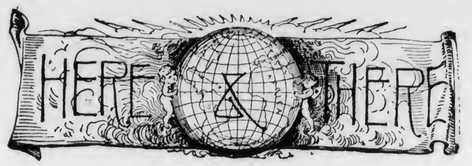
THE Rhode Island Wheelmen's athletic tournament, at Narragansett Park, Memorial Day, is booming up and the early promises of one of the most notable occasions of the sort are assured of fulfillment. Arrangements have been made with the New York and New England Railroad whereby a fifty-cent ticket will carry the bearer from this city into the grounds and return. Wheels and all paraphernalia of the various classes and sports that will be represented in the meet, will be carried to the park by the railroad free of expense. The tournament will open at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, with a football game between the Providence and British Hosiery Football clubs for silver medals. Other athletic contests will comprise a 100-yard dash (professional) for prizes of $15, $7 and $3; one-half mile amateur foot race for a silver cup and a pair running shoes; a match game of tennis and a tug of war, the latter probably between teams from the Young Men's Christian Association and Brown University. The committee are also trying to arrange for a broadsword contest, to take place on horseback, and probably a tennis match.

We are advised that the prizes for the two mile L. A. W. championship race will be a gold medal for first prize and a silver medal for second prize. Our report last week mentioned the gold prize only.

PULLMAN ROAD RACE.

The entries to the Pullman road race closed Saturday, the 10th, with 128 entries. The handicapping committee spent Saturday eve on the list until a late hour. But they are discreetly silent when asked as to the result of their labors, although both Davis and Randall smile when asked as to who the limit men are, but do not look overly pleased when asked as to the handicaps of the well-known racers. The limit has been cut down to 12 minutes this year. The handicaps will not be published until the 25th. Phil Hammil will ride under the Douglas colors in the Pullman road race.

Ten St. Louis Wheelmen have entered the Pullman race and will start scratch, with Van Sicklin, Winship and Lumsden. Terry Andrae of Milwaukee will also start scratch in the race.



Van Sicklen is in the pink of condition and he hopes to secure the coveted time medal, May 30.

The Gormully & Jeffery medal will be on exhibition next week, and that it will be one unusually fine is unquestioned.

The value of the prizes will aggregate nearly $1200.

Winship swore off racing but when he saw ten entries from St. Louis his determination was shaken and it is hoped by his club mates that he will "go in" May 30th. STROLLER.

[The reports of our St. Louis and Chicago correspondents do not agree: one says the St. Louis entries have been withdrawn and the other announces the entries as having been accepted.—ED]

"JACK."

ODDS AND ENDS.

I WAS looking over the files of an old cycle paper the other day, the pictures in which carried me back to the days when the bicycle was said to have "arrived at the pinnacle of perfection," having chin-high handlebars, iron plate saddles with upholstered tops, timberlake brakes, and other luxuries, when my eye lit upon the last verse of "three stickfuls" of cycling poetry, the last verse of which was the best. The paper is so well "snowed under" by this time that I think this verse may well be reproduced:

"Oh! sweet to the soul that is chained to a desk,
To revel in sunshine and scenes picturesque,
To feel while our spirits are bounding in glee
There's something to live for besides £ s. d.:
Oh! Nature, sweet Nature, thy charms can impart
A solace to sorrow, new strength to the heart,
Expanding our sympathies, filling the mind
With flickering fancies, which linger behind,
And brighten the moments our duties between,
When again we resume our diurnal routine."

THOUGH there is nothing especially brilliant in the lines, there is a fine restfulness—the fine sentiment of an outdoor man who earns his bread and occasional butter in an indoor office. Saturday afternoon (or is it Sunday?) he is uncaged, and the key is turned on the door until Monday morning. A thousand pictures form themselves and dissolve in the subtle composite photography of the brain. With his back wheel turned to the city we see the lad speeding down some English country lane, where the yellow billed blackbird noisily chatters its startled and rather harsh tones, as it seeks another place in the hedgerow a few yards ahead, only to be "flushed" again by the swiftly running and noiseless wheel.

WITH his flannel shirt loosened at the neck, and knee trousers loosened to give the limbs full play, he rides along. No silk hat cramps his brow, or choker collar asserts its presence with that harsh persistency characteristic of the starch and linen tribe. The wind blows fresh around him. An occasional dusty toad moves nearer to the grass and burdock border of the side path, a heavily laden bee bumps noisily against him and then drops in the dust, to get all his fine gold and black jersey spoiled. On his back he lies and kicks, and then manages to turn and raises himself, like some fat old man, to his feet, and knocks the dust out of his rich clothing.

ON through the narrowing country lanes speeds our cycler. What does he care for anything now? He has a bicycle, an old grey suit, and twelve and sixpence and a bulldog pipe in his pocket. But alas! twelve and and sixpence soon runs off, if you know many fellows along the road, and even if you don't, and Messrs. Skimp & Cut in the "City" can easily get another man to fill his place, if he chooses to ride the "high horse" of independence. "There's something to live for besides £ s. d." Yes, but how many men are there who never recognize this truism before they have amassed a fortune, and then try to spend it, but find themselve incapable of enjoying a little outdoor sport, which to more generously inclined organisms is "life" itself. Have you never noticed those fine "old-young men" who ride cycles? Did you ever see an old man who rode a cycle who was not more or less interesting or likeable? Have you never found him to be as much a boy as yourself? No? I have, often. But to return to Saturday afternoon. This Saturday half-holiday is almost a necessity, and the employer whose business will not suffer, should see that his clerks or "boys" (I always like a man who speaks of his "boys") have the opportunity of living among the clover fields and the green of the woods on a Saturday afternoon. No man can go in the woods and live among the red ants and beetles, without having a certain amount of true religion grafted into him, and perhaps a colony of well-equipped mosquitoes capering on the inside of his trousers leg. Both are good for the cooped-up city lad. The one teaches him that there are truer delights than the often questionable associations of the city, and the other teaches him that there are other creatures in the world than himself, who think they have rights, and who are prepared to defend them. He may also learn (if there are many of them) that the best way to get rid of them is to take off your nether garments and flog some monarch of the forest with them. This either kills the enemy or routes them, and is a grand chance for a companion with a "Kodak Kamera"—which in the Gaelic is "Kamarashenshu." Then replace the garment (this is a very proper precaution) and continue your study of nature.

I HAVE received some inquiries as to cycling in Japan. Well, in the neighborhood of Yokohama the only decent road is a pretty level one, and is one of the principal roads in the country. It is called the To-kai-do, and extends from Takio (the capital) to Kobe, a distance of about 300 miles. From Takio to Yokohama (twenty miles) it is almost a dead level—only one slight hill. Between Yokohama and Tatsuka, about ten miles, there used to be two very steep hills, but in 1885 the Japs cut a new road skirting the hills, where the grade is inappreciable. From Tatsuka to Fuji Sawa, six or eight miles, there are no bad hills. Yokohama has a population similar to New Orleans, 250,000, and the roads are gravel, crushed smooth.

THE "tea houses" along the roadside remind the rider of the English tavern. At some of the places European food and drink are obtainable, notably Bass' ale and brandy and soda—the latter a most killing drink, especially in a hot climate. Rice-water and weak tea are really preferable to either.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

IN last week's issue of a wheel paper, one of the correspondents from the South corrects the error of a fellow pen pusher from the same district, whose geography had placed Chattanooga in Georgia, and having thus demonstrated his superior knowledge in one direction, at once goes to work to show the profundity of it in another by claiming that ten per cent. of $35,000,000 is $35,000, and to prove the correctness of this strange method of calculating percentage, he declares that he "is indebted to Judge M. T. Porter, one of County Commissioners, for the foregoing information," a fact that must be particularly pleasing to Judge Porter.

AN advertiser heads his advertisement with the statement that "there are two things which no man who tours on a bicycle should be without," and follows it up with an argument that these two are the advertiser's razor and bath brush. I agree with the gentleman that there are two things that all bicycle tourists should not be without when touring, but I do not believe that these two indispenables are a razor and a bath brush, but rather think that the two most important elements in a tour are a wheel and a pair of legs to run it with.

THE dwarf craze has degenerated into a regular stampede here in New York, and to listen to the talk around the club houses and upon the road, one would think that the end of the season would not find a rider here who did not bestride a safety. In some things wheelmen are like a flock of sheep, always ready to follow a leader, or to take hold of the latest patterns of the manufacturer and laud them to the heavens, as an example of absolute perfection, just so long as it is not eclipsed by something newer, when they at once repeat the entire performance over again with the last bidder for their imperial favors. It is very much this way with the existing safety boom, I think. For the dealers all of this is a windfall, acting as a two-edged sword in their behalf, since they not only sell to the enthusiast his new mount, but almost have the old one given to them besides, all of which, of course, makes business for them, and brings many new adherents to the cause, since the market is fairly glutted with first-class second-hand ordinaries that several years ago would readily have commanded at least twenty-five per cent. higher price than the dealers now offer them for. It is a subject that has both its amusing and its beneficial points of view, and I wonder what the dealers will give us next, when they have exhausted the rich gold mine of the safety, which I must say seems only to have been but just started upon its wealth-producing career for the manufacturer and dealer.

NOW's just the season of the cycling, when the racing man who, during the winter months has religiously circulated the story that he need never again enter a race, begins to scan the columns of his wheel paper for soft pot hunting snaps, and having made up his mind that he has located the game he seeks, quietly goes to work to train for the scooping of the prize. It's a funny thing, but I can't remember ever having heard a racing man at the close of one season, say that he intended to race during the next one. They are like prominent actresses, always making "farewell performances" and always repeating them.

WE had some bicycle races (?) at the 12th Regiment, among games on Friday evening, which were wonderful performances.

No limbs were broken or machines smashed—that's where the wonderful part of the affair comes in.

DENVER is going to abolish the amateur law, is she? Well, let me tell this western association of abolitionists that the contract they have undertaken is too big for them. Why, when the cold finger of oblivion closes over the whiskers of their association, not so much as a subdued plunk will mark its falling into the tureen. See if it does.

LOS ANGELES.

"VINDEX."

THE fourth annual meet of the California Division, to be held here May 30 (Decoration Day), 31, June 1 and 2, is the sole topic of conversation nowadays. At all the agencies, a group of the knowing ones can always be found congregated, discussing the relative merits of this and that aspirant for cinder-path honors. The committe men are flying around attending to details and working like beavers. The racers have already secured quarters in the Agricultural Park grounds, and have settled down to hard training, and are rapidly getting into racing trim. The following flyers have commenced training for the races: Messrs. W. S. Wing, J. Phil Percival, D. L. Burke, James Lancaster, P. L. Abel, R. C. Woodworth, A. W. Allen, Tom Romero, John Tufts. There will be a number of others to enter the races, but the foregoing are the flyers par excellence. The boys have rooms in the Park club-house, and go on the track morning and afternoon. The track even to-day is fine as silk and by racing day it will be in grand shape. It is being carefully looked after being rolled and sprinkled constantly. The Northern Citrus Belt racers can rely on the track being better than anything ever skimmed over. The Bay City Wheelmen will send a delegation of flyers, and word has been received that E. I. Halsted, late of New York but now of Tacoma, W. T., will be here. This means that the racing here will be the best ever given on the coast.

THE Los Angeles Times has a weekly wheel news column now, and of course its appearance can be ascribed to Harry G. Stuart, an attache of the paper. It appears every Sunday.

THE Grand Army people are kicking because the wheelmen have their parade on Memorial Day.

JUNE 2d, at Santa Monica-by-the-Sea, promises to be thronged with wheelmen; in fact, the whole wheel population of this city and our visitors will turn out for this run. The occasion is the last day of the State meet.

THE programme of the meet will be ready for mailing this week. It is a little late, but it will be none the less acceptable. It will be the best programme ever printed on the coast, from a wheelman's point of view.

To the Pacific Coast Wheelman: If you miss attending the fourth annual meet, to be held here, you have our distinguished sympathy. Come, and you will have a grand time.

NEW ORLEANS NOTES.

"HERMES."

HERE is how cycling is on the boom in New Orleans: A new bicycle club was started last week with fifteen members. It is one of the branches of the Young Men's Gymnastic Club; there are several old riders among its members. The N. O. B. C. now has fifty members, and with their lawn tennis courts, ten pins and new piano expect to attract many new members. A stag smoker is on the programme for the 17th. The Louisiana Cycling Club has forty-three members, and all hard at work on the new club house scheme. They took an outing last Sunday to Bay St. Louis, on the Gulf coast, and all report a fine time.

IN the mile handicap last Thursday, Christy, of the L. C. C., made a fine run, defeating the State champion, Hill. Christy is a coming fast one, and will be dangerous in the coming September meet.

TOO many races, and series at that, with few entries has been the cause of Chief Consul Hodgson withdrawing his medals and calling the series off, he will give them for a road race on Thanksgiving Day.

THE question of L. A. W. meet in New Orleans in 1891 is being agitated by our Chief Consul, but as our division is small and our merchants not much inclined to assist the good cause, he will have an up-hill work. However, if energy and hard work counts, the meet of 1891, will be held in New Orleans during Carnival week, but the time is so far off we will let it rest for the present.

THE three members of the N. O. B. C. who attended the meet in Baltimore last year have not forgotten the courtesies of the members of the Hagerstown Bi. Club, and I understand have a little surprise for the members of that club, which will be made public at the meet in July. A party of four or five hope to take in the meet this year, and will leave about June 29th.

ON May 28th an election will be held here to levy a tax of three mills for ten years, to completely drain and pave the city. It is called the Draining and Paving Tax, and as our assessments are about one hundred and twenty millions of dollars, ten years' tax will give us about three million and a half dollars for that purpose, and if it is passed favorably New Orleans will be a wheelman's Paradise, as our streets are a dead level, not a hill or elevation in the city. The wheelmen are interested, and will do all in their power to further the good work.

ONE of the events of the September meet here will be the five-mile League championship, which our Chief Consul has secured; this will be the first League championship ever held in the South, and it is hoped that riders from neighboring States will conclude to enter. The prize is the handsome League gold medal.

THIS summer the Louisiana Division will probably go into camp at one of our Gulf coast resorts. A committee has been appointed to make the proper arrangements.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

ABOUT a dozen of the Hagerstown wheelmen paid a fraternal visit to Mr. V. Monroe Cushwa, President of the club, at Williamsport, May the 6th, and enjoyed the bounties of his hospitality, which, on this occasion, consisted of a hearty welcome and an abundance of ice cream, cakes, etc. Mr. Chisni, the Chairman of Transportation for the L. A. W., was a guest.

THE Council Committee on Police and Jail decided to report favorably on the ordinance to exclude Charles Street avenue and Pimlico avenue from the provisions of the law prohibiting fast driving, but that the avenues shall not be used for racing or speeding, under a penalty of five dollars.

THE Maryland Club have adopted a badge which is beautiful. It is a gold button, with the monogram "M. B. C." set in a red enamel background. The membership of this club has largely increased of late.

LEVI KENTON, Treasurer of the Crescent Club, has resigned. W. E. Coleman was elected to fill the vacancy.

THE Chesapeake Wheelmen are in their new club house. Work on the exterior of the building is still going on. The expect to have their formal opening on Tuesday, the 21st.

A LARGE party from the Maryland Club spent last Sunday at the Middle river ducking pond.

THE Baltimore Club will have the first of their monthly races on June 15th. The prizes will be one gold and one silver medal.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

A FITTING sequence to the very successful illuminated parade was the banquet at the Calumet Hotel. The guest of the evening was Mr. Geo. B. Thomson, who, in replying to the toast, "The Citizens' Committee," complimented the wheelmen highly on their appearance in the parade, and stated that if the cyclists of St. Louis wanted to try it again in October, he would guarantee that a sufficient sum would be set aside to pay the expenses. In St. Louis the wheelmen are looked on as an attraction and not as a nuisance, as in some other cities. The prizes for the best costumes and decorations in the parade have been awarded to R. Hurck, to J. H. Child and H. A. Lienhardt, and to H. B. Pogue and Geo. Wilder.

THE question of repealing the rule of the Missouri Bi. Club which allows games to be played on Sunday in the club house, came up, and after a very hot time the motion to repeal was lost by a vote of 14 in favor of Sunday playing as to 13 against the practice.

THE cycle thief is rampant. No less than three wheels have been stolen from one spot during the past year. The last victim is H. Hirschberg.

THE date of the meeting of the cyclists of Quincy, Louisiana, Hannibal, St. Louis and Clarksville, at the latter place, has been definitely settled on Sunday, June 9. The fine gravel roads of Pike County are generally at their best at this season of the year, and taken in conjunction with the low rates which will be made by the railroad and steamer "Bald Eagle," should insure a large attendance. The latter's rate will be $3.50 for the round trip, with privilege of returning by rail.

Our local flyers, who, upon the invitation of R. D. Garden to compete in the Pullman road race, sent up their entries, are justly indignant in receiving word from him that the committee in charge of the races had decided to allow but three St. Louis men to compete from the scratch, and as a consequence, all have withdrawn their entries. In an interview with E. N. Sanders he stated: "I look upon this action as a square back-down, and it proves conclusively that Chicago is afraid of us. I, as well as seven others, had entered, but we have all withdrawn."

A large body of Chicago wheelmen will be down on the 28th to witness the Stone-Lumsden race. They will be entertained at the Missouri Bicycle Club, and will be shown a perhaps greater (?) attention, the Anheuser-Busch brewery. On Sunday, May 26, a special run has been arranged to Ballwin.

DENVER.

"OCCASIONAL."

Bad weather and the unrideable condition of the roads caused the postponement of the Social Wheel Club and Denver Ramblers' team race. The event will come off on Sunday, May 26th, rain or shine, sleet or snow; so say the committee. The course is thirty-three and a half miles in length, starting just outside the city (Denver), and finishing just side of Platteville. A special train will follow the racers for the benefit of spectators, who will be able to see the entire event, as the road follows alongside the railroad the entire distance. The "Geo. F. Higgins & Co. Challenge Cup," for which the teams are to compete, was manufactured by the Meriden Brittania Co. It is silver, finished with gold trimmings, and stands twenty-six inches in height.

The League Union Cyclists has "removed." Owing to the feeble support given that organization by the wheelmen of this section, it was thought advisable to ship the idea up north. It is said that in Oregon and Washington Territories there are men who have the time and money to make the scheme a "go." Maybe they have, but I doubt it." The L. A. W. is good enough for me, and quite a number of others out this way. If President Luscomb will only give us a good, rustling Chief Consul, I would bet that by next year (and perhaps before) we will be large enough to select our own officers. A. H. Brown, from Toledo, C. E. Hawver, also from Ohio, A. A. Morris, H. K. Lamb, J. H. Allers, C. C. Hopkins and E. S. Hartwell are all good men, and would boom the League in good style.

The Social Wheel Club are debating on the advisability of establishing a "safety division." It is proposed to organize such a division with a safety rider at its head, who shall hold the rank of a Lieutenant, but who will be empowered to call runs, at the same time he shall be under orders of the Captain of the club.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

Miss Hilda Kempton, who is in her tenth year, and who rides a twenty-inch safety bicycle, accompanied the C. B. C. on their run to Delhi on the first Sunday in May. The round trip was twenty-two miles, and two thirds of the distance was ridden on narrow and tortuous side paths. Most of those who saw Miss Hilda leading the procession were so surprised that they regarded her with silent and open-mouthed wonder. A few excitable women, however, were heard to express admiration. She did not seem to feel the effects of the ride, as she was as lively as a cricket the next morning.

The bicycle thief has visited Porkopolis. A young man calling himself Leon Goldsen ordered a wheel of Chas. Hanauer and in the meantime borrowed a wheel of the amiable Charley, which he immediately advertised for sale. Fortunately, the prospective purchaser, Mr. Mead, happened to make some inquiries of Charley, and the fraud was discovered. Charley and Al Watcher then accompanied Mr. Mead to the place where he was to meet the thief, who, suspecting something wrong when he saw them coming, started to run. After a lively foot race the young man was collared by Al Watcher and landed in the station house. In his pockets were found, a watch without hands, a bunch of keys, a ticket to Chicago, and five cents. As no charge could be placed against him he was discharged with a warning and a reprimand.

The "Veloce" Club have joined the gymnasium and have changed their name to the Athletic Cycling Club. Although it is claimed that the gymnasium offers more advantages at less cost than are offered by any bicycle club, yet they neither have a wheel room nor have they access to their rooms on Sunday, two very important features of a bicycle club. Experience has proven that without a well-appointed wheel room the life of any club will indeed be very short. Then the lack of a meeting place on Sunday recalls the early history of the defunct Central Wheelmen.

So this time it is "Vindex" who has to take some of "Hawkshaw's medicine. Next!

The C. B. C., at their last meeting, besides electing a lot of new members and receiving a fresh batch of applications, established a club championship for a road race. The location and distance have not yet been decided upon. The medal, a very handsome one, will be competed for twice annually. The first race is set for June 16th, and, of course, will be open to members of the C. B. C. only.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Minneapolis is to have a race track. It will be built by Mr. Henry Hack, "the big-hearted Secretary of the Minneapolis base ball team," on the grounds of the base ball club. These grounds are situated directly in the rear of the West Hotel, and right in the heart of the city. A race meet during the Fair and Exposition would be a paying affair, and if the State Division L. A. W. meet is assigned to Minneapolis during that time a big effort will be made to give a tournament.

The South Park Commissioners, of Chicago, have purchased a number of tandem tricycles for rental, and the visitors seem to patronize the venture generously.

Members of the Elwell tourists hailing from Boston and vicinity will be entertained at the Town and Boston Club house, by the Boston Bicycle Club, on Friday, May 17th.

Our sympathies with Mr. L. T. Ames, one of Maine's fastest riders, for injuries sustained, would be deeper were it not for the fact that he took his header while "riding at a furious rate on the concrete sidewalk." It came near being a case of concussion of the brain.

Any village which tries the experiment of improving and beautifying its roads and conducting its work, from year to year, in a really intelligent and systematic way, will find the money thus spent has been profitably invested.—Boston Journal.

A man prominent in the wheel world is much in favor of holding the League meet for 1890 at the Hub. It would be funny if there were sharp competition between Boston and Chicago, wouldn't it?

Tacoma, W. T., may be out West, but it is not by any means out of the cycling world, if we are to judge of the amount of cycling news given to the sport in the column of the Globe of that city. There is a good deal of pleasant rivalry between the Seattle Wheelmen and those of Tacoma. A twenty-mile road race will be an event of an early date between the scorchers of these two cities.

Our Chicago correspondent writes us that: "Randall has finally been scared out of his still hunt for the Presidency of the C. C. C., this leaving Thorne as the only candidate in the field." He then says that "Whittaker intends to make application for reinstatement in League. 'Whit' has been trying to get on a race with Temple for glory or love, Temple to ride a safety or ordinary racer, while Whit rides his racing safety, but 'Whit' says Temple dare not make a match of this kind."

Mr. H. Welch, of New Haven, Ct., lost his bicycle. After searching he found the youth who had appropriated it, and now that youth has lost his liberty.

The Rambling Wheelmen, of Bridgeport, Ct., will give a race meet at Seaside Memorial Day.

The annual Spring meeting of the Massachusetts Division will be held June 17, place not yet decided on. We omitted the word "spring" in our announcement of last week.

Mr. M. R. Davies, of Bala, Kansas, is desirous of securing a companion to tour to Denver, Col. He will start about June 7th. Address him for particulars.

We would have liked to see George Hendee ride in one of the ordinary races at Harvard last Saturday. We think he still has a large share of the old-time speed in him, which could be brought out by the proper amount of preparation.

"The relation of good country roads to a healthy commerce is so intimate that it is a wonder that the people of this country have not fully awakened to their importance long before this. * * * It must be acknowledged, however, that the men who suffer the most from bad roads—the country merchant and the farmer—are largely to blame for the existing state of affairs. If they would bring their influence to bear upon the legislators they have elected, a remedy would in time be effected."—Exchange.

The Augusta, Ga., wheelmen will give a grand tournament some time during the present season.

SAFETY, SPEED AND COMFORT.

The best hill climber, the best coaster, the best all round machine in the the market to-day, combining all the advantages of the "Safety" and the "Ordinary," and having none of their defects.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 7th, 1889.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.

Dear Sirs—I had the pleasure of riding one of your wheels a short time ago, and find that it excels in workmanship anything on the market.

I am a "fancy rider" on both the "Crank" and "Star" machines, and I can immediately see the many superiorities it has over either wheel in that respect.

It is a hill climber and race winner without an equal; combining the safe qualities of the "Star" with the fast spurting qualities of the "Crank." "In short it takes the bun."

Very respectfully, John Wilkeson, K. A.

THE joint outing last Sunday of the members of the twin organization, the Boston Bi. Club and the Town Club was a most enjoyable affair. Over thirty members reached the rendezvous at Old Squantum, some via Tally-ho coach, some on cycles and some in canoes and yachts. To Captain Kendall and Mr. Tombs the success of the affair is due.

PELHAM, N. Y., will go to the Legislature and ask for authority to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000, for the improvement of highways.

HERE is an item which in itsef is the most eloquent sermon in favor of roads improvement. The item is from the Plymouth, N. H., Record: "Another of those sad accidents for which this region has lately become celebrated, occurred Monday, to Frank Caldon. While driving over Besch Hill, Campton, his carriage sank in the road beside a log, and was so firmly fastened that when the horse jumped the harness gave way, and it ran leaving the carriage in the road. Mr. Caldon was thrown out in front, striking his head on some hard substance, the nature of which is not known. He was carried home unconscious, and although he became partially conscious his recovery is doubtful.

NEW ORLEANS is already making a move towards securing the League meet of 1891 in that city. A prominent New Orleans League official writes: "Our sugar and rice plantations can be visited, steamboat ride on the Mississippi, jetties, battle grounds of New Orleans, shell roads, balmy climate, and Mardi Gras processions can make a stay of a week very pleasant. I will never rest until we have a meet here, and if hard work will count, the meet of 1891 will be held in Dixie land."

E. A. SAVAGE, of Minneapolis, one of the "cracks" of that section, will take up racing again this season.

PHILLIP BENGLE, driver of a Springfield (Mass.) grocery team, recently attempted to drive over certain League cyclists who were repairing a broken wheel by the roadside, between Springfield and Indian Orchard. As the wheelmen were on the extreme right of the road, they entered a complaint to his employer, secured his discharge, and tendered him, through the local consul, a proposition which it will be advisable for him to accept, if he wishes to escape further trouble.

THE Harrisburg (Pa.) Wheelmen have adopted resolutions thanking Gov. Brown for his good offices in securing legislation for better highways.

THE Reading (Pa.) Cyclists are still divided on the question of the right of wheelmen to retain the silver cup.

MR. CLARK, of Brooklyn, N. Y., sends us Badge No. 171, for the great Century run to be made between New York and Philadelphia. The badge is made out of enamel cloth, and the schedule is printed in blue ink thereon.

A YOUNG man in Geneva, N. Y., rides a unicycle altogether. He is "opposed to weight," and so dispenses with the larger part of the backbone and the small trailer.

THE Taunton Bi. Club feel pretty confident of securing the cup in the road race on Decoration Day. The race is for a distance of twenty miles. Both teams are hard at work.

MR. CHARLES SCHWALBACK'S reception to Brooklyn (N. Y.) wheelmen, given last week at his pavilion near Prospect Park, was a howling success. All the cycling shining lights of Gotham and Brooklyn were present.

THE Kentucky Division, L. A. W., will hold its meeting at Danville, Ky., June 10. The Covington (Ky.) Club propose to go to the meet like true cyclists—on the cycle from Maysville.

THE steam tricycle inventor pops up again. We would be lonely if he did not appear once in six months.

A COUPLE of men coasted and pedaled down St. Cloud Hill, Orange, N. J., three times, one and a third miles, in 2 m. 12 s., 2 m. 18 s. and 2 m. 8 s. This is a spped equal to a mile in 1 m. 36 s.

FOR the past few years the Rhode Island Wheelmen have projected and carried out a day's tour over the delightful highways about Boston. May 20th is set as the date of this year's tour. The following is the itinary: Leave Providence for Sharon at 7 A. M., arriving at 8.06. Morning run about 21 miles. Leave Sharon station at 8.15, and through Sharon village northerly to Old Bay road; thence direct through South Canton and Canton Corners to Ponkapoag, from Ponkapoag, via Canton avenue, skirting Blue Hill, through Milton Centre to School street (near Milton Lower Mills); School street and cross Neponset river; River and Washington streets, through Dorchester, branching off near Blue Hill avenue for Franklin Park, and to and around the Playstead; Walnut, Warren, Cabot and Tremont streets, Columbus and Warren avenues, to Clarendon Hotel, Tremont street, and dinner at 1 o'clock. Afternoon run, about 13 miles, leaving hotel at 3 o'clock, and via the new boulevard to Chestnut Hill reservoir and return. Go-as-you-please supper at J. M. Hill's new restaurant, corner of Boylston and Washington streets.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[ALL communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—ED.]

Sunday last was a perfect day in Boston. A party of eight took the run to Echo Bridge, and invoked responses from the great arch with shout and whistle. Six out of the eight were on two-wheelers. We were passed by several clubs, and whether they met us or came upon us from behind, we were passed just the same. I have often wondered if the gentlemen get as much real solid pleasure out of the wheel as we ladies do. They always seem to be riding as though they were late for dinner; they never saunter. A gentleman friend of mine tells me that he can get no fun out of riding unless he rides fast.

A friend in Philadelphia writes me that fifteen ladies of the Philadelphia Club, with escorts, rode out to Wayne on Centennial Day. The distance is ten miles. Dinner was taken at the hotel, and afterwards the return journey was made. There were several bicycles, tandems and tricycles. It was the first ladies' run of the club, and its success is likely lead to many more like it. Will not some one of the Quaker City ladies undertake to keep me informed regarding matters of interest in her city? The Reception Room is open to all who are interested in its mission.

I was glad to find the following in an English cycling paper, written by its lady correspondent. I have been taken to task for giving expression to the very same ideas. The paragraph is in reply to the words of the journalist who referred to the health-promoting qualities of the ladies' bicycle:

"Now we who have not, for the sake of the new love, by any means thrown over the old, cannot help murmuring a little that all this credit should be paid to the virtues of the two-wheeler, to the total ignoring of our true and tried tricycles. If it had been merely cycling to which the praise was given, we could have added our heartiest testimony."

My friend "Psyche," of the Wheel, should be more careful of her statements. She tells us that Mrs. Stall, of Boston, for two years has ridden a tricycle that weighed thirty-five pounds. That is very much less than the bicycles weigh, and "Psyche" proves too much. Why ride a bicycle weighing forty-five pounds when we may have a tricycle that weighs ten pounds less? On the last ladies' tour to the North Shore, Miss Fair, of Holyoke, Mass., rode a tricycle weighing forty-seven pounds. It was the lightest machine I have ever seen, and I have many times seen Mrs. Stall's wheel. "Psyche" has taken off about fifteen pounds from the wheel in question.

Proving too much is the amiable weakness of my friend from Washington. She has undertaken to show that tricycles are made lighter than bicycles, that one is safer from dogs on a bicycle than on a tricycle, and that the luggage-carrying capacity of the two-wheeler is equal to that of the tricycle. Here are devious ways adown which I will not follow her.

How very stupid it is for cycling scribes to say I am opposed to the ladies' bicycle. Decidedly I am not. I am glad that this light, single-track machine has been adapted to her uses. But seeing her on it and applauding her courage, I would not have her say, "this is the only mount for ladies."

I am told that there is to be no North Shore tour this year. The managers have become weary of managing extensive tours, and will do no more than hold several short tours during the season. After all, why do we care to go off in droves?

In large companies all cannot be congenial. A party of ten, if they are congenial, can have more fun than can many more, wanting this; and so, it is proposed to have several tours to Massapoag Lake, to Hingham, perhaps to Providence. These will be entirely informal, and the world will not be invited. Of course we shall all go to Cottage City. Massachusetts and Rhode Island ladies will be there. Why not the New York and Brooklyn ladies join us? They have a steamer running direct to the island, and could come easily enough. Why not make this island outing distinctively a ladies' meet?

The following from "Flora" is a word in good season:

Dear Helen Grey—In your article of May 3, regarding dress, you say: "It should conceal as much as possible the knee movement." Will you allow me to suggest that the best way to conceal the movement of the knees is to use what is called the "ankle motion" in pedalling. In this way of pedalling the heel is lowered as the pedal ascends, and at the top of the stroke the knee as well as the heel isn't as high, by at least three inches, as it is in the ordinary way of pedalling, and gives to the rider an easy, graceful movement.

Send to WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO., Springfield, Mass., for Catalogue.

It takes some practice to acquire this motion, but the lady rider will be well repaid for her trouble. Expert wheelmen say that this ankle motion, when fully learned, adds ten to thirteen per cent. to the power of the rider. FLORA.

I shall have something to say about ankle motion very soon.

THE TALE OF A SKULL.

A STORY OF THE QUATIER LATIN OF PARIS.

In Three Chapters.

By JAS. PURVIS-BRUCE.

CHAPTER III.

"Whispering to her lover,
Oh, but the world is heaven!
Poppies beneath, and above her
The bright blue sky of Devon.

Backwards and forwards faring,
Oh, but the world is chilly!
Flaunting beneath the glaring
Gaslight of Piccadilly.

Standing beside the river,
Oh, but the world is hell!
Madly, with heart a-quiver,
Bidding it all farewell."

Next morning I was down early to see my friend J. Sage Vandyke, or "Vandyke Brown" (as he was generally called by the artist fraternity after the story of his baptismal name had leaked out) and I at once recounted to him the experience of the previous night.

Of course he did exactly as I should have done (had the story been his and I the listener)—pooh poohed the whole thing as the result of going to bed at an unseemly hour, and dreaming.

In vain I explained that I had not gone to sleep.

"Oh no, 'Jack,'" he said, "you can't make me believe anything else, and you, of all men, with your cause-and-effect-matter-of-fact ideas! Pshaw, I'm astonished at you!"

Convincing a man against his will is no easy, and never a satisfactory, task, so I gave it up in despair.

Immediately after breakfast, I went to my room, unlocked the hat box and carefully took the skull to the small back yard, and buried it near an elder-berry tree.

I had had one experience, which I did not wish repeated, and thought that burying the skull might somewhat pacify the spirit which had visited me.

In time I had grown to consider the matter in the light of an inexplicable experience and mystery. I went to London and wrote a book on "The Plagarisms of Artists," which had quite a sale, both among the brotherhood of Bohemia and in outside circles as well.

Some years after I was again in Paris, my friend "Vandyke Brown" having arrived a few days previously with three pictures for the Salon. I had seen them, and was much impressed with his fine feeling for color, and above all his admirable flesh tints.

One evening I was walking near the great Bohemienne building, and was accosted by a tall, strong looking man who begged a light for his cigar, which had gone out. I felt in my vest pockets, and finding none I handed him the glowing stump of my own cigar, which he placed to the ashes of his cigar. As he did so, I took a good look at the man, and nearly cried aloud, for as he drew the fire from one cigar to the other, I noticed a ring on the middle finger of his left hand.

There could be no mistake. The same luminous, deep glow on the cat's eye surrounded with pearls. I mastered myself, as the stranger thanked me and handed back my cigar, and was about to go, when he noticed my white, excited face.

"Are you ill, Monsieur?" he said in English.

He had already discovered I was English like himself—though I could correctly read and write French as well.

"Is your name Bouverie?" I said.

The man turned pale, started, and said, in a strangely artificial voice: "Who said it was?"

"Henry Lawson Bouverie, is it not?" I asked.

"No," he replied. "What makes you ask these questions?"

"Did you ever know Marie Fouchette?" I continued.

"Oh," he exclaimed, with an oath, "you have come to hunt me," at the same time drawing a pistol, and quickly aiming he fired.

I was unarmed, and as we clinched, I knew that I was not much hurt, though I had experienced a slight pain in my cheek at the report of the pistol. We clinched, and I got the best of the fall, though he was undoubtedly a stronger man than I. I managed to get hold of the butt of the pistol, but could not wrench it from his muscular hands, he holding it by the barrel chambers and tugging away, imprecating viciously the while. I managed to get hold of the stock, and control of the trigger, and before I could warn him of the advantage I had over him (which he must have immediately realized) or the possible consequences of his tugging at the barrel, he had wrenched the pistol suddenly.

A report followed, then a groan, and he relaxed his hold, lying on the pavee, as I thought, DEAD.

All this was the work of a very few seconds. Such things are as a rule "one act and curtain," and it had been witnessed in its entirety by a gendarme who came running up. He had, it afterwards transpired, seen this man draw the pistol and fire, had seen us clinch, and had hurried up, not, however, before the fatal shot had been fired.

Beyond a slight scratch on the left cheek, where the ball had grazed, I felt unhurt. The wounded man was placed on an ambulance, and I under arrest.

That night he died, but before doing so, he made a declaration, which together with the evidence given by the gendarme, was the means of my honorable acquital by the police authorities.

His statement also corroborated my suspicions. It read:

"I, Henry Lawson Bouverie, being about to die, desire to clear my conscience of a terrible load, which I have carried alone for several years, and to make as much peace with my God in this world as my rapidly narrowing span of life will permit. Life is short, and eternity is so long, therefore I make this voluntary confession:

On the night of January the 10th, 1874, I, without accessories, killed my mistress, a French girl, Marie Fouchette by name, by stabbing her in the back of the ear with a knife, and then I threw her body in the Seine. If she was not quite dead when I threw her over the bridge, she must have quickly drowned in the waters.

The act was caused by an overpowering fit of jealousy, and has made my life miserable ever since.

According to accounts which I read in the Paris papers, her body was found by a boatman, and it was supposed that she had been drowned, the knife mark being so small as to cause no comment.

I left the city immediately after the murder."

THE CHICAGO TOURNAMENT.

(Special Despatch to the World.)

THE officers are: J. O. Blake, Referee; George C. Stamm and W. C. Musty, Umpires; C. P. Randall, S. L. Sloan, R. G. Hall and J. F. Langworthy, Judges; M. A. Hosford, George E. Lloyd, R. D. Gorden, N. H. Van Sicklen and W. G. Davis, Timers; R. O. Forrest and W. F. Bode, Scorers; L. D. Munger, Announcer; Charles H. Sieg and W. O. Mumford, Clerks of the Course.

As the time approaches for the opening day of the tournament, it can be noticed at the hotels, and especially at the Palmer House, that some event cyclar is on the tapis, and by to-morrow the opening official event, the starting of the six days' race at 2.30 o'clock, the crowd of cyclers and non-cyclers will be very large at the exposition building. The display of cycles by the different manufacturers and importers will be the subject of a special article which I shall send you [We fear it won't reach us in time for this week.—ED.], but the results of each day's racing up to Wednesday, will be sent you by telegraph, so that you can get the first three days into this issue.

THE SUNDAY'S RUN.

The run out to Maywood was enjoyed by fully 350 wheelmen, and the weather was superb. At Maywood a fine dinner was served, and the hungry wheelmen did ample justice to the large spread put down before them. The start was made from the Leland Hotel, on Michigan avenue, at 10.45 A. M. and was viewed by many hundred spectators.

The Illinois Club had seventy men out Sunday, and after a ride around the parks with some of the visitors here, had dinner at the Commercial Hotel.

The starters in the six days' professional race, eight hours a day, were: A. Schock, John S. Prince, W. F. Knapp, Ned Reading, W. J. Morgan, R. Neilson, Ralph Temple. The score is as follows:

MISFORTUNE in nine times out of ten is simply another name for laziness or bad management, and it really isn't anything to your credit to be croaking all the time about misfortune. If you have no employment, or are being poorly paid for the work you are doing, then write to B. F. Johnson & Co., of Richmond, Va., and they will show you how to transform Miss-Fortune into Madame-fortune. Try it.

HARVARD BICYCLE RACES.

THREATENING weather in the morning of last Saturday rather put a damper on the ardor of the friends of the Harvard Bicycle Club, but when, about noon, the sun came out in all his glory, the spirits of the Harvard men went up. A glorious afternoon, a very fair audience and some good racing, is the epitomized history of the afternoon on Holmes' Field. A few headers were taken but no serious damage done.

The management is to be congratulated on the business-like and prompt way in which the events were run off; there was no delay between the races. The events and results were as follows:

One-mile safety—R. H. Davis, first; E. A. Bailey, second; W. G. F. Class, third. Time, 2.53 3-5.

Quarter-mile heat, first heat—F. G. Brown, first; J. W. Schoefer, second; J. P. Clark, third. Time, 41 2-5.

Same race, heat second—Kenneth Brown, first; R. W. Holmes, second; W. B. Greenleaf, third. Time, 45 sec. Holmes took a bad header just after crossing the line.

Heat third—Frank A. Delabarre not having any competitor rode over the course alone.

Final heat—F. G. Brown finished first, but owing to a protest by the judges that his starter stepped over the line, Mr. F. G. Brown was disqualified, and Kenneth Brown, who finished second, was awarded first place, and F. A. Delabarre second. Mr. Kenneth Brown was loth to accept first prize, as he stated he had beaten "fair and square," but such were the rules. Time, 41 4-5.

Students of preparatory Massachusetts schools, one-mile, first heat—Philip Davis, first; F. Forbes, second; R. Thayer, third. Also started, R. M. Atwater, who had a good lead on the third lap, and just before crossing the line, entering the last lap, he came a fearful cropper. The finish between Davis and Forbes was very close.

Heat second—S. R. Kimball rode over the course.

Final heat—P. Davis, first; F. Forbes, second; S. R. Kimball, third. Time, 3.20.

One-mile safety handicap—R. H. Davis, scratch, first; E. A. Bailey, scratch, second; W. Porter, 75 yards, third. Time, 2.42 4-5.

Two-mile bicycle handicap, heat first—J. W. Schoefer, 100 yards, first; time, 5.52 2-5.

Heat second—F. A. Delabarre, walk-over. Time, 7.10 3-5.

Final heat—Was a splendid race between J. W. Schoefer, 100 yards, and J. P. Clark, 125 yards, and resulted in a victory for Schoefer; Clark, second; Delabarre, third. Time, 5.50 2-5.

One-mile bicycle race, H. B. C., 3.20 class—T. Brown, first; E. F. Rogers, second; J. M. Weissman, third. Time, 3.09 3-5.

Two-mile tandem safety—This was a walk-over for E. A. and E. W. Bailey, against R. H. Davis and Geo. Hendee, second; J. W. Schoefer and W. G. F. Class, a very bad third. The Baileys rode the tandem in a way that showed them to be a bad team to down, while Davis and the veteran Hendee showed they had not good control of their machine. Time, 6.00 4-5.

The reappearance of Geo. Hendee on the track as an amateur was an interesting feature of the meet.

RACING AT PHILADELPHIA.

THE spring games of the University of Pennsylvania attracted a large audience to the University Grounds, and several collegiate records were broken. Two bicycle races were down on the programme, each of which was a two-mile affair. The college race was won by C. B. Keen, '89, scratch, in 6.12 1-2, with H. R. Register second. Register is a youngster who promises to make a flyer. The two-mile open was the attraction, however, as W. W. Taxis, Y. M. C. A., and E. G. Kolb, South End Wheelmen, were among the entries, and Kolb was reported to have made 2.57 in private trials. The track was poor, which accounts for the time, and Taxis won as he pleased, with Kolb second: time, 6.36.

THE TWELVE-MILE ROAD SCORCH

between B. F. McDaniel and L. J. Kolb was won by the latter, after one of the closest and most interesting contests ever seen here. By mutual consent half a dozen men rode with them, making pace, and from the start to within a quarter of a mile from the finish a blanket would have covered the party. The course was out the Lancaster Pike, from 52d street to Devon, and the two men were neck and neck until, on the last quarter, Kolb put in his spurt, which McDaniel could not answer, and the South End man crossed twenty feet ahead. But although he beat McDaniel the Pennsylvania gray was ahead. Merrihew, who rode with McDaniel from the start, seeing that his club-mate could not respond to Kolb's sprint, went to the front like a flash, as soon as he saw Kolb's spurt, and coming with a rush collared him, finishing, with hands off, full thirty feet ahead. McDaniel was beaten fairly and squarely.

Immediately prior to the race, he challenged Kolb to a twenty-five mile road race, from West Chester to Philadelphia, at any time within the next two weeks, Sundays excepted, and the latter will have to accept if he wants to claim being a better man than the Wilmington rider. McDaniel's challenge appears below.

The only drawback to the whole affair was the publication of an article in several of the city papers this morning, purporting to be an account of the race, in which the writer, with the most remarkable disregard for the truth, asserts that the race was the outcome of a little rivalry between the Pennsylvania Club and the South End Wheelmen, as road riders, and that the best man was selected from each club, which resulted in a comparatively easy victory for the latter. Not only had the Pennsylvania Club nothing to do with the affair, as a club, but they were not even approached on the subject, it being an entirely personal arrangement between Messrs. Kolb and McDaniel. Mr. McDaniel has written a letter to the editors of the city papers, correcting the misstatements. "ARIEL."

Philadelphia, May 13, 1889.

McDANIEL'S CHALLENGE.

Mr. L. J. Kolb, Philadelphia, Pa.:

Dear Sir—I hereby challenge you to a bicycle race from West Chester to 52d street, Philadelphia, to take place within the next two weeks, Sundays excepted. Yours truly, (Signed) B. FRANK McDANIEL.

L. H. JOHNSON.

YOUR representative boarded one of the many trains of the railroad, and after a half-hour's ride from New York, alighted at Orange, the "Wheelman's Mecca." Three minutes' walk down the main street, a smooth, macadamized surface from curb to curb, brought him to Mr. Johnson's establishment, in the very centre of the famous Orange riding district. Here he found a striking change in the cosy quarters which have been the rendezvous of hundreds of wheelmen. Two large stores have been taken and thrown into one, affording ample floor space for the display of Mr. Johnson's specialties. Four large windows contain the latest patterns of Premier Safeties, Humber Crippers and Sparkbrook bicycles. A commodious business and typewriter's office occupies one corner of the ware room, while a hatchway and hoist, communicate with the floor above. This consists of storage, assembling and crating rooms, and is in charge of a foreman and several assistants, who were busy with the day's orders for sixteen single and tandem Premier safeties, when Mr. Johnson showed your reporter through. The show rooms and offices are lit at night by electric light, while a telephone connects the establishment with the various local transportation offices, as well as with New York City and all surrounding towns, enabling many customers and agents to place their orders verbally, thus ensuring prompt and accurate delivery. Speaking tubes connect the office with the floor above. In the rear of the warerooms is a large floor where both ladies and gentlemen are taught to ride the wheel. This floor is the largest used for teaching bicycle riding in the State. Adjoining the main building is a separate storehouse for tricycles and second-hand wheels that are too bulky to be kept in the stores. We found Mr. Johnson busy with the morning's mail, which embraced correspondence from all parts of the United States, entering orders, dictating replies and yet glad to see us. Mr. Johnson believes that personal supervision and careful attention to every detail of the business is the key to success, and he has built up a large and rapidly increasing cycle trade by unremitting vigilance and constant effort to improve his machines in every possible manner.

Mr. Johnson states that he has been a constant road rider for twelve years, and he makes annual trips abroad to study and test the new patterns of machines. He stated that he believed that a good combined saddle and spring obviates all the objectional jar to the nervous system. Such saddle and spring in connection with a properly curved fork and handle-bar, Mr. Johnson holds, gives ample ease and comfort to both hands and arms. His Special Premier Safety is built on this principle, the handle-bars being two feet behind the front wheel axle. Mr. Johnson stated further that he believed thoroughly in simplicity in the construction of a cycle. While expounding his views, Mr. Johnson showed us how his ideas have been carried out in the Premier Safeties, and your reporter is compelled to admit that he has never seen a handsomer or more business-like looking line of wheels. The Premier Tandem Safety is a marvel of strength, the closest scrutiny failing to reveal to his eyes a single weak point. The Special for both sexes, is a beautiful wheel, and the $105 Popular looks as handsome and sound as the makers guarantee it to be. This machine, and the Youths' Premier Safety, at $65, are apparently splendid value for price in their respective classes in the United States, as is testified by the orders received for them from dealers all over the country. Your correspondent was much disappointed not to see the famous "Catford" Safety that is making such a hit in London, but Mr. Johnson stated that, although he had received small invoices of them, it was impossible to keep a single machine in stock for twenty-four hours.

Good hill climbing—W. S. Doane climbed Corey Hill last night (14th inst) twice in succession on a Royal Singer Safety, geared to 57 inches.

THE White Cycle Co., at Westboro', write us that they will have one hundred machines on the market about the latter part of June, though others will be ready long before then.

"ON Tuesday, the 7th, Mr. E. A. Bailey of the Harvard B. C. made the best American Collegiate record for two miles in six minutes one second. This was the first time Mr. Bailey had ever mounted a Swift Safety."

We note that the New York Bicycle Co. formerly of Nos. 8 Warren and 4 East 60th streets, New York City, have removed to their permanent uptown address Nos. 4 and 6 East 60 street where they will have still more commodious quarters for their ever increasing business. Their new situation is at the 5th avenue entrance to Central Park, a most desirable stand, and right in the midst of a wheeling neighborhood. Here the company have their salesrooms, repair shop, renting department, etc., and also carry a fine line of Spalding's celebrated tennis and baseball goods.

The company are New York agents for Pony Star and "Star" Safety. Samples of the above always on exhibition. This move of the New York Bicycle Co. should be a most welcome one to wheelmen, as it places a depot of supplies for their many wants right where it is most needed. The company handle anything and everything in the way of Cycling accessories, and make a special drive in their own Warren enamels and oils. As agents for Victors, Stars, Swifts, New Rapids, Eagles, etc., the company have received a number of A 1 "ordinaries" in trade for new ones of the above makes which they offer at prices within the reach of all. A list of these wheels is issued at stated intervals, and it will pay all those looking for a machine that has been used somewhat to send to the New York Bicycle Co. for copy of such list. The move made by this concern has been contemplated for some time. It being quite impossible to secure the space needed in their old quarters

In 60th street the company expect, in time, to add a riding hall to their present premises. We wish them success.

THE Warwick Cycle Co. writes us that they are running 23 hours out of the 24, in their endeavor to get even on their orders. This Company are very much pleased with the manner in which their output has been received and they will continue to work overtime until the supply equals the demand of a normal days work.

THE Philadelphia Bicycle Co. Limited, who are agents for the Victor wheels in Philadelphia, writes us that this safety is having a big sale and that the Light Roadster of the same make is having a most flattering sale. Business is booming. The Premier Tandem is handled by the Philadelphia Bicycle Co. and is taking well.

THE Pedal Lamp is the latest novelty to be introduced here. We are advised by those who have used it that it is a most excellent thing. See advertisement.

MR. S. T. CLARK arrived in New York on Umbria a week ago. He has been over to hurry out a large shipment of "New Rapids."

HOPKINS STREET, one of the steepest hills to be found in this part of the country, the grade being one foot in six, was successfully climed Tuesday afternoon by Mr. H. E. Campbell on a 39 inch 50.0 bicycle. This is the first time any wheelman has ever been able to ride the narrow track on this hill.

ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

The Annual Meet.

To the L. A. W.:

The annual meet of the League should contribute to the information and instruction of our members and afford an opportunity for general acquaintance and free discussion and the interchange of ideas and gathering of such knowledge as we may.

The Press cannot afford sufficient facilities for all who desire, to expresss their views, and if it could, a discussion in print is not so valuable as when spoken, where the hearers and the speaker can profit, each by the others suggestions noted at the moment.

Subjects of great interest to wheelmen can be best considered by talking upon them together, and when assembled from all sections, our members are gathered in a common cause and with so advantageous an occasion for advancing the sport and the good work, our organization is capable of doing, by common consideration of these subjects, much information must be obtainable, and from general conference satisfactory results must follow.

It is therefore suggested that six meetings be held during the coming meet, at convenient hours, and that the subjects to be dicussed at the several meetings be as follows:

I. Rights and privileges of wheelmen in cities and on the road.

II. Improvement of highways and condition of roads.

III. Racing and its rules.

IV. Our constitution and by-laws; the scope and development of the L. A. W. and the advantages of League Clubs.

V. Railroads and transportation.

VI. Wheels and their appurtenances from the practical riders' standpoint.

That these meetings be presided over and directed by members of the League competent to discuss the subjects; that our members express their views as fully as possible; that a record be kept of the suggestions there made to the benefit of the League; that all who desire present and file with the presiding officer memoranda upon the various subjects, to the end that the National Committees may take the same under advisement.

It is hoped that this departure from the ordinary routine of our meets may receive general attention from the membership at large and that the meetings may prove a medium through which the officers of the League shall become fully informed of the wishes of the members.

Yours fraternally, CHARLES H. LUSCOMB,
President L. A. W.

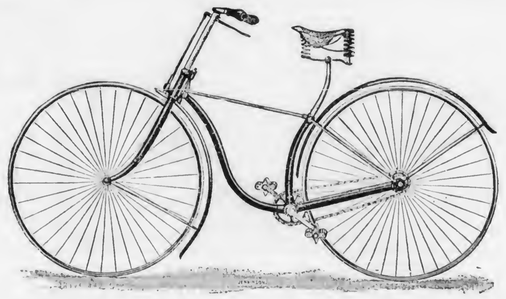
C., is the sole and exclusive agent for the sale of our machines in America, and that no machines can be had from us for importation into America by other parties unless by fraud and misrepresentation.

SECOND: That all machines made by the firm of Starley Bros. or having the name Psycho are of strictly first-class material and construction, and are warranted in every particular.



THIRD: That our machines are fully protected by patents and trade mark, and that those infringing our rights in either particular will be vigorously prosecuted.

PSYCHO LIGHT ROADSTER, WEIGHT, 38 POUNDS.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S PSYCHO.

Three Weights, 39 lbs., 44 lbs., and 50 lbs.

PSYCHO TANDEM SAFETY, WEIGHT, 74 POUNDS

The Psycho cycles are imported by the Capital Cycle Company, of Washington, D. C. This firm were the first to recognize the merits of all forms of rear-driving safeties, and in 1885 imported the first one ever brought into this country. They also designed and introduced the first tandem safety in 1888. They designed and manufactured in 1887 the first rear-driving ladies' safety bicycle, and credit should be given them for their efforts in this direction. They have accomplished as much for the weaker sex by reducing friction, weight, and by giving increased pleasure, as did the inventor of the spider wheel for the stronger sex by improving the bone-shaker.

1. "Men's Straight Frame Psycho Safety." 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, geared to 57 inches, weight 47 lbs. Price, $140.

2. "Men's Light Roadster Psycho Safety" (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 3-4 inch tires, made for gentleman riders and scorchers on good roads, geared to 60 inches, weight 38 lbs. Price, $140.

3. "Men's Dropped Frame Psycho Safety" is designed like ladies' safety (see cut), 30-inch wheels, 7-8 and 3-4 inch tires, weight 50 lbs. Will carry any weight on any road. Detachable brace rod makes it suitable for ladies and a general family machine. Price, $140. Geared to 57 inches.

4. "Ladies' Roadster Psycho Safety," 3-4 inch tires, 29-inch wheels. Detachable brace rod, suitable for short or medium height gentlemen. Will stand any weight. Weight 44 lbs. (See Cut.) Geared to 50 inches.

5. "Ladies' Light Roadster Psycho Safety," 29-inch wheels, 3-4 and 5-8 inch tires, weight 38 lbs. Superb finish, very light and easy running, intended for light weight ladies, but will carry 175 lbs. Geared to 50 inches.

6. "Ladies' Extra Light Psycho," 28-inch wheels, made for short, light ladies, weight 34 lbs., gear 48 inches. Price, $140.

7. "Psycho Tandem Safety," intended for lady and gentleman or two gentlemen, 7-8 inch tires to both wheels, very strong, light and simple. Will carry any weight. Price, with two separate brakes, $200. Geared to 57 inches.

The Capital Cycle Company have prepared for their share of the trade this year, relying upon the merits of their wheels. They only handle two wheeled safeties; no ordinaries or tricycles.

ART CALENDAR AND PRICE LIST NOW READY.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

TESTIMONIAL.

ELMIRA, N. Y., February 15, 1889.

Erie Knitting Mill—Frank Fairbairn, Erie, Pa.:

The suit I got from your mill about a year ago has given me the very best satisfaction and have worn them constantly in my work in the Gymnasium, also for bicycle riding. There is not a thread or a stitch dropped yet, and advise all wheelmen and athletes to wear them. As for style and fit they cannot be beat in the market. Respectfully,

PROF. M. F. MAYER,
Instructor Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium and Captain of Elmira Bicycle Club, Elmira, N. Y.

ST. MARY'S, Ohio, April 12, 1889.
H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.

Gentlemen—I have thoroughly tested my 51-inch Semi-Racing Star which I bought this spring a year ago, and must say that I think it is the best Star ever made for me. I have rode many other wheels, but I could not find one that suited me as well as mine. I myself have not even broke a single spoke, and I do not find any fault with it. I have run twelve races with it, and have run from a half to five miles with it and have won everything with it that I have entered. I think the next wheel I want will be a full racer. Yours, etc.,

Gentlemen—The machine is the best I ever saw or ever have ridden. Yours truly,

W. D. ANDERSON.

MARYVILLE REPUBLICAN.
MARYVILLE, Mo., March 27, 1889
H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.

Gentlemen—My machine has been in steady use ever since I got it one year ago, and it has only cost me $2.50 for repairs, all of which was caused by my own carelessness in learning to ride. I rode an ordinary machine before I took to riding a Star, but I can say truly that I would not exchange my machine for any ordinary now made. It rides as easy if not easier than my other machine, and hill climbing is lots easier.

Yours truly, JOHN H. ENGLISH.

EAST BETHANY, N. Y., March 27th, 1889.
H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO., Smithville, N. J.

Gentlemen—I have have always ridden a crank machine until September 1, 1888, at which time I purchased my present machine. The next day after getting mine home I started on a ten-days' trip through the Southern Counties of Western New York, which satisfied me that there was no machine like the Star. Respectfully yours,

W. W. DIXON.

SMITHVILLE, Bur. Co., N. J.
H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.

I consider of all the wheels you have yet made (I speak as to size, and I have had them all) the 39x24 the best for rough and hilly roads; no roads or hills it cannot be ridden. Yours, etc.,

NEW MAIL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 18th, 1889.

MR. H. W. HIGHAM, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that "The New Mail" Safety bicycle, which I recently purchased from you, as the representative of the Messrs. Wm. Read & Sons, Boston, is an unqualified success.

The amount of ground I have to cover, and the hills I have to climb, daily, demand a good, speedy, staunch and reliable machine. The "New Mail" has all these qualities in a marked degree; the brake action on the rear axle being especially commendable.

My brother wheelmen that I meet daily on the road, all express their admiration of my wheel, and I argue with all of them, "Why buy imported wheels, when Uncle Sam can turn out a steed like this?"

With all success to American industries, and especially to "The New Mail," I remain,

Yours truly,
C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

To our request to use the testimonial, we received the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20th, 1889.

MESSRS. READ & SONS, BOSTON:

Gentlemen—By all means use my letter of recommendation. Greater strength and force is added day by day the remarks therein.

I have not let up on my enthusiasm about your "New Mail Safety;" it only increases; no let up whatever, none.

Very truly yours,
C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

EDITORS:
C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 24 MAY, 1889.

WE MAY BE LATE.

NEXT week Decoration Day comes in and cuts us out of one day's press work. This, of course, we cannot help, and we hope our readers will bear with us.

A SPECIAL ISSUE FOR THE HAGERSTOWN MEET.

WE propose to get out a special edition for the Hagerstown Meet. We make no promises as to what that issue will contain or be like; suffice it to say, we shall attemp to make it a paper worthy of the event and worthy of the management of the paper.

IF the signs of the times amount to anything, road racing in the East has about seen its best days, and there is a strong tide of sentiment among wheelmen, in some sections where road racing has been most popular, that the time is about ripe to pull out.

The probable action of the Eastern Road Club of Massachusetts, and the evident opposition to road racing which exists in New Jersey, where once the wheelmen were unanimous in favor of road racing, are all indications going to show the trend of growing sentiment against this branch of the sport.

We ourselves have promoted road races, but we have always held that when we discerned an indication of opposition by the public or wheelmen we should use our influence to discourage road racing.

The question is now, has the time come to take such a stand? We think it has.

THE almost universal movement of the leading business men of Boston and of the large cities of closing their places of business at noon or at one o'clock Saturdays and at five o'clock the other days, is doing more to promote the cycling interest than is any other business action. This early closing on week days, as well as on Saturdays, is really a matter of humanity to the clerks who work in any city office, and are consequently obliged to consume from half an hour to an hour at close of business in getting home. The clerk who is obliged to remain at the office until six o'clock generally does not reach home until half past six or seven o'clock, and after eating supper finds it too late for other than indoor recreation. The importance of early closing as bearing upon the cycling interest places this movement as fitting to go under the reforms which the League could with propriety promulgate.

A PROTEST has been raised by the Los Angeles, Cal., Grand Army men against the action of the local wheelmen in arranging for a parade on the 30th of May. The Express of Los Angeles says:

"Decoration Day is not a day for celebration or jubilee, but for a solemn ceremony akin to that of a religious service. We have little doubt that when these things are brought to the attention of the wheelmen they will defer to the wishes of the Grand Army posts and fix upon some other date for their parade. In this action of the posts, it should be said, there is no disposition to interfere with any private use to which the day may be put. It is to the public feature of the parade that objection is made.

THE ELWELL TOURISTS.

THERE was a merry party and a large one on the Cunard Dock in East Boston, last Saturday, to see the Elwell party off. Chief Consul Emery was on hand among other prominent wheelmen to see the tourists aboad.

Such a-hustling and a-bustling, such cheering and, yes, alas, such weeping, as one only sees on the occasion of the sailing of an ocean steamer.

Not a "weep" did the tourists shed, however, they were radiant with happy anticipations of the joys before them. Their thoughts did not dwell on mal de mer, the mind's eye dwelt on the sweet hawthorn lanes of England, the magnificent estates of England's magnates. The quaint towns of France, the grandeur of the Swiss scenery, and the oft-told charms of the Rhine.

Most of the tourists were young men, men to whom every new experience is a delight, whose appetite for the new and the strange has not been blunted by years of life in this work-a-day world.

When we saw the party filing on board the Cephalonia we had only one regret, and that was that we were not one of them.

We shook as many of the party by the hand as the limited time allowed, and then we hastened on board the good ship "Alice" and gave orders to the crew to hoist sail and then we hove to in the stream, and as the Cephalonia majestically swept past us on her way to dear old England the tourists and the crew of the "Alice" exchanged cheers, and the last we saw of the party was Elwell, Priest, Collins and a host of other good fellows waving hats and handkerchiefs, and so out into "The sea, the sea, the open sea,

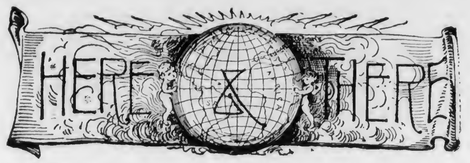
The blue, the fresh, the ever free," passed the Elwell tourists, with our good wishes flying after them.

"Pedals" will keep us posted as to the progress of the party.



EASTERN ROAD CLUB.

THE annual meeting of the Eastern Road Club, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of other important business, will be held on Monday, May 27, 1889, at 7:30 o'clock, P. M. Through the kindness of Dr. Kendall, the meeting will be held at his office, 176 Tremont street, Boston.

At this meeting the subject of the further continuance of the club will be brought up. The sport of bicycle racing on the road has become unpopular in this section of the country, and is now generally looked upon as detrimental to the best interests of cycling, as making an improper use of the highways; our race meets have been a failure, so far as bringing out a team from all the clubs represented is concerned; and interest in the club is nearly at a standstill. The Executive Committee deemed it advisable last year not to levy the annual assessment of ten dollars; if the club is to continue, the assessment can no longer be deferred.

Secretaries of clubs belonging to this organization are requested to see that their club is represented by at least two qualified members.

J. B. SEWARD, President.
WILLARD H. FOBES, Secretary.
Boston, May 15, 1889.

"JACK."

ODDS AND ENDS.

We have all handled that adjunct to cycling happiness, the adjustable nut wrench known to us by the familiar term of "monkey wrench." Few of us have ever bothered our heads as to why the little adjustable spanner was given this name. It always reminded me of the toy of our childhood, "the purple monkey climbing up a yellow stick" (the song tells us "That boy he sucked the paint all off, which made him deathly sick," which the same is likely to do), but only yesterday I was told by a gentleman, who named as his authority a well-known patent solicitor or attorney, who some time ago had occasion to look up a list of wrench patents, that the "monkey wrench" was invented by a mechanical genius whose name, "Monckney," fell victim to the lazy English tongue, and the word became "corrupted" into Monk'ey—easier to pronounce and to remember.

The English language is full of such instances, where the primary name or word was difficult or tedious of pronunciation, and the tongue, forced to make use of the word occasionally, set about in its labor-saving way to render the word more easy of pronunciation—more "palatable" if we may adopt an expression usually connected with the sense of taste. The sense of taste and the sense of speech and hearing are much more closely connected than many suppose, yet we know that deaf and dumb people have not the sense of taste in equal measure to more favored persons who have the faculties which the afflicted lack. But lest I have wandered afield and deigned to look over the hedges, I may, for the benefit of humanity, inform you that "Tommy's oil can is empty," or some other thing of that sort.

I beg leave to say that there is no more tiresome man than the one who forgets current topics because he happens to own a bicycle. He is worse than an "Ancient Mariner," and we flee when we see him approach. Cycling can be "run in the ground," both as an exercise and as a topic, and to enjoy cycling (as to appreciate any other good thing) we must take it in moderation. Do not be known in your village or town as "the bicycle crank," a man who wears tights, a dress which he is ashamed of when he is without his bicycle, or a gilt epauletted colonel with a coat too tight for comfort, but dress quietly and conduct yourself like a sane individual, and you will be regarded as a gentlemen who uses the bicycle for healthful, recreative and locomotive purposes. Eat "men's food" and less sweet stuff, leave the soda-fountain and other swill dispensaries to the dudelet with his ringlet. Ride all the hills which do not strain you, keep your bearings clean, your upper lip stiff; do not "eat soup with a sponge." Tell the truth when you come from a fishing trip (rather detract from the amount of your catch, the size of your fish, etc., than to give their large, though truthful proportion, for men are very suspicious of one another.) Go to church where a sensible liberal-minded man speaks, not necessarily preaches, even if your clothes are old or shabby and do not fit accurately; smoke good tobacco; say ill of no one. Do all these things and you will be a strong man. Hair will grow on your face, your upper lip will be as a weeping willow tree, and the pard will hide himself for very envy in the thick of the downy cactus bush, when he sees thy flowing beard.

The office boy has just come to say that the turkeys have got in at the bushel basket of balls for bearings, which came in yesterday, and says they have eaten nearly a peck of them, so I must attend to them. Good bye.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

Twenty-seven of the C. B. C. had expressed their intention of participating in the run to Independence, Ky., on the 12th inst., but it rained on Saturday. Now if the streets that are sprinkled every day happen to be muddy on the day after a rain, a number of the boys immediately jump at the conclusion that in the country where not a drop of rain had fallen for over three weeks, where the earth was absolutely dry to the depth of a foot, and the roads covered with several inches of dust, that a little rain would make riding next to impossible; consequently only five started out. The day was warm and delightful. Genial Spring had loaned her mantle of green to the forest and the field. The parched earth, however, had by no means been satisfied, as the roads were still very dusty. The sensible five glided along to the music of the nightingale, the mocking bird and the diminutive long-eared horse, till they reached the foot of the long hill, when the "Duke" left them and returned to the city, to meet a "pressing" engagement. The four reached their destination in safety, and were soon joined by three others who had followed their trail. The dinner for the twenty-seven was ready, and, as it had to be paid for, we did not leave the table till every bit of it had been swallowed, to the no small amusement of a colored servant. Even then our misery was not complete, for as we were reclining on the lawn, wondering whether our machines would be strong enough to carry us home, we were compelled to listen for over an hour to a heart-rending performance on an ocorina by the attenuated Buckles.

The season is now at hand when the local scorcher takes great delight in boasting to his acquaintances on Monday morning, that he rode — —ty miles before dinner yesterday, and was as fresh at the finish as a ——, etc., etc. All of which reminds us of an account, written by a missionary to India, of a religious enthusiast who was in the habit of lying on a bed made of sharpened iron spikes, and who claimed, in consequence, to be a little better than the rest of mankind.

The gymnasium Association have their bicycle track laid out—on paper.

From letters received from Chicago it is evident that the much-advertised tournament was conducted with a spirit of unfairness to outsiders. The handicap committee, it seems, did all in their power to aid the local men to win. The handicaps were simply outrageous, and it is a matter of surprise that the local men did not win all the races.

MEMPHIS.

"ANCHOR."

Among those not familiar with the actual facts, the impression here prevails that cycling interest is at a standstill, but allow me to say that such is not the case, as at this present time more wheels are being ridden than at any previous time in the history of its introduction into the City of the Bluffs. Last Saturday the records were taken by Mr. Scherer and stood as follows, and shows Mr. Julius Seelig to be holding on to the top of the list: 1, Julius Seelig, 1295 miles; 2, George Phillips, 930 miles; 3, A. F. Alberts, 826 miles; 4, William Wood, 627 miles; 5, W. A. Whitmore, 446 miles; 6, J. Wood, 438 miles; 7, W. H. Haylie, 240 miles.

Next week there is to be a fair at Senatobia, Miss., which a number of local wheelmen will attend, and I may safely say that among them they will bring back to Memphis a few prizes.

This week Mr. Seelig, who has charge of the two-mile safety race between Mr. Scherer and Mr. Whitmore, will appoint the officials. We are now trying to make the race for a $50 medal, instead of one costing $20, but it is at present a question of "to be or not to be," with the accent on the not. The race will be on the 19th of this month, and your correspondent will gladly let you know all in regard to the same.

BUFFALO.

"ALI BABA."

The event of the riding season of the Buffalo Bicycle Club will be the century run from Erie, Pa., to Buffalo on Decoration Day. Of course Providence permitting. Captain Donaldson has made arragements with the Lake Superior Transit Co., and we are assured a restful, quiet (if the wind don't blow) and beautiful night's ride. The boats connection at Erie is just as we could wish. After a special five o'clock luncheon, we leave the boat and begin our long journey toward Buffalo.

The trip from Erie to Buffalo is exceptionally fine, and the early morning ride between Erie and Westfield is positively superb. But there is one spot betwixt these two points of which the writer has a slight acquaintance. The place is called State Line. I write this plainly so that it may be a warning to all future generations. Here you will see before you a long, quite gentle slope, but if you have no brake on, dismount and walk, for woe betide the man if his wheel gets the start of him. The farther down you get the steeper the grade, when suddenly the the road meets a deep ravine and turns at right angles continuing its course downward. The writer here saw that a "header" was inevitable and picked out a soft spot and he did one of the nicest triple summersault acts known to the profession.

Captain W. E. Donaldson, Lieut. T. A. Russell, Messrs. A. J. Russell, Jewett, Fenton, Mason, Hinckley and others went to Dunkirk last Saturday and rode over about fifty miles of the proposed century route. In fact nearly all of the intended participants are putting in a good many extra miles as a sort of preparation. We expect to bring fifty through the entire route.

The Women's Wheel Club are to have a uniform. It will be a habit of dark green cloth with hat and gloves to match. It will be a splendid outfit and worthy of the club.

Captain Hearne of the Zigzag Club is to give a medal to the member who attends the greatest number of club runs. As a consequence the boys turn out from fifty to sixty strong each week. My, but wont the Captain open his eyes next fall. The club is entirely out of debt and has a balance in the treasury.

SYRACUSE.

"SALINA."

Our boys read with evident delight of the pleasure and sport other clubs and cities derive from their cycling race tracks. We have none and "Salina" thinks we should be pitied. Road riding is a great feature of cycling, racing ditto, but in localities where the roads are hardly above the average, even road riding has its drawbacks, and then dry weather, hard roads and full moons are in demand. For a city the size of Syracuse the number of wheelmen is decidedly small, so at present we must devote all our energies to getting recruits. However, just as soon as we get a large enough membership to warrant it the question of a track will be agitated, and anything agitated in the Cycling Club here goes.

Our theatrical celebrities are holding active rehearsals for a minstrel performance to be given at an early date.

Fayetteville was our destination last Wednesday night, and we owned the village for a few hours. The start back to the city, a distance of eight miles, was made at 9.30, and the run in took fifty minutes. The climate was very dark and the way a little heavy. Nine men spent the night at the Hotel de Grove, and enjoyed several interesting hands of cards.

The plans for our Decoration Day celebration have been changed. Club leaves here by train early on the morning of the 30th, arrive at Rome about 9 A. M., street parade at 10 A. M., run of eleven miles for dinner at 12 M. and back in time for ball game and field sports and races at 3 P. M. In the evening there will be an extensive exhibition of fire-works.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

In my letter of last Friday (May 17), I stated that the motion to repeal the Missouri's house rule, allowing games to be played on Sunday, prevailed and the rule was repealed by a majority of one. Please make the necessary correction. On account of the inability to get a low rate of railroad transportation to Clarksville, the meet at that place has been postponed from June 9 to some time later in the season. Both Captains Lewis and Sanders have thought best to do this for the interest of all concerned, as but few wheelmen would attend from here under the existing conditions.

Consul Joe H. Kelly has invited the division to hold its annual meet at Sedalia on July 3 and 4, and Chief Consul Brewster has accepted the invitation. The meet promises to be a big success, and as soon as the programme is arranged the readers of this paper will be notified. Sedalia is surrounded by a fine riding district, has a good race track, is centrally located, and the low rates which are usually made by railroad lines on the national holiday will no doubt insure a large attendance. Arrangements will be made to entertain 200 wheelmen, and fully that number is expected to attend.

"JONAH'S"

JOTTINGS.

P. F. G. Brown very rightly had no complaints to make to me of his disqualification at the Harvard races the Saturday before. He acknowledged that the rules should be lived up to, and only regretted that his pusher-off should have been so eager to do him a favor as to step over the line in the start. He said he had heard from the management that a consolation prize would be sent him. He was loud in his praise of Kenneth Brown's protest against taking a prize he had won only technically.

A dispute of the selection of a road engineer is the only thing that stands in the way of an immediate beginning of the construction of the great system of Union County macadam roads, of which I noted some weeks ago. The delay from this cause cannot, however, be a long one.

In the recent club handicap games of the N. J. A. C., two well-known bicyclers tried their luck at field sports with success. Baggott was second in the mile walk and Bowman carried off the mile run. Bowman's cross-country running during the winter put him in fine physical trim early in the season, as his race at Staten Island on Saturday showed. He says he does not find that running interferes with his bicycle speed at all.

The mile and a half and three mile open handicaps and the mile club championships at the N. J. A. C. games, on Decoration Day, will bring out the pick of the track flyers. This is the only athletic club that offers special advantages to bicyclers. A big bicycle meet is contemplated in the fall.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

My fair confrere, Helen Gray, tells us in the last issue of the Bicycling World that a Philadelphia friend writes her of the first ladies' run of the Philadelphia Club, held on Centennial Day. Helen's friend drew largely on her imagination, unless Miss Grey's glasses were so poor as to read "Philadelphia" for "Pennsylvania." It was the first ladies' run of the latter club, the Philadelphia having held regular runs for some time, and was reported in my notes of issue to May.

"Argus," my friend, I shall certainly have to warm things for you, if you don't quit your pleasant allusions to me. The "Stroller," I see, works in a dig now and then.

At the sports of the fourth annual field meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of Pennsylvania, held on the University grounds, Saturday afternoon, the two-mile bicycle race was won by C. B. Keen, U. of P., in 6.15, with H. B. Huelings, Swarthmore, second, 6.17 3-5, and H. V. Register, U. of P., third.

Thirty-one members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club joined in the moonlight run last Thursday evening. Leaving the club house at half past seven, they rode up the River Drive of the East Park, via Nicetown Lane, to Tioga, where they were the guests of First Lieutenant, Mr. Charles L. Leisen, who entertained them handsomely. A right good time was had by all, and when the party returned, by way of Diamond street, the sight was a pretty one, with the illuminated wheels in columns of twos and fours, attracting much attention from the spectators along the route.

So far nothing has been done by the Associated Cycling Clubs in regard to an inter-club run on Decoration Day. A meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at the Pennsylvania Club house, and then we shall know what we shall know. It is to be hoped that some suitable demonstration will be decided on. Such a move would be immensely popular with the rank and file, and would prove of benefit from a merely selfish point of view, by showing outsiders something of the numbers and power of the clubs. I am told that one of the clubs has decidedly refused to countenance anything of the sort. If so, I can only say that it is an extremely short-sighted policy for them to pursue, and it is to be hoped that they will reconsider their decision.

No word of the Pennsylvania Road Book, although it was definitely promised by the first of May. The time to mince matters on this unfortunate subject has long gone by, and it is now in order for the committee to simply insist upon the production of that book, or abolish the contract. The book was originally promised for last year, and the funds have been in the treasury for that length of time, and yet here the riding season is full upon us again and no sign of the road book. Gentlemen of the Committee, I but voice the sentiments of every member of this division when I say ACT!

Several accidents occurred last week, principally through neglect of the important point of keeping the machine under control on down grades. A safety rider coasted Devon Hill at full speed, and striking the turn at the bottom was thrown violently against the railroad bridge. A couple on a tandem trike let the machine get away on another hill, and as it upset they performed the feat of standing on their heads in great shape. All escaped with cuts and bruises, fortunately. Mr. A. Kohler, of the Pennsylvania Club, took a header over a dog, and cut his hand badly, but the dog was somewhat damaged, judging from his yells.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Mr. H. G. Priest returned from Assiniboine, Canada, full of enthusiasm for that section of this Continent and badly inoculated with the land fever. Mr. Priest has only been in this country some two months, but during his stay here he has made many warm friends, the editor of this paper being among those who claim that honor and pleasure. We hope to renew the acquaintance thus formed in the fall, at which time we trust Mr. Priest will again visit us.

A HAGERSTOWN special edition of this paper will be issued.

IF any of the cyclers who were in the party that was assaulted by a driver, on Palisade avenue, Englewood, N. J., Sunday, May 12th, wish to secure a disinterested witness they can do so by addressing Jas. F. Kinney, Cresskill, N. J.

THE annual meet of the C. W. A. will be held at St. Catherine, Ont., July 1 and 2.

WE had the pleasure of waving the last farewell to the Elwell party from the deck of our canoe, off the East Boston Flats. The quantity of our wave was not much, but our heart was in it, and the quality made up for the lack of volume.

MASSACHUSETTS Division spring meet June 17; place, Squantum, Mass.

FRANK VAN BUREN, son of Gen. Daniel T. Van Buren, died at his home in Ninth avenue, Plainfield, lately, of injuries received by being thrown from his horse. He was in his twenty-first year, and was taking a special course at Rutgers College to prepare him for electrical construction work. He was also an enthusiastic wheelman. His father is a graduate of West Point, who served in the late war and in the Mexican war.

W. J. CORCORAN, the well-known cyclist trainer, will locate in New York, after May 30, and any wheelmen desiring the aid of a first-class trainer will do well to address Mr. Corcoran, care of the WORLD.

F. A. CLARK, '91, of Yale, beat the college record by nineteen seconds.

MR. JOSEPH H. AMBRUSTER, of St. Louis, Mo., has started on a cycle from that city to Denver, Col., a distance of some 1000 miles. Through some parts of the country the cycle has never been seen, and the questions put to Mr. Ambruster are decidedly amusing.

THE name of J. Purvis-Bruce appears in the list of entries to the Irvington-Milburn race, on Decoration Day, but Mr. Bruce writes and says he is in no condition for road racing, and consequently will not appear as a contestant in that event.

THE Boston Press Bi. Club will go on a run to Wakefield next Sunday, starting from Copley Square at 9.30 A. M.

SQUANTUM is to be the place of spring meeting for the Massachusetts Division, and the date is June 17th.

THE Huntington, L. I., Bi. Club will hold a race meeting at Long Island Live Stock Fair A. Grounds, Huntington, L. I., on June 12th. The events are: First, half-mile dash (scratch), first prize gold medal, second silver medal: second, one-mile handicap, first prize gold medal, second silver medal; third, two-mile handicap, first prize gold medal, second silver medal; fourth, one-mile scratch, first prize gold medal, second silver medal. Entrance free.

THE Hartford Wheel Club had an opening of their new club rooms Friday evening. We are sorry we could not accept the kind invitation to be present on this occasion. A folding glass partition has been placed across the long club rooms, so that the billiard and pool rooms can be entirely shut off from the room facing the street; or all thrown together as the case requires. The front room has been newly furnished with lambrequins, a new carpet, and all the rooms freshly kalsomined and papered. Electric lights have also been put in. The managers of the ball team of the Hartford Wheel Club, Wethersfield Cycle Club, Columbia Cycle Club and East Hartford Wheel Club have formed a base ball league called the Hartford County Cycle Base Ball League. The league series will open on Decoration Day, when the Hartford Wheel Club will go to East Hartford, and the Columbia Cycle Club will play at Wethersfield.

THE Mormons will have a quarter-mile race track at Salt Lake City.

AT the conclusion of the fourth day's professional race in Chicago last week, Knapp fainted from exhaustion. That does not smack of hippodroming!

THE North Adams (Mass.) Bi. Club will hold a tournament May 30.

ERRATUM.—In our last issue we printed an article on the Providence Tournament. In it, it stated that the New York and New England Railroad would carry passengers to and from "this City" and into the grounds for 50 cents. "This City" should read to and from Providence and into the grounds.

THE steam tandem bicycle which has been creating such interest in Brooklyn N. Y., will be sent to the Paris Exposition.

H. L. KINGSLAND, of Baltimore, rather knocked himself out of his good chance to show up a strong winner at Chicago, by his bad fall which he took Wednesday night.

THE Atalanta Wheelmen of Newark, N. J., formally opened their club house last week. The members of the club are considering the question of admitting lady cyclists to membership. They are unanimously in favor of according to the fair athletes the privileges of the club house, but it will be necessary to amend the constitution of the club before this favor can be granted. That the constitution will be so amended is said to be a foregone conclusion. Ladies will be admitted only as honorary members, however, and will have no voice in the proceedings of the meetings.

A CURIOUS case is pending in the Superior Court of Maine which will establish the liability of a cyclist who through taking a header frightened some valuable horses and caused damages to both animals and carriage. At last account the case was before the jury, and no verdict.

THREE young ladies of Little Rock, Ark., by name Jennie Davidson, Edith Bernard and Pattie Dye, none of whom are more than twelve years of age, took a twenty-mile ride the other day over some picturesque roads. This combination of distance, sex and age will stand on record, we think.

A. NIGHTINGALE, the professional, is in trouble. He stole a lamp from his employer, Whitten & Co., of Lynn, and also on the charge of selling leased property to the amount of some $80. The case is yet on trial.

MR. C. R. HANSON, of Gloucester, Mass., asks: "Can some of your readers tell me in the columns of the BICYCLING WORLD if it would be advisable to go there for a trip of ten or twelve days on the wheel? Also what are the custom house regulations on bringing bicycles into that province?"

MRS. FLORINE THAYER MCCRAY, who is one of Harriet Beecher Stowe's biographers, and whose temperance novel, "Environment," made a decided impression in literary circles a couple of years ago, believes that the new tandem bicycle will solve the problems of wheeling so far as women are concerned. Mrs. McCray is an enthusiastic tricycler, and has ridden over a good deal of Europe and America in company with her brother, whose trip across the continent was described in book form some little time ago.

THE next joint run of the Iowa Club and the Boston Bicycle Club will be on May 30, to the fishing box of President Everett, on Weymouth River. The party will leave 14 Boylston street, sharp 9 A. M.

H. JENKINS and A. Rhodes, two ambitious youths, of Hyde Park, Mass., will attempt to ride from that place to Portland, Me., on Decoration Day in 12 hours. The distance is 140 miles.

ROCHESTER has started a young ladies tricycle club: Julia Langie, President: Rebecca Lindner, Vice President: Clara Bier, Treasurer and Mazie Gardon, Secretary.

A TRIANGLE race will be given by the Kings County Wheelmen at their race meet to be held June 28, at Washington Park. It will be a tricycle rider to go a distance of 5 miles, a runner 3 miles and a walker 2 miles, the man finishing the race first to win.

MR. C. C. CANDY is in the East at the present time. He called on us the other day but unfortunately we were out. He left for the Overman Factory at Chicopee at which place he will linger for a short time.

THE second union run for wheelmen of Boston and vicinity scored another success for the management, fully 150 wheelmen assembling at Bailey's for feed. Captains Cubberly and Robinson had the affair in charge. On the return trip some of the schorchers let loose and arrived at the Reservoir on some 30 minutes before the men who rode more moderately.

THERE were two tracks used at the Chicago tournament inside the other, the inner one being for the professional contestants, and the other for the amateur riders. At each end of both tracks is a curved incline, with a rise of three feet at the back. The incline is made of planed boards and carefully matched.

THE Meriden, Ct., Club are working hard to secure a track for racing purposes. The estimated cost is about $1500.

ANOTHER PREMIER POINTER.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.,

MR. L. JOHNSON:

Dear Sir—The Premier Tandem Safety arrived all O. K., as I wished it. Mr. Arnold and I have given it a good trial to-day, and I must say it is far ahead of the ——, much easier running and by far more still. I have had some parties riding it to-day that have been riding the ——; they all pronounce my Tandem by far the best and most speedy. The —— Tandem's "name is mud" here, for I know any one that is a practical wheelman, cannot help but admit that the Premier is by far the best.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[ALL communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—ED.]

If I can judge by my letter file, the dress question is the all important one to beginners in cycling. I think I get a dozen letters a week from ladies, who, having decided to ride, wish to know how to dress becomingly and in a way to pursue the sport to the best advantage. Here are a few extracts taken from letters that I have received:

Mrs. B. writes: "My costume was made by one of the large dry goods houses in Boston. After consulting friends I determined to try the divided skirt. The dressmaker had never made nor seen anything of the kind, but she undertook to make one and succeeded most admirably. It is made of ladies' cloth, and it gives me freedom of movement beyond anything that I have ever tried. I wear a jersey waist, no skirts, jersey underwear, no corsets, low shoes. The skirt falls together when one is dismounted, and none but a very close observer would notice that I had on other than the regulation skirt."

Mrs. H. prefers alpaca beyond anything she has tried for material. "It can be weighted with a few shot at the bottom if it proves too 'blowy' (a new word but a very expressive one). It does not cling and it sheds the dust." No skirts; all flannel underneath.

Danish cloth, white for the waist, blouse pattern, and dark material for the skirt is the wear advocated by Miss S.; jersey underwear, low shoes. Trim the skirt a little at the top if you prefer, or make a small overskirt that you can carry in a bag on the wheel when riding, and wear when off the wheel.

One lady writes me to use my influence to banish the corset. Gladly will I do so. I haven't worn the abomination for—excuse me, a great many years.

All who have written, unite for the low shoe in preference to the boot, and all who have tried them speak for the jersey underwear. In the matter of headgear there are as many minds as writers. Wear the hat that most becomes you is all that can be said in this regard, and if it be not too large to catch the wind, nor too devoid of rim to give you grateful shade, it will serve you well.

There are those who can wear white and keep it immaculate. I cannot. Let those who can do so, by all means adopt this color. It is cooler, and a lady looks never so well a-wheel as when so clad.

Can I not have some more hints. Believe me, this is missionary work that is effective, for our sisters in their novitiate are eagerly looking for good counsel.

From Salt Lake City comes this suggestion:

Helen Grey—Let me suggest for the Tandem Bicycle the name Dicycle or Diacycle. If that strikes you as being too near like Bicycle, say we make it Duocycle. Either of these give a proper root to the word and are certainly more euphonious than "tanbike" or "Tee Bee" or "Bicyclope." Let us be right before we go ahead."

And from Baltimore comes this: "Will you allow a male man to suggest a title for the 'Tan-Bike?' If you will, I would offer 'Ducycle,' 'Duoclet' or 'Tocycle.'"

The Misses Kirkwood, of Maplewood, have procured a safety wheel, and have already taken several runs on it. I expect to hear good reports of Miss Maggie, for, having seen how hard and how far she could ride with her sister on a two-hundred-pound tandem, I can believe that she can lead some of the gentlemen a good race on the light bicycle.

Thanks to "Pioneer" for her letter. I enjoyed the reading of it, but since she sent it in duplicate to another journal, and that journal has used it, she can hardly expect to see it here.

HELEN GREY.

SAFETY AND ORDINARY.

Editor Bicycling World: I wish to find out why safeties are barred out of open bicycle races. Are they not bicycles? I think a bicycle is a machine with two wheels, carrying one rider, and think it should have as much right to race against any other machines as the others have against each other. Why not bar a Star, or a Kangaroo or a Springfield Roadster?

I have heard that one reason of the safety being barred out of races with ordinaries, was because they could not be ridden as straight. I think myself that it is because the safety is a faster machine. I claim that a safety can be ridden fast; straighter and steadier than an ordinary or a Star. I am a Star rider myself but I can and will, if anyone takes me up, ride a safety, with my hands tied behind my back, a mile under three minutes. That should be a slight proof that the safety will run steady.

The safety rider will not take a header on the track from slipping a pedal, and endanger the necks of half a dozen racing men. Then again, if another rider goes down in front of a safety, the safety stands five times as good chance to go around the fallen man than he would on any other machine. The rules partly make up with the barred out safeties by having safety races, but when it comes to that, why not have "ordinary" races, "Star" races, "Springfield Roadster" races, "Kangaroo" races, etc., all exclusive. Some may think I write this because I race on a safety, but it is not so, for I race on a Star. But I believe in justice, and would like to see justice done every racing man, no matter what he rides. Hoping the above may do some good, I am

Yours truly, L. A. W. 17,291.

THE TALE OF A SKULL.

A STORY OF THE QUATIER LATIN OF PARIS.

In Three Chapters.

BY JAS. PERVIS-BRUCE.

(Concluded.)

"Yesterday when this man, who was scuffling with men, when I caused myself to be shot with the weapon I had attempted to destroy him with, addressed and called me by name and mentioned the name of my murdered mistress, Marie Fouchette, I thought he was an officer of the law and had come to arrest me. I shot at him, missed him, and we clinched, with the result that I am here lying at the point of death. His finger was on the trigger of the pistol, when I suddenly tugged the barrel and by the action shot myself.

The knife with which I stabbed Marie is in my pocket. A small piece of the point is broken off.

The cat's-eye and pearl ring on my finger is one which Marie gave me. It was her mother's. I can say no more; I am faint and dying."

He was sworn by the priest, and as he called for a glass of water he fell back in the bed, with already glazing eyes, to rise no more. Thus ended Henry Lawson Bouverie, assasin of Marie Fouchette.

I was closely examined by the authorities as to how I came to know of the man or of his mistress, and though they never seemed quite satisfied with my story about the apparition, still the evidence of my friend (and we were both well known to the police in Paris as reputable characters) and the production of the small piece of knife blade, which fitted accurately the large blade found in Bouverie's pocket, together with the remarkable nature of the whole story, seemed to be sufficient to clear my name from any attempt to keep a crime from the knowledge of the proper authorities.

Under the circumstances I have given, what man would not have made such statements as I made to police authorities, learned by such miraculous means?

There was the testimony of my friend Vandyke-Brown, as to how I got the skull from him: and the skull upon being dug by the police from the garden back of the studio was found to have the mark I described behind the left ear. Vandyke-Brown's testimony was substantiated by his picture of "Wild Bees in a Human Skull," which was the property of a dealer in town, and the picture was produced as evidence. The skull was the counterpart in shape, though not now in color.

As it was the case was so marvellous that it created no end of attention.

Vandyke and I, not content to let the matter drop, found the auctioneer who had put the student's belongings (including the skull) under the hammer.

The student was with some difficulty traced to a small provincial town, where he had commenced a small medical practice. "Van" and I took a run down there one day, and this is the story of the medical student:

"In the spring of 1874 I attended a dissecting class in Paris, and had received from the class (for anatomical purposes) the head of a young woman (unknown), who had been found a few days previously in the Seine. The body had been sent from the police morgue to the "class," and I took home the head to study and articulate.

"When I went to London to finish my studies, I sold it, along with other medical properties, for which I no longer had any need. I got five or six francs for it, I think."

The story fitted nicely, and to crown all, a dentist who had been reading the accounts in the daily papers with great interest, called at "Vandyke Brown's" studio one day, and asked to see the skull. Experts had spoken in the paper of the curious filling of the teeth which was specified in technical dental terms. "My God!" he fairly shrieked, as he opened the jaws of the skull and looked at the molar with its gold filling. He rushed out of the studio, dropping the skull, which fell with a horrid rattle on the oak floor. "The devil!" said "Van," as he placed the skull on the mantel.

Send to WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO., Springfield, Mass., for Catalogue.

In an hour the dentist rushed up the stair with a book under his arm. With his finger on an entry, he showed Van and I the words in French:

MARIE FOUCHETTE.

Dec. 10th, 1873—To filling two teeth:
First molar, under, - - - 6 fcs
Canine, right, - - - - 6 fcs
Twelve francs.

(Note) Charge to Henry Lawson Bouverie, 9 Rue du Commerce.

This, certainly, was a wonderful and unlooked-for piece of evidence, but it certainly helped to clear up the mystery.

The only thing I could never understand, was the appearance before me in my bed on that memorable night, of Marie Fouchette in the spirit as she must undoubtedly have appeared in the flesh: also how she got out of my leather hat box without unbuckling the strap, or how she got back and buckled it after her. I never knew which way it was. I have still my penchant for the design of a skull, but my hat box shall never receive a similar occupant.

THE MEET AT HAGERSTOWN.

Editor Bicycling World: From a cursory glance at some of the work of a few correspondents of wheel papers, who sign various nom de plumes, like "Jassax" and all that sort of thing, it is apparent that for some occult reason they are attempting to give the Hagerstown meet a black eye, or else their information is at fault. There is no use, the real wheelmen—the road riders—are coming to the tenth annual meet. They are the men who want a meet on a wheelman's basis, and not on that of a mischievous literary dude. The every-day entertainments of the stereotyped meet in a large city can be had at home, but the unique features to be enjoyed at the meet in the mountain city of Hagerstown "catches" them. The hypercritics call it a "hamlet." It is a city of about 20,000 population, with the enterprise and ambitions edifices of one of half a million; has about thirty miles of roller-made street surfaces, on which you can mount your wheel at the doors of the hotels and enjoy, and is of no insignificant commercial importance. They call it "hot" up there. It is not so hot in the first part of July as Boston, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore, in fact it is one of the resorts for people of larger cities to escape the heat in their own. The roads are superb, with a variety of choice in grade from dead level to hilly or mountainous, and with smooth coasts of from a few yards to several miles. These roads radiate in all directions, up and down valley, across the mountains, over level, hill and dale, and wherever you go, whether in the city, into the surrounding country or across the mountains, the road bed is that same hard, smooth, limestone surface, and leads you through scenes of entrancing beauty and battle-fields of world-wide fame. Do you want to follow the immortal "Sheridan's ride" to "Winchester twenty miles away?" Well, you can do it over the smoothest speed inspiring pike you ever saw, while the grand mountains towering above you as you ride in the valley, the odors from the blooming locust trees standing sentinel in picket line along the road, and the charming sights that greet the eye on every hand all combine in creating a variety of pleasant sensations that pen is powerless to faithfully describe. Do you want to ride to the battle-fields of Gettysburg, Antietam, South Mountain, Cedar Creek, and many of lesser note? The finest stretch of roads in the country for wheelmen leads you through them. Do you wish to visit the renowned city of Frederick, that inspired Whittier to write of grand old Barbara Fretchie, when she defied that great chieftain, Stonewall Jackson, and his following cohorts with:

"'Shoot, if you will, this old grey head—
But spare your country's flag,' she said."?

Well, you can do so over a sandpapered pike that crosses two mountains and two valleys and shows you such sights as will dwell in memory to your last days, and all a-wheel for a four hours' slow ride, although tourists usually take a day, owing to time lost in enjoying the fine views. But what is the use. The road books, the tales of tourists, the pens of contributors to magazines and wheel papers have all united in spreading the fame of the Shenandoah Valley riding district, and the real wheelman thirsts for a taste of its pleasures. The tenth annual meet is to be in this favored spot, and the riders are coming to it. The wisdom of President Luscomb and the Executive Committee in selecting it will be amply vindicated in a short time by all the lucky participants in the meet, and then perhaps the carping hypercritics and chronic kickers will crawl into their holes and die while reflecting on the fact that it would have been better to have had some knowledge of the subject they were writing about.

You will soon be furnished with an illustrated article on the Hagerstown meet that will give more elaborate information.

Respectfully and truly yours. ALBERT MOTT.
Chief Consul Maryland Division.

THE MEET OF 1889.

At this time when much is being said and written, pro and con, relative to the holding of the League meet of 1889, at Hagerstown, Md., the working members of the Maryland Division would respectfully state unofficially that the fiat has gone forth, the meet will be held and will be a thorough success. To our brethren of the wheel we extend a most cordial invitation. While we boast of no extravagant entertainment, we assure all who come a pleasant visit, most delightful riding, and such entertainment as our most earnest endeavors can provide under the circumstances.

If our good will and hospitable endeavor can make the memory of your visit a pleasant one, it shall be yours. To the croakers we would say: "You, too, are welcome, but don't imagine that your absence will be a national calamity, or that we will bring you here by legal process." We desire to delude no one with extravagant tales, but we place our reputation beside the statements that the region is magnificent for wheelmen, the people hospitable, the accommodations ample and the weather—what God will give us.

Hagerstown, Md. "ONE OF THE WORKERS."

The following is a list of the four principal hotels which are on the American plan. The Female Seminary building is to be run as a hotel, which I think for any persons bringing their wives along, will be a pleasant place to hang out. Besides these hotels there are numerous private boarding houses, and the Hagerstown Club feel confident that they can accommodate all who come:

Name.	Accom'date.	Reduct'n rate.
Hamilton, - - -	250	$2.00 and 2.50
Baldwin, - - - -	250	2.00 " 2.50
City, - - - - -	150	1.50
Franklin, - - - -	200	1.50
Seminary, - - -	150	2.00

The other hotels which are on the American plan, are:

Central House, - - - -	75	1.00
Mansion House, - - - -	75	1.00

Becler House, - - - -	30	1.00
Alleghany House, - - - -	30	1.00
Hoover House, - - - -	30	1.00

Of course these figures can be enlarged in case of necessity, as all can get outside rooms.

The Sunday Herald, which deserves much credit for the lively interest taken lately in cycling matters, says: "During the continuance of the meet at Hagerstown, there will be several informal gatherings for the discussion of various subjects. These, with the committees appointed on them by President Luscomb, are: 'Rights and Privileges of Wheelmen,' Messrs. Berry of Boston, Potter of Brooklyn, and John D. Lord, Jr., and Dr. Charles E. Sadtler of Baltimore; 'Improvement of Highways and Condition of Roads,' Messrs. Butler of Buffalo, Share of Brooklyn, and James B. Reed and A. E. Mealy of Baltimore; 'Racing and its Rules,' Messrs. Davol of Rhode Island, Atwater of Washington, Hodgson of New Orleans, S. T. Clark of Baltimore, and H. B. Irwin of Hagerstown; 'Constitution and By-Laws, the Scope and Development of the L. A. W. and the Advantages of League Clubs,' Messrs. Emery of Boston, Shriver of New York, and E. F. Le Cato, J. Kemp Bartlett, Jr., and G. W. H. Carr of Baltimore; 'Railroads and Transportation,' Messrs. W. M. Brewster of St. Louis, Joseph T. Chism of Baltimore, and Scott Bomberger of Hagerstown; 'Wheels and Their Appurtenances from the Practical Rider's Standpoint,' Messrs. George R. NOTES.

The last day's racing was very interesting and exciting. The professionals were started at 2.30 by S. B. Miles on their last 8 hour's work, and shortly after the start Reading's wheel slipped at the turn on the South-east corner of the track, the result being that the soldier and Prince were down together. Reading was first to remount, and the delay gave Morgan and Reading the chance, which was quickly seized, of recovering the lap they were in arrear of Prince. Encouraged by the presence and applause of the thousands of spectators, Reading, at about 9 o'clock, shot away to gain the lap which Knapp had previously stolen, and despite desperate efforts on the part of his opponents, he not only gained the lap but added another to it, thus placing him one lap ahead of Knapp and two of Morgan and Prince. This he accomplished in spite of a nasty fall he had before gaining the first lap. All this time Morgan was trying to get out and get on terms with Knapp, but Prince and Knapp appeared to have resolved that he should not get through, and he was effectually shut in and had to put up with the luck. The finish was a fine one, Knapp, Morgan and Prince coming into the stretch for home in a bunch, but Morgan's ill luck again attended him and he was shut out by Knapp, the result being that Prince secured third place by two inches.

The amateur events were even more exciting than the professional race, and partisanship ran high—friends, of both the sexes, yelled themselves black in the face cheering their favorites. The results are given elsewhere, and it will be seen the races were peculiarly close and fought out with something like desperation.

The tournament altogether has been a huge success, nothing in the shape of protesting has occurred to mar good feeling, and although there have been a few falls, as a matter of course, no one to-day is the worse for them.

Not the least pleasant part of the proceedings was a "little supper," which was given by Host Gahill of the Chicago Cafe, to a few gentlemen connected with the tournament, at the conclusion of the races. Messrs. Reading, Morgan, S. A. Miles, (manager of the tournament), Prince, Knapp, Harding, S. B. Miles, Ned Oliver and about a score others discussed a splendid meal, fluid in the form of champagne of the best brand washing down the solids. The healths of the winners, manager, the press, the host, etc., were drank, and the boys had a most refreshing and pleasant time.

Sam Miles is now known as the "Ducker of the West."

The bicycle exhibit attracted great attention. Every manufacturer and dealer was represented.

Considering the smallness of the track, very few falls were experienced, and none that produced serious results.

The attendance was immense each day, the thousands being represented by double figures.

There was ugly feeling between the pros. on the last day, and charges of foul play were thrown back and forth between the sympathisers of the different men ad lib. Excitement ran high at times, and groans, hisses and yells made a perfect Bedlam of the place.

Sam Miles is happy over the results of the six-days' racing. There is no doubt the enterprising manager is many dollars in pocket.

MASSACHUSETTS DIVISION SPRING MEET.

THE committee appointed to perfect arrangements for the annual spring meet of the Massachusetts Division, L. A. W., has decided to hold this year's meet on June 17, at Squantum, which estate has been placed at its disposal by its owners, President Hodges and Paul Butler of the Boston Bicycle Club. The wheelmen and clubs participating in this run will rendezvous in Copley square at 10 A. M., and 30 minutes later will begin the ride of seven miles to Squantum, where every facility for racing, boating, bathing, bowling and ball playing will be offered the wheelmen. The committee respectfully request that the captains of the different clubs in this state will call runs for the Seventeenth of June, in accordance with this programme. It is intended to have two races, one for ordinaries and the other for safeties, to the winners of which medals will be awarded.

LUMSDEN WINS RACE NO. 1.

CHICAGO is happy and Lumsden is dear in the hearts of all Chicago Cyclists, all because he has met and vanquished St. Louis champion in the first of the series. Still there are two more races and St. Louis is not entirely crushed.

Cheltenham Beach track had only about 350 spectators to witness the first of the series of three races between Percy Stone of St. Louis and A. E. Lumsden of Chicago. The match has created the greatest interest among the cyclists of both cities.

The first race was for a mile and was a loafing match for three laps but as the bell rang for the last lap the men got down to business and side by side they flew round until the turn home was reached, then Lumsden put in his effort and got home four yards ahead of Stone, in the slow time of 3.0. 4-5.

McDANIEL-KOLB.

Editor Bicycling World: In reference to Ariel's letter regarding the road race between Mr. McDaniel and L. J. Kolb I really think he is far from the point, as I am responsible for circulating the report of the race in the Philadelphia papers, Monday, May 13, and I had published what I thought was just as truthful as Ariel's report, as the challenge was sent by Mr. Kolb through J. A. Wells, editor of the American Athlete, and a copy of the challenge was read to me as follows, as near as I can remember:

Mr. Wells: Dear Sir—I hereby challenge Mr. McDaniel to a road race from 52d street to 50 yards this side of Railroad Bridge at foot of Devon Hill, on the Lancaster Pike. Race to take place Sunday, May 12.

As there is a little rivalry between the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club and the South End Wheelmen as regards road scorchers I have selected Mr. McDaniel as the best man, as I wish to uphold the South End. Now if there was any alterations made I was not aware of it and if any one that saw the report in the papers of the 13 inst. will see that there was not much untruthfulness in it, and as I cannot see what benefit Mr. Kolb had to race Mr. McDaniel outside of club rivalry between the clubs. Another thing Ariel did not like the report that Kolb won easily, well he did, if he was played out as they say he was. He does not profess to be a road rider like McDaniel, who is nearly always in all the road races going on and trying for them. Ariel says Merrihew beat Kolb, so he did. But Ariel does not mention who beat Merrihew and as Kolb was not racing Merrihew, I really think that it had nothing to do with the race. It is to be hoped after a while that the cycling public will know the true facts of the race as there was so much untruthfulness at first. Hoping that I have not taken up too much of your valuable space. I remain, yours truly, L. A. W. 16880.

THE TWENTY-FIVE-MILE HANDICAP RACE.

THE entries are in, forty-nine in all, for the great Milburn-Irvington handicap road race, on Decoration Day, and handicappers are busy verifying the records submitted and hustling for information about the "unknowns," of whom at first flush there appear to be about twenty. The utmost care will be taken that no "sleepers" shall run away with the race. In such handicapping of course there are great difficulties, as the variations in course and all the many conditions that effect time on bicycles so materially, must form very important factors in the calculation of allowances. Let the public and the donors of the prizes rest assured that the winners will have to ride well and all the way out to get there. A lot of nonsense is going the rounds to the purport that certain interests will be favored in the handicap. It would be an insult to the integrity of these old sportsmen, who are to do the handicapping. Assuming these men capable of carrying out any such piece of actual robbery, and supposing their fraudulent design to meet with success, that the alleged interest should lead all the others at the finish, what then? Does the winning of a handicap by reason of an allowance show anything? Is not the actual test, if it be the machines and not the men that make the records, the actual times made, which can be computed with a few strokes of the pencil? Are there not prizes for the fastest actual times as well as for the men that cross the line first? True wheelmen, sportsmen and gentlemen should frown down upon such unjust and unfounded talk.

Here are the entries, and what a gallant lot they are: Baggot, Bowman and Gubleman, from the N. J. A. C.; H. and T. Hall, Wilson, Beasley, King, Morehouse, Bensinger, C. and W. Murphy, Hesse and Steves, K. C. W.; W. I. Wilhelm, Wilkesbarre; W. and E. Van Wagoner, Newport; Merrihew, McDaniels, Dampman, Jeffries, Pyle, Ludwig, Lapland, C. and F. Elliott and Gregg, Wilmington B. C.; Schumacher and Wise, L. I. W.; W. Banker, Pittsburg; Wells and Taxis, Philadelphia; Coningsby, Waters, Class and Borland, Brooklyn B. C.; Miller and Battis, Prospect Harriers; Boegler and Brun, New York City; Robertson, H. C. W.; Kuhney, Talcotville, Conn.; Miller, Riverside Wheelmen; Julliffe, Brooklyn; Quathrop, Q. C. W.; Williams, Summit; and Lincoln, Flushing.

The race will start promptly at eleven o'clock and the late comers will be left as mere on-lookers. Many other athletic events are scheduled for the afternoon, and all hands are promised a finish in time to reach them.

RACING AT STATEN ISLAND, N. Y.

THE two mile handicap at the S. I. A. C. games on Saturday was a beauty. On the last lap F. G. Brown, 155 yards rushed things and won handily by five yards from S. B. Bowman, 160 yards, who came through gamely in the homestretch. D. Oakes, 225 yards, was third. Among the other starters were: R. W. Steves, 185 W. Schumacher, 150 yards, F. A. Clark, 100 yards, and A. F. Kountze and W. W. Weare, 100 yards each. The time was 5.46 2-5, very good for a cinder track and the roadsters ridden by the first and second men. JONAH.

ROAD RACING AT TACOMA, W. T.

ON May the 12th the twenty-mile road race took place at Tacoma, W. T., in the presence of over 3000 spectators. The weather was grand; the course was five miles out and back over the prairie road, thus making the start, the half way and the finish all at one spot.

At 3.47 the six men started out, and in the following order they reached the five-mile point: Keen, McCoy, Wilson, Kane, Thompson, Halsted; time, 18.10.

At the ten-mile point, McCoy had a lead of a quarter of a mile, and then bunched came in order, Thompson, Keen, Halsted. Wilson stopped after the five-mile turn, as his bearing tightened up and the wheel wouldn't "go wound." Time for ten miles, 42m.

McCoy had run himself out and during the last five miles Halsted overhauled him and went to the front on a spurt at the finish Thompson was also right up front, and finished second; McCoy third; Keen, fourth, 1.30 later. Time for twenty miles, 1h. 26m.

THE PROVIDENCE TOURNAMENT.

EVERYBODY interested in gentlemen sports is looking forward to the big athletic tournament at Narragansett Park Memorial Day, under the auspices of the Rhode Island Wheelmen. An afternoon of first-class sport is promised, with plenty of variety about it. The cycle events will be of prime interest, and all the cracks in New England will participate for the elegant medals and other trophies which the committee offers. For further particulars see advertisement on page 86

KANSAS DIVISION MEET.

THE Kansas Division Meet will take place at Ottawa, Kan., June 4 and 5. The race programme consists of twenty events, to be run on the 5th and 6th, and includes two state championships, and the half mile and ten mile national L. A. W. championships. Six hundred dollars will be given in prizes. The Ottawa wheelmen have secured the exclusive control of the park for the meet, and the track for the ten days previous.

USE A LANTERN.

Editor Bicycling World: Cannot something be done to prevent wheelmen from riding at night without a lantern? Last week I crossed Madison avenue at Twenty-seventh street, at about eight o'clock one evening, and had about reached the middle of the avenue, which is asphalt, when a wheelman shot past within a foot of me, at about a fifteen-mile gait. He, besides riding faster than the law allows, carried no lamp, neither did he use his bell or whistle (if he had one). A policeman remarked that if he could catch that fellow he would arrest him. I think it would have served him right if he had had a smashup, for the foolish acts of a few might cause laws to be made which would injure us all.

New York. Fraternally, L. A. W. 18,103.

HEAD GEAR.

Editor Bicycling World: I would like to hear from wheelmen through your columns regarding head wear for summer riding. Dealers offer us nothing but the sunstroke-inviting cap. Helmets are monopolized by minstrel and circus bill posters, so what shall we wear that will be comfortable and yet have about it an air of respectability? Fraternally, No. 1346.

[Why not a plain straw hat for summer riding?—ED.]

DON'T!!"

WHEELMEN who wish to retain peace of mind and rest for their souls, should never travel over the main road or pike (as it is called) between Allansville and Mill Creek, in Mifflin County, Pennsylvania. It was my misfortune to pass that way several days ago, and though I have toured in other states where there is supposed to be less intelligence and worse roads than in Pennsylvania, I cannot recall any leading thoroughfare so mean as the one referred to above. The most surprising feature of all is that for miles on either side are rich farms, and consequently rich farmers. Should it be the lot of this generation to see another war, I would be happy to have those Mifflin County farmers, whose will, were it exerted, could speedily effect improved highways, be placed in the front. I would hope further that the God of Love Beauty, Good Roads and Good Bridges would drop from the clouds men who would provide suitable road, not only for wheelmen but their horses and wagons. Wheelmen, should you ever travel south in Mifflin County as far as Allensville, don't go any further. Don't!

HAGERSTOWN TO BOSTON.

IF any of the Massachusetts Division desire to return from the Annual Meet by wheel, starting from Hagerstown July 5, they may communicate with F. L. Olmstead, Jr., Brookline, Mass.

ST. GEORGE'S ENGINEERING CO

Editor Bicycling World: The only firm in the United States to whom we supply our "New Rapid" cycles is the Clark Cycle Co., of Baltimore, Md., who in their turn have appointed agents throughout the States. We believe it is their intention to adopt the same principle of appointing agents and certifying them as we have done, and which we have found so beneficial in preventing our customers being imposed upon.

It may not be generally known that we make two grades of cycles; this we do, but the Clark Cycle Co. do not buy—neither have they ever bought—any of our second grade machines.

Our cycles are all fitted with "True Tangent wheels," of which in their present perfect form we are—we do not claim to be, but actually are—the inventors. We received a gold medal for the invention of the wheels, at the Inventions Exhibition, London, 1885.

Mr. S. T. Clark, Vice-President of the Clark Cycle Co., has just been in this country to make arrangements for more extensive shipments of New Rapids. * * * Yours truly,

ST. GEORGE'S ENGINEERING CO.

HOWARD A. SMITH & CO., Newark, N. J., show almost an entire new list of second-hand machines this week. See their advertisement in this issue.

HOWARD A. SMITH & CO., Newark, N. J., devote Friday afternoons to the ladies, Oraton Hall being reserved exclusively for their use to learn to ride on that afternoon.

NEXT week we shall print the catalogue of the White Cycle Co., in its entirety. Mr. J. Purvis-Bruce, "Jack," has been busily compiling same, and so we judge it will be remarkable for the departure from the usual and beaten path of catalogue compilers.

W. S. DOANE climbed Corey Hill, the 19th inst., three times in succession without a dismount, on a "Singer" Safety, geared to 57 inches, regular stock machine, 6 1-2 inch cranks, thus beating his own performance of last week. W. W. Stall, G. M. Worden and Asa Wendell witnessed the feat. A strong head wind was blowing at the time of the ascent.

THE New Mail Safety made quite a sensation at the Chicago show, being ridden on the track and around the sharp curves, hands off.

H. M. SABIN, formerly manager of the Rudge Agency, and late head salesman for the Pope Mfg. Co., has gone into partnership with A. Sidwell, and will continue the business recently started by Mr. Sidwell, at 152 Congress street, under the firm name of Sidwell & Sabin. They will handle new and second-hand wheels of reliable makers, beside doing a general repair business. Mr. Sidwell sailed for England on Saturday, May 18, from New York. He will be gone about six weeks, on business for the firm.

READING, the winner of the great six days' race at Chicago, rode an American Champion Wheel, manufactured by Gormully & Jeffery, of Chicago.

THE New Mail exhibit at Chicago was fine, showing both safeties and ordinaries, together with the showy frame containing in detail all the parts used in construction, handsomely nickeled. A crowd was constantly about this, which was very instructive and the only one of its kind.

MESSRS. S. & J. DAVIS, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

"The Coventry Machinists Co. report quite a little stir in the tricycle and tandem trade the last few weeks being quite a demand for their celebrated Marlboros."

Illinois Representative.

This is to certify that Edgar S. Barnes has been elected by the Capital City Cycling Club of Springfield, Ill., as club Representative.

E. S. SHERWOOD, President.

W. E. HESKLE, Secretary.

Transmission of Funds.

Does it not come within the province of the League to devise some scheme by which tourists may safely arrange for the transmission of their necessary funds to points enroute? In common with other tourists, the writer has felt the need of some scheme that will obviate the necessity for carrying a comparatively large sum of money through a strange country and into many wild and deserted places. My tours are generally taken in company with my sister and we are compelled to have, easily accessible, from $50 to $100. Postoffice Money Orders are not reliable owing to the undue caution exercised by the provincial P. M. A request from a stranger for cash for a draft or check naturally causes him to be looked upon with suspicion. Cannot the League devise some scheme to overcome this difficulty?

Yours, 103 S. W. L. WELCH.

Championships.

The Racing Board have voted to establish the one mile, two mile and three mile tandem safety L. A. W. Championships. CHAS. S. DAVOL,

Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

The two mile safety and one mile tandem safety, L. A. W. championships, are awarded the New York Division L. A. W., to be contested at their September Meet. CHAS. S. DAVOL,

Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

Immediate Attention!!

To the Consuls, Bicycle Dealers, Clubs and Membership at large of the New York State Division.

I call your attention to the following rule which was adopted at a meeting of the Passenger Agents of the Trunk Lines held in New York City, 9th

"For the transportation of Bicycles twenty-five cents for each 100 miles or fractional part thereof."

This is a matter which calls for immediate attention on our part, and as the best means of reaching the heart of the trouble I would advise that letters from the officers of your local clubs and others be sent at once to the General Passenger Agents of the line you patronize.

Showing by facts and figures the loss of local traffic that will result if this rule is enforced. That by preventing runs, interfering with race meets, local excursions of wheelmen, etc.,—they are doing an injustice to a large body of men who travel frequently during the summer time and at the same time depriving the roads of a source of revenue. Yours respectfully,

W. S. BULL, Chief Consul.

Rhode Island Vice Consul.

Acting under Section 5, Article III, of the League Bylaws, and Article X of the Division By-laws, I hereby appoint Mr. Geo. Lewis Cooke of Providence Vice Consul of the Rhode Island Division, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. H. L. Perkins. Mr. Cooke becomes a member of the Finance Committee by virtue of his office. Fraternally,

CHAS. S. DAVOL, R. I. Chief Consul.

Illinois Division.

Mr. John C. Mohr is hereby appointed local consul for Mattoon.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued seventeen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. CAPITAL CYCLE CO.

Washington, D. C.

A GREAT DEAL IS SAID ABOUT VIBRATION SPRINGS NOW-A-DAYS, and if they are properly and scientifically constructed they are a boon to the safety rider without doubt.

When they are placed upon or are a part of the front fork however, they are not a success, as to absorb vibration they must needs be so exceedingly pliable as to render it difficult to keep the feet upon the pedals on rough roads. And too, in sharp turns the front wheel is liable to be forced against the forks, while the easy steering is perceptibly affected in both cases.

The Vibration Spring in the patented frame of the

is where it belongs, under the seat, where is the greatest weight, and is one of the many original features which go to make this rear driver the only practical and thoroughly comfortable machine of its type on all sorts of American roads.

80-page Catalogue, on application.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO., - Chicago, Ill.

Largest American Manufacturers.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact, that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

HAMILTON COLLEGE.

CLINTON, N. Y., March 26, 1889.

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.,

Gentlemen—I would like to add my good word in regard to the Star to that of thousands of others. I have been a wheelman for five years, and have ridden quite a good deal, but have neve seen a bicycle I preferred to yours. I rode it to Boston (from Richfield Springs, N. Y.), the next year to Asbury Park, N. J., and last summer to Atlantic City. Last June I wanted to get from here to Rochester, a distance of 125 miles, and left here at 12, arriving in Rochester at 1 the next day, and I couldn't have done it on any other wheel, I am positive. My Special Star has gone between 5000 and 6000 miles with me, and nothing ever broke except a spring in the pedal, and on that occasion I rode twenty miles with the right pedal alone without inconvenience. Hoping that the Star will continue as popular in the future as in the past, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

Sirs—I ship you to-day the wheel of one of your Semi-Racers, which after running three seasons without loosening a spoke or tire, was unfortunately injured in a collision. Please put it in as good and true a shape as it was, as soon as possible. Yours truly,

NEW MAIL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 18th, 1889.

MR. H. W. HIGHAM, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that "The New Mail" Safety bicycle, which I recently purchased from you, as the representative of the Messrs. Wm. Read & Sons, Boston, is an unqualified success.

The amount of ground I have to cover, and the hills I have to climb, daily, demand a good, speedy, staunch and reliable machine. The "New Mail" has all these qualities in a marked degree: the brake action on the rear axle being especially commendable.

My brother wheelmen that I meet daily on the road, all express their admiration of my wheel, and I argue with all of them, "Why buy imported wheels, when Uncle Sam can turn out a steed like this?"

With all success to American industries, and especially to "The New Mail," I remain.

Yours truly,

C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

To our request to use the testimonial, we received the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20th, 1889.

MESSRS. READ & SONS, BOSTON:

Gentlemen—By all means use my letter of recommendation. Greater strength and force is added day by day the remarks therein.

I have not let up on my enthusiasm about your "New Mail Safety;" It only increases; no let up whatever, none.

Very truly yours,

C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

OUR APOLOGIES.

AS one good day has been cut out of our press work we are of course late. We however, give the bare results of some of the most important racing events which took place Decoration Day.

IN another column we print two sides of the story of the foul between Davis and Clarke at Berkley oval last Saturday. Which ever side we read, it is to us another proof of the danger of mixing the ordinary and the safety in races. We have heard loud complaints as to the "high-handedness of the Racing Board" in making a rule separating the machines, but we imagine that a few such fouls as that described by Messrs. Davis and Jonah will cause the disgruntled to think better of the rule.

HOSPITABLE Maryland again opens wide her doors and bids welcome to the members of the League, and that she will fully meet the expectations of the most exacting none of those will doubt who have already experienced the generous hospitality of the Maryland wheelmen. In this issue we print an exhaustive descriptive article on Hagerstown and the good things that are in store for the lucky member who attends the national meet next July. Every line is worth careful perusal, and if there are any who read same and do not have an itching desire to be present he is not the kind of nature we can sympathize with.

THIS week we print the full catalogue of the White Cycle Co. of Westboro, Mass. It certainly is unique as a literary production and when we add that the affair is from the pen of "Jack" we think we establish the statement that it is "unique" and worth perusal.

INVENTIVE GENIUSES.

INVENTORS, like poets, "are born, not made," but it seems to me that poets have the best of it. We poor "ordinaries" who are minus the divine spark must take the poets' pills nolens volens, while the not less gifted inventive genius must himself experiment and find what is good in his work before we accept it.

Who has attended a cycle show and not been surprised, not to say amused, at the ingenuity of the artisans? How much there is that never sees the light of a second day—or year, at the longest! In the cycling press we find some novelty every week. Many of them are more beautiful (and useful) in repose than in use. Even I have had ideas about anti-header, labor-saving, speed-increasing, weight-reducing and other devices, but I had not the temerity to experiment with them myself, nor the good fortune to find some innocent who was willing to risk his life and fortune in that direction.

A case recently came to my notice that called forth these thoughts. A rider of the ordinary, after several headers, conceived that the liability to such provoking and disagreeable falls would be considerably lessened if the backbone of his wheel were heavier. No sooner had this idea possessed him than he proceeded to fill the perch with the finest of shot, on top of which he poured half a pint of molasses, "to prevent them from rattling." It made the machine heavier by several pounds, but safety in preference to comfort, said he. He courted a header when next he rode, and not in vain, for he got one that convinced him that the shot-filled backbone was a dismal failure. The full force of the extra load on the back of his head a la knapsack of Tourist Thayer) gave him another idea. After laboriously extracting the shot he had constructed a wheel and rod very much like the front of a Star, which was securely fastened to the head of his bicycle. It of course had nothing to do with the steering but was a sort of "precede-the-leader" arrangement designed to "prevent the machine from tipping over forward." The small wheel hung about four inches above the ground directly in front of the large wheel. Many of the boys didn't know but it had virtue. They were willing to let our hero do the experimenting, however. He rode along all right, until he came to a sudden depression in the road. It is hard to tell exactly what did take place then. The machine seemed to fall in so many different directions at the same time that those who witnessed the occurrence were uncertain as to whether a collision had not taken place with another wheelman. Our inventor soon crawled from beneath his three-wheeled monster more scared than harmed, and, having an appreciation of the ridiculous, after a few curses deep and earnest, joined in the laughter which surrounded him. He has made no further investigations in the world of anti-header appliances.

These are facts without any exaggeration and I think many of your readers could give more interesting accounts of similar happenings that have come to their notice. Can't we have them.

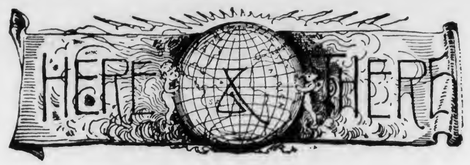
THE ELWELL TOURISTS.



(Special Cable Despatch to the New York World.

QUEENSTOWN, May 27.—The American cyclists arrived at midday on the Cephalonia from Boston. Delegates from London, Dublin, Limerick, Dungarvan and Cork went out in a tender and gave the visitors a hearty reception. J. White, the champion Irish cyclist, presented Capt. Elwell with a one-cent currant bun amid much enthusiasm.

The cyclists proceeded immediately to Cork, where they will be banqueted. Thence they go to Youghal, where the Duke of Devonshire's private steam launch will take the party up to Blackwater. Mount Milleray will also be visited. They will ride to Dungarven, Waterford, Enniscorthy, Rathdrum, Glendalough, Roundwood, Enniskerry and Scalp, where the visitors will be photographed. The cyclists will arrive in Dublin Saturday, and be entertained there by a banquet at the Shelbourne Hotel. Sunday they will leave for England.

ALL cyclers and travellers in general will do well to avoid the towns of Norwood and Walpole, Mass., on account of the disgraceful condition of the highways. A delegation from the Massachusetts club rode to Walpole last Sunday week, returning across country via Milton, and found the roads unrideable for man or beast between Dedham and Walpole and between Walpole and Canton. The authorities have covered the roads with broken stone, sand and gravel, and left them unrolled.

THE Milwaukee Wheelmen's handicap road race will take place June 29 over the Mannatosa course. Besides the usual number of prizes a valuable medal will be awarded for the best time. This race is open to all. Entries close June 24.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

Among the many peculiar types that one always finds in club life, none is more amusing to the "old-timer" than the newly-elected member who feels he has a mission to reconstruct the entire management of the club's affairs. For a while he spouts at club meetings, till by a sufficient expenditure of wind he has arrived at a stage just right for plucking, and then the "old-timers" apply a never failing remedy for the disease, they just elect him to an office, and at once he ceases both kicking and his interest in club affairs at the same time, and his silence is forever secured.

Do you know it is quite an interesting study to examine the figures which represent the money New York expends for the honor of retaining the reputation of being the worst paved city in the world. Here are a few of them: For repairing old pavements for this year, $580,000; for new pavements, $500,000, with an extra special allowance of $1,000,000 a year for three years for repairing them. To all of this add $1,000,000 for street cleaning, $120,000 for sprinkling, and more than $1,150,000 lost by needless wear on horses and vehicles through the abominable surfaces they must travel, and we have a grand total of $4,350,000 per year for the next three years at least. For all of this stupendous expenditure we have nothing but the vilest of Belgian block pavement, unfit for even the heaviest kind of trucking, which is covered with a Sahara of dust when dry, or a quagmire of mud when wet. To such an extent are the powers that be, opposed to any system of better pavements that may be proposed, even when the property owners are themselves willing to pay for it. A case in point is shown by the recent procedure that the New York Club had to go through to allow them to expend $365 of their money for an asphalt pavement in front of their club house. The entire affair took over five months to arrange, permission having to be secured from the Board of Aldermen, the Mayor, the Department of Streets, and some forty other political bureaus and individuals, most all of whom had a watchful eye for that salve for an itching palm, which in the chemistry of political condition is expressed by the symbol $. It's a lamentable fact that the expenditure of all of this money tends only to make our streets worse, not better.

Now I don't think it is at all charitable for Editor Prial to hold me up to public scorn, in the columns of the Wheel. He says I have done more romancing in my time, in the columns of the wheel press than all of the other writers put together have done. That may be true too, but he neglects also to state that I was writing for the cycling papers long before either he or any other of the present correspondents in America were, and so my time handicap was a great factor in my getting the start on him and his brother romancers, but he must not despair, he is catching up with me in great shape, and the time is yet very short that I will have this advantage over him. While I am on this subject, really it should be remembered that the entire cause of the whole affair was mathematics. I simply called attention to the fact that ten per cent. of $35,000,000 was not $35,000, as one of his correspondents had claimed it to be, and now Brer. Prial, he says that's "menacing." May be it is, but to me it seems like shockingly poor arithmetic, and nothing else.

Somebody or other has formulated the Boulangerian proverb, that "a little yeast leaveneth much bread," and without any technical knowledge of the subject I am inclined to believe that it does, for on no other principal can I explain the wheel boom that has taken place in Tacoma. Irving Halstead went out there and settled only a few months since, and wheeling had up to that time heard nothing of Tacoma as a cycling point, but no sooner does the Harlem flyer locate there than race meets, race tracks, bicycle clubs and other evidences of a good-sized attack of cycling fever at once become prominent. When Halstead won the recent twenty-mile road race at Tacoma, it is said that some of the betting men wanted their money back because they claimed he wasn't an amateur. Now that's funny enough, but right on top of it they want Halstead to accept a challenge from Prince Wells, the professional trick rider, and that's funnier still. May be, though, Wells is no longer a professional, I can't tell who is any more. Since the Racing Board has been swinging the old reinstatement whitewash brush round with such a liberal hand it's awful hard to tell when you meet a man nowadays whether he is a spotless simon pure amateur, or only a whitewashed imitation of one, so if I am wrong in calling Mr. Wells a professional, when really he is a reinstatee, my most humble apologies are offered him, and the cause of my error is evident.

CHICAGO.

THE "STROLLER."

My friend "Linneus" is a little premature in his assertion that we had refused to let their representatives race in our great road race. In the first place St. Louis has tried to have entries in the former races, despite the fact that this was a Chicago affair and solely for Chicago wheelmen. This year it was determined to invite St. Louis to send up some of her fast flyers to start scratch with our scratch men. Ten entries were received, which, with our four scratch men and Andrae, of Milwaukee, would make fifteen. A letter was sent, saying that it would be better were they to send four, the same number as we would have, and it was replied to that it was ten or none, and acting on that the ten entries were accepted and it is to be hoped they will all start, for if not it will place "Linneus" in rather a bad light. I am pleased to see that Captain Sanders denies the language attributed to him by "Linneus," in a letter to Mr. Garden of recent date.

It is doubtful if Lumsden starts in the Pullman road race, his last race with Lumsden having been postponed until June 3d.

The Douglas Club gave one of their merry dances Friday evening, and a successful one of course.

Ottawa will have the State meet this year, for sure.

Thorne secured the Presidency of the Chicago, Randall being elected Vice President. Other changes were Sieg, Secretary, resigned, A. G. Wainwright elected to fill vacancy; Captain Roe resigned, Van Sicklen elected to vacancy.

The Illinois Club expect Tuttle to win the time medal, while the Lincolns expect the same thing of Spooner.

The Handicapping Committee made itself exceedingly scarce as soon as the handicaps were given out.

The Pullman prize list amounts to over fifteen hundred dollars this year.

The bicycle thief is making himself exceedingly numerous here at present, some seven or eight wheels having been stolen during the last fortnight. Hosford mourns the loss of his light roadster safety.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

An attempt is being made by one of our aldermen to have our streets sprinkled by the city instead of by private subscription. If he succeeds, all of our streets will then be sprinkled, which instead of being a benefit to wheelmen may only add to their miseries.

The race for the championship of the C. B. C. will probably be run from Chester Park to the first toll-gate outside of Hamilton, a distance of 17½ miles. A very exciting contest is expected as quite a number of the contestants are very evenly matched.

Wheelmen going to Hamilton should take their L. A. W. tickets with them, for unless they can produce them they will get no reduction at the League hotel.

With the exception of Washington, D. C., Porkopolis has better paved streets than any city in the United States.

The road bed of the C. W. and B. R. R. has been freshly ballasted in so many places and has so many ties scattered over it that wheelmen will do well to avoid it unless they wish to dismount about once in every fifty yards.

When the railroad was in its infancy and travel was restricted to the canalboat and stage coach, there flourished within twenty-five miles of Porkopolis a certain village which, as it now lies remote from the present highways of commerce, is in an advanced stage of senile decay. The population, never large, has gradually diminished and, like the rickety fences, seems in need of support. Here is a vacant house, the remnants of whose clapboard roof are covered with moss and lichens; there a small structure with the weatherboards gone in places revealing the hewn logs that no doubt not only sheltered the pioneer from the elements but from hungry beasts and bloodthirsty savages; across the way a solitary brick house with blinds minus many slats and innocent of paint; just beyond a more pretentious edifice, probably once the abode of the local croesus, but now its rotting veranda bears the weather-beaten shingle of that social oracle, the village doctor. As the wheelman, after passing through this place, dashes down a grade and into another village with very modern buildings so freshly painted, with lawns so smoothly shaven and walks so painfully regular, he cannot help comparing it to the successful man who, in his struggle for wealth has pushed aside his more deserving competitor and left him to die in obscurity.

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

About the only event of the week to break the weary monotony of the wheelmen was the opening of the Chesapeake Club's new club house, which is situated on the southwest corner of Fulton and Lafayette avenues. Mayor Latrobe and his Secretary, Col. W. H. Love, were present with many prominent citizens, also many visiting cyclers from all of the clubs. Ex-President Abbott and President Reed made neat speeches. The new club building is a neat, three-story structure, with basement. It fronts 23 feet 6 inches on Fulton avenue and has a depth of 140 feet on Lafayette avenue. In the basement is the locker and wheelroom and a capacious bathing room. The parlor and reading room are situated on the first floor. Both rooms are handsomely furnished. The second floor contains the executive and toilet rooms. The gymnasium and janitor's department are on the third floor. The buildings and improvements cost about $6000. The club now has sixty members and are at present in receipt of several others. The club organized one year ago.

President Luscomb will reach Hagerstown on Monday, July 1. On his arrival it is said he is to be given a big reception by the Hagerstown business men, which promises to be the most elaborate on record there. This is to be entirely apart from the meet itself, and is out of the hands of the cyclists, though of course they will attend in large numbers.

MINNEAPOLIS NOTES.

"PARSON."

I see by the World that my old chum, Jas. Purvis-Bruce, whose word may be taken as Gospel truth on all matters as well as those pertaining to cycling, has gone into the cycle business. Well, I think "Jack" has done just right. He is the man for the place. Everyone takes to Bruce when once they know and understand him. But he can be very sarcastic at times. Nevertheless, boys of the cycling world, "Jack" is "all right," and once your friend he can always be depended on to stand by you, no matter what comes. If in his travels he should come to the Flour City he can depend on a hearty welcome.

Members of the M. B. C. who were at club headquarters on last Thursday evening had quite a treat. Sig. Monteselli and his mandolin club unexpectedly came up and gave them two hours of most delightful music.

Tom Eck and "Senator" Morgan have made arrangements to give us a week of their female bicycle riders. I do not think they will make a fortune out of it, as Minneapolis has been "gulled" so often.

The several daily papers here deserve the thanks of all local wheelmen, as they devote a great deal of space to cycling, and nothing goes to boom wheeling so much as to get the daily papers to take it up.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

Wednesday of this week we were agreeably surprised by being visited by two Nashville, Tenn., wheelmen, W. H. Hartwell and C. B. Benedict, who had made the tour from their town to this a distance of about 320 miles, awheel. They report the roads of Tennessee good to the State line, but, to my great surprise, saw nothing of the fine Kentucky roads made famous by X. M. Miles. They were six days on the road, and their route lay as follows: Scottsville, Glasgow Junction, Louisville, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Martinsville, Effingham. At the latter place they were caught in a rain, and finding the roads impassable, decided it best to train it to St. Louis, which they did, and arrived here last Monday night. They speak in glowing terms of the good time they had, the treatment they received at the hands of Mrs. Hubert Allison, of Louisville, and are lavish in their praises of the National road extending from Louisville to Indianapolis, which they found to be in superb condition.

Our new track is at last finished, and for a dirt track presents a fine appearance. The Gun Club have had the fences and buildings inside of the grounds whitewashed, and the contrast between them and the green grass makes the place look very attractive.

In my last letter I noted E. N. Staders as saying that the action of the Chicago people in refusing all but four St. Louis entries in the Pullman road race was a square back down, etc. At the time I certainly understood him to make this statement. He now advises me that I was mistaken, and in justice to him, cheerfully made a retraction.

A number of our cyclists spent last Saturday at Chicago to witness the Stone-Lumsden race, and to go sight seeing. On arriving at their destination the party split up, each going to different parts of the city, and your correspondent and A. D. Lawnin had the good fortune to fall into the hands of R. L. Garden and A. Taylor, two of nature's noblemen, and could not wish to be better entertained. Said one of the party: "Chicago has got a pretty good name for receiving strangers about as coldly as an iceberg, but we will try to make it different hereafter, at least to wheelmen."

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

Lawyer John H. Whiting, the worthy President of our club here, was out on his tandem tricycle with his wife the other day, when some small boys fired stones at them. Mr. W. dismounted, gave chase and caught the principal offender, and was taking him down the street till he should see a policeman to hand him over to, when several men interfered and succeeded in getting the boy away. The policeman turned up afterwards (tardy, as usual). Whiting had one of the men who interfered arrested, and appeared against him next day in the city court, where he was fined ten dollars and costs.

The lady who conducts the cycling columns in the Wheel seems to take more of her time and space in criticizing "Helen Grey" than to giving anything new or interesting to readers. I read Miss Grey's column with great interest.

We have a new organization among cyclers here, called the New Haven Star Club. I am not able to find out much about them, as no one seems to know. They have no rooms, I believe, but have elected officers and perfected their organization.

The New Haven Club hold their annual five-mile handicap race at Hamilton Park Decoration Day, in connection with a mile safety race and a two-mile open race. The Park has just been fixed up and the track is in excellent condition, and some fast time will be made. There will be fifteen or twenty entries; all our fastest men, Weaver, Vezhoff, Backus, Pickett, Bartlett, Fields, Parkington and Loring, have entered, and are on the track every day training.

I see in the World lately J. F. L., of Meriden, does not like it that I took exception to Meriden being called the "wheeling centre of Connecticut." I did not claim anything for New Haven, but thought Hartford deserved that honor; but if J. F. L. still thinks it belongs to Meriden, the best way to settle it is to accept his challenge, which I would be glad to see done. He says Ives and Miller are waiting modestly, and Canary he also speaks of. If a race is to be run it is to be run by amateurs. Ives is a professional, as is also Canary. The Meriden boys are all right, but they do not want to run away with the idea that they are the "Hub" here in Connecticut, on cycling.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Mr. John W. Arnold, of Providence, is 78 years of age and he claims to be the oldest wheelman in the United States. He commenced riding at the early age of 75. This ought to be an encouraging fact to some men who at the age of 50 aver that they are "too old to learn to ride a cycle."

Route Wanted.—Will some one please give the best route from New York City to Providence, R. I. We have inquiry as to which is the best and most direct.

Up to last accounts McDaniel was still waiting for an answer to his challenge to Kolb.

The Pennsylvania Club are desirous of issuing more bonds, and thus raise money to put up an addition to their wheel house.

The Los Angeles Wheelmen and the G. A. R. men are in conference, hoping to arrange the matter under protest which we editorially noticed last week.

The Sioux City (Ia.) Wheelmen are agitating the question of having the National Meeting at that place next year. What with Chicago, Sioux City and perhaps Boston, the League ought to have rich choice for 1890.

The reception of the Camden (N. J.) Wheelmen, which was to have been given by the club in their new quarters, lately occupied, on last Thursday evening, has been postponed to Friday, June 7th.

Mr. Clarance A. Leighton, of Detroit, Mich., writes us: "In the issue of the World dated Sept. 7, 1888, in a report of Mr B. B. Ayers, appeared a statement concerning damage to wheel of Mr. J. D. Lamont, of Chatham, Ont., while being carried by the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railroad Co. In justice to the D., G. H. and M. R. R. Co., I wish to state the result of the matter, and ask you to give to it the same publicity as the statement referred to received. The railroad company, after careful investigation, became satisfied that the injury was not wilfully inflicted. In fact the car was in charge of one of their oldest and most reliable employes. However, being assured that the wheel was injured while in their custody, they have paid Mr. Lamont what the injury cost him. Believing that the event has tended rather to create than to destroy good will toward bicyclists, on the part of the railroad company, I ask you to make mention of the matter."

The clubs all over the country are making preparations for racing and touring events on the 30th.

Last week Mr. Lionel J. Heneries of Deer Isle (Me.), died from a wound received by a fall from a bicycle two years ago. Since then he has been in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, for treatment but no cure could be effected.

Mr. T. N. Clarke has been re-appointed chief consul for Nebraska.

Will Pixley, the 15-year-old boy from Omaha, made a good showing at Chicago, winning the boys' race and coming in first in the second heat in the handicap.

The Rambling Wheelmen of Bridgeport, Ct., held a fancy dress parade on the 24th.

Bicycle manufacturers had better take the tip and close out their business as soon as possible—"George Wade has applied for a patent on a new hobby horse, which he claims will eclipse the bicycle and other machines for travel. It consiste of an automatic horse so constructed that by rocking back and forward it moves in a regular lope as far as the rider desires to travel."

The Rovers of Springfield, Mass., is a new club. They will have no headquarters except "on the road." In the scheme, one good long tour is to be held every year.

The Stone Lumsden race drags. The postponement so that the result cannot be printed in this issue, is a disappointment to us and to our readers.

The editor our esteemed contemporary of New York was so busy counting the words of his issue of the 17th that he omitted to have one word about the Chicago tournament, while we had the results up to the very moment of going to press. But we are modest and don't count words or brag about a little scoop like that.

The Rhode Island wheelmen's annual tour to Boston was a great success. Starting from Providence, they came as far as Sharon by rail, and thence proceeded to Boston on their cycles. There were twenty-one in the party, including one lady, who rode a bicycle. In the afternoon, under the command of Capt. James A. Kinghorn, they took a run to Chestnut Hill reservoir.

Riders in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, are restricted to a pace of eight miles an hour. Whistles are prohibited, coasting also. Lamps after sunset are required.

The ten highest records to May 1 of the Long Island Wheelmen are as follows: L. A. Wise, 1,725; William Schimer, 1,261; W. J. Gilfillan, 1,160; A. P. Topping, 920; E. F. Beecher, 800; F. E. Bogert, 715; E. L. Blake, 690; G. G. Teller, 662; W. Schumacher, 644; and William Henshaw, 550 miles.

The constitution and by-laws of the Boston Press Club Cycling Club are one of the most dainty specimens of the printer's art we have ever seen. They are the gift to the club of Mr. N. C. Fowler, Jr., of the Pope Manufacturing Co. L. Barter & Co. did the printing, and we think they stand unexcelled as delicate and dainty pamphlets.

A party of wheelmen while quietly riding through Griffin, Ga., were deliberately fired upon by a party of loafers. Luckily none of the shots took effect. Criminal proceedings will be instituted.

Croakers read the following. "What is the L. A. W. good for?" Well, just this: H. S. Bridge, a cyclist of Cincinnati, was run down by a road hog. The local L. A. W. counsel at once brought suit in the sum of $3,000 damages. This prompt action on the part of the counsel brought the road hog to his senses, and he compromised by paying all expenses and a good sum for damages to Mr. Bridge.

The Massachusetts Division of the L. A. W. has taken up the case of J. A. Beauvis v. J. B. Bradford. The case is a peculiar one and involves the question of liability for damages to a cycler who takes a header and causes damage through scaring a horse and causing a runaway. The League will fight the case, and yet "the League is no good."

Great complaint is made by the citizens of Rockland, Me., as to the condition of the streets. Whether the fault is in the parsimony of the town or neglect of selectmen we know not, but we lean to the latter opinion.

The Connecticut Division meet will probably be held in Bridgeport some time in June.

The next union run of Massachusetts wheelmen will be to the Massapoag House, Sharon, June 30. Dinner at one o'clock. Price, $1. Captains are requested to call their run for the day in accordance and to notify the committee, care of Capt. A. W. Robinson, 33 Winter street, Boston.

An earnest effort will be made to have the railroad trunk lines reconsider the order to charge 25 cents per 100 miles or fraction for every bicycle carried on trains accompanied by riders.

Frank A. Shields of Albany is a man that will be heard from on the racing track this season. We saw him moving in practice last week and he showed excellent form.

THE EASTERN ROAD CLUB DISBANDS.

Last Monday evening representatives of the Massachusetts, Boston, Cambridgeport, Chelsea and Dorchestsr bicycle clubs, five of the original eight, gathered in answer to the call of the president of the Eastern Road Club, at the office of Dr. W. G. Kendall, 176 Tremont street, and the affairs and prospects of the club for the coming season were informally discussed. In the preamble to the motion Dr. Kendall said that the general public was prejudiced against road racing and that those who had striven for years to place the sport of cycling in its present position could not afford to ignore this prejudice, that the best interests of the sport required that no further road racing contests be held, and that, therefore, it was unanimously voted to disband the Eastern Road Club, which was organized in 1887 to promote interest in road racing hereabouts. It was further decided that the silver cup of the club, for which many a hard battle was fought, and which was twice won by the Dorchester Bicycle Club, be given to that organization, as it is the only club willing ts enter a team to defend it.

MR. GEORGE A. JESSUP IN TROUBLE.

We regret exceedingly to have to chronicle the fact that George A. Jessup, the Chief Consul of Pennsylvania, is placed in a most unfortunate position. From advices at hand and taken from the papers, it seems that the Scranton City Bank is short some $135,000. Mr. Jessup is Cashier of that bank, and it seems in an examination of the bank's books by the Directors it was found that the bank was out $135,000.

A hurried meeting of the Directors was held, and it was decided to place Mr. Jessup under arrest: this was done, but he was subsequently released on bail.

From the same sources at hand it seems to us that the charge of "lax financiering" is the most serious that can be placed at Mr. Jessup's door. We should judge that carelessness in demanding proper security for loans granted, is the cause of the shortage, and not any dishonest use of the funds by Mr. Jessup. We sincerely trust that this may prove to be so, and that no criminal action against Mr. Jessup will have to be taken.

The bank has temporarily suspended, and in the meantime Mr. Jessup issues a card in which he tacitly admits carelessness but not dishonesty. He says he has property enough to make the deficit good.

LATER.

We are pleased to be able to add the following particulars from a private but reliable source: "The Scranton Bank is a private bank. Mr. Jessup has held the office of Vice President, but for several years he has been the whole bank, Cashier, Board of Directors and all. Some trouble in the board resulted in the starting of the sensational stories that were printed, and the warrant to be issued. Mr. Jessup and the President hold most of the stock, and the President went on Mr. Jessup's bail. The President had a quarter of all the claimed deposits." Our correspondent says that he is satisfied that the examination of the books will show Jessup to be all right, and every depositor will get the full amount of his deposit. The sensational reports that have appeared in the papers are most outrageously overdrawn.

At Boston.—James P. S. Clark v. Joseph W. Brooks was an action to recover $100 damages to a bicycle which plaintiff was riding, against which, it was alleged defendant drove his team. Verdict of $85 for plaintiff. J. P. Leahy for plaintiff: W. S. Orcutt for defendant.

The above cut is taken from photograph of W. A. Clark, who rode the "Eagle" up Eagle Rock Hill at Orange, N. J., and shows the exact position taken by a good rider of the "Eagle" while riding leisurely over an ordinary road.

It will be seen that it is not necessary for a rider to bear his weight upon the handles, neither does he have to lean forward, or, pedal at all backward. He is directly over his work, and his weight is applied to the best possible advantage in propelling the wheel. The position is Erect, Easy and Natural, and the movements and appearance are very nearly the same as in walking.

TENTH ANNUAL MEET LEAGUE OF AMERICAN WHEELMEN.

HAGERSTOWN, MD., JULY 2, 3 AND 4, 1889.

Dear Everybody—I want to have a little confidential chat with you about the Tenth Annual Meet at Hagerstown, just as we would talk it over if we met upon the road and you asked for information.

That way is best for a clear understanding and there is no fear of misapprehensions when we take into consideration the free masonry existing between us when a-wheel. It might be put up in the highest style of dude literature and be as clear as Omaha mud in consequence, but it is certain you would not wish that.

To a Baltimore or Washington wheelman the mere mention of something going on at Hagerstown has always been enough to make a scramble to that city, for the people up there between the mountains—cyclers and citizens—make "a go" of anything they undertake in the curriculum of cycledom.

As seen in the above diagram, eight superb limestone pikes radiate from Hagerstown, which is the hub of the Shenandoah Valley, while intersecting pikes and cross roads form a net-work of thoroughfares for wheelmen that realizes the stereotyped phrase of cyclers' paradise. These pikes are of that smooth sand-papered kind that entrance the wheelman, while his surroundings of scenery and sweet odors from nature's garden make his runs veritable trips through fairy land.

A wheelman can do almost anything he chooses in Hagerstown, and his uniform is considered a sort of badge, a metaphorical key of the city, entitling him to the freedom of the town. "Oh, he's all right" is the verdict of the guardian of the peace as he leniently views the little fun scrapes of the cycler. At the hotels it is the same. The soiled traveler a-wheel is a thing of beauty to the affable host and the special pet of the head waiter, while he far outrivals the gigantic sparkling gem gracing the bosom of the clerk and flashing defiance to dignity. Oh! the wheelmen have great times in Hagerstown.

Hagerstown, a city of about 20,000 population, is situated in the midst of the great and fertile valley lying at the foot of the Alleghany mountains, and extending from the Susquehanna river at Harrisburg, Pa., to the northern limits of Alabama. This valley is known in Pennsylvania and Maryland as the Cumberland Valley, and in Virginia as the Valley of the Shenandoah. But it is one continuous and homogeneous valley, well watered by numerous and beautiful streams, fed by great springs which gush out of the limestone rocks.

But digression must be made to tell a little story of one of these large springs. A Maryland Club run again. Weary, thirsty "Ben" and mischievous Charlie Munder, poor fellow, who has since gone to a well-earned rest. Ben stoops down to quench the stereotyped parched throat, and Charlie dashes in the festive large stone. Of course Ben was splashed till he wasn't fit to be seen, and so he stood up solemnly and exclaimed in an awful awe-inspiring voice: "I stand here under this great blue celestial dome, and I raise my right hand in reverence to heaven and I swear by the Eternal Creator that I'll never again go on a club run with that man Charlie Munder."

The surface of the valley is beautifully undulating, presenting a varied scene of hill, dale and plain, with the Blue Mountains limiting the view to the east and the west. Of this great, fertile and beautiful valley, Hagerstown is the Queen City. Its location is 500 feet above tide water. The climate is pleasant, cool and healthful and every circumstance contributes to make it a most agreeable place for the meet. In fact from the Wheelman's standpoint, no fitter place in these whole United States could be found for a meeting of cyclers.

Hagerstown is built upon a solid foundation of blue limestone rock. In the centre is a square through which the two principal business streets of the city pass. One of the streets, Potomac, running to the north, after it passes through the business section widens out into a beautiful avenue, on the west side of which is an eminence or ridge from 100 to 200 feet back from the street. This ridge is crowned with villas which would do credit to the largest cities. Running down to the broad street are the well kept lawns, and from the front porches is a view of the mountain and the intervening valley, of striking beauty. Washington street, which passes through the square at right angles with Potomac, continues to the west along the National Pike and at the western suburbs reaches a high and beautiful elevation. At right angles with this street Prospect street extends to the south. It is on the summit of a high ridge, and the houses on this street are of great beauty and are surrounded by charming gardens.

The streets where not a natural bed of rock, are made of limestone, which is broken and laid down to a great depth and topped with stone crushed very fine, and then rolled with a heavy iron road roller weighing 30 tons, which packs the streets into a solid and smooth mass of stone, very durable and as smooth as asphaltum, making road beds of a very superior character, and for wheeling even surpassing those of Washington.

To illustrate its commercial importance it may be mentioned that fifty-three passenger trains arrive or depart from Hagerstown every day. The streets are almost perfectly illuminated by electricity, making night riding quite as safe and much more exhilarating than in the day.

A few miles from Hagerstown, situated high up on the slope of South Mountain, is the Blue Mountain House with its pretty station, one of the most attractive summer resorts and best kept hotels in the country. It is admirable in all its details, and commands from its piazzas and windows a magnificent view of the great valley at the foot of the mountain. But this view can be enjoyed to its utmost from the Pen-Mar Observatory (to which place a run will be made). But a mile from the hotel, and as far as natural scenery is concerned, there are few places in the Eastern States of America better worth seeing. There is spread at the feet of the spectator a magnificent panorama of valley and mountains, extending into four States and dotted with scenery, extensive farm houses of a teeming population, villages and, on the summit, there is a high tower, reached by a fine road, from which the extr... appr...

Near Monterey a most surprising freak of nature appears hid away in the midst of the woods, "The Devil's Race Course." It is a rugged expanse of broken mountain rock spreading over a mile in length and believed to be the result of the tremendous forces of the glacial period. Across the line dividing Pennsylvania and Maryland to the north and south, lies Pen-Mar, mentioned above, with this name derived from its location between the two States. On the rocky spur, 2000 feet above the sea, towers High Rock Observatory, from which magnificent views are obtained over the Cumberland and Shenandoah Valleys. As far as the eye can reach from the Susquehanna river southward to the Massanutton Mountains, miles beyond the Potomac, stretches the valley, studded with towns, villages, hamlets and farmhouses. The towns of Chambersburg, Hagerstown, Greencastle, Smithsburg, Leitersburg, Waynesboro' and interspersing settlements are taken in by almost one sweep of the eye. The road continues from High Rock upwards to the picturesque points of Brinkwood and Ragged Edge, and to the summit of Mount Quirauk, with the iron observatory affording one of the grandest of views.

If all the points about Hagerstown interesting to cyclers were described it would fill a volume. They follow each other in quick succession. The wheelman going south, sees on his right a few miles after leaving Hagerstown, the College of St. James and the old Ringgold manorial seat. A few miles further he enters upon the historic field of Antietam (to which place a run will be made) and gets a glimpse of the splendid statue or monument in the National Cemetery at Sharpsburg, keeping sentinel over the "bivouac of the dead." Crossing the historic Potomac at the very spot where James Ramsey launched his little steamer in 1787, he lands in West Virginia upon the high rocky precipice over which 3000 Federal troops were driven by Stonewall Jackson.

On the roads from Hagerstown is the wonderful Luray Cave and the Natural Bridge of Virginia. All along are points of historic interest such as the estates of Lord Fairfax and his residence, the old Greenaway Court, while innumerable summer resorts with their fine hotels dot the valley and mountains.

For many years it has been the habit of people of seaside cities to spend some of the summer months in the mountain city of Hagerstown. As a summer resort it possesses many attractions. Its hotels and boarding houses are well kept and moderate in their charges. The climate is cool and as agreable as that of many of the more widely known fashionable resorts. As has been intimated before, Hagerstown is peculiarly situated as regards points of scenic and historic interest. Next to the old battlefield of Antietam, with the old Tanker Church and the bloody pane, both so famous in history, come Lee's headquarters in Sharpsburg, which looks to-day precisely as it did in September, 1862.

The ruins of old Fort Frederick is an interesting relic of pre-Revolutionary times. It was erected by the Colonial Legislature of Maryland, about 1755, during the panic which ensued upon the defeat of General Braddock on his Fort Duquesne expedition.

In the city there are five large and well equipped hotels that would do credit to Baltimore, and numerous smaller ones, besides excellent boarding houses. Many families receive private boarders, so there is ample accommodation for all who come. The prices are, of course, very much less than the same accommodations would cost in the larger cities.

Owing to the beauty of the surroundings of the city, some clubs acquainted with the locality propose to form a wheelman's camp, and have already engaged tents and the proper paraphernalia. This will be a delightful feature, and one barely possible for a wheelman's meet in New York, Boston, Baltimore or other larger cities.

What wheelman has not heard of the Shenandoah Valley riding district, a region superior for cyclers in many respects to the Oranges or Boston. Certainly the members in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia are familiar with it, for their annual tours are nearly always turned in that direction. To quote from the Road Book of the above divisions: "From Reading westward, the delightful Lebanon Valley offers fair grades to Harrisburg, beyond which point the Cumberland, leads past Carlisle and Chambersburg to Hagerstown, and thence as the Shenandoah Valley—that wheelman's paradise—to Staunton, Va. No finer straightaway exists in the Eastern States than that from Reading to the last named town, a distance of 264 miles." Wheelmen coming to the meet from the West via the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad can experience a delightful variety by leaving the train at Martinsburg, W. Va., and riding awheel down the valley to Hagerstown, a distance which cyclometers twenty and one half miles. Leave the pike and cross the Potomac on the ferry at Falling Waters, and take the smooth piked towpath to Williamsport, when you will have entrancing scenery and the novelty of riding with the clear waters of the river and canal on either side, while the hills and mountains tower above. It is more than grand—it is awe inspiring.

As to the season of the year for holding the meet, July 2, 3 and 4, it is a comparatively cool pleasant time in those mountainous regions. My touring has consisted of two weeks in each year spent in the valley, and preferably a little later in July. The contrast in getting away from a hot city to the cool mountains and springs of that country is not the least of its merits.

There has been a great deal of cant and misrepresentation concerning League meets, and no doubt the impression has gone forth to some that the Maryland Division is inviting members of the League to "pay their own way" and that hospitality ceases with the Baltimore meet. Perhaps there is no better way to counteract such a false impression than to publish the following letter to President Luscomb, which is frank enough to explain itself. It was written from one business man to another and not intended for publication, but perhaps it will enlighten some divisions without experience who fear the "burden and expense":

Men of the L. A. W. you will honor us by accepting our hospitality. We know how to entertain you without assuming any unjust burden or expense. We are not aiming to make money, but shall keep inside our income, and if a surplus is left as in the case of the Baltimore and St. Louis meets, why so much the better. The whole thing in a nutshell is simply this: When preparing for a League meet, provision is necessarily made to entertain the greatest number that could by any possibility be expected. Naturally the number attending the meet falls short of this extreme limit and expenses are just so much less and leave a surplus.

BALTIMORE, April 24, 1889.

My Dear Mr. Luscomb—It is exceedingly gratifying that the Executive Committee has accepted the invitation to hold the League Meet at Hagerstown, as announced in yours of yesterday.

I have, my dear Mr. Luscomb, considered most carefully "the departure from the line of previous meetings intimated in your letter of inquiry, upon the matters of expense and costly entertainment," and "the judgment of the present administration that it is a mistaken principle that the National Meeting should be a financial burden and drain upon resident members" will be joined in by every practical wheelmen of right spirit. Mark well the words: "Expense and costly entertainment" and "financial burden and drain." Do not judge me too harshly if you should learn of any action of mine that appear to you as inconsistent with your kind advice and of my thankful acceptance of it, for I do assure you I am loyal to you, to your administration and to the League and shall be governed by your advice.

To speak in good, common, ordinary, every-day Anglo-Saxon, it makes me awfully weary to read some of the literary effusions emanating from a few—thank God, very, very few—members of this Division. It does some harm, to be sure, for it all appears reasonable and sensible, and thus has its effect upon members of the division at large. But to the very few who know the full details of arranging for the Baltimore League Meet, the sickly sentimentalism of "taxes on members," "financial strains," and all that literary ipecac acts as a truly severe mental emitic. You will bear me out in this, my dear Mr. Luscomb, when you become possessed of the facts, and those cold persuaders I propose to give to the wheeling public, if it is found necessary to do so.

Maryland is a loyal, noble, generous, hospitable division, and I love her. She is my pride, and none the less, because with all her generous chivalry she is at the same time a good, practical business division. She generously entertains guests, but at the same time she does not lose sight of a good business investment. Before the Baltimore meet, this division was in debt, but a practical mind in the person of then Chief Consul J. Kemp Bartlett, Jr., saw the opportunity of increasing interest in cycling in the State, increasing membership and thus enhancing revenues, and a good business scheme of a League meet upon which a fair margin would be left. Accordingly, the invitation was given and the meet held, and the Division came out of it with a legitimate profit of some twelve hundred dollars after entertaining the guests generously. My dear sir, there was no tax on anybody, nobody suffered and everybody was pleased. Baltimoreans are usually generous, but they are practical too. Business men seldom give money without an equivalent. The money gotten for the entertainment of the League was mostly from a business investment of business men who received and expected to receive quid pro quo. The money was derived from hotels which made a profit from the guests even while giving them reduced rates, from cycling firms who made a profit on the sale of machines to the increased membership induced by the increased interest, from merchants who derived a profit from increased sales to an increased floating population, from profits on the official programme, from profits on a sort of church fair affair, a raffle, whatever one chooses to call it, whereby wheelmen all over the country purchased chances in a lot of cycles and which netted something like fifteen hundred dollars, from profits on the races, from the sale of tickets to the entertainments, from taxes on the pockets of local cyclers (oh, ye gods) to the extent in my own case of five dollars, and I will risk my reputation for veracity by affirming that the whole amount raised from taxes on the pockets of local cyclers, outside of those engaged in the cycling business, would not average twenty-five cents for each wheelman of the State. I farther affirm, that I, myself, without assistance, could, with the exception of the official programme, duplicate the preliminaries and arrangements of the Baltimore Meet, by two weeks personal attention to the matter, and without seriously affecting my private business. We had a committee of fifteen to arrange for that one, and the personal expenses of the committee were paid so far as known, certainly mine were, and I know others were and should be. There is, of course, some little personal time and attention to the reception and care of the visitors," but so there is, my dear Mr. Luscomb, in social every-day life and it is considered a pleasure and a privilege by every refined or generous nature.

But enough of that. I simply want to assure you that the privilege of entertaining the League is not a burden but a pleasure. Let each division decide for itself what the word entertainment shall imply. As for Maryland, we would be glad to "point a moral" for other divisions, but we cannot do it at the cost of our reputation for hospitality, especially when that reputation is so cheaply acquired. I can assure you, however, that we are plain business men and will not involve the division financially, or sacrifice the pleasure of any local cyclist. We hope to depart from the usual rut of entertainment, and produce unique features at less cost that will be enjoyed much more. Trust us and you will not regret it. We have the success of the administration of the League at heart, whoever sways the gentle sceptre.

Will you kindly put me in the circumlocution to have several L. A. W. championship events assigned to us for the races?

I shall be glad to have free communication with you, and if it can with propriety be done, without the official starch that pertains to our positions, and which sometimes hampers ideas. Please talk to me frankly, as I am sure your advice will be valuable, and I do not want to embarrass you by any deeds of mine or my division's.

Sincerely yours,

ALBERT MOTT.

MR. CHARLES H. LUSCOMB,
President L. A. W., 289 Broadway, N. Y.

So, no one need hesitate about coming on account of the burden and expense to the Maryland Division. From the indications in my correspondence, and reports brought by members on their travels, the meet at Hagerstown promises to be the largest in attendance of any yet, and it can be safely promised that the enjoyment will be the greatest, for if a place for a wheelman's meet were to be made to order it could not much surpass Hagerstown, and therefore the entertainment part is quite simple.

Respectfully and truly yours,

ALBERT MOTT,
C. C. MD. Division.

MISSOURI DIVISION MEET.

THE coming Division Meeting at Sedalia, on July 3d and 4th, is the chief topic of conversation at the clubs, and if the interest taken is any criterion, it will be better attended than any yet given in Missouri. Consul Kelly, as chief director, is hard at work getting up his committees, and the able men he has placed at the head of them will surely help to make the meet a big success. The full programme has not been announced as yet, but will be about as follows: First day, July 3—Reception of wheelmen, and escort to hotels; 9 A. M., ran to McAllister Springs, a beautiful summer resort, situated about 20 miles northwest of Sedalia, which contains a fine hotel, where dinner will be had; 6.30 P. M., return by special train to Sedalia; evening, smoker at one of the hotels. Second day, July 4—Parade at 9 A. M.; Missouri Division meeting at 11 A. M.; dinner; races at 2.30 P. M. at Sicker's Park. The races will number ten, among which will be one for safeties. L. S. C. Ludish has been asked to take charge of this part of the programme, and his acceptance of the position will insure good sport. Our best men as well as Kansas City's will enter, and the long talked of races between Haynes, Gordon and Hodgen will no doubt be contested there. Valuable prizes will be offered for each event, a full list of which will be published later. LINNEUS.

"JIM."

BY "JACK."

HERE'S the little coat—but oh!
Where is he we've censured so?
Don't you here us calling near?
Back! Come back and never fear.
You may wander where you will,
Over orchard, field and hill.
You may kill the birds or do
Anything that pleases you!
Ah! This empty coat of his!
Every tatter worth a kiss;
Every stain as pure instead
As the white stars overhead;
And the pockets—homes were they
Of the little hands that play
Now no more—but absent, thus Beckon us.

"Ah yes, boys," said old Pete, "poor Jim! Jim with the blue eyes and the tangle of golden hair—well do I remember Jim.

When he died, he seemed to carry off a part of me with him, but that's nigh on twenty years ago.

"Who was Jim?" you say; well, I'll tell you. Jim was my only child, all that his flower-like mother left to remind me of herself. But 'scuse me if I drop a tear once in a while, when I think of the lass that sleeps 'neath the cedar trees in the rough burying ground in Crocket's Gulch.

When Jim's mother died Jim was only two years old, and did not understand what ailed me arter my gal was tuk. But I felt so lonesome that Jim sorter nestled hisself into my heart 'and comforted me. I was drivin' steers for a cattle-man in Wind River arter my gal was tuk, and had fotched Jim 'long to be sort of company for us both, and part because I did not feel like trustin' him with wimmin-folks as was not his mother. Jim used to sit in the big ox-wagon and say 'Dim is dood, dood, and will dwive dem steers some day.' Then I'd pat Jim's cheek over the side of the rocking ox-wagon and would feel companionable like.

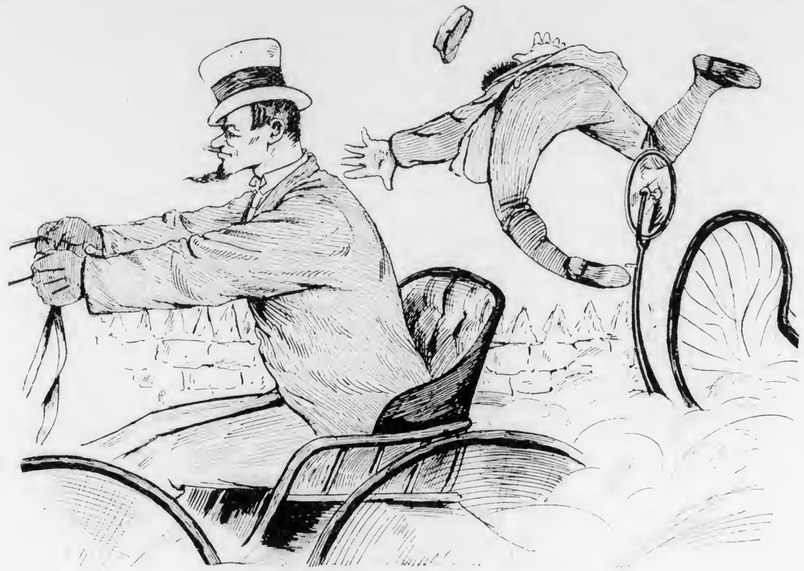
At the cabin I used to feed Jim and wash Jim and mend his clothes, too, purty nigh as good as most of the wimmin-folks kin.

It seemed unchful arter a while for me to sot about fixing Jim, tho' he seemed too soft and pretty for my coarse hands to touch at first. One day when I was out gettin' some things at the 'grocery' I happened to look back and I saw a blaze from the cabin roof. I threw my groceries down and rushed headlong down the road to the house to find it all in flames, an' Jim lying on the floor with his little shirt burnt off him.

Jim was unconscious an' lay mourin'—the little angel. The kerosene lamp had sploded, and Jim had tuk afire. I pulled Jim out an' I laid him on the prairie. Jim opened his eyes.

'Jim is dood, dood,' he moaned, 'Jim is dood.' Then I knelt down and said the first prayer I'd said sence his mother died. 'Oh God spar my boy—tak' me but spar Jim,' I prayed, and then I thought of going for assistance.

I couldn't leave Jim there; no, he might die before I came back. I tuk him up as tenderly as I could and wrapped him in my coat. 'Jim is dood, dood,' he wailed; 'dood bye, Jim is dood.'



Yes, Jim was good, but he never opened his eyes again.

* * * * * * * * *

Hunk and Josh and I buried him 'side his mother. Now boys you ask why I am a quiet, old man. Guess that would quieten most any man. It quietened me, sure 'nough. My poor Jim. 'Jim is dood.'

No thanks, boys, no drink to-night, thank 'e just as much, but when I gets to thinkin' of Jim and Martha, it sort of makes me feel 'ligious, and I don' think drinkin' is 'ligious and would not be showin' my respects to Jim," said the old plains man huskily, as he left the shanty, and we, through the cracks on the side of the old clay chimney, saw him take out his red handkerchief and wipe his eyes, and kneel down among the old bricks and cans, which lay littered around the edge of the cabin. There was more than one of the crowd whom the story of Jim had influenced, and no one took a drink that night. And that was savin' a good deal for a crowd like us ones. "Jim was dood," we heard the old man mutter in his sleep that night, and we knew that he had climbed to the stars and was in the spirit with his wife and little Jim, and when "old Pete" got killed by a bullet out of Ned Rice's Winchester in O'Leary's saloon in '74, 'cause Ned happened to be in his cups, and shootin' wild had missed the man he intended to hit, we knew that old Pete died like a Christain and had more 'ligion than some of your "loud professors." Now he is with Martha and "Jim," for we had Pete frozen stiff by the best undertaker in Clifford, and sent out to Crocket's Gulch, where the crowd personally conducted the fun'ral.

If there's a land beyond the stars, then you can reckon on finding "old Pete," and if Pete's thar so is "Jim."

McDANIEL-KOLB.

Editor Bicycling World: I should have thought that L. A. W. No. 16,880's recent feat in ground and lofty tumbling would have given him sufficient publicity for a while, but I see that he has taken up the cudgels in a thankless cause, and one that had much better have been dropped. Since I have learned that he is the one who inserted the account of the McDaniel-Kolb race, I willingly acquit him of any intentional misrepresentation, but I would suggest that hereafter he be careful to inform himself as to the facts of a case before publication, as in the matter referred to the slightest inquiry would have shown conclusively that the race was not a club affair, and its publication as such, together with the public retraction which such a charge rendered an absolute necessity, (for 16,880 is too well posted to suppose for an instant that such a mis-statement would be allowed to go uncorrected when it reflected upon an entire club), is calculated to cause a feeling that is to be deplored. A club race must be, necessarily, one which is arranged between and by the clubs themselves, and cannot be the result of a personal arrangement between two members, as 16,880 well knows. He states that I did not say who beat Merrihew. Very true: Mr. Merrihew was the first single rider to cross the line, and I never knew of any attempt being made to claim that an ordinary was equal in speed to a tandem bicycle. A little friendly emulation does cycling and club life no harm—rather the contrary; but I do not, if you please, gentlemen, allow an occasion of this sort to be magnified into such undue prominence as to create any dissension whatever. Better, a thousand times, to let racing of any kind drop into the deep, deep sea of oblivion. Surely there can be a generous spirit of rivalry on the road and path, between various clubs, without the necessity arising for mis-statements which are likely to create trouble. I feel sure that no one will more cordially unite in thissentiment than 16,880. "ARIEL."

THE CLARK-DAVIS FOUL.

Editor Bicycling World:—In reply to your letter of inquiry I will give you what I believe to be the right side of the affair. On the third lap in the final heat of the Intercollegiate championship two-mile bicycle race Greenleaf was leading with Davis just overlapping, and Clark overlapping Davis by half a wheel. Clark rode the three laps previous to the accident as I never saw anyone ride on a track before. His front wheel was constantly inside Davis' pedal, only two or three inches from the rear wheel. Davis spoke to him on the second lap, saying "Look out or you will foul me," but Clark paid no attention. The pace was pretty hot for the third lap, about 2.50, and as the men swung into the curve Clark's wheel came into collision with Davis' rising pedal. Clark lost five spokes and dismounted, he and his trainer at once claiming a foul.

Davis rode on after Greenleaf—one of the officers calling to them to go on—and Mr. Lathrop, Havard's trainer, calling to Davis to claim a foul on Clark. Davis won, with Greenleaf second, by five yards. He at once went to the referee to claim the foul, but Mr. Curtis answered that he did not want to hear any more on the matter as he had already heard the whole story [Clark's] and had made up his mind. His decision was: Davis disqualified, the race called off, Gubleman given third place, and Clark and Greenleaf to ride for first and second place—altogether a most remarkable decision. The referee heard but one side of the story and took it for granted that it must be Davis' fault since Clark's wheel had got the worst of it. The accident was simply the fault of Clark's reckless and extremely unfair riding.

In conclusion, I would like to say that trainer Corcoran behaved about as badly as possible during the whole meet. He continually made use of offensive language on the track and in the dressing-rooms. In connection with this a rather amusing incident happened. Mr. Eliot Norton was walking Davis' wheel up to the scratch when Corcoran came up behind and sneered, "Have you got your coffins for your men yet?" Mr. Norton asked Corcoran whether he or any other Yale man would like to bet on the result of the race. Corcoran's very amusing crawl was, "I thought you was a gentleman, Mr. Norton, not a gambler.

Yours sincerely. R. H. DAVIS.

ANOTHER VERSION.

THE wisdom of the League's rule barring safeties from ordinary races was most forcibly demonstrated by its violation in the two-mile inter-collegiate race at Berkeley oval last Saturday. When I saw the two safeties come up to the scratch I called Referee Curtis' attention to it on behalf of the man I was to push off, assuming, naturally, that the college men had been wise enough to incorparate the League rule in their regulations. The referee showed me the rules under which he was directed to act, stating that any form of bicycle was eligible, and said he could do nothing else but let the rear drivers start. I contented myself with expressing the fear that there was danger of trouble, pushed my man off, and went to my seat on the bank near the west curve to await results. No trouble came until the final heat, though there were several close shaves in the trial. Greenleaf was leading near the pole, with Davis (safety) following, and Clark close behind him. As they rounded the curve where I was sitting Clark lapped Davis on the outside. Davis gave a sudden wobble toward the outside and the feared collision came, knocking several spokes out of the wheel of the Yale man, who stopped and claimed his foul. It was allowed by the referee and the judges. Davis was disqualified, and the decision met with the almost universal approval of the spectators; not that is was Davis's intentional fault, few believe that. It was due to his wheel and the disregard of reasonable regulations made by those who have learned the wisdom of them by experience. JONAH.

INTER-CLUB RUN AT PHILADELPHIA, ON DECORATION DAY.

AN important step was taken by the Associated Cycling Clubs, at their regular meeting, at the Pennsylvania club house, on Tuesday last, when the delegates voted to hold an inter-club race and dinner on Decoration Day. The Pennsylvania Bicycle Club house will be headquarters, and the various clubs will assemble there at 9.30 A. M., starting at 10 o'clock for the Lancaster Pike, with Devon as the objective point. Dinner will be had at the famous hostelrie known as Devon Inn, where arrangements have been made by the Committee for dinner at 2 o'clock, at the rate of $1.00 per head, a reduction of 50 cents.

It is hoped and expected that a full turnout will be in attendance from all the clubs, and a large demonstration cannot fail to impress itself upon the public at large. This action upon the part of the A. C. C. marks a new era in its history, and the good work thus inaugurated may, it is hoped, be continued in the future.

RACING.

AT ALBANY—Track (Two mile bicycle race).—First prize, cigar case, $20; second, silver cup, $10. Kittinger, Hamilton won; Hills, Union, second. Time, 7.37 1-2.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Road.—The five-mile road race of the Camden Wheelmen was run off on Saturday before a large attendance from both sides of the Delaware. The race was from the five-mile stone on the Haddonfield pike to Camden, and was an interesting one from start to finish, the handicapping giving the new men a chance which they were not slow to improve. Samuel Buzby, with a handicap of 55 seconds, finished first, crossing the line in 19.13, with A. B. Eyre, 70 seconds, second in 20.10, and L. Browning, 90 seconds, third; time, 20.35. Jessup, Green and Weaver finished fourth, fifth and sixth respectively, although Fithian would have crossed either fourth or fifth had he not taken a header while closing in to the finish in company with Jessup, thus throwing him out of the race. The affair was a very successful one, and the club will repeat it in the Fall by holding a 20 mile road race. ARIEL.

AT DENVER—Road.—The road race at Denver, Col., over a 32 1-2 mile course resulted in victory for Robert Gerwing in 2h. 2 1-2m.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Road.—The two-mile road race between C. J. Scherer and W. A. Whitmore took place May 19 over a course commencing at a point in front of the L. and N. depot, thence straight down Main street to ehe north side of South street, a diitance which is a fraction over two miles. The run was made in 11 1-2 minutes, which is very good for a road such as the one taken. Mr. Scherer won the race on a spurt. It was a hard fight at the finish. Mr. Whitmore fell in his desperate effort to pass his rival.

As to the long-distance medal fiends, the score on Saturday night, May 18, stood: Julius Seelig, 1,375 miles; Phillips, 1,230; Alberts, 870; William Wood, 672; Whitmore, 440; J. Wood, 438; Haylie, 275 miles. ANCHOR.

AT ST. LOUIS.—A telegram received states that "the Stone-Lumsden race is again postponed to June 5th on account of the muddy condition of the track. This morning the contractor and the sun got the mud off it by three o'clock, leaving the track in fair condition. The race could have been run but for the hasty postponement. The balance of the programme was run off, however, creditable time being made." LINNEUS.

AT NEW YOSK—Track.—In the run.off of the inter-collegiate race at Berkeley Oval, Clarke of Yale won over Greenleaf of Harvard in 6.48 and by a distance of some 15 feet.

AT CINCINNATI—Road—The muddy condition of the road necessitated a one week postponement of the race which was to have been held on the 26th.

MR. COREY AND THE SPRINGFIELD ROADSTER.

As hinted by us some few weeks back, we can now announce authoritively that Mr. H. D. Corey has gone back into the cycle business, and has accepted the important post of Secretary of the Springfield Manufacturing Co.

Mr. Corey was for five years connected with Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co. in the capacity of manager of their Rudge department, but has been out of the business for about six months. Later he was with Pope Co. until his private affairs demanded his attention, but having the position offered him, and believing in the future of the Springfield Roadster Machines, he has returned to a business in which he has made such an excellent record. The company had their machines made in Worcester for the first two years, but with their increasing business they decided to become their own manufacturers, and accordingly have now at Highlaneville, Mass., a large factory, equipped with fine machinery. Some little difficulty has been experienced so far this year in filling orders incident to the erection of new machinery and getting matters into shape, but now, with a factory of large capacity which employs on an average 125 men, they feel that the company is in as good a position to manufacture bicycles as any company in this country. They are catching up with orders and will soon be in good shape.

They have a fine line of agencies and a good established business, and Mr. Corey will occupy about the same position as he did with Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co.

MESSRS. S. & J. DAVIS, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

ORATON HALL corner of Broad and Bridge street, Newark, N. J., is now devoted almost exclusively to bicycle riding. Beginners can have a lesson during the day and every evening up to 10 P. M. Howard A. Smith, proprietor.

F. E. SPOONER, who won the 100 mile race at Chicago in the "indoor record in competition," time of 5.54.40, rode a Victor Light Roadster against others who rode full racing machines. Mr. Scherer, who won the match race at Memphis last week, rode a Victor Safety. Also Mr. Gerwing, who won the Denver road race, rode a Victor Light Roadster.

IRA PEREGO, of New York, whose advertisement appears in this issue, is one of the the largest "sporting sundry" dealers in the country. They are now advertising caps in these columns, and those who are sensible and like light head gear for hot weather, will do well to send Perego an order, as the goods he are bargains.

HOWARD A. SMITH & CO., Newark, N. J., have added to their stock of supplies a lot of "Rush" helmets which intending tourists should examine.

A STRIKING illustration of the ease with which ladies learn to ride the safety bicycle, is that of a young lady of East Orange, N. J., without previous experience on any form of cycle, obtained control of her machine after three-quarters of an hour, and succeeded in mastering the mount on the first attempt. She rides a Special Premier Safety. Mr. Johnson says that of the large number that learned this season, he has yet to find one who has not shown greater aptitude for it than the average man. Lady safety riders are now seen in every direction on the Orange macadams, and the spectacle excites no more comment than does a lady on foot or in a carriage. There is already considerable talk among the ladies of a separate organization in the Oranges, and there is little doubt that a club will soon be formed, composed entirely of lady safety riders.

ONE of the most richly colored advertising hangers we have ever seen is the one issued by the Overman Wheel Co. It represents a martial figure with winged helmet riding a winged wheel. The rich purples, reds, yellows and blues of the lithograph make up a very rich effect. It is handsomely framed in oak and gold, and will prove an ornament to any office or room.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact. that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

Testimonials.

HAMILTON COLLEGE.

CLINTON, N. Y., March 26, 1889.

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO.,

Gentlemen—I would like to add my good word in regard to the Star to that of thousands of others. I have been a wheelman for five years, and have ridden quite a good deal, but have neve seen a bicycle I preferred to yours. I rode it to Boston (from Richfield Springs, N. Y.), the next year to Asbury Park, N. J., and last summer to Atlantic City. Last June I wanted to get from here to Rochester, a distance of 125 miles, and left here at 12, arriving in Rochester at 1 the next day, and I couldn't have done it on any other wheel. I am positive. My Special Star has gone between 5000 and 6000 miles with me, and nothing ever broke except a spring in the pedal, and on that occasion I rode twenty miles with the right pedal alone without inconvenience. Hoping that the Star will continue as popular in the future as in the past, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO., Smithville, N. J.

Sirs—I ship you to-day the wheel of one of your Semi-Racers, which after running three seasons without loosening a spoke or tire, was unfortunately injured in a collision. Please put it in as good and true a shape as it was, as soon as possible. Yours truly,

Gentlemen—This is the third season for my 51-inch Star, and I have had no repairs except one spoke and a brake spring.

Yours respectfully, THOS. E. DIPNES.

TO THE CYCLING PUBLIC. GREETING:

The White Cycle Company, of Westboro, Mass., in making their initial bow to the practical wheeling public, do so with the comfortable consciousness that they have something which will amply reward the investigation of all in search of health upon wheels.

In presenting their catalogue of White Cycles to the public, it gives them great pleasure to say that the "White Flyer" Safety Bicycle is something new, and unlike many novelties in the cycling line (now either, or fast becoming, obselete). The White Cycle Company, of Westboro, have received the endorsement of some of the most noted wheel mechanics and practical cycling authorities, when they say that they have got something good. That is what the practical road-riding American cycler has been crying for all along, and the White Cycle Company are now prepared to give it to him.

The White Cycle Company have noted the rise and fall of many poorly-made and unmechanical absurdities, and when they decided to embark in the cycle business, they did so in a calm spirit, assured of the superior nature of the machine which they intended to place upon the market. They did not go into the cycle business of high-grade cycle construction for "a year, or a day," but to "stay," and appreciated the necessity of doing so handicapped in no way, but fully equipped with the finest plant, the best material, and no lack of financial backing or skillful workmen. Everything is the best that mechanical experts, supplied with the necessary funds, could purchase in the market. They realized from the bitter experience of other manufacturers, that cheap rattle-trap machinery and poor material could result in but one thing,— cheap (?) rattle-trap cycles which would cost much money (in the long run), and would give abominable results, disastrous alike to manufacturer and purchaser.

They appreciated the fact that they had a class of gentlemen-sportsmen to deal with, who by reason of their "press," are constantly educated as to what is what. Knowing that they have men of intelligence to deal with, they have started out to make the highest grade bicycle in any market, both as regards fit and finish of interiors and bearing surfaces, as well as an exterior of the highest possible finish, results which can only be accomplished by using the best of machinery, the best of material, and the most intelligent mechanical assistance on the part of the employés of the Company.

A visit to the model factory of the White Cycle Company, of Westboro, Mass., thirty-two miles (by road and rail) on the Boston & Albany Railroad, will convert the most jaundiced mind to the fact that we have got what we claim to have, and the visitor has only to use his eyes to corroborate our assertions and claims in every way.

"Honesty is the best policy"— in the beginning and in the end. In their perfectly lighted and ventilated factory, which, with the plant, was built for cycle construction at a very great cost, and occupied solely by the White Cycle Company, you will find all the material, machinery and mechanical skill essential to finely-fitted, honestly-constructed, accurate and absolutely interchangeable work. You will also find experts on hand supervising the various processes of manufacture, who are responsible for the accuracy of every nut, screw, bearing, chain-link, etc., which leaves the workmen's hands.

The White Cycle Company have no enemies in the trade: they pay their bills and treat their employés and patrons squarely, yet they start with much opposition from older firms. Realizing this, they are confident that their keynote to success will be touched by excelling all competitors in material and workmanship, and by enabling riders to economically utilize such natural power as is possessed by the average human being in the propulsion of the cycle.

Try our machine (give it a fair trial), learn it (it is easier to learn than any other bicycle), and you will find that up and down grade, on the level, on a good surface, and on an indifferent one, the "White Flyer" is a "corker." Quality of work is our gauge of a mechanic's capability, not quantity; and to avoid "cheap and unsatisfactory" work, we avoid "cheap and inexperienced" workmen. You say that they have got something new. "Yes, they have, and it is going to make its mark in both the English and American markets. What was good enough for the old fogy cycler is not good enough for you, in this age of improvement."

If you are too well posted to learn anything new which will be of benefit to you, you will please hand this catalogue to some wide-awake cycler, with our compliments,— to some nineteenth century chap, who has his eyes open to a good thing, and is not too proud to learn. If he (mounted on a "White Flyer") passes you on the road at a nice lively gait, while you are bent double over your "Crock," and panting like a young robin, do not blame us. We advised you, and you would not listen to us — you neglected to read our catalogue — that was all. This catalogue is compiled by a well-known cycler, who has spent much time and money on cycles, and has had all kinds of experience in riding them; embarking on them and falling "overboard" on all sorts of surfaces, and at all kinds of paces, from a scorch to a dignified ministerial gait. Sometimes this was done gracefully, sometimes upon all fours and both sides simultaneously.

The advantages we claim over other existing types of the cycle are set forth in the remarks which follow this preamble. Hoping that we may have the pleasure of suiting the rapidly-growing legion of American wheelmen with our "White Flyer," which never grows weary, we are, gentlemen,

Most respectfully,

THE WHITE CYCLE COMPANY,

OF WESTBORO, MASS.

ADVANTAGES CLAIMED FOR THE WHITE FLYER SAFETY.

1st. Greater speed, with the same amount of muscular expenditure than can be attained by any system of crank or lever motive power on the cycling market of today.

2d. A motion more natural than a rotary motion.

3d. It is almost impossible to slip a pedal; and if this is done through awkwardness or carelessness, there is no dangerous result attending it.

4th. The motion is calculated to suit the majority of cyclers, and not the few, who on account of their peculiar "build" ride one kind of a machine much better than another.

5th. The motion may be learned by a novice much sooner than any other existing motion. This fact will be appreciated by those who anticipate great difficulty in learning to ride a crank wheel.

6th. It is more comfortable to "coast" on, and more easily steered on down grades than the ordinary rear driver (with foot-rests on the front fork), as the feet do not require to be removed from the pedals, but are stopped at will and used at foot-rests. Being connected with the driving-wheel, steering is rendered easy to the novice.

7th. It will out-coast any other machine. Try it. That's all we have to say on this question.

8th. It is better finished inside and outside than any wheel on any market.

9th. Less friction than a chain-driven, Rover type safety (there are no cogs on this safety), the chain passing over hardened steel pulleys.

10th. There are no "dead centres." Those who use this expression in regard to crank bicycles, with imperfect understanding of its meaning, need do so no longer, if they will take a good look at the accompanying "cut."

TO MR. J. PURVIS-BRUCE,

Take a good look at this. You know you have some time to spare. We shall suppose that we have before us an "ordinary" crank bicycle, and that (for ease of illustration) the front wheel has been marked off like the face of a clock, and the crank indicated by a clock-hand or indicator. Well, if you will but look, you will see what "dead centres" mean. When the hand (or crank) is at twelve o'clock, it is on "dead centre"; when it is at one o'clock, the dead centre has been overcome. When the crank is at three o'clock, the greatest amount of power or maximum of crank leverage is attained. When the crank is at six o'clock it is again on dead centre, and all the way from six o'clock to twelve, absolutely no power can possibly be utilized by the rider upon that pedal, unless his feet were in some way attached (a la Jack Keen) to the pedals, so that an upward pull might be effected. This would be dangerous, and a muscular effort of this nature would be very exhausting.

The figures 3, 6 and 9 are added to give a rider an idea of the leverage of cranks. Thus, a three-inch crank means three inches of leverage: a six-inch crank, six inches of leverage, and a nine-inch crank, nine inches of leverage.

This is as good an illustration as any of what we have had to contend with in crank machines — dead centres.

WHITE CYCLE COMPANY, WESTBORO, MASS.

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE "WHITE FLYER."

This season we place upon the American market a safety bicycle, which, unlike the majority of alleged "safety" bicycles, is safe.

We do not make a cycle for ladies' use this season. We do not believe in machines adapted to both sexes, for, like most "general utility" tools, they are not very good for any one purpose. Our machine does one thing well — carries riders of the masculine persuasion fast and safely, and that's about as much as any one machine can be expected to do.

The WHEELS are each of thirty inches in diameter, and the rear driving wheel is geared to sixty inches. The RIMS are the "Warwick Perfection" (ament which comment is superfluous), the front rim taking a tire of three-fourths of an inch, and the rear wheel a tire of seven-eighths of an inch.

The TIRES are the very finest of Para rubber. The SPOKES are tangential, of the finest obtainable material. The hubs are graceful in outline, and of the very best of steel.

The BEARINGS of the machine are ROLLERS, and the adjustment of the points so delicate that the bearings are positively dust-proof. The bearings will, without adjustment or touching (except, of course, occasional oiling), wear as long as the machine itself. Some people may say, "Why do you not put in ball-bearings?" Well, simply, my friends, because it is an absolute impossibility to make a perfectly accurate sphere of steel. There is not a ball-bearing in the market that has a roll of balls in its bearing-case with anything like uniformity. Micrometer and sensitive scale tests have proved this, and one ball in a bearing-case, varying the one-thousandth part of an inch from its fellows, will raise the devil with the running of the bearing. A roller-bearing can be turned with positive accuracy, so that variations of even the four-thousandth part of an inch would unsuit it for the bearing-cases which are placed on the White Flyer.

UNIQUE METHODS OF ADVERTISING

And why was the old roller-bearing discarded? Simply because it was an imperfect absurdity, which twisted and jammed, and was a source of annoyance and mistrust and danger to the rider of twelve years ago. As soon as the ball-bearing was invented, "the trade" discarded the then imperfect roller-bearing, and used the ball bearing instead. But if you put properly hardened steel rollers in a case where there is no room to twist, they will "out-coast old coaster himself." You can easily prove this on the road. We don't need to howl about a thing which we can prove.

The front wheel of a White Flyer fitted with their perfected (and perfect) roller-bearing, ran fourteen minutes and ten and two-fifths seconds — not by computation, but by the watch — and any one of them will do it, as the most perfect system of interchangeability is insisted upon by the White Cycle Company.

The TUBING is the finest obtainable Credenda steel tubing. We do away with brazings as much as possible, and gain strength thereby. The Mud-guard is put on "to stay" or to detach easily, and is not musical, there being no "rattling accompaniment." We believe that this is a luxury which most riders are willing to deny themselves,—a noisy mud-guard.

The SADDLE-POST is a hollow steel tube, and is light and strong, and adjustable to suit the requirements of a tall or short rider.

The SADDLE is the unexcelled "Keystone" saddle. The saddle-spring is sufficiently pliable for comfort on the roughest of roads, and admits of a proper spring, fore and aft. We do not believe in saddles such as are on the market, built on the mole-tray or mouse-trap plan, which are so springy that they absorb about half the power which should be transmitted direct to the point where the driving-wheel comes in contact with the ground. When you lay out muscular effort you like to feel the wheel move forward, not to feel the saddle-spring double up. In our machine you have an adequate return for all muscular expenditure.

When a ship is towed astern of a tug, they use a stiff hawser, not a flexible rubber rope, as they wish to pull that ship into port. We use a spring which does not absorb power, therefore we calculate to get there. We put no "spring arrangement" on our front fork, for we do not believe in such things; we have tried both, you know. We are not proud, and like to be able to steer our wheel to a hair's-breadth on the road, and keep our feet on the pedals while rushing a down grade. You can do this with a rigid and stiff front fork. With a spring fork, never. The Brake is not put on for ornament, and though it is a marvel of elegance in the matter of outline and finish, still you can actually stop your wheel with it, and you do not (when you apply it) bend the brake-handle up to the handle-bar, either. It is fashioned after the plunger pattern. The Steering-head is of the good old reliable cone-bearing type improved by us, so that you can tighten it up so that there is no side play, and yet it moves with perfect freedom. We have tried ball-bearing heads and "fired" them. (They made us "so weary," you know.)

We are getting dreadfully practical and matter-of-fact in our old age. We used to experiment in ball-heads and spring forks, but our bill for repairs was excessive. We are not so extravagant as we used to be.

In our STEERING-HEAD we have got something undoubtedly fine. It has long been admitted that the cone-head was the finest steering-head for cycles, if it could be made so that when it was sufficiently tight it would not bind, and yet sufficiently loose to move easily without rattling. We have at last solved this bane of cone-bearing heads, by introducing an "automatic adjustable" cone-head. If you will ride your "crock" in a blistering hot day, you will find that the cone-head will work loose; if you take it out in a cold day, you will notice that the head works tightly. Why? Simply because the heat expanded the outer case of the head, while cold weather contracted it, and the inner neck-pin was comparatively unaffected by heat or cold.

We have met and answered this difficulty, and now have it under control, by introducing a rubber washer of such construction, that it is unaffected by oil, which allows the head to be screwed down tight, and yet to move easily; which allows the steering-head to move as easily on a cold day as on a warm one, and never to rattle, even under the influence of the blistering glare of an Arizona sun. This thing must be seen and used to be appreciated. One of the big American makers will recognize in this a thing which he tried to buy, but we managed to get there ahead of him.

The HANDLES are hard rubber and peculiarly cool and comfortable to the grip, and rather longer than the ordinary handle, permitting a greater variety of hand-position. The CHAIN is one of our own design, and is neater and better finished than any other chain on the market. As there are no sprocket wheels to run over, it is made narrower than other chains, being thus lighter and neater.

The SWING-FRAME is made of the very finest material, and as it folds back toward the rear wheel, it cannot be broken by a large stone on a rough road, as in the case of a rotary safety pedal. It does not hang as near the road-surface as does the pedal on rotary motion safety bicycles.

The FORKS and all the tubing are round in section, of the best Credenda steel. We make them round, as fittings can thus be made with greater accuracy than with oval or flat tubes, and better and stronger brazings can be effected. You can "turn" a round tube more perfectly than any other shape.

The PEDALS are so adjusted that they can be stopped in any position, and by equal pressure of both feet they become foot-rests. The length of the stroke can be varied: pushing one pedal down raises the other a corresponding distance. There are no springs used to draw the pedals back to the starting-point; the weight of the one pedal, when it is pressed down, raises the other one. A very good point in this machine is that any person affected by a stiff knee, or one whose leg has been injured, so as to make one shorter than the other, can, by adjusting the pedal and driving-chain, suit the peculiar conditions. The swing or guide frame hanging from the backbone, on which the pedals move up and down, can be thrust while the rider is in motion to almost any angle. Thus, if he wishes a vertical tread, the frame can be swung so that the pedals come well under the saddle. If, on the contrary, the rider wishes to change the position, and get more of the thrust stroke which uses the thigh muscles (as in a rotary motion crank safety), this can instantly be done by swinging the frame toward the front wheel. This ability to vary the stroke will rest the rider, who, if he rides an ordinary crank safety, may often weary of the monotony of a never-changing motion, and yet, by the peculiar construction of his machine, he is unable to change it. With the White Flyer this is different.

When the driving pedal is on top of the guide-frame, and in the beginning of a stroke, the construction is such that the rider has more leverage than at any other point in the whole stroke. The leverage lessens as the pedal moves down, and as the legs straighten out, thus equalizing the force to be exerted necessary to drive the machine.

It is the business man's wheel par excellence, and the "scorcher" will find in it a machine "after his own heart." As we desire to cater to the tastes of men who know, from actual experience, what looks best and is most serviceable in the way of enamel, we have decided to enamel the machine in such portions where nickel-plating has been found to be a failure. We put nickel on such portions of the White Flyer as will give it the most workmanlike and artistic finish and appearance.

Our cycle factory at Westboro, Mass., was built expressly for the construction of the highest possible grade of cycles, according to the instructions and plans of practical cycle manufacturing authorities. It is owned and occupied entirely by The White Cycle Company, and none but practical men who are authorities in their special line, are employed by the Company. We employ no professional riders to create records of more or less accuracy, and believe that the mission of the cycle is to be a fast and safe vehicle, rather than an acrobat's plaything. It is safe to say that there is no cycle manufactory on earth so well appointed, and none which has better facilities for making absolutely accurate work.

If you have time and inclination, drop down and see the factory. It is open to every one; you can be shown through and believe for yourself. We have nothing to hide, and nothing to be ashamed of. We have the model factory of the world, and we will gladly travel a long way to see a better one. We will always be pleased to inspect designs in relation to cycles, and should they prove good, practical ideas, we are prepared to pay well for the patent rights.

The White Cycle Company start out handicapped in no way. They have plenty of funds and everything requisite for the manufacture of high-grade cycles.

The cut is a fair representation of the machine. The motion is not awkward or ugly, as in the case of several of the unmechanical abortions which have been a waste of material and a hindrance to enjoyable cycling in this country.

Mr. Frederick White is the inventor of this machine, and has spent much time in perfecting it. He is the same gentleman who climbed Corey Hill on a tricycle weighing one hundred pounds, of his own construction, in '85, when that hill had been ridden but once that year on a light tricycle. Much could be said for the machine, but the experience of actual riding this season will be better praise than all the newspaper advertising.

Mr. J. Parvis-Bruce, of the famous English "scorching" club, "The Ripley Road Club," is with the Company, and will go among the boys with the new "goat." He will meet his many old friends and make new ones. The White Cycle Company's factory is at Westboro, thirty-two miles from Boston, on the Boston and Albany road. The road from Boston to Westboro is very good. Those intending to visit the factory had better come by way of Boston Common, out Beacon Street to Newton Lower Falls, then by Wellesley, Natick and South Framingham. Here you can either take the shortest road by way of Framingham and Ashland to Westboro, or by way of Southboro to Westboro, which is two miles longer, but a better road. If you come out some Saturday, bring your pipe with you. You will find "Jack" there, unless he is in New Orleans, or Montana, or some other place. "Look out for the White cycles."

NEW MAIL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 18th, 1889.

MR. H. W. HIGHAM, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that "The New Mail" Safety bicycle, which I recently purchased from you, as the representative of the Messrs. Wm. Read & Sons, Boston, is an unqualified success.

The amount of ground I have to cover, and the hills I have to climb, daily, demand a good, speedy, staunch and reliable machine. The "New Mail" has all these qualities in a marked degree; the brake action on the rear axle being especially commendable.

My brother wheelmen that I meet daily on the road, all express their admiration of my wheel, and I argue with all of them, "Why buy imported wheels, when Uncle Sam can turn out a steed like this?"

With all success to American industries, and especially to "The New Mail," I remain,

Yours truly,

C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

To our request to use the testimonial, we received the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20th, 1889.

MESSRS. READ & SONS, BOSTON:

Gentlemen—By all means use my letter of recommendation. Greater strength and force is added day by day the remarks therein.

I have not let up on my enthusiasm about your "New Mail Safety;" It only increases; no let up whatever, none.

Very truly yours,

C. W. SOMMERVILLE.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 7 JUNE, 1889.

A REMINDER has again been bestowed on those who think that the racing rules of the L. A. W. can be ignored. We would raise the voice of warning to riders who do not desire to be suspended, not only by the L. A. W. but probably by all of the amateur athletic associations of America. Mr. Curtis, the Referee in the late inter-collegiate race at New York, writes a very able letter to the Spirit of the Times, and defines the relations existing between the L. A. W. and the other amateur associations. The N. A. A. A. of A. and the Intercollegiate A. Association adopted the rules verbatim of the L. A.W. as these rules were in 1888, but did not make any provision to adopt the changes of the L. A. W. rules as they were made, hence the rules of 1888 govern bicycle events in the N. A. A. A. of A. and the Intercollegiate A. Association to-day. On the other hand the Amateur Athletic Union simply agreed to be governed by the L. A. W. rules, whatever they might be at the time of the event.

The N. A. A. A. of A. and the Intercollegiate A. A. will no doubt change their rule to read as does that of the Union, and thus all cycling events run under the auspices of both associations will have to be run under our rules.

In the meantime all the participants in the Intercollegiate race at New York have been suspended by the racing Board until Aug. 1st.

WE are advised on most excellent authority that certain agents, whose ideas of honesty can scarce be passed on with approval, are in the habit of eradicating the numbers on rival machines that through some cause have been broken and then fallen into their hands. These individuals, we are told, then show the disabled wheels and tell what story they please as to how the damage was done. The destruction of the numbers prohibits corroboration, because the only clue to following the cycle's true history is obliterated. Such methods are worse than contemptible, and we can only earnestly warn all would-be purchasers against any man who would stoop so low as to employ the methods of damaging a rival's reputation, as described and complained of above.

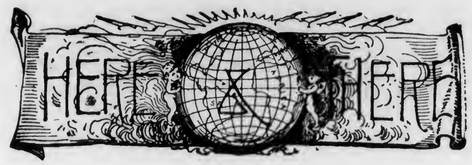
Reputable dealers and agents do not have to employ such disreputable methods, and if such men as those who wilfully destroy the identity of a machine and then lie about it were driven out of the business the cycle trade would be purged of a loathsome load. That such creatures are fortunately few and far between makes it none the less outrageous and demoralizing.

SAFETIES AND ORDINARIES IN RACES.

A GENTLEMAN with a number, hailing from Newport, wants to know why "safeties" should not be allowed in races where ordinary bicycles are ridden, and volunteers the information that the safety is the faster machine. If this gentleman wants to know why they are barred, let him ride a 22-pound "ordinary" in a path race where safety bicycles are permitted to compete, and he will find that the handles of a safety are at such a height that they are not essential to the happiness of the rider of an "ordinary," whose pedals are in constant danger when passing or being passed by a "safety" rider. It is one sided, Mr. No. 17,291, and therefore unfair, and it is the aim of every cleanly athletic organization to permit no unfair or one-sided conditions to mar the pleasure of any class or portion of a class. And as for your riding a mile under three minutes, on a Rover type safety, with your hands tied behind your back, I have an opinion, and ten dollars to back it, that you are only romancing and can't do any such thing—not a little bit. Yes, my friend, "that would be a slight proof that the safety will run steady." The safety rider WILL take a header, and an ugly one, from slipping a pedal, as history has shown, and has endangered the lives of more men on the track than any "ordinary" rider. Your letter has the smack of genuine sportsmanship, when you say you'd like to see "Kangaroo" bicycles used in races in which all other machines were excluded. This is as it should be, and if you'd add "in Oklohoma at midnight," much grief would be spared us. You finish up by wishing that your letter may do some good, well that's right, your intentions were good and your motives philanthrophic, but such missives generally set a lot of cranks to chattering, and that is tiresome. The law has been passed; it is seen to be a just one. Let us observe it, and forever hold our peace. A safety bicycle is as distinct a type of cycle from on an ordinary bicycle as a rifled cannon is from a smooth bore, as a "sulky" is from a dog-cart, as a pug-dog is from a tom cat. They have in common two wheels, tubular barrels and four legs respectively.

Place an ordinary and a safety up against a wall near each other, walk back ten paces, and then let us know if your optical sense still clings to the idea of wonderful resemblance. There are some men who have difficulty at times in noting the difference between chalk and cheese, and find close resemblance between a hole in the ground and other things, but these men are gradually wilting before the strong searching light of common sense, and next century's men and women (we trust) will find them still on the decrease.

"JACK."



GOOD FOR THE PENNSYLVANIA CENTRAL.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company will abolish the charge heretofore exacted for transportation of bicycles. Instructions have just been issued to all baggage agents of the system, embracing, besides the main line, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, the Baltimore and Potomac, the Alexandria and Fredericksburg, the Northern Central, the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic Railroads, to accept and carry free of charge bicycles, tandem bicycles or tricycles when accompanied by their owners. This regulation took effect June 1, and it will be heartily appreciated by all the wheelmen.

HAL GREENWOOD CHALLENGES THE WORLD.

HAL GREENWOOD authorizes me to issue a challenge for a hill climbing contest, to take place within four months anywhere in the United States, to any amatuer in America, for a $50 or $100 medal, best two out of three climbs, and the loser to pay all traveling and training expenses of the winner. If there is anybody in America who wishes to take up this challenge, he will be immediately accommodated by addressing H. W. Greenwood, 517 Washington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

LINNEUS.

FROM THE TOMB.

"JACK."

For the past month I have been entombed, though not arrayed in grave clothes. Start not, gentle reader, when I say that I feel buried alive, or like a huckleberry in a pan of milk, or a goose egg in a bucket of tar or a whangdoodle's egg lying lonely and un-sat-upon in the centre of the blistering Sahara. I am lonesome, and my off leg has taken to creaking so that I meditate purchasing a tin ankle and grasshopper spring to facilitate locomotion. My company-loving spirit is crushed and is cold and unresponsive, as is a buckwheat cake that has been trod under foot. Why was I sent to blossom in the wilderness, with no loving girlish hand near to sooth my throbbing head? no flutter and swish of feminine apparel to cast a reasonable amount of companionship over the scene? I am in Westboro'—buried in this boro, and I borrow comfort from the fact that the burrow of ye Towne Clubbe in Boston is only some thirty-two miles distant.

Westboro' may be called the second "City of Churches," having one church to every three feminine inhabitants. The inhabitants (without counting the old settlers in the four graveyards) number between five and six thousand. Prohibition, with her sweet girlish ways, forces men to drink Moxie and other wild inspiring compounds, and it is a long time between drinks. I wonder what the governors of North and South Carolina would do in this man's town. I am growing morose and appear in the gate of the city with one suspender and shoes that don't match, and sometimes cheer myself up by taking a walk in the graveyards, "to drive away my care."

Here lies as never lied before,
T. Ananias Eli Perkins;
He might have lived to lie some more,
If he'd not eaten them green ghirkins.

I see that my fellow-scribe, "Hawkshaw," thinks that a bath brush and a razor are not nearly as necessary to the happiness of a wheelman as a strong pair of legs and a good wheel. But given these two latter, what's the matter with a Kennedy-Child corkscrew (a portable one) and a Ripley Road thirst—one of those thirsts which belong to the "honest drinker," who never leaves anything in the bottom of the glass, and temperate imbiber who never takes more than one drink at a time?

Much strategy is being employed to succeed Lord Tennyson as Poet Laureate, when that appendage of the royal household drops off to pain us no more. I am going to try to succeed him by fair and above-board method and by honest work. Here are two verses which, through the lorgnette of the literary idiot, might be full of occult and subtle undercurrents of psychological meaning:

The lad he did the standstill act
Upon the steamer's deck;
The boat went down, he cracked his crown,
And got it in the neck.

The girl rode on the safety bike,
She was "upon her muscle;"
She would have gone as fast again
Unfettered by her— umbrella.

Some of Thompson's latter-day hysterical versifications have suggested to me the eulogistic criticisms of nature by some artist whose copy had been "pied" in the type by the printer's devil setting the "growler" upon it. I once followed Lord Tennyson (in one of his poems) into a swamp somewhere in the English "Fen" district at an hour when the sun blazed like a fierce carbuncle in in the glowing west. (I have since wished that Tennyson had the fierce carbuncle "on the neck," as he left me to flounder about in the fen district with no more company than a few "sage-hens" and a coot or two.) Since then I have eaten food that I could digest, and have read Oliver Wendell Holmes, and Artemus, Ward and George R. Sims, and Milton, and Joe Howard, and Shakespeare, and Hawkshaw, and Eugene Field, and other celebrated pen-slingers, and have made better use of my time than reading hysterical nocturnes by æsthetic salaried howlers.

Browning is all very well with the five o'clock tea, or for unmarriageable women to rave over, but I like better value, even if it is old Sterne with his delightful double entendres, or Byron with his insidious poison, which only hurts those natures who read him without being innoculated by the same virus which impelled him to write so many gems. Let us not forget that the toad has a jewel in his eye when we read Smollet or Swift, Voltaire, Lola or Ouida, and that only a blunt nature can fail to appreciate the realisms of the portraitures. The nude in art is chaste, why is it not chaste to be true to life in literature. It is not literature but life that is to blame. Prudery may do for the boarding school, but it never turned out fearlessly thinking men or women whose opinion was worth recording.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

Decoration Day certainly proved that the term "wheel world" is fast becoming to mean just what it literally expresses. In every state, city, town and village of this broad land, flashed the spokes of thousands of wheels. Here in New York, every road from early morning till late at night, was thronged with a legion of wheel women and men. Every style of wheel, from the early antique of the bone shaker period to the airy cycle of the latest pattern, were coasted, scorched, loafed upon by riders of every age, condition and color, until one was almost convinced that this world had indeed gone wheel crazy. To the observer who looks beneath the surface of the affairs of life, it was a sight that was a goodly one, as from this widespread indulgence in God's pure air naught but good can come. As I snailed along on a tandem safety, and saw this rushing crowd of cyclers everywhere, upon whose cheeks the roses of health were painted by nature, not art, I could not refrain from thinking how wise were the words of Dryden when he says:

"Better to hunt in fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught.
The wise for cure on exercise depend:
God never meant his work for men to mend."

While my mind is yet upon Decoration Day and the wheelmen's good employment of it, I cannot refrain from noting the peculiar action of the Grand Army of the Republic, who in Los Angeles, Cal., protested against the cyclers parading on that day. To us here in the East, where horse racing, athletic games, theatres and a thousand other forms of innocent amusement on that day make a bid for the attendance of the public without any protest from any one on the score of the day being a solemn one, the action of these ex-soldiers in far off California seems foreign to the age, the day and the broad ideas of fair mindedness that we have always learned to expect when California was the theatre of action. To me, I can see but little difference between the G. A. R. parading with banners flying behind a band playing "razzle-dazzle" as befitting the solemness of the occasion, and of the wheelmen doing the same thing, except that they dispensed with the musical part of the affair, and proceeded quietly and soberly upon their way. To tell the truth, I think a parade of wheelmen is decidedly one of the most gloomly and funeralistic affairs known to man, and where riders can be found to indulge in this most pitiful display of themselves. I know no more appropriate occasion for the display than upon some day like this, when it is proper that men's thoughts should be attuned to sadness.

Do you know that the pedals upon a wheel are the most servile pieces of machinery in the world? Well, they are: for the more they are down-trodden the more efficiently they perform their duties.

Captain Miller, of the New York Club, has a six-year-old son who is a cycling prodigy, and will I think compare favorably in his wheeling performances with either young Mohrig of California, or Schwalbach of Brooklyn. This young gentleman, last week, in company with his father, rode a boy's ordinary bicycle over seventeen miles of New York park and suburban roads, and finished in good condition. Master Tom, as the young gentleman is named, frequently drives his wheel the entire length of the Riverside Drive and back, a distance of six miles, taking all hills and making the entire journey without a dismount. Now trot out your juvenile prodigies; this is the best one New York has, and if you can beat Tommie we will cry enough.

You of course know that New Yorkers are a very slow, easy going set of people, at all times averse to betting or any other form of "sporting" life, yet once in a great while even our sluggish blood gets stirred up by seeing what we think is a real good thing to bet on and then you ought just see us let go our money, some of us having been known to bet as much as $5, though of course when we did so we were sure we couldn't lose it. Now just such a state of affairs has happened since we read the communication from "L. A. W. 17,291" in your last issue, in which he says he is able to ride a safety a mile under three minutes with his hands tied behind his back. This is too much for even our poor quality of sporting blood, and if you will kindly put "No. 17,291" in communication with me, I think I can arrange it so as to give him a chance to win both gold and glory by riding that mile under three minutes with his hands tied behind his back. Notice of funeral later.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

The Cincinnati Bicycle Club is afflicted with several members who might be appropriately named "Men-afraid-of-getting-their-bicycles-muddy." On two occasions recently have runs been postponed because it was feared the roads were too muddy. On the first occasion, however, your correspondent, who is not much of a rider, went to Hamilton via Carthage and returned via College Hill (47.6 miles), and found the roads, especially on the return, very good and the coasts delightful. On the second occasion, accompanied by Charley Ross, he went via Venice, New Haven and Harrison to Miamitown, returning via Harrison Pike (50.2 miles) and found the roads, though somewhat muddy at first, so smooth between Bevis and Harrison (15.8 miles) that the temptation to scorch was irresistable.

The "Duke" has a new and odd looking mount. The wheels are 32-inch front and 26 rear, and the gear 61 3-4. Such a high gear may be all right where the roads are smooth and the grades easy, but on our rough and hilly roads it is entirely too high.

The road race for the medals offered by Mr. Bennett has been postponed to June 9th, on account of the condition of roads. The championship race of the C. B. C. will probably be postponed to June 30, as the roads have not been in a condition favorable to training.

Decoration Day was not observed to any extent by local wheelmen, as the amount of rain that fell measured 1.12 inches.

The Kentons and Newports, with some of the wheelmen from this side of the river will attend the meet of the Kentucky Division, at Danville, on the 10th inst.

BUFFALO.

"ALI BABA."

The century run of the Buffalo Bicycle Club has come and gone. There was every indication of a successful and well managed trip. Captain Donaldson had everything planned to the nicest detail, and nearly fifty of our riders had promised that they would follow him "thro' din and smoke." But the weather was so wet, cold and uncertain on Wednesday that those who did appear at the boat's dock that evening had on their overcoats or were possessed of some other good wearing apparel. Great anxiety was felt in regard to the weather, consequently only 24 members were on board as the old boat left her dock.

I suspected, before starting, that the vessel would have to be a staunch craft to contain all the fun that she would be compelled to carry, and fun it was; even the captain and purser, who were well known, couldn't resist, and became as one of the crowd.

Some of the boys were wont to turn in early, especially those who could not safely remain outside their berths in a somewhat rough sea. It was about 10 o'clock when the wind increased in violence, and the rain came down in torrents. We were routed out just as we were making a last desperate attempt at a good nap. It was 3.30 when we all sat down to a light lunch (sandwiches and coffee). At 4.45 each took possession of his wheel, and, the shower having abated, wended our way to the Reed House. Here a council of war, lasting over an hour took place. Finally the sky became brighter, and the Captain with a reconnoitring party rode over about three miles of the route. The Captain returned to report, but the rest of his brave followers held their ground. On the Captain's return another shower came up, and down went our spirits. Our brave scouts did not return, and we could not go to their assistance. The train would soon be due. Unwillingly most of us hoisted most of our wheels into the baggage car and and made for Buffalo at a 38-miles-an-hour gait.

But not so with ten of our hard riders. This last shower proved to be only local, and when the Captain didn't return, this reconnoitring party supposed that he had met some other foe and was slain, elected Mr. C. W. Adams General. A hot pace was made to Westfield, thirty-three miles away, and then two weak brothers cried enough and took to the train. At this point only eight tough 'uns remained, and they rode on to victory or death, keeping well together. At Fredonia they were kindly entertained by Miss Clark and Miss Taylor, at the residence of Miss Clark. Silver Creek was reached at 2.27 o'clock (fifty-nine and a half miles). Hedge and Brogau both felt in such high spirits as to make it a comparatively easy matter to climb that famous Silver Creek Hill. To cut the story short, the club house was reached at 9.30 P. M., in the midst of a hard rain storm. Total distance, 100 1-2 miles; riding time, 10 hourt 55 minutes, or a trifle over nine miles an hour.

C. W. Adams, who is perhaps the hardest rider in Buffalo, says that he has ridden a wheel for six years, but ventures the assertion that this was the toughest run that was ever made by a body of Buffalo wheelmen. The wind was something fearful, and dead ahead all day long, making it necessary on some of the hills, which ordinarily would be coasted, to push the pedals to keep going. Add to this a heavy road and flurries of raid all day, and the conditions for an enjoyable run were reduced to a minimum. However they got there I can't understand, unless (don't give it away) Witch Hazel did it.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

The Associated Cycling Clubs of Philadelphia have proven beyond cavil the success that lies in unity of action. Ever since the inception of the association, a year ago, efforts have been made to organize a demonstration which should be a joint affair on the part of all the clubs, but it was reserved for Decoration Day, last week, to show how popular such a movement would be. At short notice—action having been taken at the meeting only one week previous—the wheelmen of the city turned out to the number of one hundred, meeting at the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club house at ten o'clock. President W. R. Tucker would have been in command of the run but being unable to attend the charge devolved on Vice President Collins.

Up Belmont avenue the procession moved in columns of twos, with the clubs in the following order, according to date of organization: Philadelphia Bicycle Club, 11 men; Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, 32 men; Century Wheelmen, 22 men; Tioga Cycling Club, 5 men; South End Wheelmen, 12 men; Mount Vernon Wheelmen, 11 men; unattached, 7 men. Being a holiday the park was filled with crowds of people, and the wheelmen came in for many admiring glances from scores of bright eyes.

The route lay along City Line and Bryn Mawr avenue to Lancaster pike, then to Devon, where, after a short halt for the adjustment of toilets, the cyclers again moved in a body upon the Devon Inn, where dinner had been arranged for.

Promptly on the hour the hungry wheelmen were ushered into the dining room, where they discussed an elaborate menu for over an hour. Although it rained heavily for a little while, the showers finally ceased, and the party succeeded in getting back to the city without a wetting and with mutual congratulations on the success of the first inter-club run of the Associated Cycling Clubs.

Taxis' misfortune in the Irvington-Milburn race undoubtedly deprived us of the winner. Just before starting he broke his glasses and being very near-sighted the strain proved too great and he was compelled to drop out. The surprise was in the poor showing made by some of the men from whom great things had been expected.

Preparations for the reception of the tourists on the New York-Philadelphia century run have been finally arranged. The party will come down the Pennsylvania side, the roads being in better condition than on the Jersey shore, and will be met at Holmesburg by the inter-club run called for that purpose by the several club Captains, which will leave the Century Club house at 4 o'clock. The riders will be taken to the Century house, where the wheels will be stored, and thence to the Continental Hotel, for dinner, by our celebrated system of "rapid transit"—the horse cars. All city cyclers are invited to join this dinner, which has been placed at the very low figure of $1 per head. Starting next morning from the Century headquarters the visitors will be taken on a ride through Fairmount Park and out the Lancaster pike, which the ladies of the party are expected to enjoy with the men. We hope to see a large number come over, certainly more than last year, when poor George Hart stayed out at the rink till after midnight to store the machines of—two riders.

Suit has been brought by the Pope Mfg. Co., in the United States Circuit Court, against the Strong & Green Cycle Co., for infringing upon its patents. The Overman Co. have also brought suit against Strong & Green.

Two excursions on the water are booked for the summer. The Camden Wheelmen will have a moonlight trip on the steamer "Thos. Clyde" on June 14, and the South End Wheelmen have engaged the mammoth "Republic" for a Cape May excursion later in the season.

Owing to the crowded condition of the wheel space in the Phila-elphia Bicycle Club's house, that organization has been compelled to limit its list of lady memberships to thirty. This will probably be amended upon the completion of the proposed addition to the club house.

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

I enclose you herewith results of the races held at Elm City on Decoration Day. The races were the best the club has had for years, and they brought out some racing material we did not know we possessed. Now if Meriden thinks she can get away with us, why not just let her put an amateur team against us on the road and we will show the Silver City how we can ride? Further, if she thinks we cannot entertain, just ask the four Meriden Club boys that came down to see us on Decoration Day how they enjoyed the New Haven Club's hospitality? [Races in the reading columns.—Ed.]

We had a smoker in the evening after the races, and we had a very enjoyable time, though an impromptu affair. John Verhoeff gave some fine recitations, Mr. Le Heup sang several choice selections, Mr. C. E. Larom rendered some musical gems, Mr. Bartlet did some fine balancing, Mr. Fields did some fancy bicycle riding, Mr. Rowe some "high kicking."

Mr. G. A. Pickett went to the Providence races and brought back the Kodak Camera, first prize in the safety race and a revolver, second prize in the one-mile handicap. He rides a safety and is a strong rider.

Can some one give us the R. R. fare from here to Hagerstown and return, for the League Meet? [As yet no special rates have been obtained.—Ed.]

BALTIMORE.

"NORVAL."

President Cushwa, of the Hagerstown Club, has been on an extended trip through the Shenandoah and Cumberland valleys, stopping wherever wheelmen were found, to hold meetings and talk up the League Meet, and many wheelmen expressed their desire of attending the meet.

Rev. Robert A. Mayo, Rector of the Chapel of the Atonement, Chester street, near Biddle, sailed in the White Star steamship Germania, for Liverpool, Wednesday, May 29, from New York. Mr. Mayo, who is an enthusiastic bicyclist, will make a cycle tour of southwestern England.

Three hundred entry blanks for the races at the League Meet at Hagerstown were mailed last week. This week work on the race track will begin, and it is to be a fine one, too.

The railroad companies have all fallen into line, and will carry wheels free to and from the meet.

E. D. Lowe has resigned the captaincy of the Chesapeake Wheelmen on account of press of business. William Holland is acting Captain until the next regular meeting.

The past storm has done considerable damage to the roads, giving them a regular wash-out.

SYRACUSE.

"SALINA."

Memorial Day found forty-five members of the Syracuse Cycling Club at Rome, where a tournament was held under the auspices of the Rome Bicyling Club. The trip was made by train, as many of our cyclers were entered in the races. In the parade the Syracusans were given the right of the line, and were awarded the prize for the largest club in line, and also for the best drilled club.

The races at the park were naturally the feature of the day, and were witnessed by nearly three thousand people. The first event—half mile dash, open—was won by Fuller, Rome in 1 42, Chapin Syracuse Cycle Club, 1.43, Lancaster Cycle Club, 1.45. Syracuse also took second and fourth in a two mile handicap, 440 yards limit; second in the mile safety, first in fancy riding, second in the one mile open, first in the one mile tandem, and first and fourth in the one mile team race. This makes a total of three firsts and four seconds to the credit of Syracuse. Taking into consideration that this is really the first appearance of Syracuse riders in a tournament, "Salina" feels justly proud of the club and its flyers.

It was generally conceded by the spectators in the grand stand at Rome that Captain Chapin rode in best form of any man on the race track. He bends over a very little, holds his shoulders still and moves his head from side to side, in unision with his pedaling.

The Arlington Hotel was L. A. W. headquarters, and was awake all night. However, the reveling was mild and the fun fast and furious. The Rome boys are to be congrarulated on their success, and have proven their executive abilities. Special mention might be made of Messrs. Fuller, Pitman, Parker and Bliss, who were very attentive to the Syracuse cyclers. Should they ever come this way, anything we own, or can own, is theirs.

We thought that ere this "Salina's" identity would be exposed to the cold, cold world, and then—then—well, we don't like to think of such an unpleasant event. The least we can do is to thank our esteemed fellow-correspondent, "Ariel," for so kindly withdrawing his terrible threat to reveal the Syracuse correspondent's identity.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

There is a bicycle club in a certain Western city called the Romeo Club. The members are a romantic lot of fellows. Their favorite time for riding is at night, when the stars twinkle and the coy young moon casts soft rays o'er the landscape. Each rider carries a mandolin and is proficient in the use of same, and can also sing at all the tender serenades of the sixteenth century. It is imperative that each member should possess a Juliet, and a strong movement is on foot requiring long hair and love locks, etc. The Romeos will go to Hagerstown July 4.

We wonder when certain racing men of the country will learn that the Racing Board mean to enforce the rules. If experience be a good teacher, then some fellows ought to be well taught.

Albert Gagneaux, one of the veteran riders of the Baltimore Cycle Club, arrived home from Europe last Sunday, on the steamer Etruria, of the Cunard line.

A large number of the Baltimore Cycle Club, under the Captaincy of William A. Black, will bicycle to Hagerstown League meet via Havre de Grace, Wrightsville, York, Gettysburg and Monterey Springs, leaving their club house on Eutaw place at 12.30 P. M. Saturday, June 29th, reaching Hagerstown Tuesday, July 2d at 9 A. M.

Frank J. McNally was arrested in Boston last week for stealing and selling a bicycle belonging to Mr. H. G. Stratton. It is probable that Frank will be boarded at the public's expense.

A Road Bill is to be presented to the Legislature of Georgia in which embodied a clause compelling all persons between the ages of 16 and 50 to work the roads each year such number of days—not to exceed eight—as may be ordered by the Road Commissioner. A clause will also be inserted providing that convicts be used in road building and repairing.

The Illinois Club of Chicago are all right. Witness the following from a Chicago correspondent: "Please note that notwithstanding a certain paper has stated 'the Illinois Cycling does not seek honors on the race track but contents itself with taking long runs in the country," during the late tournament the I. C. C. boys captured twenty-one out of fifty-two prizes given, with eleven clubs to compete against."

We are in receipt of a number of letters and postals endorsing our advice to use a straw hat as a summer head gear. Except in the face of a gale there is nothing like it for looks or comfort.

Honors to Bert Myers on his return to Peoria from Chicago were tendered him, in the shape of a banquet by his friends. Mr. Myers in his week's racing at Chicago took seven firsts, two seconds and one third prize, a record Mr. Myers and his admirers may be justly proud of.

Captain Hildebrand, of the Missouri Bi. Club of St. Louis, who has just returned from Europe, has been in Washington and was shown much kind attention by the riders of the capital. Capt. Hildebrand was enthusiastic over the roads and streets of Washington, and considering his late experience on European roads his commendation amounts to something.

In speaking of the races at Rome, N. Y., May 30th, an exchange says the "contests passed off good humoredly," what ever that may mean.

Terry Andrae, of Milwaukee, is to be "dined" by his fellow wheelmen in recognition of the fine showing he made at the Chicago tournament.

Massachusetts members should remember the date of the spring meet of the division at Squantum, June 17th.

The rising generation of physicians in Milwaukee are "taking steps" to learn to ride the bicycle, so they can use same for long distance calls. The "steps taken" so far have been of the initiatory character, and some of the "steps" have been quite painful.

Miss Alice A. Adams, of West Canton street, Boston, while riding her tricycle on Beacon street caught her tricycle wheel in the electric conduit and was thrown violently. Her physician fears serious internal injury.

Washington, D. C., May 21, 1889.

L. B. Gaylor, Esq., Dear Sir:

Two weeks have elapsed since I received my Eagle Bycycle, during which time I have given the machine a most severe test, through which it has passed without even a spoke becoming loose. The most severe test during that time was that of riding over all the rough places I could find in and around the city, across lots, up and down steep banks, up and down high curbstones and over obstructions of all kinds, which is a terrible strain on the material and workmanship of a bicycle, through which the Eagle went without getting even a scratch, not meeting an obstacle that it could not mount.

I have never, during my experience, ridden a wheel that runs so smoothly, easily, and at the same time gives so great pleasure to the rider as the Eagle. I can see no reason why great speed cannot be gotten out of it, both on the track and the road, and intend before long to show the Washington boys what it can do in regard to road riding. Every one here speaks of the fine workmanship you put on your wheel.

I do not know how to express my appreciation of the good qualities by words, but hope to show it by good work on it soon.

Yours very truly,

Will T. Robertson,

L. H. JOHNSON Manufacturing Importer, Orange, N. J.

KENTUCKY Division L. A. W meet June 10, at Danville, Ky.

WE hear that W. Windle has been summoned by the Racing Board to answer certain charges which may destroy his amateur standing.

JUNE 30 and July 1 are the dates of the race meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association at St. Catherine. See advertisement for particulars.

A HOLLISTER (Cal.) youth tried to run down a jack rabbit with his bicycle lately. The result was that the machine went to pieces, the owner had his arm dislocated and the jack rabbit is still in training.

AN exhibition of nerve that's rarely excelled was given Tuesday by a Trenton (N. J.) woman. She made a tour of the offices in the State house there, asking subscriptions for a bicycle for her son, who is very fond of bicycle riding. She said that "she could not very well see how she could afford to purchase one, and as her son was of noble birth, he should enjoy the advantages that more fortunate boys enjoyed." She could not induce the "stony-hearted" State officers to put down their names, however, and she left the capitol building lamenting the fact that people generally were loth to give for a worthy purpose.

MR. J. A. BAIRD, a student of the State College at Lexington, Ky., did a nervy thing [We should call it idiotic.—ED.] last Sunday. He rode from Lexington to High Bridge, and then, awaiting a favorable opportunity, crossed the bridge on his wheel, riding the cross-ties, which are from three to six inches apart. The bridge is about 287 feet high and about 300 feet long. It has no side guards other than a narrow girder. Mr. Baird's home is Elizabethtown. He rides a fifty-four inch wheel.

W. VAN WAGONER, of Newport, challenges any amateur wheelman of New Bedford to a ten-mile race, to be ridden in Newport; a 25-mile race, to be ridden at New Bedford; and a 50-mile race, to be ridden in the town where the winner of the 25-mile race resides. All of the races to be ridden on the public road, and with road machines not weighing less than 38 pounds.

THE Black River Railroad which runs from Utica, N. Y., to Alexandria Bay does not send out Sunday trains, so the proprietors of the Utica Tribune send out their Sunday edition as far as Boonville (40 miles) by bicycle. How is that for enterprise?

A CORRESPONDENT from Baltimore writes: "Will you, through your valued paper, let my fellow Baltimore riders know that the John Hopkins University of this city publishes a map of the roads around this city. The map is very complete and is almost invaluable to anyone who likes variety in their riding. The price is only one dollar."

DECORATION DAY was spent by the two Albany, N. Y., clubs in taking a union run to Minks Hotel on the Shaker road, taking dinner at that hostelry and then playing a game of baseball in the afternoon. The Albany Bicycle Club beat the Albany Wheelmen by a score of 8 to 5. The features were, for the Albany Bi. Club team, the battery work of Robe and McArthur, and the playing of H. R. Slingerland at first bag, M. C. Fuhrman at second, and Scattergood at third. The latter captured three difficult high flys. For the wheelmen, Gallien pitched a good game and Phipps caught well, while Fred Wood at first also did good work. The Wheelmen will challenge the Bi. Club to play a return game July 4.

THE assessors of the town of Quincy, Mass., claim that owners of bicycles will have to pay a tax this year.

LUMSDEN WINS THE SECOND RACE.

(Special to the World.)

WE had gone to press when the following telegram was received: "Lumsden won second race by ten feet in 9.44. R. D. GARDEN."

The above was of such importance that we stopped press to insert.

TO MASSACHUSETTS L. A. W. MEMBERS.

OUR active and efficient Chief Consul of Massachusetts, Dr. W. H. Emery, kindly offered to furnish us with a State map, as per circulars No. 16, at the very low price of seventy-five cents each, and requested those wishing a copy to notify him by postal. He now informs us he has not received sufficient encouragement to warrant him in the undertaking. Some of us are much disappointed by the apathy thus shown by the wheelmen of Massachusetts, as a map of this description would be valuable in any rider's hands, even if he only rides short distances. Rally, brother wheelmen; our Chief Consul is a live man, and trying to help us; let us take hold and help him to help us, and have a State map at once.

LADIES' RECEPTION ROOM.

[ALL communication to "Ladies' Reception Room" should be addressed to Helen Grey, care of this office.—ED.]

I have received a few letters this week from friends who write on the dress question and on other topics. I think I can do no better than to let them be heard:

From Nettie M. M———. "Regarding the much-mooted question of dress for ladies' bicycle, I would, as a rider of the wheel, beg of you not to let the pleasure and exercise be ruined by their devolution into one of costume, or over amount of delicate modesty as regards motion of the knee. I pay profund and true deference to all that is modest and womanly, but cannot bring myself to believe when a good thing is placed to the use of woman she should bring it under the stigma of fashion and martyr comfort as well as sacrifice pleasure to the throne that already receives sufficient tribute.

To me there is no question but that the two wheel is as much superior for a lady, as the bicycle excels the tricycle for a gentleman's use, even when the weight is equal. It requires a peculiar skill for the bike, which is not necessary for the trike, and the pleasure is more exhilarating because there is a sense of bowling or rolling along, while with the trike one joggles as a wagon."

Believe me, Miss Nettie, I would not talk dress if I did not feel it to be necessary. I am in receipt of very many letters, and of these nine in ten inquire about the costume we should wear on the wheel. It is a stale subject to the veterans, but we must consider the novices. If we can give them of our experience we can save them most of the perplexity we have had to undergo. Regarding the knee motion I desire that it be avoided, because it looks awkward, not because I believe it immodest.

From Hilda K———. "I want to tell you all about a bicycle ride I took last Sunday. I went to Delhi with the Cincinnati Bicycle Club. It was twenty-two miles. I had lots of fun. I am nine years old and was the first girl in Cincinnati to ride a bicycle. I have it two months and think it is lots nicer than my old tricycle."

A ride of twenty-two miles is a creditable performance for one so young, but Hilda must be careful not to overdo. Young girls of nine are not yet sufficiently developed to stand the strain of long fatiguing rides and my young friend must not let the applause of friends spur her to deeds that may cause her serious injury.

Genevieve, of Grand Rapids, Mich. "Although a novice with the two-wheeler, I am none the less interested, especially in regard to dress, and having read your article in the WORLD, thought I would not be intruding to express my opinion. As for style and service of goods I favor Eleanor Kirk's idea, "a firm, soft serge." I think a dark green, with light leather straps and buckles, made with plain skirt and waist, and "if desired" some fancy sleeve, makes a very pretty outfit. Straps and buckles being used in place of buttons, also collar, cuffs and belt. As for hat I am undecided, but shoes and gloves I prefer the light colored to correspond with dress trimmings."

A Philadelphia correspondent corrects me in my little note regarding the run of the Philadelphia ladies, and tells me it was under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Club, not the Philadelphia Club. He writes: "Our accession to the ranks of those clubs admitting ladies to membership being so comparatively recent that we are as yet, unduly anxious, perhaps, to get our just dues as regards notices in that direction." We gladly make the correction and return thanks for the pretty picture of the club, whose doors have been opened for the reception of ladies.

Those who have written me regarding dress must look for their answers in the Reception Room.

HELEN GREY.

ATTENTION VIRGINIA MEMBERS—ON TO HAGERSTOWN!!

THE attention of Virginia members of the L. A. W. is called to the following: A party of Richmond wheelmen at present estimated from ten or fifteen, propose touring from Stanton along the national pike to Hagerstown, leaving Richmond about the 25th of June, railroading to Stanton. They would like to have the company of every wheelman from Virginia, and with the view of arranging date of start, etc., to meet the wishes of the majority, so that Virginia may have an unusually large representation. Mr. Alex. H. Meyer, 601 Broad street, Richmond, Va., would like to hear the views of intending pilgrims. This is an unusual opportunity of taking in this grand route, for with such a party as already signify their intention of going, there is sure to be lots of fun.

RACES AND RECORDS ON ROAD AND TRACK.

AT CHICAGO, May 30—Pullman-Chicago road race—Cold North-East rain, heavy roads are not conditions under which a road race could be pleasantly run. However, "start rain or shine" had been the instructions and so out of the 123 entries, seventy men faced the starter. The limit man was started at 10.18 A. M. The start was made with a rush as the roads were good at first and the wind at the back, but when the Stoney Island road was reached then walking was very generally indulged in for some distance. At 114th street some of the men took to the sidewalk and protests were entered against them. In the meantime the train had carried a large number of spectators to Pullman and there they awaited the coming of the racers. The watches showed just 11.19 13 A. M. as Bodach shot across the line, then came Dale and Pratt and the others stringing. It was a hard race, run under difficult conditions. The men all showed the effects of the hard ride through mud and rain and they were mighty glad to exchange their mud-covered and rain-soaked raiments for more comfortable apparel. We give below the names of 47 men who finished and the order and actual time thereof.

IRVINGTON-MILBURN, May 30---Road.---Thirty-four contestants faced the starter to do battle for nineteen handicap prizes and the cup for the fastest actual time. Although Kluge's world record of 1 hour 30 minutes over this course was left untouched, a study of the results will show that it was the greatest road wheel struggle in the history of cycling, surpassing even the marvellous record of the Alphabetical contest a year ago. These are the figures on which I base my statement: Of the thirty-four who started, twenty-two finished. Of the latter, fifteen beat 1 h. 40 m.; and of these two beat 1 h. 32 m., four beat 1 h. 33 m., nine beat 1 h. 34 m., and eleven beat 1 h. 35 m. The nineteen prize winners made the twenty-five miles over these sixteen hills in an average of 1 h. 35 m. 11 s. each. Think of it. Can the history of cycling show anything to compare with the work of this gallant nineteeen? Putting it in another way, and supposing these men to have been started to carry a message in relays of 25 miles. The message would have reached a point 475 miles distant in 1 day 6 hours 8 minutes 11 seconds. Of the fifteen who beat 1 h. 40 m. seven came from the Kings County Wheelmen, three each from the Brooklyn and Wilmington clubs, and one each from the Riverside Wheelmen and the N. J. A. C. In all these figures I pay no attention to the handicap finish, but only to the actual times made.

Barring a little wind the day was a perfect one for racing. D. Blake Bonnett, of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, had a gang of boys at work for two days picking off the stones. This precaution, with the advantage of some heavy rain a day or two before, left the course in perfect condition. It never was faster or better. The number of spectators and wheelmen present far exceeded that on any previous occasion. The arrangements for checking, judging, scoring and timing were perfect. The race started at 11.20 and passed off without an accident or hitch of any kind. I have several times hinted that the Wilmington flyers as compared with the scorchers of the Alphabetical Association have been over-rated. I have insisted that the latter were the fastest men in the United States, over hills, for this distance, and the result showed it, as the fastest Wilmington man could get no nearer than tenth in the order of actual finish, barring handicap. I now wish to go a step further and say that no club in the world can show a road racing record that will compare for a moment with that of the gallant K. C. W. Can any club in the world show six men who can beat 1.34 for twenty-five miles over such a course as the Irvington-Milburn? The handicap proved a very close one, as the difference between the first and sixth men was only 48 seconds. Of the twenty-two who finished twelve did from 16 seconds to 5 minutes 55 seconds better than they were rated by the handicappers and ten from 2.07 to 8.09 Of the scratch men Harry Hall and Ed Baggott failed to come within about four minutes of the 1 30 at which they were rated, while Wilhelm could not navigate the hills and gave up after doing the ten miles in a little under 36 minutes. In fact the way the local men went down the hills was a revelation to the visitors.

Barkman deserves the greatest credit for his labors in getting up this grand race, and the manufacturers and dealers who gave the prizes so liberally will reap a rich reward in the boom the contest has undoubtedly given the wheel hereabouts.

The following table sets forth the results of the race:

	5 Mil's.	10 Mil's.	15 Mil's.	20 Mil's.	25 Mil's.

AT ST. LOUIS—Track.—The inaugural race meeting of the St. Louis Bicycle Track Association took place Monday afternoon, May 27. As telegraphed last week the races were postponed from the 25th on account of the muddy condition of the track. The events numbered seven and resulted as follows: Half-mile scratch: Frank Mehlig, (1); Vincent Ring, (2); time 1m. 43 1-5 sec. One mile exhibition by Percy Stone, paced by Hodgen, Sanders, Mehlig and Pomarade, time 3m. 16 sec., the fastest of the day. One-mile novice: A. M. Lewis (1); G. F. Peckham, (2); time 3m. 30 sec. One-mile handicap: Frank Mehlig, scratch, (1); E. N. Sanders, scratch, (2); time 3m. 26 sec. Half-mile safety for boys under 14 years: J. Ring, (1); time 2m. 30 4-5 sec. One-mile handicap for rear-driving safeties: Ed. Cunningham, 75 yards, (1); P. J. Annan, 65 yards, (2); time 3m. 50 4-5 sec. Quarter-mile ordinary bicycle, boys under 14 years: E. Lee, (1); 1m. 5 sec. Two-mile handicap: Frank Mehlig, scratch, (1); E. N. Sanders, scratch, (2); time 7m. 19 2-5 sec. Contrary to all expectations the track was in fair condition and with good rolling can be made pretty fast. A good sized audience was present, among which were a number of ladies who took great interest in the events. The riding of Peckham and Cunningham was a genuine surprise, and with a little training these men will be ranked among our flyers before the season ends. The races between Sanders and Mehlig were close and exciting. If the latter had the time to train it is extremely doubtful if any rider in the city, barring Stone, could hold him.

AT PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 30.—On Decoration Day the long-talked-of race between M. J. Bailey, of the Century Wheelmen, and T. A. Schaeffer, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club was run off at the University grounds, the Y. M. A. track being too soft. The men got off together and rode a waiting race until near the finish, when Bailey out spurted his opponent, winning by eight lengths.

At the sports of the Y. M. C. A., May 30th, the one-mile bicycle contest was won on a soft track by John N. Draper, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, time, 3m. 53⅘s.; Edward Worlman, U. of Pa., second, and F. H. Garrigues, of the Century Wheelmen, third.

ARIEL.

AT DENVER, COL.—Road.—The Ramblers and the Social Wheel Club team races took place May 26th, as reported in our last, and the following are particulars. The men finished in following order and time ("R," means Rambler, "S.," Social Club): R. Gerwing, R., 18 pts., 2 h. 2 m. 30 s.—F. N. Coleman, S., 17 pts., 2 h. 7 m.—J. Collier, R., 16 pts., 2 h. 7 m. 30 s.—H. Jackson, R., 15 pts., 2 h. 17 m.—A. Banks, S., 14 pts., 2 h. 18 m. 30 s.—R. H. Beigle, R., 13 pts., 2 h. 18 m. 45 s.—H. Shaw, S., 12 pts., 2 h. 20 m. 15 s.—A. Brown, S., 11 pts., 2 h. 21 m. 30 s.—Lou Block, S., 10 pts., 2 h. 21 m. 45 s.—H. D. Green, R., 9 pts., 2 h. 23 m.—W. E. Perkins, R., 8 pts., 2 h. 24 m. 45 s.—J. C. Epeneter, R., 4 pts., 2 h. 26 m. 45 s. J. H. Hemer, S., 6 pts., 2 h. 29 m. 45 s.—C. A. Rivers, S., 5 pts.

2 h. 33 m.—A. A. Morris, R., 4 pts., 2 h. 36 m. 15 s.—J. Bartmetler, S., 3 pts., 2 h. 37 m. 30 s.—H. G. Kennedy, R.—L. Hanson, S. Total points for the Ramblers, 90; total points for the Socials, 78.

The race was witnessed by a large number of people aboard a special train, which was run so as to enable the spectators to keep the majority of riders in sight very near all of the time. The start was made from Fortieth street at 9.45 o'clock. At the word "go" Gerwing shot away at a pace that threatened to kill some one, and he held his lead from the start to finish. The distance is 33 1-4 miles, measured by cyclometers. The prize is called "the Geo. F. Higgins & Co. Challenge Cup," and must be won by one club twice before becoming their property. The next contest takes place in 1890. The last three men on the Socials' list were substituted at the last moment, for men that were expected to land way up front. Headers were numerous on both sides, but on the Socials' side again did ill luck seem to reign, eight of the nine men on their ride having taken "croppers." Rivers was thrown twenty-two and a half feet, actual measurement, at Brighton. This was severe on him, as he had until recently ridden a safety, and "wasn't used too 'em." Jackson of the Ramblers is a "kid" 17 years of age, and rides a 49-inch wheel. He rode an excellent race. The Ramblers celebrated their victory by a "smoker and feed" Monday evening.

"OCCASIONAL."

AT WITCHITA, KANSAS, May 30—Record—The Witchita Wheelmen held a race for the one-mile championship of the club and the Johnson badge, won by H. H. Everest in 3m. 14 1-4 sec. Then Messrs. H. H. Everest, (of the Witchita Wheelmen), and Bert R. Millison, (unattached), started for the five-mile State record and succeeded in lowering it to 17m. 28 1-2 sec., both riders coming under the wire at the same time, a dead heat. The track is so slow—an ordinary half mile driving track: in fact horses were exercised on it five minutes before the race.

AT COVENTRY, ENGLAND, May 20.—Track—Two-mile English amateur record by W. A. Illston. Time, 5m. 12 1-5 sec. Beats F. J. Osmond's record by 10 sec. H. Sturmey held one watch.

AT PADDINGTON, ENGLAND, May 18—Catford C. C. Track—Quarter and half-mile English amateur safety record. W. C. Jones 1-4 mile, 37 3-5 sec.; 1-2 mile, 1m. 16 1-5 sec. Same place and date, F. J. Osmond, ordinary, starting 1-4 mile, 37 sec.

AT LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 30—Road—Championship of Ocean County. Three entries. Three starters. Clarence Shinn, (1): Jesse Johnson, (2): C. Parmentier, (3). Time, 17.02.

AT POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 30—Road—Sixteen miles. It was won by John Van Benschoten, of Poughkeepsie, in 1h. 2m and 14 sec.: Elias Van Benschoten, of Poughkeepsie, second, and Edward Cashin, of Wappinger's Falls, third.

AT NEW ORLEANS, May 26—Road—Twenty-five miles. Three starters, L. J. Frederic, B. M. Spriggs, M. S. Graham. Won by Frederic in 1h. 39m. 13 sec. Spriggs and Graham both dropped out, one because of cramps and the other because his saddle went back on him. The contest was a handicap, and a new and curious feature was tried. The time allowances were only known to the committee, being placed in an envelope and sealed and not opened until after the finish. The result of the race made the handicaps useless, however, but the figures made public when the envelope was opened allowed B. M. Sprigg 45 seconds, M. S. Graham 5m. and L. J. Frederic 7m. 15 sec.

AT BRIDGEPORT, CONN., May 30—Track—Under auspices Ramblers Bicycle Club. Two-mile safety. W. Setzam, (1); E. S. Raymond, (2). Time, 7.20. One-mile open. P. M. Harris, (1); R. C. Norris, (2). Time, 3.10. Half mile ride and run. F. H. Hurd, (1); A. B. Smith, (2). Time, 2.20 2-5. Three-mile club. C. A. Fox, (1); H. Elliot, (2). Time, 10.25 1-5.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—Records—At Los Angeles. Mr. John Tufts had a go at the local five-mile record the other day. The time for each mile is as follows: First mile, 3.04; second, 3.06; third, 3.15; fourth, 3.13; fifth, 3.22; total, 16 minutes local record.

D. L. Burke rode a mile lately at Agricultural Park in 2.52, the fastest mile ever made in Southern California. The State record is 2.48 1-2.

AT INDIANAPOLIS—Road—Annual five-mile road race of the Indianapolis Club. Charles McKean, (1): Arthur Johns, (2): C. Vanlilburgh, (3). Time, 17.20. E. Eads looked like a winner until he took a bad header within a mile of the finish, which knocked him out.

AT NEW BEDFORD, MASS., May 30—Road.—The challenge cup annually raced for by New Bedford and Taunton bicyclists, was raced for Decoration Day, on French avenue, distance, 20 miles. Five members of each club contested. The score is as follows: Anthony of Taunton, 10, time, 1h. 10m. 6s.; Hyland Smith of New Bedford, 9, time, 1h. 10m. 7s.; Rogers of Taunton, 8: Robinson of Taunton, 7; Dunham of New Bedford, 6; Chase of New Bedford, 5; Partow of New Bedford, 4; C. G. Rogers of New Bedford, 3; Bolton of Taunton, 2; Hardy of Taunton, 1. Total, Taunton, 28; New Bedford, 27.

AT WOODSTOCK, ONT., May 24—Track.—Two-mile novice, A. F. Edwards (1). E. W. Walbourne (2); time, 7.43 2-5.

One-mile open, E. O. Rassicoe (1), W. S. Campbell (2); time, 2.59.

Half-mile handicap, first heat, E. O. Rassicoe, scratch (1); E. McCune, to yds. (2); time, 1.24 4-5.

One-mile handicap, E. O. Rassicoe, scratch (1); W. M. Carman, 30 yds. (2); time, 2.54 3-5.

Two-mile county championship, W. Howell (1), E. Walbourne (2); time, 7.10.

Half-mile handicap, final heat, E. O. Rassicoe, scratch (1); E. McCune, to yds. (2); time, 1.27 2-5.

Five-mile handicap, E. O. Rassicoe, scratch (1); W. M. Carman, 50 yds. (2); time, 15.53 4-5.

One-mile safety, E. McCune (1), F. W. Doll (2); time, 3.04 2-5.

Consolation, one-mile, C. J. Iven (1), W. A. Lingham (2); no time.

The races were distinguished for miserable handicapping. The handicappers apparently were determined that the local favorite and flyer, Rassicoe, should not have to work very hard to overcome the handicaps awarded.

AT HOLMES' FIELD, Cambridge, Mass.—Track.—Interscholastic games, May 30. One-mile bicycle race, F. L. Olmstead, Roxbury Latin (1); Fred Johnson, Worcester Academy (2); time, 3.16 1-3.

MISSOURI DIVISION MEET.

The arrangements for the Missouri Division Meet at Sedalia, on July 3 and 4, have been completed and Chairman Kelly of the arrangements committee announces the following programme:

FIRST DAY, JULY 3, 1889.

Reception of wheelmen and escort to hotels; 9 A. M., run to McAllister Springs, a famous summer resort, for dinner; 6.30 P. M., return to Sedalia awheel or on special train; 8 P. M., social entertainment; smoker.

SECOND DAY, JULY 4.

Nine A. M., Parade; 11 A. M., Divison meeting; 12 M., dinner; 2.30 P. M., races, ten events, for prizes, as follows: One mile bicycle, open; half mile bicycle, Missouri Division Championship, only for L. A. W. members; one mile bicycle handicap; two mile bicycle, Missouri Division Championship, open only to L. A. W. members; one mile safety handicap; team race, open,—three men in each team,—all must be from one club; one mile novice; two mile bicycle handicap; one mile consolation.

In addition to above a hill climbing contest will be probably added. All entries for the races should be addressed to Fred. E. Hoffman, Sedalia, Mo. No entry fee. Entries for the handicap races close June 25, and for the open events on June 27.

All railroad lines in the State will make a rate of one fare for the round trip, and tickets will be on sale July 2, and good for the return up to and including July 5.

A grand banquet will be had at Sicker's Hotel on the night of July 4th, and will wind up what promises to be the best attended and most successful meet the Division has ever had. Sedalia has been truly named the "Queen City of the Prairie," has macadamized streets, and the level prairie roads radiating from it are good for miles in any direction. The meet is given under the auspices of the Sedalia Cyclers, who have made arrangements and spared no expense to entertain 200 wheelmen, and fully that number is expected to attend. The names of the members of the committees will be published in the official department of this paper, and all communications should be addressed accordingly. Linneus.

Messrs. S. & J. Davis, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

An exchange truly remarks that "a bicycle rider who coasts wildly down a hill with his feet off the pedals and his legs under the handle-bar is as foolhardy as the man who throws away the lines and applies the whip to a spirited horse."

The Victor cycles managed to pick out the first prize in the great 25-mile Irvington-Milburn road race. Not only did they take first prize but among the first fifteen riders to finish there were 8 Victors! Not a bad showing.

The Gormully & Jeffery captured the prizes for the fastest time run in the great 25-mile road race over the Irvington-Millburn course J. Bensinger rode an American Champion. Tally one for G. & J.

We are advised that the 38lb. Men's Light Roadster is giving great satisfaction to all who ride it. From the same sources we hear that "the riders say it comes nearer giving the sensation of flying than anything else they have ridden. The Capital Cycle Co. guarantee this machine for riders of medium weight.

College Hill, Providence, was climbed by W. S. Doane on a Singer Safety geared to 57, May 30. Mr. Doane claims this as record for a safety with that gear.

The Capital Cycle Co. has had such a run on their 39lb. Ladies Light Roadster Psycho that their stock is temporarily exhausted, but they are expecting more within a week.

Just as we go to press we hear that Gormully & Jeffery got another fine plum at Chicago. F. Bodack, the winner of the Pullman race, rode an "American."

Renewals.

The renewals have fallen off in number the past few weeks and we have been taking no more names in a week than we took in the single days of April. Now is the time to drum up recruits. We are in the last month of the renewal season and not many days remain in which members can renew. The following table shows in the first column the number of renewals that were received, in all, last year; the second column gives the renewals this year to date June 7, and the third column gives the new members this year to date June 7. The total of renewals for 1888 was 7851; the total thus far is 6932. These latter totals include renewals from non-divisions which are not given in the tables below:

Attention, Racing Men and Race Officials.

Rule 26, as printed in L. A. W. Racing Rules, is wrong. It should read:

"The officers of a race meeting shall not be permitted to compete in any race, at a race meeting with which they are officially connected."

This notice will not appear again, and ignorance of this correction will not be considered a valid excuse for violation.

The attention of racing men is called to the Racing Board's position on the "ordinary-safety" question. The Board has decided that the word "bicycle," when used in defining a race, shall refer to the "ordinary," and a race announced (for example) as "one mile bicycle race is for "ordinaries" and "safeties cannot compete.

Also that any race announced "blindly," like "one mile open," "one mile team" etc, where no special type of machine is given, shall be understood to be intended as a race for "ordinaries," and "safeties" cannot compete.

If Race Promoters desire to hold races for "safeties" they must so announce them, like "one mile safety race," "one mile safety team race" etc.

Any violation of the above will be promptly punished by suspension.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

Suspensions.

For riding "safeties" in a "two-mile bicycle race" on May 25th, 1889, Messrs. R. H. Davis, of Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., and E. A. Bailey, of Somerville, Mass., are suspended from the race track until August 1st, 1889.

Amateurs are warned that to compete with either will render them liable to a like penalty.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

Missouri Members, Attention!

The annual State meet of this Division will be held in the city of Sedalia, July 3rd and 4th. The programme is in the hands of the local committee and will be announced in due course. In the meantime please bear the date in mind and make your arrangements to attend if possible.

W. M. BREWSTER, Chief Consul.

Massachusetts.

To members Massachusetts Division:

The Consul at Norwood reports the road from Dedham to Norwood as newly gravelled and consequently wheelmen are advised to go through West Dedham or Canton. Fraternally,

W. H. EMERY,
Chief Consul.

F. F. Ives, Reinstated.

The Racing Board has voted unanimously to reinstate as an amateur, Mr. F. F. Ives of Meriden, Conn.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

Attention, Tennessee Members!

The annual meeting of the Tennessee Division will be held at Nashville, Tennessee, on June 18th, 1889. There will be, besides the general business meeting and meeting of the Board of Officers, a big street parade. Our first annual tour will start from Nashville on Wednesday, June 19th, and occupy four days. The route will be over some of the best roads in the State, and the pace will suit all who wish to go. A very full attendance is earnestly desired at the meeting on the 18th, and I would respectfully urge all members to arrange their business so as to get off at that date.

The programme etc., for the meet will be published later. Fraternally,

Jos. R. WILSON, Jr.,
C. C. of Tenn.

Spring Meet—Massachusetts Division.

The committee on Spring Meet propose the following entertainment for those attending the meet at Squantum on June 17th.

Three races (handicaps) one for ordinaries, one for safeties and one for tandem bicycles. For each race two medals will be offered.

The committee will also furnish a medal for every club which desires to establish a club championship, The medal for each club to be competed for by the members of that club.

At least three men must start in every race. Entry 50 cents, to be made prior to June 15, to Dr. W. G. Kendall, 170 Tremont street, Boston.

Races will occur at 3 o'clock.

Balls and bats will be furnished for ball playing.

In accordance with the idea of making this meet a picnic, the committee have decided to allow each wheelman to furnish his own lunch and to avoid bother a wagon will be furnished which will leave Copley Square after the wheelmen. Each man can deliver his lunch with his name written plainly in ink on the covering, at this wagon and obtain it after arriving at Squantum.

Captains of clubs are requested to notify Dr. Kendall how many members will be likely to attend.

Unattached wheelmen who intend to be present are also requested to notify Dr. Kendall.

Let every wheelman make an effort to be present.

Fraternally,

WM. H. EMERY,
For Committee.

Connecticut.

I do hereby appoint Mr. A. A. Forbes, consul of East Hartford and Mr. Chas. Royce, consul of Willimantic.

C. E. LAROM, C. C.

Tennessee Consuls, Special Attention!

I am sorry to see our renewals coming in so slowly. The first of June, the last month in which we can renew, is now upon us, and not more than half of our State membership has renewed. Let me remind you that the Local Consuls are largely responsible for this, and I would most earnestly urge you to visit each and every member in your towns and see that he renews. The membership in the different towns in the State is not so large that this cannot be easily done. Stir our members up, for if we have a large membership during the season of 1889 we may hope for great results in League work. Fraternally,

Jos. R. WILSON, Jr.,
C. C. of Tenn.

Arnold Heilborn, Professional.

For competing in public with a professional swimmer, Mr. Arnold Heilborn of Providence, R. I., is hereby declared to have forfeited his amateur status. Amateurs are warned against competing with him.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Chairman L. A. W. Racing Board.

Rhode Island Delegate.

Acting under Article III, Sec. 5 of the League By-laws, and Article X of the Division By-laws, I hereby appoint Mr. Howard L. Perkins Delegate to the L. A. W. National Assembly vice, Mr. Geo. L. Cooke resigned. Fraternally,

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
R. I. Chief Consul.

Massachusetts.

Circular No. 21.

To the members of the Massachusetts Division:

I regret to be compelled to announce to the members that no more League uniforms can be furnished them by George W. Simmons & Co. under the arrangement stated in Circular No. 19, the reason being that a so called Uniform Committee has prevented us from obtaining the League Cloth of the Secretary.

Having acted in good faith, in accordance with the laws and rules of the League and with the sole desire to benefit the members of this Division, I do not wish to be blamed in this matter and therefore make this statement of the facts that the members may judge intelligently.

In the Bulletin of January 18, 1889, a circular signed by the Uniform Committee was published, stating that members could obtain the cloth of the Secretary. Finding on investigation that members of this Division could procure their uniforms at a less price in Boston and enjoy the advantage of having them made to measure, I issued Circular No. 19, which informed you that on sending money, measurements, and an order on Abbot Bassett, Secretary, for the cloth, uniforms could be obtained at a certain price

A few days later the Secretary received a telegram from the Chairman of the Uniform Committee saying that Circular No. 19 must be recalled. On the chairman's attention being called to the circular of January 18, he replied by letter that the Uniform Committee had decided to take away from the Secretary the right to furnish cloth to members. This being an interference with the work of this Division by a special committee appointed under the old government of the League prior to the adoption of the new Constitution and By-laws, I immediately appealed to the Executive Committee who have not yet rendered a decision. Pending the decision of the Executive Committee I appealed to the President to allow the Secretary to furnish us with the cloth until the decision was made and received the reply that members could obtain the cloth of Browning, King & Co. of New York.

As I did not desire the members of this Division to pay more than was necessary for their uniforms or to lose the privilege of being measured by the man who makes the uniform believing that the League should look first to the interests of its members and not to that of any manufacturing firm I declined any arrangement whatever with Browning, King & Co.

This matter will come before the State Board of Officers at its meeting on June 8th, and an amendment to the By-laws will be offered at the next meeting of the National Assembly for the appointment of League tailors in each State.

Under the arrangement as provided for in Circular No. 19, it has been proven that a much larger number of our members availed themselves of the privilege of a League Uniform, as many purchased it who positively refused to send to New York.

Massachusetts is not alone in this matter, for I have received assurances from other Divisions of their support.

We can only wait with patience the decision of the Executive Committee, confident that the interests of League members will be considered rather than that of dealers who, as a matter of business are anxious to make as much money as possible. Fraternally,

WM. H. EMERY, Chief Consul.

New League Clubs.

The following clubs have qualified as League Clubs and filed proper certificates in the office of the Secretary. They are numbered as below:

No. 226—Fostoria Bicycle Club, Fostoria, Ohio, S. L. Ghaster, Sec.

No. 227—Aberdeen Wheelmen, Aberdeen, Dakota, Genia Jewell, Sec.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for member ship received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued seventeen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

W. T. BOWERS, Saco, Me.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly every maker of rear-driven Safeties have altered their patterns each cycling season, in a vain endeavor to obtain a pattern of their own.

It is still a more remarkable fact. that nearly all makers, English and American, are now converging at a point; where the St. George's Engineering Co. began, 3 years ago, to build their world-famed "NEW RAPID" Safeties.

They do not claim to be 3 years ahead of all other makers; that would be egotistical, but benefitting by the 3 years' experience on the one pattern of manufacture, they are enabled to build a Safety which, weight for strength, has no equal.

The "NEW RAPID" Safety is the lightest and the strongest machine on the American market.

H. B. SMITH MACHINE CO., Smithville, N. J.

Gents: Since I received my 39x24 Star and having used it and given it a thorough trial, I have now convinced myself that it is all that is claimed for it. For hill climbing in particular---well, I can only say that it is the boss of them all, and cannot be excelled; it is the best wheel for road riding, and can be easily controlled on rough roads; it is not as sensitive as the ordinary chain safeties of the crank pattern, and can be easily handled in rutty roads. I find that almost any rider of the ordinary bike can mount and ride it at first trial, and are pleased with the way it handles. It is much lighter than any of the road riding safeties, and I feel confident that in the near future the safety riders will find that the 39x24 Star will be worth consideration, and it will not take much to convince them that it is "the wheel" for safety and all around riding. Respectfully,

HAL W. GREENWOOD,
"Champion Hill Climber of the World."

AMERICAN STOREKEEPER.

VOL. VII., NO. 5. CHICAGO, MAY, 1889. $1.00 Per Year in Advance. Single Copies, Ten Cents.

If You Are Interested in Wheels.

The growth of popularity attained by cycling is simply wonderful. A visit to any of the parks in Chicago will disclose more cycling wheels than other vehicles. When asked for the reason of this one might thoughtlessly answer that it is dne to the fascination of the sport. But that does not tell all the story. The sport is fascinating because of the efforts which the makers of wheels have made to bring out a machine to ride which would be a pleasure. The Pope Manufacturing Co., of Boston, New York and Chicago, is the oldest firm of American manufacturers of bicycles and have the largest plant in the world, with the finest of machinery, and the most skilled workmen.

Does this count for anything?

There are more Columbia bicycles in use in the United States than all other high grade machines combined.

Does this count for anything?

There never was a Columbia which was discarded because it was worn out. The Columbia is the only machine which has been ridden across the continent, and it has been so ridden several times. It is the only machine which has been ridden around the world.

Do these facts count for anything?

The wor'd's best records were made on Columbias. They have the reputation of being as thoroughly made as possible for modern skill to produce, and there are no second grade Columbias.

Wheelmen are invited to inspect the manufacture of Columbias at the factory at Hartford, Conn., and there see for themselves that which goes to substantiate the claim that the Columbias lead all other makes in the world. Then will the wheelmen be convinced that the Columbias give the most for the money.

Do these facts count for anything?

We rather think they do.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.

The Pulman Handicap Road Race was run to-day amid wind and rain. 70 started, 58 finished. A. E. Lumsden, on a Columbia Light Roadster, won the time medal for the best time, covering the distance in 56.45, a remarkable record taking in'o consideration the weather and condition of the roads.

YOU'VE HEARD OF

over the Irvington-Milburn course. You know what preparation there was for it, and what a field of entries. As for machines, all the leading makes were seen. There were a number of Victors, and when the end came it was found that these had somehow sifted through to the front in such a way as to pull down 10 out of the 19 prizes—of course including the lst. Victors have a habit of showing up in such order as this.

They had a team race between the Denver Ramblers and the Social Wheel Club out at Denver the same day. The first man to get through rode a Victor Light Roadster.

They are built to win.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 14 JUNE, 1889.

PRESSURE on our columns by the official news this week compels us to lay over quite a lot of matter of general interest.

SO much has been taking place during the past few weeks that for the time being we have neglected one of the most important branches of League work, Roads Improvement. We can, however, assure our readers that we have not lost sight of this branch of the work, neither shall we ever lose sight of it so long as we hold the editorial pen.

The League Committee on Roads Improvement, of which Dr. Butler, of Buffalo, is Chairman, are constantly and actively working up and advancing public opinion to this all important question. As in the case of the Georgia Road Congress the committee at once places itself in communication with all such bodies and offers co-operation.

One of the most encouraging signs is that the general press has taken up the question with so much vigor. Speaking of the improvement of the roads and river navigation of Illinois the Chicago Herald says, among other things:

"The Road Congress at Atlanta, Ga., should arouse interest in Illinois. We have a soil here that is congenial to the idea of mud blockades. It is not to be denied that we have protracted seasons of rainy weather. It should not be the habit of men to suspend out-door work merely because the gentle rain descends from heaven. If the habit has come to the yeomanry of Illinois, it is because the traffic of the roads has ceased with the presence of every shower. To haul an empty wagon over an Illinois thoroughfare in wet weather is a serious project.

* * * To get hard roads like those of France, and to husband the waters that now lie at the surface until the sun allures them into the clouds—those two needs go hand in hand, offering to intelligent industry an engaging and profitable task."

The Engineering News has a very interesting, practical article on the value of good roads, and among other valuable statistics and estimates gives the following, which ought to set our granger friends to thinking:

"Assuming that the average haul is five miles, and that two loads per day with a two-horse team would cost $2.50, the difference in cost of moving the total market crops on clay and macadam roads, of average condition and level grades, can be figured as follows:

	Clay Road.	Macadam.
Load for two horses, - - - - -	1,400 lbs.	2,180 lbs.
Number of loads for 3,250,000 tons, -	4,643,000	2,981,000
Cost at $1.50 per load, - - -	$5,703,750	$3,726,250
	$1,977,500

This $2,000,000 is, then, the annual excess of cost entailed upon farm products by common clay roads, and it represents a sum sufficient to keep 30,000 miles of turnpike in repair at an annual expenditure of $66 per mile."

IT is only a couple of weeks now before a good many of our readers will be looking toward Hagerstown, and from indications the meet will be a large one. Marylanders are celebrated the world over for hospitality, and the Hagerstown men together with the division will still further establish their claim to being the generous hosts they are.

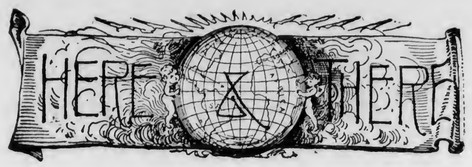
When the whole-souled, liberal man goes down deep into his pocket to provide comforts, entertainment and hospitality for expected visitors it is churlish to more than protest. The protest has been raised but Maryland, the generous, will not have us say her nay, and so she goes down deep into her capacious pocket, and the entertainment she will furnish will be as large and liberal as is her heart.

Chief Consul Mott demurs at having the Maryland Division the one to inaugurate the "pay your own way" system, and we cannot but admire the whole-souled spirit shown by the Chief and his division, yet we do hope that the meet of 1890 will be characterized by a less extravagant entertainment at the hands of the cyclers in whose city the League meet will be held. While we admire generosity as much as we dislike parsimony, yet for the good of the future of League meets we hope to see in the meets of the coming years more men paying their own way, more green grass, more out-door life under the trees, and less of the city entertainment element than in the past. A little more camp life of the picnicky order is what a robust set of fellows like cyclers would like.

"MASSACHUSETTS MEMBERS, WAKE UP!"

I WANT to second most emphatically the appeal made to Massachusetts members by No. 10,411 in last week's WORLD in regard to the proposed road map. There is nobody who has ever taken a ten-mile ride but has felt the need of something of this kind, and now that the opportunity to obtain it is presented it ought not to be neglected and especially when the price is so reasonable.

Yankees, as a rule, know a good thing when they see it, but the Massachusetts members do not seem to be alive to their opportunities. For goodness sake, Massachusetts members, wake up.



Fraternally, No. 21,734.

JACK'S "DEFI" IS ACCEPTED.

I AM happy to find that "everyone" does not think the same as Jack does in regard to ordinaries and safeties competing in the same race. As to riding that mile inside of three minutes, if "Jack" is not afraid of losing his $10 and will sign his full name to communications concerning the matter, I will cover the $10, the money to be put in a gold medal, as I will not ride for money. I will ride a Columbia Light Roadster Safety, stock machine. I want three trials, one a day; all three to be ridden inside of two weeks. If I do not ride inside of three minutes once out of the three I lose.

As to the comparisons "Jack" makes between ordinaries and safeties, I think he will not find much more difference between a pug dog and a tom cat than there is between a Star and an ordinary, yet they ride in the same race. I think as I say that if one machine fouls another, it is the man that should be barred out, and not the machine.

W. VAN WAGONER.

NEW YORK.

"HAWKSHAW."

WERE not I such a truly modest individual, I should be tempted to claim that a recent item of mine in this column, regarding the enormous expenditure of money here for street improvements which were never made, was the cause of the recent action of the Chamber of Commerce, but my timid and shrinking disposition, however, prevents me publicly claiming this honor, even though I know it really belongs to me. At any rate, no matter how the thing was brought to the notice of these great merchants, the fact remains that at their last meeting they appointed a committee to urge the paving of all the residence portion of the city with asphalt, and they could not have acted more intelligently in the matter even if they had been wheelmen. Revolutions never go backward; let us but once get started on this asphalt paving here and Washington and Buffalo will have to look to their road laurels, I tell you.

AMONG the many congresses that are to be held during the Paris Exposition, there will be one on athletic education. The promoters of the affair have issued a circular to the heads of all important schools in every country, endorsing a blank to be filled out giving the teacher's opinion of various exercises, their benefits, popularity, etc., etc. Cycling in this pamphlet is favored with an entire page of queries, while no other form of sport or exercise is given more than one half as much space. There's a volume of praise for the wheel in this fact, as it clearly shows that it is placed first, as the mighty host of its adherants fully warrant it in doing.

NO less a journal than the N. Y. Sun has taken up the cudgel against that idiotic practise of wearing full length tights when riding upon the road, as is often practised by a certain class of wheelmen. In an editorial this able daily thus puts the matter: "This seems to be an outrage. What have bicyclers to do with the evanescent and scintillating girls who have flashed and frolicked upon the stage * * *." That's it exactly. What have they got to do with them?

I am sure I don't know. But certain it is at any rate, that no man who properly respects either himself or the cause should don a set of tights when riding upon the public highways. It may be that they are comfortable, so might a bathing suit be, but I can't see that the comfort of this method of dress makes it any the less objectionable, and now that the lay press has called public attention to the affair, I hope that the adherents of the cycling ballet will take warning, and become either wheelmen or ballet dancers, and will not in the future attempt to combine both characters in one.

GOVERNOR DAVID B. HILL has just signed a bill, which upon its face would not seem to be injurious to the comfort and welfare of wheelmen, but which, nevertheless, has proven to be extremely damaging to cyclers, by removing from office one of their firmest "friends at court." The bill referred to was known as the three-headed park bill of Brooklyn, and by its becoming a law has legislated out of office as a park commissioner, Mr. C. H. Luscomb, President of the L. A. W. It has been due to Mr. Luscomb's presence upon the board of park commissioners in Brooklyn, that wheelmen have at all times met with the fairest of treatment at the hands of the entire park management there, and his removal is indeed a loss to the cause of wheeling which we all much regret.

DURING the heated term now approaching, when the use of the wheel becomes most general, anything that can be discovered which will tend towards making the riders thereof comfortable, should be brought to their notice. Among the annoyances many wheelmen suffer from while riding during the summer months, is the chafing or scalding of their feet from profuse perspiration and the irritation produced by the heavy woolen stockings usually worn. A simple, harmless and speedy remedy for this will be found in a mixture or three parts salicylic acid, ten of starch and eigty-seven of pulverized soapstone. Sift this mixture plentifully into the shoes and stockings, and the result will be the keeping of the feet dry, the prevention of chafing, and the rapid healing of sore spots. As many persons very properly object to the trying of any remedies about which they know nothing, and concerning the safety of whose use they have no knowledge, I will say for their benefit that the above prescription forms part of the equipment of every foot soldier in the German army, a fact which will be accepted as a sufficient guarantee of both its harmlessness and its efficacy.

THE roadway of the recently completed Washington Bridge over the Harlem River is 151 feet above the river level, and is 2380 feet in length. The great altitude of this stretch of asphalt insures at all times a refreshing breeze, which with the perfect condition of the road's surface, has made it a favorite sprinting ground for wheelmen, and many are the exciting contests of speed that may be witnessed upon this elevated race track upon a pleasant Sunday afternoon.

ST. LOUIS.

"LINNEUS."

THE Legislature adjourned three weeks ago and the famous Warner bill died with it. It had only passed the House and had not reached the Senate at all. Many bills on road improvement met the same fate.

CAPTAIN HILDEBRAND, of the Missouri's, got back from an extended trip to Europe last Friday, and speaks in lavish praise of the treatment accorded him by cyclists everywhere and particularly by Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. Atwater of Washington.

A MEETING of the directors of the St. Louis Bicycle Track Association will be held during the coming week, and if the financial results of the Stone-Lumsden races warrants it, a tournament will be held in this city sometime during August or September. Another illuminated parade will also probably come off during the fall festivities in October.

THE Missouris held a red-hot meeting last Tuesday, to vote upon that obnoxious question of permitting games to be played in the club house on Sunday. By far the largest number of members (some 60 odd) ever noticed at any but the annual meeting, attended and the question being put to a vote was lost by a big majority. After the chair announced the vote Willi. Brown got up and made a motion, which was seconded and passed, that the subscription to the Wheel be stopped for the scurrilous and unjust attack of its St. Louis correspondent upon one of the club's members. This is limiting the liberty of the press with a vengeance, but the peculiar view of the case is that the author of those lines once boasted to me that he had an understanding with the editor of the old Bulletin to cut out all matter critisising the Missouri Club. "Consistency thou art a jewel."

GEO. WILDER is doing good work introducing the ladies' bicycle here and in addition to the ladies of his own household he is teaching the wives and sisters of quite a number of cyclists the art of riding.

LEAGUE recruiting is sadly neglected in this State, and if it were not for the efforts of Messrs. Jordan, Greenwood and myself and one or two others, it would cease entirely. What this State needs and needs badly is an Emery or Bull for Chief Consul.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

YOU no doubt have a full account of the run of the Century tourists from Orange and from other sources, so I will only refer to their visit in this burgh. Sunday morning a sort of go-as-you-please run was taken through the park, landing at Strawberry mansion, where the visitors were, by the generosity of the Century wheelmen treated to cream, and after a short rest they were escorted to the Columbia Ave. station of the Reading road, and after storing their wheels in the car, engaged for that purpose, went to the Continental to dinner and took the 3.30 train to New York. There was a most lamentable want of system in the arrangements for Sunday. In fact there were no arrangements whatever, that I could learn, and had it not been for the active efforts of the Centurions, the little that was done towards showing the visitor the park would have gone by default. Just on whose shoulders the blame rests, it is hard to say, but certainly the A. C. C. could have found no worthier object than in taking hold of a body of cyclers, who were here on a visit, and doing the honors of the city. However it is easy for those who do nothing of the work to criticise, and the run was quite a success, without doubt. Why should not the Quaker City wheelmen send a run from this end? It is tobe hoped this may be seen some day.

THE Pennsylvania Club has engaged rooms at Hagerstown for thirty members, who are already booked for the League Meet, and from present indications there will be a goodly representation from Philadelphia. The Century wheelmen are going to send quite a number, and nearly all the clubs will have members present.

THE Secretary of the A. C. C., Mr. J. R. L. Edwards, was quite a martyr to his anxiety for the entertainment of the New Yorkers on Saturday. Miss Eisinger, who occupied the front seat of Mr. Edwards' tandem bicycle, will, I do not doubt, have great pleasure in testifying to this fact.

AT the sports of the A. C. S. N., Saturday afternoon, W. W. Taxis, 120 yards, won the two mile handicap with ease, in 5.55; Willie Windle was scratch, but did not put in an appearance and Taxis had no one to push him. In the match race between Draper and Bradley, the latter on a racing machine, won without much difficulty. It is just to Mr. Draper, however, to say that he not only used a road machine, but also was handicapped by weakness, having just gotten out of a sick bed. A match between these two men, would be interesting when both were upon equal terms.

LAST week, Messrs. Beepe, Hoopes, Jacobs and Harry Hoopes started on a scorch from West Chester to Fifty-second St., this city; good time was made all the way in, Beebe on a Victor Light Roadster, finishing first in 1 hr. 49 m., which is very close to record; Russell Hoopes was second in 1.50 1-2, and Jacobs third in 1.54 1-2. Russell Hoopes' time is record for a safety. He rode a Victor, Jacobs and Harry Hoopes rode Stars, and the tire on the latter's wheel came off on the road, throwing him out of the race.

NEWS of the resignation of Mr. W. D. Supplee from the captaincy of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club will be received with regret by all who are acquainted with both the gentleman and the club. Mr. Supplee endeavored to resign at the last meeting, but was prevailed to hold over until after the League Meet.

CHICAGO.

"THE STROLLER."

THE Illinois Club have issued a stirring appeal to their members and in fact all wheelmen for aid for the Johnstown sufferers, and already several large boxes of clothing have been forwarded to the sufferers as a result of their labors.

THE recent team race between the Illinois and Chicago Clubs has caused some feeling to arise on both sides. The Illinois refused to allow any one to take Lumsden's place in the Chicago team, and the Chicagos say that had they had Lumsden in the race or been allowed to substitute Geo. Thorne they would have won, and there is no glory in the race, anyhow, as they only had two men in their team, Van Sicklen and Winship, neither of whom were in training. This grinds the Illinois Club, and they propose to challenge the Chicagos to a team race this fall, and beat them also, and they expect to accomplish this through Ehlert. With Ehlert, Tuttle, Loveday or Maas in the team they think they can race any team in the West. Ehlert is very anxious to have a go at Lumsden and has begun active training, very quietly, and as soon as he gets in good condition will issue a challenge to Arthur for a series of races, and should he prove a winner the Chicagos will quickly receive a challenge, for a team race, from the Illinois team. The Chicagos will have to hustle to keep from being caught napping in racing circles this year.

TOM ROE has once more dissolved partnership with the Western Arms Co., or so he says.

THE Illinois Club will hold their annual road race Saturday, June 22d. The start will be made at 4 P. M., and the course is from Fortieth street to Oak Park and return, a distance of about ten miles.

I WAS quite amused at the letter of the "Judge" in a New York cycling paper last week, this surprise at the resignations in the Chicago's offices at their last monthly meeting was so genuine. But why is it, "Judge," that you did not speak of your nerve in resigning from one office at that meeting, owing to business, and then allowing your name to go before the meeting and become a candidate for another important office, notwithstanding business was taking up all your spare time?

THE State meet will be held at Ottawa, July 4th and 5th.

THE Chicagos have got the raffle fever again, and will raffle off one of their pianos. They will also give a moonlight party at South Park Pavillion the evening of June 27th.

THE Chicagos would like to get Spooner into their club, since his recent performance, but Spooner remembers the past and thinks the Lincoln Club plenty good enough for him by a large majority.

OH, I say, "Linneus," what did you remark about having Stone race Windle? Eh! Oh! I beg pardon, but the "Stroller" was pretty near right. Eh?

SAM MILES is already talking up a tournament to be held in the fall. If you have another one, Sam, those twenty-five-dollar cups for prizes will have to be barred. They are cheaper than that by the gross. If you don't believe ask Washburn or Tuttle.

SPOONER feels rather sore over the Pullman road race, and as soon as the roads are in condition will have a try at Winship's record. Lumsden also intends to see what he can do towards lowering the record likewise.

IN all probability Winship will return to the racing path next year. This season he will simply look on.

I HAD quite a chat the other day with Peters, who, in days gone by, used to be a disturbing element in the Chicago Club. But "Pete" is married now and settled down, and has quite a fatherly look to him. Although he is not riding any now yet he cannot keep away from those places where cyclers most do congregate at the noontime hour, and likes to talk wheel with the rest of them.

SYRACUSE.

"SALINA."

ONE of the Cycling Club blandly informed "Salina," the other day, that "Stroller," of Chicago, had been in our salty burg and had been shown our club rooms. Now, "Stroller," my boy, it's dead hard luck that I should have missed you, for it certainly would have been a great pleasure to meet you after reading your spicy writings. "Sic vita est."

ONCE again the local club comes to the front and shows the world that we have some real, live racers among us. The case in point is that of the Y. M. C. A. field day, in which there was a two-mile bicycle race. J. P. Becker, unattached, and Chapin, Benjamin, Lancaster and Yehle, S. C. C., were entered. Chapin won handily in 6.59, with Lancaster second, and Yehle a mighty close third.

CAPTAIN CHAPIN is certainly making an enviable record this year. His work at Rome was commended on all sides, and his last victory is a clincher to all others. The good old Captain will now wear a badge to accompany the one presented him by the club January last.

THE Syracuse Cycling Club minstrels gave a press rehearsal last Friday evening, and, from the notices in the Saturday papers, the scribes present thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment. Our talent embraces Ed. I. Rice, champion trick and fancy rider of Central New York; Harry C. Winthrop, dialect comedian; Fred Graham, clog and reel dancer; the Cycling Club quartette; Chas. W. Wood, interlocutor; an orchestra of eight men, under Chas. W. Ball; Messrs. Winthrop, Avery, Hopkins, Yale, Rice and Cherry, as end men; the Cycling Club banjo four, Wood, Levette, West and Lunn; "and many new and novel features procured at an enormous expense by the management while in Paris (Ky.) and Liverpool (N. Y.)" The company play at Fayetteville Tuesday, June 18. "Admission free, children half price."

THE appearance of Miss Edith Wallace and Chas. W. Wood on a tandem, at the Syracuse Driving Park, on Y. M. C. A. day was a novelty to many. Miss Wallace rode like a veteran, and considering the fact that she is one of the few ladies in our city who have attempted bicycling she was awarded an impromptu reception by the Cycling boys on entering the grand stand.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

OUR enthusiastic Mr. Allen, who spent so much time in deciding on the kind of a wheel to buy, has a complete collection of cycling catalogues of American makers, from the earliest to the latest issue, and an almost complete collection of those of the English makers. He is in fact a walking encyclopedia of wheel construction.

THE agitation, in the Eastern States, of the Saturday half holiday question is well, and it is to be hoped it will meet with success. There are, however, a number of individuals to whom the command "Six days shalt thou labor" is one to be literally obeyed, and whose only vacation is on the seventh day. To many of these the wheel is a godsend. I refer neither to the scorcher, who rides simply to boast of his record, nor to the bibulously inclined, who judge a road by the frequency of the saloons, but to him who delights in the beauties of nature. Such a one carries with him to the counting room or the work-shop pleasant memories of rural scenes, of fragrant flowers and songs of birds, to mingle them with the dry details of his daily tasks.

THE championship race of the C. B. C. will be run from Gas Hall, Carthage, to the first toll gate outside of Hamilton (fourteen miles) on the 16th inst.

THE nearness of the coming championship race rather interfered with the harmony of the run of the C. B. C. to Florence on the 2d, as it was a scorch from the word go.

THE road race that has been postponed so often on account of the rain and mud has again been postponed. A heavy rain began falling last night and at this writing, 3 P. M. Saturday, still continues.

STILLMAN G. WHITTAKER is here. He visited the rooms of the C. B. C., where he was introduced to the Mascot as Mr. Walker, who wished to buy a wheel. The unsuspecting Billy put Mr. W. on the front seat of his tandem and for over half an hour they see-sawed across the street, caromed on the curb stone, and did the stand-still on the car tracks in the most approved style. He then put him on his safety with no better results. At last, as the now thoroughly exhausted Billy sat down on the curb to catch his breath, he told his pupil that in one more lesson he thought he would be able to ride. In the afternoon as Mr. W. and the fat lady were riding through Walnut Hills they met the "Duke," who tried to scorch Mr. W. and took him up hill and down dale for about fifteen miles. They wound up at the club house with Mr. W. about a block in the lead. The "Duke" then complimented him by telling him that he could ride very well.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE first thing that a humble cycle scribe sees at Westboro' when he enters "Jack's" sanctum, is the top of "Jack's" head emerging from a pile of press correspondence, advertising matter, personal and business letters. Then if you are a friend of "Jack's" he will beam all over with genuine pleasure. Three signs, which he has placed on the wall, in his fine, round Roman hand, are as follows: "To advertising agents.—Please wait until we have put on our heavy boots." Another says, in adaptation of a well-known card: "This is my busy day, and my opinion on politics, base ball, religion and the temperance question is unchangeable, but if you can throw any light upon cycle construction, or have any valuable hints on the bicycle question, I have always time to listen to you." A more chilly sign reads: "Make yourself at home among our private correspondence. We like to see a man take a lot of interest in his fellow creatures. Do not feel hurt, however, if we ask you to close the door on the outside." As the busybony takes leave a sign on the door says: "Everybody closes this door but you," and he goes up the road wondering if some men can be sat upon. We will back our friend "Jack" to maintain his dignity with any of them.

THE full report of the Massachusetts Division Officers' meet, held last Saturday, will be found in the Official Department.

THE stand-bys of the grand old Springfield, Mass., Bi. Club are endeavoring to form an interstate club, for the purpose of road racing. Howard P. Merrill, of the Union, has charge of the affair.

THE Brookville (Ind.) Bi. Club will hold a grand hill-climbing contest July 4th.

THE Hudson County, N. J., authorities will soon issue $1,000,000 bonds for the purpose of building a new road from Bergen Point to Fort Lee.

THE wheelmen who toured through the San Gabriel Valley, S. Cal., lately were dined at Pasedena by our old acquaintance, A. L. Atkins.

THE authorities of Richmond County, Ga., have for the past eleven years used convict labor on the highways of that county, with the most satisfactory results.

A WRITER from Meriden, Ct., says: "Please say for Meriden, Ct., that it must continue its claim of being the hub of wheeling, as it is so near the centre of the State, and that we are waiting to hear from New Haven and a proposed road race."

GENTLEMEN, let us take off our hats to Massachusetts. Why? Because in the first month of the present League year she has put more new members on the League list than she added during the whole of last year, which embraced fifteen months.

IN the Official Department we print the full account of the Massachusetts Division meeting, held last Saturday.

MR. T. A. CARROLL, the former President of the Lynn Cycle Track Association, has just completed arrangements whereby he will be able to hold either a two or three days' bicycle tournament at the Lynn track, some time during September. He promises it will eclipse all previous tournaments held on this famous track.

DR. C. S. BUTLER, Chairman of the Roads Improvement Committee of the L. A. W., was in Boston last week for a few days, on business and pleasure bent.

To give an idea of the length of days enjoyed in England at this time of the year, we print a notice in Bi. News to the effect that 'lamps must be lit this evening at 9.05." Oh for such twilights in this country.

MISSOURI members see Official Department for particulars of the Missouri Division meet, programme, etc.

THE Elwell tourists have arrived in England, and Bi News, prints an editorial welcoming them and calling on Englishmen to do "the hospitable," which we have no doubt they will. Bi. News also prints a cartoon containing excellent portraits of Mr. Elwell and Mr. Higgins.

THEY come and they go. Windle out and F. F. Ives in, and we are glad to see Ives back. He was always a square, honest rider, and a quiet, gentlemanly fellow withal.

ANOTHER authoritative pill to swallow for those who believe that ordinaries and safeties should be allowed in the same events. Mr. J. G. Lothrop, of Harvard, says there is danger in it. As to "that foul," he says: "It is a fact that just there, owing, no doubt, to an uneven surface, Davis' front wheel did go slightly toward the outside of the track, not a yard, however, but enough to touch Clark's wheel."

MR. EDWARD HANCK of Erie, was thrown from his bicycle and broke his leg square at the knee. The account gives it that the "break caused a loud report."

TENNESSEE L. A. W. Division meet, June 18th, at Nashville, Tenn.

JAMES LYNCH, riding a bicycle on Nahant st., Lynn, the other day, came into collision with a team driven by F. Foss. Lynch was severely injured in the hip.

A GENTLEMEN for whose opinion we have the highest respect writes us from Salt Lake City, and takes exception to our note that the "Mormons" were to have a 1-4 mile track. With all due respect to the gentleman we cannot for the life of us see anything objectionable to the item. There was no covert sneer nor no disrespect intended. If, however, the use of the name Mormon is distasteful used in the way we used it we will refrain in the future as nothing can be further from us than the wish to offend.

J. H. AMBRUSTER writes from Denver, Col., under date June 3rd, and says: "I arrived here on Saturday last from St. Louis, having ridden the entire distance, 982 miles, on my wheel. I was 26 days on the road and had 11 days of rain. Taken altogether, the trip was a tough one owing to the bad weather, but still I enjoyed it, and am none the worse for it except being badly sunburned."

MASSACHUSETTS Division Spring Meet at Squantum, Monday, June 17. Start from Copley Square, 10 A. M. sharp.

EXIT W. Windle as an amateur.

IN writing of the great road race at Chicago on the 30th, our correspondent, the "Stroller," tells the following good story: when Lumsden caught Bode and asked for the right of way it was immediately given, but when Andrae attempted to pass, Bode thinking it was some new rider spurted with him, but as soon as he caught sight of the No. 4 on Andrae's back he wilted.

WE are told that a Chicago rider picked up a mad dog in a street filled with school children, carried the furious canine at arms length some distance while riding his bicycle and finally threw the dog into a hallway of a house where it was killed. Had not the heroic cycler done this, there is no doubt but that many children would have been bitten.

POOR Charlie Seig is again accused of being the "Stroller." We would advise our Chicago friends to put Pinkerton on this case and set at rest the "Stroller's" identity.

LYNN, Mass., will try and revive the dead interest in cycle races in that town. The Rowe-Temple "episode" killed cycle racing in shoe-town.

THE ordinance requiring the carrying of lamps going on bicycles is to be enforced at Denver, Col.

A SMALL party of wheelmen under the leadership of Mr. F. L. Ingraham are to make a tour extending over a thousand miles through Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky. We don't envy them the trip this time of the year.

PROF. CARL MEYER says his air bicycle is nearly ready and in the course of a few weeks he will be ready to fly.

HARVARD will hold its road race (to-morrow) June 15th.

THE CHICAGO HANDICAPPING.

Editor Bicycling World: Your report of the tournament was very correct, but please correct your Cincinnati correspondent's statement about handicapping. The only Cincinnati man here was Burroughs, and I'm sure he is satisfied that the work was fairly done. The committee worked hard and conscientiously, and were fortunate enough to escape the condemnation which usually falls to the lot of handicappers. Yours truly,

Chicago, May 28th. S. A. MILES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1889.

L. B. GAYLOR, ESQ., DEAR SIR:

Two weeks have elapsed since I received my Eagle Bicycle, during which time I have given the machine a most severe test, through which it has passed without even a spoke becoming loose. The most severe test during that time was that of riding over all the rough places I could find in and around the city, across lots, up and down steep banks, up and down high curbstones and over obstructions of all kinds, which is a terrible strain on the material and workmanship of a bicycle, through which the Eagle went without getting even a scratch, not meeting an obstacle that it could not mount.

I have never, during my experience, ridden a wheel that runs so smoothly, easily, and at the same time gives so great pleasure to the rider as the Eagle. I can see no reason why great speed cannot be gotten out of it, both on the track and the road, and intend before long to show the Washington boys what it can do in regard to road riding. Every one here speaks of the fine workmanship you put on your wheel.

I do not know how to express my appreciation of the good qualities by words, but hope to show it by good work on it soon.

Yours very truly,

WILL T. ROBERTSON,
605 Seventh street, Washington, D. C.

The Swift.

The Buffalo Express, May 29, says:

"James S. Hedge of the Buffalo Bicycle Club made the first century run of the year on May 26th. Leaving the club house at 8 A. M., he rode via Seneca Street, Potter's Corners Road, Orchard Park, and Colden to Springville. Here a stop of two hours was made fordinner, and return was made via Boston and Hamburg to the club house, arriving at 6.45 P. M. Starting again at 7 P. M. he pushed on out to Bowmansville and return and rode three times around the meadow, arriving at the club house at 10.25 P. M. Hedge rode a Swift Safety, and considering the fact that he did not start out to make a 'century,' and did not think of it until he had ridden about 70 miles, made very good time, his riding time being 10 hours and 30 minutes for 105 miles, or an average of 10 miles an hour. Four hours and five minutes were used in stops. This is the first time a century run has been made by a rider in this city on a safety, and it is also the first time a century has been made over this route, there being a great many short steep hills to climb."

PUNCENT PREMIER PARAGRAPHS.

To manufacture Cycles of the Quality that both Sell and Satisfy, these Qualifications are Essential: Best Material, Riding Experience, Mechanical Knowledge and Skill, Superior Manufacturing Facilities and a Conscience. We modestly claim to have embodied these in the construction of our Premier Safeties and Tandems.

Every joint, spring, bolt, nut or other extra part added to a Wheel increases its liability to rattle, drop to pieces and break down; increases its weight; decreases its rigidity and strength; decreases the rider's power; increases the cost of maintenance.

The American tendency is toward invention, innovation, novelty; the English toward conservatism, practicality, simplicity. The former rush to a certain idea, regardless of any results except the one to be attained; the latter adhere to old and long-used methods, moving slowly and suspicious of the new.

Our Manufacturers are English, we are American. We have endeavored, and we believe succeeded, in combining in the Premier Safeties the desirable characteristics of the two nationalities. They are built for American roads and riders. We have ridden, tested, criticised, improved them. They are strong, simple, light and up to the times.

Special Premier Safety, for Lady or Gentleman, $135. Popular Premier Safety, all steel, all balls, $105. Youth's Premier Safety, $65. Premier Tandem Safety, $200.

THE ELWELL TOURISTS.

SEVEN days out and "all's well." Contrary to all expectations and the kindly (?) expressed condoling of our friends before leaving home, none have been seriously sick. In fact out of our party of twenty-seven only one was unable to come to table every meal, and he ate seven meals per day on the upper deck.

It has been simply a phenomenal voyage; the ship steady as an island, the sea like a pond and the spirits and ardor of the party consequently undampened. Even Papa Elwell (who by written contract and by verbal promise had agreed to be sick for the whole party) has not missed a meal or sicked a sick. In "Headquarters" stateroom 33 the legend which stares one in the face—"No Vomiting Above a Whisper"—has been rendered unnecessary by the kindness of Pater Neptune.

In the smoking room, on the quarter deck, in the saloon, in fact verywhere the cycle party predominates. The flavoring essence of the spirit of cycling has tinctured the conversation of even the gravest graybeard or the prettiest young lady (eh Penrose?) on the ship. All seem to be interested and even enthusiastic in re wheeling lore and literature, and which ever way one looks the sight of a club badge or a pair of knickerbockered legs lends enchantment to the view.

Enough of rambling thus; and let us take the voyage systematically although briefly.

Saturday, May 18th, after we had lost sight of land Papa Elwell called all his children into the smoking-room and in a most practical and fraternal little speech outlined his views and proposed policy for the best carrying out of the tour. After the applause had subsided the roll call was read, and as each man's name was called Papa E. gave us a short synopsis of his career and character, and then the victim added or subtracted from Mr. Elwell's version as seemed to him best. When all the Yankee boys had said their little say Mr. Priest, of Birmingham, was called on for a speech. In suave and soothing accents he asserted his pride in being a "Blawsted Britisher," but in such a fraternal way that all applauded his laudable assertion. He, however, very gallantly and cavalierly wore one of the American buttons with which Clark Cooper, of Trenton, N. J., kindly supplied the party and which will serve as our distinctive badge for he tour.

Sunday, the 19th, was a calm Sabbath-like day and passed uneventfully save for the daily discussion, in the smoking-room, on bicycles, et al.

The next two or three days shuffle-board and ring-toss with smoking, lounging around, and in the evening singing on deck served to make the golden hours fly, and cement more firmly friendships already warm and fraternal.

Wednesday evening at the instigation of Mr. Kirk, of "Pennsy," the "club-yell" was adopted and rehearsed until perfectly familiar. It runs as follows (in stentorian tones): Oo-Ah! Oo-Ah! A-M-E-R-I-C-A, Am-Mer Ry-Kay, U.-S.-A.! This we worked until all the other passengers were as familiar with it as ourselves, and it will serve in case of need on many a rare occasion in the happy summer to come.

An informal glee club, under the baton of Mr. Seavey, of Portland, has been organized and has already acquired quite a repertoire such as "America," "God Save the Queen," Marching Through Georgia," "Old Folks at Home," "My Jane," "Found a Peanut," "Rolling Home," "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," etc., etc., and when the brazen lungs get loose the smoking-room roof does likewise.

Friday night (24th, the Queen's Birthday) we had a mock trial in the saloon. Messrs. Elwell and Higgins were the culprits, and the charge that of non-fulfillment of contract, inasmuch as no one had been sick (as promised), et cetera.

High Court of Justice, province of Cephalonia.
His Honor, Judge Tom Brinsmade.
Clerk, Chas. Seavey, of Portland.
Sheriff, P. Harvard Rielly, Esq., Hartford.
Council for Defence, S. R. White, Newton, Mass.; W. J. Penrose, Newark.
Council for Prosecution, Junius Beal, Ann Arbor, and H. R. Wilson, Clarion, Pa.
Witnesses for Prosecution, Esterbrook, Cake, Kirk and Collins.
Witnesses for Defence, Dr. McLachlan, Cooper, McAlpine (who feigned deafness to perfection) and Reilly.

The examination of witnesses and their cross-examination by the opposing council brought forth many side-splitting witticisms and kept the cabin in a roar for minutes at a stretch, and when Mr. White, in the midst of a magnificent peroration, referred to the peasant girls of the Jura Mountains, who wear nothing but wooden shoes, the multitude applauded until the ship nearly got off her course. His Honor also furnished an abyssmal depth of fun by his solemn and majestic deportment. The verdict (despite the eloquent endeavor of Mr. White and his bald-headed colleague, "Pennyroyal") was given without hesitation against the defendants, who were allowed to pass without sentence, the court adjourning until 2 P. M. the following morning.

After the trial the boys hied them to the smoking-room, where Mr. Priest, to the honor of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Vic. (and to his own everlasting fame), had ordered up a huge bowl of punch.

The Queen's health was drunk standing and with bared heads, and then came "God Save the Queen," "America" and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" (Priest), which nobody could deny. Mirth and song pushed the clock along, till the lights went out, mid laugh and shout, and to bed we went along—about midnight.

Saturday, nothing noteworthy, save the same marvellous weather.

Sunday (present writing), general writing and packing up day, as we hope to be at Queenstown Monday noon, and will send our trunks per steamer direct to Burr's Hotel, London.

This being our last night aboard, hearts are beating feverishly in anticipation of the longed for land, and the still more longed for wheels. All signs point to fine whether, a glorious time, and, given the weather, the boys feel capable of looking after the time. All are busy writing home and studying the ramifications of the English currency. In regard to this, as to many other English local peculiarities, the boys feel indebted to Mr. Priest for his advice and aid in disputed questions, and have been trying to get him to land at Queenstown with us, but he is not able to do so. This letter ends as the good ship is rolling at an angle of almost 45 degrees, and steamer trunks chasing each other round the stateroom floors.

The glims will be doused early this evening, and all hands will be up at dawn to watch for Fastnet Light, our first glimpse of the promised land. May we find the reality as fair as our ideals of it, and "all's well."

PEDALS.

LATER.

From Bi. News we take the following: "Heavy rain during the night renders Tuesday's ride a fatiguing task, but the Americans display greater dexterity in managing their new machines than might have been expected, although the long climb up the mountains empties every saddle but one. The visitors are accompanied by about twenty cyclists from the locality, and at Cappoquin we diverge from the road to visit the monastery at Mount Melleray, where we are the guests of the monks and priests, who give us a hearty meal and afterwards show us over the monastery. The machines are remounted, and the afternoon waxes late, whilst shower after shower sends us to seek shelter. A number of the Dungarvan Ramblers Clubmen are met a few miles before we reach Dungarvan, and as the town is reached we find numerous American flags spanning the roadway, and the whole populace has turned out to welcome us in honest Irish fashion. The evening we spend as the guests of Mr. R. E. Brenan, who keeps open house, where mirth and jollity reign supreme until a late hour.

MASSACHUSETTS DIVISION MEET.

NEXT Monday, (June 17th), the Massachusetts Division will hold the spring meet at Squantum. The following is the programme: Leave Copley Square at 10 A. M. sharp.

There will be three handicap races for ordinary bicycles, safeties and tandem bicycles, two medals being given for each race. The committee will also furnish a medal for every club which desires to establish a club championship. The medal for each club to be competed for by the members of that club. At least three men must start in every race. Entry, 50 cents, to be made prior to June 15, to Dr. W. G. Kendall, 176 Tremont street, Boston. Races will occur at 3 o'clock.

Balls and bats will be furnished for ball playing. In accordance with the idea of making this meet a picnic, the committee has decided to allow each wheelmen to furnish his own lunch, and to avoid bother, a wagon will be furnished which will leave Copley square after the wheelmen. Each man can deliver his lunch with his name written plainly in ink on the covering, at this wagon, and obtain it after arriving at Squantum.

HE WANTS TO ACCEPT THE CHLEALNGE.

WHY does Mr. W. Van Wagoner of Newport limit his challenge to New Bedford? I should like to see the challenge extended to the amateurs of Bristol county, as I think there is a man in Taunton who could accommodate Mr. Van Wagoner, and probably this would make a very pretty and interesting contest, if the Taunton man I refer to should accept it, which I think he probably would.

IN REPLY TO MR. WELCH.

Editor Bicycling World: In answer to communication of W. L. Welch, No. 19,308, in issue of May 24th WORLD, I would suggest the use of travelers' letters of credit, Brown Bros. & Co., New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and Alex. Brown & Sons, Baltimore, issue letters of credit in dollars, available in all parts of the United States. There are also other banking houses that issue dollar credits. As a letter of credit is signed by the purchaser as well as the banker, his, the purchaser's signature, is his means of identification. Very truly, 10,514, H. TROTH.

THE GREAT CENTURY RUN OF 1889.

THE clans began to gather early on Friday, the 7th, and supper hour found thirty wheelmen and women at the Mountain House, discussing the threatening weather, roads, schedule, etc., not to mention a very fair meal. Each evening train brought in batches, and at 10 o'clock sixty-one were safely tucked away in their little beds — perhaps. They wouldn't be cyclists without the ingredients of practical mischief in their make-ups, and I won't be quite as hard on the occupants of "41" as I might.

I said sixty-one; the sixty-second was Warner, Gordon L. He didn't reach the hotel. Says the wind whistled sohe couldn't "razor" 'nough strengeth to climb the hill, and so gave up from sheer exhaustion. But the time came when Morpheus got the best of it, and even Billy's patented foghorn dog-scarer was laid aside, and nothing but mosquitoes were abroad. Their bills were about the only things we had to take without a rebate.

Through the sleepiness of the clerks we were allowed to over-sleep nearly a half hour, and did not get away until nearly 4.30. At Orange light O. W.'s were picked up, and at Newark the Essex boys.

Freylinghuysen Ave. and the Roselle road from Elizabeth were in fine condition and after passing through several showers and making a brief stop for a drink all 'round at Dr. Kinch's we made Plainfield on schedule time.

At the Plainfield Bi. Club's headquarters we were regaled with plenty of rich milk and sandwiches, and left on time for New Brunswick. The roads were very bad and the rising head wind made the travelling rather slow and hard, and the arrival at Rutgers College was a little straggling. Mrs. Cossitt, on her safety finding the going too hard, gave up, and taking the train went through to Philadelphia, while Mr. Cossitt, getting off at Princeton, rode back to Kingston to meet us, and finished the whole distance.

Not far below New Brunswick Isbell of K.C.W. broke his handlebar and fell out of the run at Kingston, in company with Capt. Clarke, and Lester Beasley, of K. C.W., the former having his rear tire come off, and the latter re-spraining his ankle. Isbell rode nearly ten miles with one hand.

Princeton was reached on time and then, after the hardest ten miles on the run, Trenton and grub. The latter was good and lots of it.

Meantime Capt. Clarke had come on ahead by train and arranged for photographs, and after dinner and considerable trouble got the boys into position in front of the State Capitlo, with the wheels stacked on either side with Miss Welch, mounted on her tandem in the centre.

They got five shots at us; the man in the street three, and the "man in the window" two.

The start from Trenton was a little behind schedule, on account of the photos, but the party struck to a fair pace and got into Philadelphia but a few minutes behind.

Along the streets of Frankford and Philadelphia, thousands were gathered to see them come in. They were taken in charge of by the Century wheelmen, at whose house they left their wheels, and arrived at the hotel about 9 P. M.

Among those who made the entire distance was Miss Kate W. Welch and her brother Warren L. Welch, members of the L. A. W. and the Wissahickon Wheelmen, Germantown, mounted on a tandem bike. Miss W.'s riding was superb, and the boys to a man are willing to stake their fortunes and their lives in the defence of the claim in Miss W.'s behalf, that she is the first lady to ride a century per bicycle in this country.

On Sunday, the 9th, the party left the Continental at 9 A. M., and the Century Club's house at 10, for a run through the park to the Philadelphia Bi. Club's house, and thence, after a brief halt, to Strawberry hill, where various cooling preparations were served. The heat was very great, and the shade of the fine old trees about the Strawberry mansion was very welcome.

A special car awaited our wheels on our return, at the Columbia Ave. station of the Reading road and after packing them away we were not long in gettingback to the Continental for one of the finest dinners we had ever eaten. Our special car was a beauty and we left at 3.30 on the B. & O. express, picking up our wheel car on the way.

Nobody had anything but praise for the kind and courteous treatment by the R. R. officials.

Probably no party of wheelmen has ever travelled so comfortably and so cheaply before; $1.60 from Philadelphia to New York, including wheels.

The following gentlemen started but did not finish, and below is given the places where they stopped and causes.

No. 1, L. A. Clark, No. 9, N. H. Weed, No. 10, B. M. Cole, No. 18, F. M. Cossit, No. 19, Mrs. F. M. Cossit. No. 24, J. W. Sheehan, No. 25, C. E. Clements, No. 28, C. C. Lock, No. 30, L. W. Beasley, No. 45, Frank Beeraft, No. 34, C. M. Isbell, No. 81, Mr. Crawford.

No. 1 lost his rear tire at Kingston; Nos. 6 and 7 stopped at Trenton; Nos. 9 and 10 stopped at Plainfield; Nos. 18 and 19 took train at New Brunswick, 19 to Philadelphia and 18 to Princeton, riding back to Kingston and then to Philadelphia, 80 miles in all; 24 and 25 were riding tandem in good shape when they were forced to retire through the breaking of the neck of the machine near Westfield; one man stopped at Plainfield; 30 made his already bad ankle worse by a side fall near New Brunswick and retired at Kingston in company with Nos. 1, 45 and 34, the latter breaking his handle bar to miles above K. and pluckily riding that distance with one hand; 81, joining at Crawford, broke his handle bar before reaching Westfield, took train for New York, bought a new one, and returned to Trenton in time to join the run at that place.

DESIRES TO EXPLAIN.

Editor Bicycling World: I hope you will give a little space in your paper for this word of apology to the century run. We are very sorry that nothing was provided for their refreshment at their rest in our place, but the emphatic denials of Mr. Clark to stop led us to think it would be of no use to provide anything. We thought they were going right through; and then they halt, take us by surprise, and we are chagrined for having nothing provided, and only cold water to offer them. Our distress is greater on account of the ladies who accompanied the run. We enjoyed the visit they gave us last year, and hoped for a repetition of it this, but the Commander said he could not stop, and so nothing was prepared. We hope another time to have our own way, and prepare such entertainment as we wish, and that Westfield will be put down as a resting place. FRED. R. KINCH, JR., M. D.

Westfield, N. J., June 8, 1889.

MR. CORCORAN TO MR. DAVIS.

Editor Bicycling World: In reply to Davis' letter on the Davis-Clark foul, I would state that it is not necessary for me to reply to Mr. Davis on this matter, as the Referee and others have done so for me, but I will state that I do not propose to recognize any rules that Mr Davis or any of his advisors may suggest. Mr. Clark and the bicycle team at Yale have respect for the L. A. W. rules, and the Yale Athletic Team did all in their power to prevent safeties from riding in the bicycle race, while Mr. Davis and the Harvard team defied them. I know enough about racing to recognize rules that were made for racing, and would not stoop to take a mean advantage of any man or weakness in racing rules, and defy Mr. Davis or any of his advisors to point to one mean act of mine in my career as a bicycle trainer.

In conclusion, I would respectfully call the attention of your readers to the fact that Mr. Davis is an amateur who defies the amateur racing rules of the L. A. W., while I take pleasure in signing myself a professional who respects the amateur racing rules of the L. A. W., and further insist that all amateurs who place themselves in my charge must respect them also.

RACES AND RECORDS ON ROAD AND TRACK.

AT ST. LOUIS—Lumsden returned from St. Louis well pleased with his reception there, while his club mates were equally well pleased at the result of the race. Fred Ingalls brought back one solitary iron dollar the only money he could get a chance to cover on the result of the race, and intends to have it framed and presented to the club as a memento of the occasion. The race was a waiting one, like the first, until the last lap when Stone, who set the pace began to get up speed and half way down the back stretch was some forty feet ahead of Lumsden and St. Louis sent up a joyous shout, "He wins! He wins!" but it soon died out as Arthur closed up the gap, and as they rounded the turn into the home stretch they were even up and remained so until about 100 ft. from the tape, when Arthur made a spurt and rolled over the line some 10 feet ahead of Stone. And our "third rate man" had won the race and the series. The third race, the 20 mile one, will probably be declared off, Stone having asked this favor. The slow time, 9.45 for the three miles, shows nothing as to the speed of the two men, except as to their spurting qualities.

AT OMAHA, NEB.—Track.—The Cyclennes vs. horses six days' race at Omaha, which finished June 1, resulted as follows: Horses, total, 395 miles 3 laps; bicycles, total, 393 miles 6 laps.

AT NEW ORLEANS.—Road.—One mile series in the A. M. Hill medal—first race June 1. The entries were as they finished. Bert Sprigg, R. L. Carey, A. M. Hill and George Salomon. No time was taken, but it was done in a rattling pace. The course run was from Soniat street to the upper end of the Exposition grounds on St. Charles avenue. A large number of wheelmen was present to witness the race.

AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.—L. A. W. Division Meet.—Large crowd, and local records broken. One mile novice, John Tufts, Jr. (1), T. Romero (2); time 2.54. One mile State championship, W. S. Wing (1), J. P. Percival (2); time 2.47, which is record for the Pacific coast by 1 1-2 seconds. Quarter-mile dash, walkover for D. L. Burke: time 43 1-4. Half-mile dash, D. L. Burke (1), James Lancaster (2); time 1.26 1-4. One mile safety, John Tufts, Jr. (1), J. J. Archibald (2); time 3.04 1-4. Three mile National L. A. W. championship, J. P. Percival (1), W. S. Wing (2); time 9.48 1-4. One mile, 3.15 class, John Tufts, Jr., (1), F. Schiedler (2); time 2.57. One mile, D. L. Burke (1), J. Lancaster (2); time 2.52 3-4. Half-mile, boys under 18, Will Tufts (1), W. J. Allen (2); time 1.37 1-4. Five miles States championship, W. S. Wing (1), J. P. Percival (2); time 15.40 1-4, which is State record by 8 3-4 seconds. Los Angeles now holds five Pacific coast championships: Half-mile, A. W. Allen, 1.22 1-2; one mile, W. S. Wing, 2.47; one mile safety, J. Tufts, Jr., 3.04 1-4; three miles, W. S. Wing, 9.30; five miles, W. S. Wing, 15.40 1-2. A large crowd witnessed the bicyclists hill-climbing contest. W. S. Wing and N. R. Bradley both climbed the Olive street hill from Fifth to Third streets. Wing made the journey in one minute and 48 seconds, while it took Bradley 2.08 3-4. W. S. Wing and J. Phil Percival both climbed the Second street hill from Olive to Bunker Hill avenue.

AT NEW YORK.—Manhattan Athletic Club games, May 8. Track.—One mile and a half, handicap heats, W. F. Murphy, 60 yds. (1), H. L. Powers, 60 yds. (2); time 4.35 1-5. There were also started W. G. Class, J. Bensinger, S. B. Bowman and J. W. Shoefel, but all these men went down in a heap on the last turn.

AT ST. LOUIS.—Track.—After two postponements the Stone-Lumsden race came off at 5.30 o'clock, June 5, and the result was anything but cheering to our local cyclsts. After three minor events had been run, the gong sounded for the race of the day. Stone won the toss and took the outside, and Lumsden, following the same tactics as in the previous race, forced him to take the lead, which he held for 11 1-2 laps. The pace was a waiting one, not a single mile being ridden under 3.07, until within 80 yards of the finish, when both men put forth their best efforts and strained every nerve to win, but the best Stone could do was not sufficient, and the Chicago boy crossed the tape a winner, 9 feet ahead of Stone, in 9 minutes 44 seconds. The last 80 yards of the race was as pretty an exhibition of fast riding as was ever seen here, and will be long remembered by all who saw it. There is no question about it that Stone was not in the condition he should have been, as he had not crossed a wheel but once after the race of May 25. This was caused by bad weather, and his inability of getting training ground. The track was in fine shape, and neither Lumsden nor Jordan had one word of complaint to make on this or any other score. A number of other events were on the programme, and resulted as follows: Half-mile, Frank Mehlig (1), Knight Wade (2); time 1.30 1-5. Prizes, gold medal to first, bicycle shoes to second. One mile novice, A. G. Harding (1), W. G. Dunham (2); time 3.17 4-5. Prize, Brooks' cyclometer. One mile handicap, E. N. Sanders, scratch, (1), Frank Mehlig, scratch, (2); time 3.12 2-5. Prizes, gold medal to first silver cup to second. Half-mile safety for boys under 14 years, H. Kauffman (1), J. Ring (2); time 1.44 3-5. Prize, silver medal. One mile handicap for safeties, Richard Hurck, scratch, (1), E. M. Knapp, 40 yds. (2); time 3.22 1-5. Prizes, silver-headed cane to first, pair sleeve buttons to second. Quarter-mile bicycle for boys under 14 years, H. Kauffman (1), A. H. Annan (2); time 46 4-5 seconds. Prize, silver medal. Two mile handicap, A. G. Harding, 25 yds. (1), Frank Mehlig, scratch, (2); time 6.36. Prizes, silk umbrella to first, Jersey suit to second. LINNEUS.

ON BEDFORD ROAD, ENGLAND.---The fifty miles handicap road race, under the auspices of the North Road Club, resulted as follows: First, R. J. Ilsley, Ord. 30 m., 3 h. 9 m. 39 s.; second, W. M. Crosbie, Ord., 25 m., 3 h. 15 m. 22 s.; third, G. P. Mills, Tri., 15 m. 3 h. 05 m. 44 s.; fourth, A. Nixon, Tri., 55 m., 3 h. 45 m. 47 s. M. A. Holbein, on a safety from scratch, rode the distance in the English record time "in competition" in 2 h. 56 m. 34 s.

AT JACKSONVILLE, ILL.---Track.---On June 5, the Jacksonville Wheelmen, of Jacksonville, Ill., held their first races, which were run on a dirt track. Two mile ordinary, won by Irving Woods, time 6.44; one mile safety, won by Arthur D. Black, time 3.25; half-mile ordinary, won by Lee Schureman, time 1.36; three mile safety, won by J. B. Johnson, time 11.58; one mile ordinary, won by George Henry, time 3.19; five mile free for all, won by Irving Woods, time 18.33; half-mile safety consolation, won by C. C. Henry, time 1.54; half-mile ordinary consolation, won by Will Duer, time 1.44.

HARTFORD WILL HAVE A TOURNAMENT.

AT the monthly meeting of the Hartford Wheel Club, held June 11th, it was voted to hold a race meet at Charter Oak Park, on September 4th and 5th.

It was decided that it be a strictly amateur race meet, as former experiences with professionals have proven far from satisfactory.

It is the intention of the club to make this the greatest two-day bicycling tournament ever held in this country.

The club has invited the Connecticut Division L. A. W. to hold a meet here at that time. At a meeting of the Board of Officers of the division the invitation was accepted and a generous sum appropriated for the entertainment of League members.

It behooves every wheelman in Connecticut to join the League at once in order that he may be enabled to enjoy the festivities of that occasion. The club has appointed the following committee to have full charge of the tournament: Louis A. Tracy, Chairman; W. M. Francis, Secretary, P. O. Box 745; Jos. Goodman, E. A. DeBlois, H. N. Wilcox.

FOR THE JOHNSTOWN SUFFERERS.

AT a meeting of the West End Bicycle Club, of Rochester, N. Y., held last evening, it was unanimously resolved to contribute $25 toward the relief of the Johnstown sufferers, and the Secretary was instructed to write your paper of the fact, thinking that when published it might induce other clubs to do the same, as the object is certainly a most worthy one. LORTE G. MARRITT,
Secretary.

[The West End Bicycle Club of Rochester has placed itself on record as having a generous lot of members. The club is only about two years old, but has now a membership of some 140. They are a live club, and the account of the race meeting held May 30, appeared in our last issue.---ED.]

LEAGUE MEET NOTES.

CLUBS are readily seeking accommodations at the hotels and boarding houses at Hagerstown for the coming meet. The night mail of the 5th and that of the morning of the 6th, brought in 105 applications for rooms. The mails the past week being very heavy, owing to the communication with Hagerstown, on account of the flood, being entirely cut off for several days. The Pennsylvania Club has engaged quarters for 30, the Washington Cycle Club for a like number, and the District Cyclers for 15 persons. A bureau of information has been formed, which holds daily sittings at the Hamilton House.

The events and prizes of the races are as follows: One-mile novice.—First prize, gold medal. L. A. W. national championship—First prize, gold medal; second prize, silver medal. One mile safety (L. A. W. national championship)—First prize, gold medal; second prize, silver medal. One mile tricycle (L. A. W. national championship)—First prize, gold medal; second prize, silver medal. Two-mile handicap—First prize, gold medal; second prize, leather traveling bag. Half-mile, heat race (three heats)—First prize, gold medal; second prize, silk umbrella. One hundred yards slow race—Prize, gold medal. One mile club championship (H. Bi. Club)—Prize, gold medal. One mile team race (three from each team)—Prize, silk banner. All events open except club championship. The order in which races will be run will be determined after entries close.

SHOW YOUR TICKETS.

Editor Bicycling World: In your issue of May 3d, No. 3032 asks why it is that the League Committees on Transportation and Hotels do not have a distinct understanding that a wheelman must show his League ticket in order to obtain either free transportation for his wheel or reduced hotel rates.

As a partial answer to his inquiry, I would like to refer him, and all other readers of the WORLD, to the hotel contract in force in the New York State Division which Chief Consul Bull has succeeded in obtaining. A general synopsis of this contract will be found in your issue of May 17th. Among its provisions is one that requires the wheelman, in order to obtain the privileges secured by it, to show his League ticket for the current year, and the landlord agrees that he will not accord the benefits of the contract to any wheelman except such as shall so furnish his ticket. Chief Consul Bull evidently believes with the writer of the article referred to, that non-League wheelmen have sponged upon the League long enough, and proposes to confine, as far as possible, the benefits of its labors to its own members, thus making it an object to all wheelmen to enroll themselves upon its membership list. This contract, if lived up to, will also do away with another serious complaint on the part of wheelmen, and that is, that landlords are very willing to accept the benefits of the contract in the added custom its brings them, but are prone to give inferior accommodations. Under this contract landlords are required to furnish L. A. W. members as good accommodations, in all respects, as those furnished its regular guests, at the rates specified in his contract. Those terms can be easily learned by referring to the record book which each landlord also keeps for the exclusive use of L. A. W. members. Notwithstanding the fact that such is the contract, there may be occasional cases where wheelmen may be imposed upon, and in all such cases the wheelman should immediately write to the Chief Consul, stating fully the facts of the case. Mr. Bull is working solely for the benefit of the organization, and I feel sure will be only too glad to give such matters all the attention they may require. He has accomplished much in securing such a contract, and a great deal more can be accomplished if all League members will join with him in insisting that it be carried out in its letter and spirit.

ROUTE FROM WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE (O.) TO HAGERSTOWN WANTED.

Editor Bicycling World: Would you be so kind as to give the notice below, space in your next issue: Would some one who is acquainted with the country, please give us the best route from Washington Court House, Ohio, to Hagerstown, Md., as we expect to make the run for the L. A. W. meet.

Yours fraternally, CYCLONE CYCLERS,
Washington Court House, Ohio.

ROUTE BETWEEN PROVIDENCE, R. I., AND NEW YORK CITY.

Editor Bicycling World: In regard to inquiry in last week's WORLD as to best route from New York City to Providence, R. I., the answer is: Let the rider in New York City cross by Twenty-third street Ferry to Brooklyn, ride a-wheel to Bedford station L. I. R. R., there train as far at least as Jamaica (though Islip would be better) thence along the south shore of the island to Greenport: a pleasant place to stop over night is to take the ferry at Greenport for Shelter Island (if the summer season has opened) and stop inexpensively and comfortably at the Prospect House. The next morning ride over Shelter Island and return to Greenport in time to take afternoon boat for New London, Conn. Thence, if the afternoons are long enough, ride by wheel to Westerly, R. I.; thence by train to East Greenwich, R. I., where a stop will have to be made over night (Updike House). E. G. to Providence is fourteen miles, and with the exception of a mile or two just after leaving the village the riding is excellent all the way into the city.

Last fall the writer on a tour through the Berkshire Hills and down the Hudson River by bicycle, found after much study before and inquiry after starting, that this was by far the best, and I will almost say the only, way to cycle from New York City to Providence, R. I.

But if your inquirer attempts any other way he will greatly oblige myself, and others who have asked me this question personally, if he write me the result of his experiment.

Providence, R. I., 6 June, 1889 (REV.) S. H. DAY.

WE SHOULD SAY YES.

Editor Bicycling World: The road luxuries are many in this city, and bicycle riders have the opportunity to speed their wheels.

The summer visitors are now arriving in vast numbers, and there seems to be nobody so important as the liveried coachman who sits on the high box and flaunts his whip over the heads of the lowly passers by.

This morning I left my safety in front of a store on Thames street, and was not in the store over three minutes, when I saw a two horse carriage drive in towards the curb directly in front of my wheel, and then backed in until it hit my wheel and turned it over on the sidewalk. The coachman paid no attention to it, however, so when I came out of course he deserved a good blowing up, which I can assure you he got. I would like to ask you if there is any redress in such a case; my wheel was not hurt to any extent, although the handle bar was bent somewhat. It is not for the damage done the wheel that I am after, but the wheelmen in this vicinity do not want this thing to contend with all summer.

The city ordinance does not permit bicycles on the sidewalk, and if nothing can be done in this case I shall invent a bicycle-awning strap.

Please let me hear from you, and by so doing you will confer a great favor on the Newport boys. Yours respectfully,
CLARENCE A. HAMMETT, Newport, R. I.

[We should say there was recourse in law vs. the employer of coachmen, if it could be proven that the coachman was careless or malicious.—ED.

ROUTE FROM NASHVILLE, TENN., TO NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.

Editor Bicycling World: I noticed in your issue of May 10th an inquiry from E. H. Gierach, asking the best route from Cincinnati to Cleveland. Mr. E. D. Fisher, of Nashville, Tenn., who with several others made the trip from Nashville to Niagara Falls, awheel. He passed through Cincinnati and Cleveland, and in answer to my inquiry from him he writes as follows:

"Left Cincinnati and passed through Hamilton, Trenton, Middletown, Miamisburg to Dayton, 60 miles. From Dayton, through Fairfield, Enon to Springfield, 26 miles. From Springfield, through Urbanna to Fountain Park, 30 miles. From Fountain Park, over good roads through Woodstock, Marysville, Richwood, Prospect, Marion, (two miles from Marion the pike came to an end and we had dirt road through) Caledonia to Galion, 70 miles, 24 miles of this being dirt road. Same dirt road through Leesville, West Liberty, Shelby, Plymouth, Greenwich, New London, Rochester, 51 miles. Dirt road through Wellington to Elyria and from Elyria to Cleveland over mixed dirt, sand and plank roads, 50 miles. Yours truly, L. A. W. 17,856. FRED J. BOWEN.

W. WINDLE RULED A PROFESSIONAL.

THE Providence Journal has the following to say about the suspension of W. Windle: "The axe has fallen. William Windle, of Milbury, Mass., is no longer an amateur. The fastest man on the amateur race track in this country, and perhaps the fastest man in the world, can no longer compete in the amateur events. He is not likely to compete as a professional. The Racing Board, which has already displayed remarkable energy and straightforwardness about it, and has given indications of possessing no nonsense, has not hesitated to act when the victim of the guillotine was a young man of attractive personal accomplishments, without a stain on his record, and perhaps the most popular young fellow on the race track to-day. Windle has lost his amateur status through violation of the L. A. W. by-laws, Article V., Section 4, Clause D."

SIDWELL AND SABEN.

A NEW FIRM.—ANNOUNCEMENT.

WE wish to announce that we have taken the floor at 152 Congress street lately occupied by the Rudge agency, and are prepared to furnish all styles of bicycles and tricycles at the regular manufacturers' prices. We also carry a large stock of second-hand machines of all makes and sizes, and can sell at prices to suit all purchasers.

We have also a perfectly equipped repair shop, for the repair of all styles of wheels in the most thorough manner and at a reasonable price. Mr. Arthur Sidwell has been identified with the bicycle industry during the last ten years: four years of which he was foreman of Rudge & Co. repair shops in Coventry, Eng., and four years as foreman of the Rudge Agency repair shops in this country. This experience has made him familiar with all kinds of repairing necessary to any make of wheel.

Mr. H. M. Saben was connected with Stoddard, Lovering & Co. for three years, was manager of the Rudge Agency during the season of 1888, and late head salesman for the Pope Mfg. Co.

We are thus enabled to give our customers the benefit of a large and varied experience which will be of great value when selecting machines, or giving estimates and attending to the various repairs needed. Your patronage is respectfully solicited.

SIDWELL & SABEN.

THE Light Champion surprised a great many people at the great May tournament in Chicago. Ned Reading, with the same machine he made his hundred-mile indoor world's record at Omaha not long since, won the event of the week, the six-day professional race, while the most important amateur races were won by Light Champion riders.

ONE of the neatest little extras we have seen is the attachment made by the Singer Mfg. Co., for the purpose of holding the handle-bars and front fork of a Singer safety stiff when it is desired to lean the cycle against a wall or post. We all know how difficult it is to steady a safety when leaning it against anything. This device does away with the annoyance at once. It is easy of attachment and instantaneous in application and removal. Those who have Singer safeties will do well to write Messrs. Singer & Co., for circular and prices.

We have been told that nearly every tourist who makes a tour exceeding a thousand miles, rides a Columbia.

HOWARD A. SMITH & CO., Newark, N. J., have improved the spoke grip so that old riders say it is about perfection.

STILLMAN G. WHITTAKER is again on the road for the Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co. He spent last week in St. Louis, looking after the interests of the American cycles, and is now in Louisville.

HOWARD A. SMITH & CO., Newark, N. J., can supply the trade with Tucker's Elastic Straps, by mail, 25 cents.

RIDERS of Columbias still continue to win the road and path races. Lumsden recently won the time medal for the best time in the Pullman handicap road race on the 30th of May, and at the same time men on Columbias won twelve out of twenty prizes.

AFTER two or three years' experience Howard A Smith & Co., Newark, N. J., have secured a perfect Graphite Lubricating Compound which is stated as the greatest thing for safeties yet placed on the market.

DECORATION DAY was a gala one for the Light Champion. Under Frank Bodach it won the Pullman race in the best time of the day, bar the time of the three scratch men. Bodach chose an American Rambler as first prize. The Light Champion under John Bensinger took the time cup in the great Irvington-Milburn road race also.

The Pope Mfg. Co. have enlarged their repair shop at their Boston office, fitting it up with new machinery and a powerful electric motor. The repair shop is devoted to local business, and is one of the best of its class in the country.

A very pretty ride and one that is indulged in by many wheelmen is the trip from any of the suburbs of Boston to Highlandville, where the Springfield Bi. Mfg. Co.'s factory is situated. In going from Boston, the shortest way is to take Beacon street to Newton Centre, then take the road to the left crossing the railroad track and on past the Pettee Machine Works up into Highlandville. From the centre of Highlandville it is about a two-minute ride and wheelmen will be cordially welcome by Mr. J. B. McCune, President of the company. The factory is fitted with Pratt & Whitney's finest machinery, and to the ardent cycler who loves to see how every little detail is made it is very interesting and will certainly repay any one who took the trouble to see how bicycles were manufactured. The factory is very pleasantly situated and combines a great many natural advantages. About 125 men are employed at present, although at times a night gang have been employed to catch up with orders.

One of our most original advertisers is the Sterling Cycle Co. They have always something to read or see in their space that will catch the eye. Mr. Eliott understands "the art."

John W. Badger rode a "Singer" Safety 5 miles "hands off," on the 9th inst., through and around "Back Bay" Park, this city. He claims this a record for safety bicycle. John B. Souve, W. L. Ross and others witnessed the ride.

The Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co. furnish employment to about 300 men at their factory in Chicago. They write that they have been running over time the entire season and are still far behind their orders. Unlike most manufacturers and importers they have found a lively demand for their ordinaries. This, they claim, is probably due, for the most part, to their wildly scattered clientage, which they say is by no means confined to the cities where the safety craze is in vogue.

Messrs. S. & J. Davis, the caterers of Newark and Orange, are very popular with wheel clubs and wheelmen. Their large restaurant and ice-cream parlor on Main street is a favorite resort with wheelmen in the Oranges. Dinner is served in the cafe, and special attention is paid to the comfort of wheelmen.

The California Division held its meet and parade at Los Angeles, May 30. The Seventh Regiment Band headed the procession. In the afternoon races were held, results of which we give in our racing columns.

Two races have already been run between Lumsden and Stone, one at St. Louis and one at Chicago. Lumsden won them both on a Columbia racer. The third is yet to be run.

The Updike House is appointed League Hotel, for East Greenwich.

CHAS. S. DAVOL,
Rhode Island Chief Consul.

Massachusetts Division.

The regular monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Division Board of Officers was held at the Clarendon on Saturday, June 8.

In the absence of Chief Consul Emery, Vice Consul Robinson presided.

It was voted expedient to issue another edition of the Road Book after it shall have been revised and corrected, and the addition of new routes made. The Chief Consul and Vice Consul were appointed a committee to carry out this work.

A committee consisting of Chief Consul Emery, Vice Consul Robinson, Dr. W. G. Kendall, Abbot Bassett and C. S. Howard was appointed to arrange for the annual outing of the Division at Cottage City during August next ensuing.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The Chief Consul of the Massachusetts Division has made a very favorable contract with a Boston firm for the making of uniforms from the cloth adopted as League cloth by the National organization, and

Whereas, Under that contract Massachusetts League members can obtain the uniform at a much less price than is charged by the official tailor of the League situate in New York; and moreover a great majority may enjoy the advantage of being measured and fitted by the tailor who is to make up the goods, and

Whereas, Under this arrangement Massachusetts members are saved the money they have been paying to tailors for taking their measures, are saved upwards of a dollar on each uniform, and in addition a profit is paid to the League on the cloth sold, and

Whereas, It has been demonstrated that five wheelmen will wear the uniform if it is made in Boston, where one will wear it if it is made in New York, and

Whereas, Massachusetts members of the L. A. W. believe that the affairs of the organization should be conducted for the benefit of the members, and not to the benefit of dealers at the expense of the members, and

Whereas, The Uniform Committee of the L. A. W. has taken action which debars us from the full benefit of the favorable contract made by the Chief Consul, now be it

Resolved, That we, the Massachusetts Board of Officers, respectfully but firmly protest against the action of the Uniform Committee in taking away from the Secretary the privilege to sell League cloth.

Resolved, That we deem it disadvantageous and expensive to have uniforms made by a firm so far distant from us as the official tailor, and an unjust tax on League members to allow any single firm a profit of thirty-three cents a yard on cloth made for and controlled by the League, thus giving them this large margin of advantage over every tailor in America who may have an order from a member to make a uniform.

Resolved, That we believe League members are paying too much for the uniform, since three Boston firms of good standing will pay the official tailors a profit of thirty-three cents a yard on the cloth, and still make the uniform at a much less price than is demanded by said official tailor.

Resolved, That we believe the States should have the right to appoint League tailors within their own borders, believing that members can get better fits and pay less money for the uniform, and thereby lead to a more general adoption of the same.

Resolved, That we ask for a reconsideration of the action taken by the Uniform Committee.

Resolved, That, in the event of a refusal of our request, we deem it for the best interests of our Division to adopt a uniform of its own, made from cloth that shall be controlled by the Division.

Resolved, That a committee of three, consisting of of the Chief Consul and two others whom he may select, be appointed to first confer with the Uniform Committee and the Executive Committee with a view to procuring a reconsideration of the action of the Uniform Committee.

Resolved, That if the present disadvantageous and expensive process of procuring the L. A. W. uniform is continued this committee shall be empowered to procure samples of cloth and bids for making up the same preparatory to the adoption of a Massachusetts uniform, and they shall report their doings for adoption to this body.

The meeting then adjourned.

ELMER G. WHITNEY, Scc. pro tem.

Show Your League Ticket!!

To the members of the New York State Division:

Your attention is called to the following Circular Letter to Hotel Keepers:

All violations of the agreement on the part of the hotels should be at once reported to this office:

"Dear Sir—I desire to again call your attention to the following extracts from the agreement with this Division signed by you:

"That I will during the continuance of this agreement furnish to any member of the L. A. W., producing his Membership Ticket for the current year, accomodations equal in all respects to those furnished regular guests, at the following rates:

That I will not accord any privileges, reductions, use or inspection of the "Record Book," or other benefits derivable under this agreement to any Wheelmen except members of the L. A. W., who shall produce their individual Tickets of Membership for the current year.

To aid you in carrying out these provisions, which were inserted in the agreement in order to protect both the hotels and the L. A. W., from imposition by wheelmen not members of the organization, I enclose a Facsimile of the Membership Ticket for the current year which please preserve for comparison."

Yours respectfully,
W. S. BULL,
